PREFACE.

THE original edition, in which each of the several books was published by itself (or two epistles together if there were two to the same assembly), and the reprints of several, which seem to have attracted more attention than others, being exhausted, I publish a new edition of this translation of the New Testament, as a whole, in a more convenient form.

It has been in no way my object to produce a learned work; but, as I had access to books, and various sources of information, to which of course the great mass of readers, to whom the word of God was equally precious, had not, I desired to furnish them as far as I was able with the fruit of my own study, and of all I could gather from those sources, that they might have the word of God in English, in as perfect a representation of it in that language as possible.

In the first edition I had made use of a German work professing to give the Textus Receptus, with a collection of the various readings adopted by all or any of the editors of most repute, Griesbach, Lachmann, Scholz, Tischendorf, and some others. But the Textus Receptus was itself often changed in the text of the work, and it was found that several of these changes had escaped notice. My plan was, where the chief editors agreed, to adopt their reading, not to attempt to make a text of my own. My object was a more correct translation: only there was no use in translating what all intelligent critics held to be a mistake in the copy. For, as is known, the Textus Receptus had no real authority, nor was indeed the English Version taken from it,—it was an earlier work by some years. With some variations, which critics have more or less carefully counted, the Textus Receptus was a reprint of earlier editions. Of these Stephanus 1550 is the one of most note: there was besides this Erasmus and Beza. Erasmus was the first published; the Complutensian Polyglott the first printed: then Stephanus; and then Beza. The Elzevirs were not till the next century; and the expression in their preface of textus ab omnibus receptus led to the expression of “textus receptus,” or received text. The Authorized Version was mainly taken from Stephens, or Beza. The reader who is curious as to these things may see a full account in Scrivener’s “Introduction” or other similar Introductions. After this came, beginning with Fell at Oxford, various critical editions: Mill, Bengel, Wetstein (who greatly enlarged the field of criticism), then Griesbach, Matthæi (the last giving the Russian Codices, which are Constantinopolitan so called), Lachmann, Scholz, Tischendorf, and quite recently Tregelles. I name only those of critical celebrity. We possess besides, in connection with commentaries, Meyer, De Wette, and Alford.

In my first edition my translation was formed on the concurrent voice of Griesbach, Lachmann, Scholz, and Tischendorf: the first of soberer judgment and critical acumen and discernment; the next with a narrow system of taking only the very earliest MSS, so that sometimes he might have only one or two; the third excessively carelessly printed, but taking the mass of Constantinopolitan MSS as a rule; the last of first-rate competency and diligence of research, at first somewhat rash in changing, but in subsequent editions returning more soberly to what he had despised. Still, if they agreed, one might be pretty sure that what they all rejected was a mere mistake in copying.

PREFACE.

Scholz, in a lecture in England gave up his system, and stated that in another edition he should adopt the Alexandrian readings he had rejected. That is the general tendency since: Tregelles laying it down strictly as a fixed rule.

Meanwhile, since my first edition, founded on the concurrent judgment of the four great modern editors, following the received text unchanged where the true reading was a disputed point among them, the Sinaitic MS has been discovered; the Vatican published; Porphyry's of Acts and St. Paul's and most of the catholic epistles and the Apocalypse, and others in the Mon. In. of Tischendorf, as well as his seventh edition. These, with Alford and Meyer's (not yet consulted for the text), and De Wette, furnished a mass of new materials. Tregelles' too was published as a whole since my present edition was finished, though not printed.

All this called for further labour. I had to leave Scholz pretty much aside; (his work cannot be called a careful one, and he had left himself aside); and take in Tischendorf's 7th, Alford, Meyer, De Wette. I have further, in every questioned reading, compared the Sinaitic, Vatican, Dublin, Alexandrian, Codex Bezae, Codex Ephraemi, St. Gall, Claromontanus, Hearne's Laud in the Acts, Porphyry in great part, the Vulgate, the old Latin in Sabatier and Blanchini. The Syriac I had from others; it was only as to words and passages left out or inserted I used the book itself; not being a Syriac scholar I could not use it for myself. The Zacynthius of Luke I also consulted; with occasional reference to the fathers; Stephanus, Beza, Erasmus I.

The labour involved in such a work those only know who have gone through it by personal reference to the copies themselves. All edited MSS I have compared. I was helped by an index to Tischendorf, Lachmann, Sinaitic, most carefully formed, first in part by a deceased and valued friend, then by Mr. Charles Pridham, and they have been verified for the most part by Mr. William Kelly with other MS authority, with a very careful and useful revision of the English result and other critical editions by the Publisher himself. The observation of details is a peculiar gift, and not mine, so that I have much to thank these friends for. But I have worked it all myself with the edited MSS to come to a decision. But, I repeat, my object was not a learned work, or critical edition, but to furnish a correct translation of the best ascertained text I could succeed in procuring; and this labour I owed to the word of God, and to the Lord's people who value it.

In the translation itself there is little changed. A few passages made clearer; small inaccuracies corrected, which had crept in by human infirmity; occasional uniformity in words and phrases produced where the Greek was just the same. In the translation I could feel delight—it gave me the word and mind of God more accurately: in the critical details there is much labour and little food. I can only trust that the Christian may find the fruit of it in increased accuracy.

As the editors I have named had not the Sinaitic nor Porphyrian MS, I have occasionally had to judge for myself where these authorities affected the question much, or have occasionally put the matter as questionable in a note, where I could not decide for myself.

I will now say a few words as to these authorities. As to the general certainty of the text, all these researches have only proved it. The meddling of ecclesiastics has been one chief source of questionable readings; partly wilful, partly innocently. The attempt to assimilate the Gospels, which passages bear in "He" who referring referred into the text in Mat. not in other Latin and some MSS, because it is not such like in Mat. Other MSS. the care, making enough to establish the older comparison and conjectures are not conjectured. The three Greek MSS. and the fragment, as from John VIII. was left out in MSS. to moralise in of found that in MSS. out because following MSS. I would MSS. the Gospel Matthew without to the whole MSS. took place character of his tracing the MSS. all the words speak the other gives the Mat and ascension speak. I have always departed from that from one commentary has corrected which There was not But it does the phenomenon very old, and to me the oldest in ecclesiastical MSS. is not of It was what has been in the library.

the Gospels, which was wilful; and then, more innocently, arising from the passages read in ecclesiastical services, such changes as "Jesus" put for "He" where it was needed; as in the services "he" at the beginning referred to nothing, and "Jesus" was then by copyists introduced into the text. The attempt to make the Lord's prayer in Luke like that in Matthew is another instance; so, if we are to believe Alford and most other editors, the leaving out "first-born" in the Sinaitic and Vatican and some others, (which I note because it affects the oldest MSS,) because it looked as if the mother of our Lord had other children; and such like instances. But these do not make any very great difficulty. Other MSS and versions (which are earlier than all MSS), with a little care, make the real state of the case plain; but no MSS are early enough to escape these handlings. So that the system which takes merely the oldest MSS as authorities in themselves, without adequate comparison and weighing internal evidence, necessarily fails in result. Conjectures are not to be trusted, but weighing the evidence as to facts is not conjecture.

The three greatest questions are 1 Timothy iii. 16, the beginning of John viii., and the last verses of Mark xvi. In the first I pronounce no judgment, as full dissertations have been written on it by many critics. As to John viii. I do not doubt its genuineness. Augustine tells us it was left out in some untrustworthy MSS because it was thought injurious to morality: and not only so, but in my examination of the text I found that in one of the best MSS of the old Latin, two pages had been torn out because it was there, carrying away part of the text preceding and following. As to the end of Mark and its apparently independent form, I would remark that we have two distinct closes to the Lord's life in the Gospels: his appearance to his disciples in Galilee, related in Matthew without any account of his ascension, which indeed answers to the whole character of that Gospel; and at Bethany where his ascension took place, which is the part related in Luke, answering to the character of his Gospel: one, with the remnant of the Jews owned, and sending the message out on earth to Gentiles: the other from heaven to all the world, beginning with Jerusalem itself; one Messianic so to speak, the other heavenly. Now Mark, up to the end of verse eight, gives the Matthew close; from verse nine a summary of the Bethany and ascension scene, and it is a distinct part, a kind of appendix so to speak.

I have always stated the Textus Receptus in the margin where it is departed from, except in the Revelation, Erasmus having translated that from one poor and imperfect MS, which being accompanied by a commentary had to be separated by a transcriber; and even so Erasmus corrected what he had from the Vulgate, or guessed what he had not.* There was not much use in quoting this.

But it does not seem to me that any critics have really accounted for the phenomena of MSS. We have now a vast mass of them, some few very old, and a great many more comparatively modern. But it seems to me the oldest, as Sinaitic and Vatican, bear the marks of having been in ecclesiastical hands. I do not mean that the result is seriously affected by it, for their work is pretty easily detected and corrected, and thus is not of any great consequence; but, as it is easily detected, proved to be there. After all research, it cannot be denied, I think, that there are two great schools of readings. The same MS may vary as to the school it follows in different parts. Thus Griesbach says A was Constantinopolitan in the Gospels and Alexandrian in the Epistles, to use conventional names. So Porphyrius, which I found in six or eight chapters of Acts so uniformly to go with the Textus Receptus, that I consulted it scarcely at all afterwards; not in Paul's Epistles. Still there are the two schools. Of the one, Sinaitic, Vatican, and Dublin, are the most perfect examples. For that in the main they are of this school, though with individual peculiarities, cannot, it seems to me, be questioned a moment. Of these, Dublin, marked Z, is by far the most correct copy: I remarked but one blunder in copying. The Vatican, as a copy, far superior to Sinaiticus, which is by no means a correct one, in the Revelation quite the contrary, however valuable as giving us the whole New Testament and being the oldest copy perhaps we have. But we must remember that we have none till after the empire was christian and that Diocletian had destroyed all the copies he could get at. This Alexandrian text so called is the oldest we have in existing Greek MSS. The Alexandrian MS is not uniformly Alexandrian in text. But, if Scrivener is to be trusted, the Peschito Syriac agrees much more with A than with B; yet it is the oldest version that exists, nearly two hundred years older than any MS we have, made at the end of the first or beginning of the second century. This is not the case with the old Latin. It cannot be said to be Alexandrian, but approaches nearer to it. But then even here is a singular phenomenon; one ancient MS of it, Brixianus, is uniformly the Textus Receptus. I think I only found one exception. Where did this come from? The Vulgate is a good deal corrected from the Alexandrian text, though not always following it. Thus we may class them: κ , B, Z, L, which last follows B very constantly; then we have A and a long list of uncials going with it, not so ancient or much thought of; so that in Alford you will find 'A, &c.' There is another class of about the sixth century, to which date Z also is attributed, C which is independent, and Porph. which in epistles chiefly follows the Alexandrian but not unfrequently tends to T. R. and A. In the Acts it is, as far as I have examined it, T. R. Δ , or St. Gall, is always T. R. If in the Gospels A and B go together, we may be tolerably confident of the reading, of course weighing other testimony. D, it is known, is peculiar, though characteristically Alexandrian. The result to me is that, while about the text as a whole there is nothing uncertain at all, though in very few instances questions may be raised, the history of it is not really ascertained. I avow my arriving at no conclusion, and I think I can say no one can give that history: the phenomena are unsolved.

I have said thus much on the criticism of the text, and the MSS, that persons not versed in the matter may not hazard themselves in forming conclusions without any real knowledge of the questions. Such a book as Tischendorf's English Testament I think mischievous. You have the English Version questioned continually, and κ , B, A, given at the bottom of the page, for persons who know nothing about them to doubt about the text, and no more. Thus, to say no more, the readings of A in the Epistles have a totally different degree of importance than in the Gospels. And all becomes uncertain. In most of these cases the true reading is not doubted a moment by Tischendorf himself, yet it only makes people doubt about all.

PREFACE.

I have followed a collation of the best authorities, but where, though for trifling differences, you have κ, B, L, or B, L, on one side, and A, &c., on the other, I confess I have no entire certainty that B, L, are right.

In the next place the reader has not a revision of the Authorized Version, but a translation from the best Greek text I could attain to any certain knowledge of. I do not doubt a moment that numbers of phrases of the Authorized Version will be found in the translation. Filled as the mind is with it from constant use, it suggested itself naturally to the mind. I had no wish to reject it. But a revision of the Authorized Version, if desirable for ecclesiastical use, is not I think in itself a wise attempt. I rather doubt the justness of the taste which attempts to revise the Authorized Version. The new bit does not suit the old, and is the more distasteful from its juxtaposition. Imitation is seldom good taste, seldom undetected; it wants nature, and in these things nature is good taste, and attracts.

I have freely used every help I could. I do not mention Grammars and Dictionaries, as they are applicable to all books, and known; but I have used Meyer, whose continuators are very inferior, and from whom a large part of Alford is taken; but I have consulted Alford too, and De Wette. Ellicott is excellent in what he has done; Kypke most useful in what he affords. I have used them for the exegesis of the text as Greek, not for any doctrine in any case. Fritzsche, who is grammatically very full; Bleek, who very much exhausts learning in his book on the Hebrews; and Delitzsch and others I have occasionally referred to. But I do not think many of them of any great value: there is Kuinoel on the historical books; Calvin of less than I should have supposed. There are Bengel, Hammond, Elsley, Wolff, besides other German writers; and Stanley, Jowett, Eadie, &c., in English. But I confess reference to the latter to try did not lead me to repeat it much. What I sought was the thorough study of the text; opinions were of little moment. Poole's Synopsis and Bloomfield have been at hand for older commentators.

Of translations, Diodati's Italian is the best of the old ones, then the Dutch, then the English. Bengel's German is a very good one, and there is, though tainted by their doctrine occasionally, a very literal one called Bieleburger. Other translations are Kistermacher, Gœssner, Van Ess, which are Roman Catholic; a corrected one of Luther by Meyer; the Swiss one by Piscator, far better than Luther's. These, though I referred to them in a translation made into German, I used comparatively little now or not at all. Of the French, Diodati's is literal, but hardly French; Martin and Ostervald little to be trusted; and Arnaud's, I may say, not at all: Luther's the most inaccurate I know. Besides this there are in Latin the Vulgate and Beza. De Wette's German is elegant, but from excessive leaving out the auxiliary verbs which is allowed in German, affected; and in the Old Testament, though a good Hebraist, not to be trusted, from rationalistic principles. His Isaiah is Gesenius's.

I have used all helps I could, but the translation is borrowed in no way from any; it is my own translation, but I have used every check I could to secure exactness. I believe the scriptures to be the inspired word of God, received by the Holy Ghost and communicated by His power, though, thank God, through mortal men: what is divine made withal thoroughly human, as the blessed Lord Himself whom it reveals, though never ceasing to be divine. And this is its unspeakable value; thoroughly and entirely divine, "words which the Holy Ghost teacheth," yet perfectly and divinely adapted to man as being by man. My endeavour has been to present to the merely English reader the original as closely as possible. Those who make a version for public use must of course adapt their course to the public. Such has not been my object or thought, but to give the student of scripture, who cannot read the original, as close a translation as possible.

There are some remarks I would desire to make on the English Authorized Version, which would debar me from attempting to correct it, which indeed would be a more ambitious task. Its value and beauty are known, and I need not dilate upon. I have lived upon it, though of course studying the Greek myself; I have no wish to underrate it. But now that everything is inquired and searched into, there are some points to be remarked which make it desirable that the English reader should have something more exact.

There is one principle which the translators avow themselves, which is a very great and serious mistake. Where a word occurs in Greek several times in the same passage or even sentence, they render it as far as they possibly can by different words in English. In some cases the effect is very serious; in all the connection is lost. Thus in John v. we have "judgment" committed to the Son; shall not come into "condemnation;" the resurrection of "damnation." The word is the same in Greek, and every one can see that "not coming into judgment" is a very different thing from "not coming into condemnation." The whole force of the passage depends on this word, and its contrast with life. Here the sense is wholly changed. In another the connection is lost; Romans xv. 12, 13: "In him shall the Gentiles trust;" "now the God of hope." "Trust" is the same word as "hope," only a verb. "The Gentiles hope;" "now the God of hope." I only mention these as examples.

In some cases, as "the clergy," "the Lord's coming," "the law," theological views have biased the translators. Thus in Acts i. we have "ordained" put in when there is no word at all. All there is in Greek is "must one be a witness." So in Acts xiv., "They ordained them elders:" it is simply "they chose elders for them," χειροτονέω. I am well aware in ecclesiastical Greek, borrowed from this passage doubtless, and their new ideas attached to it, that the word came to mean this ecclesiastically. But it is not its own meaning. It is "to choose," as 2 Corinthians viii. 19; Acts x. 41.

As to the Lord's coming, Acts iii. 19, there is no excuse for translating ὅπως ἂν "when." It is an attempt to give it a sense. Again, in 2 Thessalonians ii. 2, "as that the day of Christ is at hand;" the word translated "is at hand," is "present" or "come." It is twice used (once in Romans viii. 38 and once in 1 Corinthians iii. 22) for "present" in contrast with "to come." It alters evidently the whole sense, and the true meaning gives the key to the whole passage. Their imagination being wrought on by these false teachers, they thought that the day was come in the tribulation in which they were suffering; whereas the Lord's coming would be rest to them and trouble to their persecutors.

But a more serious mistake is in the words in 1 John iii. 4, "Sin is the transgression of the law." A definition of sin is a serious thing, but this is not what is said. The word used is that which adverbially is employed in Romans ii. for "sinning without law," and is so translated in contrast with "sinning under law." If sin were the transgression of the law, it could not be said "until the law sin was in the world;" it could not be said "sin by the commandment became exceeding sinful," for there was no sin till the commandment came. But it is not so. It is "sin is lawlessness." It is the wicked will of man; if law comes, then it transgresses it; but it is sin without it, because I ought to have no will of my own, but be in obedience. Hence the reasoning of the apostle: "Death reigned from Adam to Moses over those who had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression." This is a quotation from Hosea vi. 7: "They like men [Adam] have transgressed the covenant." Adam had a law, Israel had one; they transgressed alike: but death reigned over those from Adam to Moses, over those who had not: sin was there, for death was there. I have enlarged a little more on this because the definition of sin is a serious thing, and theology will not hear of such an alteration. Let God be true and every man a liar. It is so translated where doctrine was not in question, not only in Romans ii. but in 1 Timothy i. 9; "lawless and disobedient." It is never translated "transgression of the law" but here, generally "iniquity:" ἀνομία is twice translated "transgression;" but it is never said, in any form of the word, to be "transgression of the law" but here.

As regards details of translation I have a few remarks to make. I have sought in some instances to render the particles more distinctly; but, rich as English is, no care will make the shades and colourings of thought in one language answer to another. It is oftener more a question of metaphysics, or metaphysical philology, than of grammar, and grammarians do not always command my assent in these matters, though I am glad to learn from them. In our own tongue few remark these shades of meaning, though they exist, as "indeed," "truly," "surely," "forsooth." Habit, and individual habit form the mind in such cases. See the use of εὐθὺς in Mark. In St. John's writings I have to remark that the personal pronoun, generally emphatic where inserted, is used so constantly that it can hardly be considered such. I had marked each instance in the first edition, but it arrested the eye inconveniently for the general sense. This the printer has sought to remedy by another and slighter mark. The same character of style is seen in his constant use of ἐκεῖνος. Another peculiarity is to be noticed in John, the constant use of ἵνα for ὄτι. In Luke we have καί for ὄτι.

I have further to remark on the aorist, as to which a great fuss has been made lately, that English is not Greek. The large use of auxiliary verbs in English, and very sparing use of them in Greek, modifies the whole bearing of tenses in the two languages. The past participle with a present auxiliary is not a simple Greek perfect, not actual continuance in effect of a past action; a past action morally estimated as present or in force at present is just as often its force. The only simple tenses in English are both aorist: one signifying accomplishing an act, the other an accomplished act.* And as the latter becomes historic the use of it in many cases for the Greek aorist falsifies the sense. Thus, a case in which none, I believe, denies it, ἔγραψα. If I say "I wrote," it is in another letter (unless specified otherwise); "I have written to you" is a past act made present by "have," and it is (unless specified to be in a letter gone but not received) the letter he is occupied with. And the mere doctrine of the aorist in Greek in no way meets

* For this reason there are only two tenses in English at all; the future, so called, is the present intention; for an accomplishing or accomplished act is not future.

the case. "I wrote to you not to do it" is a past letter supposed to be received. "I have written to you," he has done it, but it is supposed to be not yet received. "I have written to you in the letter" is the present one. Now what is true of ἔγραψα is true of many others. When I want to give, not an accomplishing aorist, I say, not "I write," but "am writing;" because "writing" is the act, "am" absolutely present. But I say, "I write five letters every day in the year." "I wrote a long letter to him" is an historical fact. "I have written a long letter to him" is a moral assertion to which I attach present value. "Have," with the past participle, is used however for the perfect. But to aorize in English all the Greek aorists is, I judge, simply a blunder. When the aorist is historic, the simple preterite tense may well answer to it in English. I cannot say I have always succeeded in rightly distinguishing the cases: there are cases as to which I have myself doubted.

I have occasionally left old forms where they are more reverential, as "saith" for "says," "unto" for "to," &c. I have left "ye" for the nominative of "you." It is the Dutch gij and u, which last in familiar spoken Dutch is used for gij, and is now become usual in English. Both languages have the Plat Deutsch for their origin. To these things I attach no great importance; to reverence I do.

And this leads me to the use of the words "do homage" instead of "worship," which I do only for the sake of other people's minds not used to such questions. I have not a doubt of the justness of the change, and just because in modern English "worship" is used for what is rendered to God only: when the English translation was made it was not, and the use of it now falsifies the sense in three quarters of the passages it is used in. It is quite certain that in the vast majority of instances of persons coming to the Lord they had not the least idea of owning Him as God. And it falsifies the sense in a material point to use the word now. That we worship Christ who do know He is God is another matter. In the English Bible it is all right, because worship did not mean what it does now. The man when he is married says, "With my body I thee worship." It is said in 1 Chronicles xxix. 20, They "worshipped Jehovah and the king," which is simple blasphemy, if it be used in the modern sense. If the reader is curious, he may look at Wetstein, Matthew ii. 2; Minucius Felix, end of chapter ii; and compare Job xxxi. 27; and Herodotus i. 134 for the customs of Persia. It would not have been worth mentioning but for simple souls.

The use of a large or small "s" is of extreme difficulty in the case of the word Spirit; not in giving it when the Holy Spirit is simply spoken of personally. There it is simple enough. But as dwelling in us, our state by it, and the Holy Spirit itself, are so blended as to make it then very difficult; because it is spoken of as our state, and then as the Holy Ghost. If it be put large, we lose the first; if small, the Spirit personally. I can only leave it with this warning, calling the attention of the reader to it. It is a blessed thought that it is so blended in power that our state is so spoken of, but if we lose the divine person, that blessing itself is lost. The reader may see, not the difficulty, for it does not exist there, but the blending of the effect and the person in Romans viii. 27.

It may perhaps be useful to some of my readers to give the chronological order of the Epistles: and first those that are certain: 1 and 2 Thessalonians; 1 and 2 Corinthians; Romans, Ephesians, Colossians,

PREFACE.

Philippians, and Philemon; the last four when a prisoner. Galatians was written from fourteen to twenty years after the apostle was first called, and after he had laboured some time in Asia Minor, perhaps while he was at Ephesus, as it was not a very long time after their conversion: 1 Timothy, on occasion of the apostle's leaving Ephesus,—when exactly is not clear. 2 Timothy was written at the close of his life when about to be martyred. It is questioned if Paul ever got out of prison. If he did, 2 Timothy was written when he was seized the second time. Titus refers to a journey of Paul's to Crete; it is not said when; perhaps, it has been thought, when he resided so long at Ephesus. It is morally synchronous with 1 Timothy. It has not been the purpose of God to give us chronological dates for them, and in divine wisdom. The moral order is clear. The way in which 2 Timothy refers to the ruin of what 1 Timothy builds the order of, is plain enough. Hebrews was written late, in view of the approaching judgment of Jerusalem, and calls on christian Jews to separate themselves from what God was about to judge. The Epistle of James was written when this separation had in no way taken place. Jewish Christians are still seen as forming part of the Israel not yet finally cast out, only owning Jesus to be the Lord of glory. But, as all the catholic epistles, it was written towards the close of the apostolic history, when Christianity had been widely received by the tribes of Israel, and the Jewish history was now closing in judgment. In 1 Peter we see that the gospel had widely spread among the Jews. It is written to the christian Jews of the dispersion. The second of course is later, at the close when he was about to put off his tabernacle and would leave them in writing the warnings apostolic care would soon no longer furnish. Hence, like Jude, it contemplates grievous departure from the path of godliness on the part of those who had received the faith, and a mocking of the testimony that the Lord was coming. 1 John insists on its being the last time. Apostates were already manifested, apostates from the truth of Christianity denying the Father and the Son, as well as with Jewish unbelief denying that Jesus was the Christ. Jude comes morally before John. There false brethren had crept in unawares, but the evil is pursued to the final rebellion and judgment. It differs from 2 Peter in viewing the evil not simply as wickedness but departure from first estate. Revelation completes this picture by shewing Christ judging in the midst of the candlesticks; the first having left its first love, and threatened, if it did not repent and return to its original estate, to remove the candlestick: the final judgment being in Thyatira, and in Laodicea; and then shews the judgment of the world and the return of the Lord, the kingdom and heavenly city and eternal state. This general character of departure and failure stamped on all the last books from Hebrews to Revelation is very striking: Paul's, save 2 Timothy, which gives individual direction in the midst of ruin, though prophesying of this state of things, express the labour and care of the wise masterbuilder. The interest of their date is in connection with his history in the Acts; but Hebrews, and the other Epistles, and Revelation, all shew predicted departure already set in, (for even 1 Peter, which is least so, tells us the time was come for judgment to begin at the house of God,) and so the judgment of the professing church, and then prophetically of the world risen up against God. This closing character of the catholic epistles is very striking and instructive.

PREFACE.

The contents of the books of the New Testament must be sought elsewhere : I can only give here some very general thoughts upon them. It will be remarked at once that the character of the first three Gospels is different from that of John. The principle of this difference is this : the first three present Christ, though in different characters, to man to be received, and shew his rejection by man. John begins with this as the starting point of his Gospel, being the display of the divine nature, and what man and the Jew was in presence of. He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not. He came to His own and His own received Him not. Hence we have sovereign grace, election ; man must be born again, wholly anew ; and the Jews are all through treated as reprobate ; the divine and incarnate person of the Lord as the foundation of all blessing, and a work of atonement which is the basis even of the sinless condition of the new heavens and the new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness, together with, at the close, the gift of the Comforter, form the subject of the Gospel, in contrast with Judaism. Instead of tracing the Lord to the Abrahams and Davids, the roots of promise, or to Adam, to bring in as Son of man blessing to man, or giving the account of his service in ministry as the great Prophet that was to come, it brings a divine Person, the Word made flesh, into the world. What I have just said stamps their character on the four Gospels. Matthew is the fulfilment of promise and prophecy, Emmanuel among the Jews, rejected by them, stumbling thus on the stone of stumbling, and shewn to be really a sower ; fruit-seeking was in vain ; and then the Church and the kingdom substituted for Israel blessed by promises, which they refused in His person ; but after judgment, when they owned Him, to be owned under mercy. The ascension is not found in Matthew. I believe for this very reason Galilee in Matthew, not Jerusalem, is the scene of His interview with the disciples after His resurrection. He is with the poor of the flock, who owned the word of the Lord, where the light had sprung up to the people sitting in darkness. The commission to baptize goes forth hence and applies to Gentiles. Mark gives the servant-prophet, Son of God : Luke the Son of man, the first two chapters affording a lovely picture of the remnant in Israel : John a divine person come into the world, the foundation (redemption being accomplished) of the new creation ; the object and pattern of faith ; revealing the Father ; with the promise of the Comforter while away. Paul and John reveal our being in a wholly new place in Christ. But John is mainly occupied with revealing the Father in the Son to us, and thus life by the Son in us : Paul with presenting us to God, and His counsels in grace. If we confine ourselves to the Epistles, the latter only speaks of the Church, save 1 Peter ii., the building of living stones, but Paul only speaks of the body. The Acts shew the founding of the Church by the Holy Ghost come down from heaven, and then the Jerusalem or Palestinian labours of the apostles, and other free labourers, especially the work of Peter, and then that of Paul. With the history of the rejection of His gospel by the Jews of the dispersion the history of scripture closes.

GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW.

BOOK of the generation of Jesus Christ, Son of David, Son of Abraham.

² Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Judas and his brethren; and Judas begat Phares and Zara of Thamar; and Phares begat Esrom, and Esrom begat Aram, and Aram begat Aminadab, and Aminadab begat Naasson, and Naasson begat Salmon, and Salmon begat Booz of Rachab; and Booz begat Obed of Ruth; and Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David the king. And David the king begat Solomon, of her [that had been the wife] of ⁷ Urias; and Solomon begat Roboam, and Roboam begat Abia, ⁸ and Abia begat Asa, and Asa begat Josaphat, and Josaphat begat Joram, and Joram begat Ozias, ⁹ and Ozias begat Joatham, and Joatham begat Achaz, and Achaz ¹⁰ begat Ezekias, and Ezekias begat Manasses, and Manasses begat Amon, and Amon begat Josias, ¹¹ and Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, at the time of the ¹² carrying^a away of Babylon. And after the carrying away of Babylon, Jechonias begat Salathiel, and Salathiel begat Zorobabel, ¹³ and Zorobabel begat Abiud, and Abiud begat Eliakim, and Eliakim ¹⁴ begat Azor, and Azor begat Sadoc, and Sadoc begat Achim, and

^a In those days conquerors transported nations to other seats, and replaced them by others, that national feeling might not subsist, but dependence be complete. 'Carrying away' is feeble for this, but I

¹⁵ Achim begat Eliud, and Eliud begat Eleazar, and Eleazar begat Matthan, and Matthan begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ.

¹⁷ All the generations, therefore, from Abraham to David [were] fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying away of Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the carrying away of Babylon unto the Christ, fourteen generations.

¹⁸ Now the birth of Jesus Christ was thus: His mother, Mary, that is, having been betrothed to Joseph, before they came together, she was found to be with child of ¹⁹ [the] Holy Ghost. But Joseph, her husband, being [a] righteous [man], and unwilling^b to expose her publicly, purposed to have ²⁰ put her away secretly; but while he pondered on these things, behold, an angel of [the] Lord^c appeared to him in a dream, saying, Joseph, son of David, fear not to take to [thee] Mary, thy wife, for that which is begotten in ²¹ her is of [the] Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from ²² their sins. Now all this came to pass that that might be fulfilled which was spoken by [the] Lord^c know no other word.

^c 'Lord' is without the article, and signifies, as very often, 'Jehovah.'

²³ through^d the prophet, saying, Behold, the virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which is, being interpreted, "God with us." But Joseph, having awoke up from his sleep, did as the angel of [the] Lord^e had ordered him, and took to [him] his wife, ²⁴ and knew her not until she had brought forth her firstborn son: and he called his name Jesus.

II. Now Jesus having been born^f in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold, magi from the east arrived at ² Jerusalem, saying, Where is the king of the Jews, that has been born? for we have seen his star in the east, and have come to do him homage.

³ But Herod the king having heard [of it], was troubled, and ⁴ all Jerusalem with him; and, gathering together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the ⁵ Christ should be born. And they said to him, In Bethlehem of Judea; for thus it is written by ⁶ the prophet: And thou Bethlehem, land of Juda, art in no wise the least among the governors of Juda; for out of thee shall go

^d In subsequent passages I have translated this word 'by,' but I would remark once for all, that I do not think $\delta\acute{\iota}\alpha$ has anywhere the sense of the source of what is said, nor can it. It is by the Lord through the prophet, and when 'by the prophet' is used afterwards, it is the same as 'through' here, and supposes the prophet not to be the source, but the instrument, and God to be the source. But 'through' is awkward by itself in English.

^f γεννηθεῖς: the general fact of his being born; literally 'begotten,' but used for 'born.' In verse 2, τεχθεῖς, properly forth a leader who shall shepherd my people Israel.

⁷ Then Herod, having secretly called the magi, inquired^g of them accurately the time of the star ⁸ that was appearing; ^h and having sent them to Bethlehem, said, Go search out accurately concerning the little child, and when ye shall have found [him] bring me back word, so that I also may ⁹ come and do him homage. And they having heard the king went their way; and lo, the star which they had seen in the east went before them until it came and stood over where the little child ¹⁰ was. And when they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding ¹¹ great joy. And having come into the house they sawⁱ the little child with Mary his mother, and falling down did him homage. And having opened their treasures they offered to him gifts, gold, and frankincense, and myrrh. ¹² And being divinely instructed^j in a dream not to return to Herod, they departed into their own country another way. ¹³ Now, they having departed, behold, an angel of [the] Lord^e appears in a dream to Joseph, saying, Arise, take to [thee] the little the fact of being brought forth—of course strictly of the mother. It was the actual fact of his being born or brought forth the magi refer to.

^h It is evident that the star had not been all the way, but now re-appeared. See verse 10. 'The time' is practically when it appeared; 'how long since?'

ⁱ T. R. reads 'found.'

^j This is a Hellenistic use of the word; besides the sense of doing business, it signifies an answer after consultation; hence an oracular or divine answer, not merely warning, as see ver. 22.

child and his mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there until I shall tell thee; for Herod will seek the little child to destroy it. And, having arisen, he took to [him] the little child and his mother by night, and departed into Egypt. And he was there until the death of Herod, that that might be fulfilled which was spoken by [the] Lord through the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son. Then Herod, seeing that he had been mocked by the magi, was greatly enraged; and sent and slew all the boys which [were] in Bethlehem, and in all its borders, from two years and under, according to the time which he had accurately inquiredⁱ from the magi. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by^j Jeremias the prophet, saying, A voice has been heard in Rama, wailing, and weeping, and great lamentation: Rachel weeping her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not. But Herod having died, behold, an angel of [the] Lord appears in a dream to Joseph in Egypt, saying, Arise, take to [thee] the little child and its mother, and go into the land of Israel: for they who sought^k the life of the little child are dead. And he arose and took to [him] the little child and its mother, and came into the land of Israel; but having heard that 'Archelaus reigns over Judea, instead of Herod his father,' he was afraid to go there; and having been divinely instructed in a dream, he went away into the parts of Galilee, and came and dwelt in a town called Nazareth; so^l that that should be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarean.

III. Now in those days comes John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and saying, Repent, for the kingdom of the heavens has drawn nigh. For this is he who has been spoken of by^m Esaias the prophet, saying, Voice of him that crieth in the wilderness: Prepare ye the way of [the] Lord,ⁿ make straight his paths. And John himself had his garment of camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins, and his nourishment was locusts and wild honey. Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the country round the Jordan, and were baptized by him in the Jor-

^k οἱ ζητούντες. This shows how thoroughly the pronoun and participle are used as a substantive, characterizing the person or thing. 'The seekers of:' this expression is awkward in English, and hence I have changed it into the verb, and then it must be in the past: 'sought,' not 'seek.'

^l 'In order that it might be,' ἵνα (see chap. i. 22); 'so that it might be,' ὅπως, as here; and, 'then,' τότε (chap. ii. 17), 'was fulfilled,' are never confounded in the quotations of the Old Testament. The first is the object of the prophecy; the second, not simply its object, but an event which was within the scope and intention of the prophecy; the third is merely a case in point, where what happened was an illustration of what was said in the prophecy.

ⁿ I have no doubt that often, as here, κύριος is used as a name for Jehovah. Here it has no article, which, if an appellative, after τῆν ὁδόν, it regularly would, but as a noun personal does not need.

dan, confessing their sins.

- 7 But seeing many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said to them, Offspring of vipers, who has forewarned^o you to flee from the coming wrath? Produce therefore⁸ fruit^p worthy of repentance. And do not think to say within yourselves, We have Abraham for our father; for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children to Abraham.
- 10 And^q already the axe is applied to^r the root of the trees; every tree therefore not producing good fruit is cut down and cast into¹¹ [the] fire. I indeed baptize you with water to repentance, but he that comes after me is mightier than I, whose sandals^s I am not fit to bear; he^t shall baptize you with [the] Holy Spirit and with¹² fire: whose fan is in his hand, and he shall thoroughly purge his threshing-floor, and shall gather his wheat into the garner, but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.
- 13 Then comes Jesus from Galilee to the Jordan to John, to be baptized of him; but John urgently forbade^u him, saying, I have need to be baptized^v of thee; and

- 15 comest thou to me? But Jesus answering said to him, Suffer [it] now; for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. Then he suffers him. And Jesus, having been baptized, went up straightway from the water, and lo, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending as a dove, and coming upon¹⁷ him: and behold, a voice out of the heavens saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I have found my delight.

- IV. Then Jesus was carried up into the wilderness by the Spirit³ to be tempted of the devil: and having fasted forty days and forty nights, afterwards he hungered.
- 3 And the tempter coming up to him said,^w If thou art Son of God, speak, that these stones may⁴ become loaves of bread.^x But he answering said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word which goes out through God's mouth.
- 5 Then the devil takes him to the holy city, and sets him upon the⁶ edge of the temple,^y and says to him, If thou art Son of God, cast thyself down; for it is written, He shall give charge to his angels concerning thee, and they shall

^q ἤδη δέ: T. R. reads ἤδη δὲ καί; 'But already also.'

^r Though I am not quite satisfied with 'applied to,' yet I so translate κεῖται πρὸς. 'Laid to' has become actual execution: perhaps not meant so by the English translators, but merely as literal a translation of κεῖται as possible: but 'applied to' is more the moral way of acting—something more than κεῖται εἰς, 'appointed to.' (Luke ii. 34; Phil. i. 17; 1 Thess. iii. 1.) The reader may consult Klotz's Devarius i. under πρὸς, or Steph. Thes. under κείμεαι.

^s ὑπόδημα is hardly used here for the more luxurious ὑπόδημα κοῖλον, or shoe.

^u Imperfect, 'was so doing:' i.e., the act is presented as being done, not historically presented as one past fact.

^v Aorist, 'to be in the state of:' its having been done.

bear thee on [their] hands, lest in anywise thou strike thy foot ⁷ against a stone. Jesus said to him, It is again written, Thou shalt not tempt [the] Lord^x thy God.

⁸ Again, the devil takes him to a very high mountain, and shews him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory, and said^y to him, ⁹ All these things will I give thee if, falling down, thou wilt do me ¹⁰ homage. Then says Jesus to him, Get thee away, Satan; for it is written, Thou shalt do homage^z to the Lord thy God, and him alone shalt thou serve.

fulfilled which was spoken by ¹⁵ Esaias the prophet, saying, Land of Zabulon and land of Nephtholim, way of [the] sea beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the nations:— ¹⁶ the people sitting in darkness has seen a great light, and to those sitting in [the] country and shadow of death to them has light ¹⁷ sprung up. From that time began Jesus to preach and to say, Repent, for the kingdom of the ¹⁸ heavens has drawn nigh. And,^e walking by the sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net^f into the sea, for ¹⁹ they were fishers; and he says to them, Come after me, and I will ²⁰ make you fishers of men. And they, having left their trawl nets,^g ²¹ immediately followed him. And going on thence he found other two brothers, James the [son] of Zebedee and John his brother, in the^h ship with Zebedee their

^z προσκυνέω has here the accusative; but it is a quotation from the LXX. But besides Luke iv. 3, we find an accusative, Luke xxiv. 52; with a participle, John iv. 23, 24. The verb has the dative. In Revelation xiv. 11 the participle has the accusative. Early Greek writers have the accusative; later have the dative. See Greek, Matt. ii. 2. Kypke cites Matthew iv. The participle has dative in one case in Wetstein; and so has Lucian with verb, not always. The LXX vary. The word is used alike for men and for God, see 1 Chronicles xxix. 20; and is all but always an act of personal reverence and homage. What in modern language is called worship, is λατρεύω. The nearest approach to this in the use of προσκυνέω is in John iv. 23, 24.

^b T. R. adds 'Jesus.'

^h It is well to notice here an habitual use of the article which embarrassed Middleton. It is a known rule, and holds in more than one language, that contrast, and hence one part of a thing as contradistinguished from another, has the article. This is the case with 'ship' and 'mountain' in the gospels: 'he was,' or 'went,' 'on board ship,' ἐν τῷ πλοίῳ, εἰς τὸ πλοῖον; not a particular ship, but 'on board ship,' as we say, in contrast with 'on shore.' So τὸ ὄρος, 'the mountain,' not a particular mountain, but in contrast with the plain, where the plain and the mountain are in contrast. It is the same

²³ And Jesus went round the whole [of] Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching
 the glad tidings of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every sickness among the people.

²⁴ And his fame went out into the whole [of] Syria, and they brought to him all that were ill, suffering under various diseases and demons, and lunatics, and para-great crowds followed him from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judea, and beyond the Jordan.

V. But seeing the crowds, he went up into the^j mountain, and having set down, his disciples came to ² him; and, having opened his mouth, he taught them, saying, ³ Blessed [are] the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of the thing in French near the Alps, Il est à la montagne—no particular one, but gone up from the plain, as is done in summer. The highlands and the lowlands is, in a measure, the same thing, though the adjective in the compound modifies it. Christ had a particular ship which waited on him, but the article is used, as here, where that is not the case. In the ship with¹ is tantamount to 'the same ship'; so here I do not change the form, but translate literally. If not, one must say, 'on board ship.'

^k Or 'land.' This is a quotation from Psalm xxxvii. 11. Inheriting the land was inheriting the earth, and for a Jew vice versa. It was not the haughty Pharisee or the violent who were to have it: God would give it to the meek of the earth that waited on Him. In Hebrew ארץ is land and earth, as γῆ is in Greek; the word for 'world' is another, κόσμος. I have put 'earth' with some hesitation, as a word of larger tone of thought, as characteristic, not local only: it is to be remembered that it is earth itself it speaks of.

¹⁷ Think not that I am come to make void the law or the prophets; I have not come to make

¹⁸ void, but to fulfil.^a For verily I say unto you, Until the heaven and the earth pass away, one iota or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all come to pass.^o

^a 'Give the fulness of.' πληρῶσαι is not to fulfil a command in the way of obedience, nor to complete another thing by adding to it; but to fill up full some system sketched out, or that which is expressed in the thing fulfilled, as a whole. Thus the doctrine of the Church completed the word of God, made full what was expressed by it. Christ does not here fulfil what is said, nor add to what still remained and was perfect itself; but came to make good the whole scope of law and prophets. The passage has nothing to do with obeying the law, though Christ did so perfectly. Nor is it here accomplishing a particular prophecy. He comes as the revealed completeness of God's mind, whatever the law and the one that is [lightly^q] angry with his brother shall be subject to the judgment; but whoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be subject to [be called before] the sanhedrim; but whoever shall say, Fool, shall be subject to the penalty of the hell^r of fire.

²³ If therefore thou shalt offer thy gift at the altar, and there shalt remember that thy brother has

²⁴ something against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and first go, be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer

²⁶ Verily I say to thee, Thou shalt in no wise come out thence till thou hast paid the last farthing.^t

²⁷ Ye have heard that it has been said,^u Thou shalt not commit

²⁸ adultery. But I say unto you, prophets had pointed out. Verse 18 forbids the sense of obedience, though 19 proves that he was to be condemned who, being under law, broke the commandments spoken of as not to be maintained. But this is a consequence; Christ speaks of their authority. All was to be fulfilled in some way or another, not set aside.

^p Or 'excel,' περισσεύση. It is so used by the LXX for a Hebrew word signifying 'excel,' but the πλείον rather disables one from translating it so. But I doubt not it includes the idea of being a better righteousness. See verse 47.

that every one who looks upon a woman to lust after her has already committed adultery with her in his heart. But if thy right eye be a snare^v to thee, pluck it out and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members perish, and not thy whole body be cast into hell.^w And if thy right hand be a snare to thee, cut it off and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members perish, and not thy whole body be cast into hell.^w

It has been said too, Whoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a letter of divorce. But I say unto you, that whoever shall put away his wife except for cause of fornication makes her commit adultery, and whoever marries one that is put away commits adultery. Again, ye have heard that it has been said to the ancients, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt render to the Lord what thou hast sworn. But I say unto you, Do not swear at all; neither by the heaven, because it is [the] throne of God; nor by the earth, because it is [the] footstool of his feet; nor by Jerusalem, because it is [the] city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your word be Yea, yea; Nay, nay; but what is more than these is from evil.^x

Ye have heard that it has been said, Eye for eye and tooth for tooth. But I say unto you, not to resist evil; but whoever shall strike thee on thy right cheek, turn to him also the other; and to him that would go to law with thee and take thy coat, leave him thy cloak also. And whoever will compel thee to go one mile, go with him two. To him that asks of thee give, and from him that desires to borrow of thee turn not away.

Ye have heard that it has been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour and hate thine enemy. But I say to you, Love your enemies, [bless those who curse you, do good to those who hate you,] and pray for those who insult you and persecute you, that ye may be the sons of your Father who [is] in the heavens; for he makes his sun rise on evil and good, and sends rain on just and unjust. For if ye should love those who love you, what reward have ye? Do not also the tax-gatherers the same? And if ye should salute your brethren only, what do ye extraordinary? Do not also the Gentiles^z the same? Be ye therefore perfect as your heavenly Father^a is perfect.

When therefore thou doest alms, sound not a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, so that they may have glory from men. Verily I say unto you, They have^c their reward. But thou, when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand does; so that thine alms may be in secret, and thy Father who sees in secret himself will render [it] to thee.^d

And when thou prayest, thou^e shalt not be as the hypocrites; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, so that they should appear to men. Verily I say unto you, They have^c their reward.

for they think they shall be heard⁸ through their much speaking. Be not ye therefore like them, for your Father knows of what things ye have need before ye beg [any-thing] of him. Thus therefore pray ye: Our Father who [art] in the heavens, let thy name be sanctified, let thy kingdom come, let thy will be done as in heaven so upon the earth; give us to-day our needed bread,^f and forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors, and lead us not into temptation, but save us from evil.⁸ For if ye forgive men their offences, your heavenly Father will forgive you also; but if ye do not forgive men their offences, neither will your Father forgive your offences.

And when ye fast be not as the hypocrites, downcast in countenance; for they disfigure their faces so that they may appear fasting to men: verily I say unto you, They have^c their reward. But thou, [when] fasting, anoint thy head and wash thy face, so that thou mayest not appear fasting unto men, but to thy Father who [is] in secret; and thy Father who sees in secret shall render [it] to thee.^d

^c 'Have' is compounded with a preposition, which gives it the force of having all they have to expect—they have the whole of it already, ἀπέχουσι. It is expressed in English by laying the stress on 'have.' Perhaps one might say, 'have got' in the same sense.

^f Or 'to-morrow's,' or till 'to-morrow.' ἐπιούσιον may be 'daily' in the sense of 'till to-morrow.' A nearly analogous word (this is only used here) means to-morrow, and is often used in Acts and Luke. This has the form of an adjective derived from that. But many object to this, as not according to the analogy of Greek, and understand it to mean 'needed.' Origen declares it is a word unknown to classical or popular Greek. The analogy of περισσεία and περισσούσιος, 'superfluous, more than what is needed,' seems to me the plainest and most natural explanation of it. They had only what was directly and immediately for them or their need, ἐπί, and not what was περί, 'surrounded with abundance.'

⁸ Or 'from the evil one.' T. R. adds 'For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.'

sures upon the earth, where moth and rust spoils, and where thieves ²⁰ dig through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust spoils, and where thieves do ²¹ not dig through nor steal; for where your treasure is, there will ²² be also your heart. The lamp of the body is the eye; if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole ²³ body will be light; but if thine eye be wicked, thy whole body will be dark. If therefore the light that [is] in thee be dark-²⁴ ness, how great the darkness! No one can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and will love the other, or he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and ²⁵ mammon. For this cause I say unto you, Do not be careful about your life, what ye should eat and what ye should drink; nor for your body, what ye should put on. Is not the life more than food, and the body than raiment?
²⁶ Look at the birds of the heaven, that they sow not, nor reap, nor gather into granaries, and your heavenly Father nourishes them.
 Are ye not much more excellent ²⁷ than they? But which of you by carefulness can add to his growth^j ²⁸ one cubit? And why are ye careful about clothing? Observe with attention the lilies of the field how they grow; they toil not, ²⁹ neither do they spin; but I say unto you, that not even Solomon in all his glory was clothed as one

³⁰ of these. But if God so clothe the herbage of the field, which is to-day, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, will he not much rather ³¹ you, O [ye] of little faith? Be not therefore careful, saying, What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or What shall we put on?
³² for all these things the nations seek after; for your heavenly Father knows that ye have need ³³ of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things ³⁴ shall be added unto you. Be not careful therefore for the morrow, for the morrow shall be careful about its own things. Sufficient to the day [is] its own evil.

VII. Judge not, that ye may not ² be judged; for with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged;
 and with what measure ye mete ³ it shall be measured to you.^k But why lookest thou on the mote that is in the eye of thy brother, but observest not the beam that ⁴ is in thine eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Suffer that I cast out the mote from thine eye; and behold, the beam ⁵ is in thine eye? Hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine eye, and then thou wilt see clearly to cast out the mote out of the eye of thy brother.
⁶ Give not that [which is] holy to the dogs, nor cast your pearls before the pigs, lest they trample them with their feet, and turning ⁷ round rend you. Ask, and it shall be given to you. Seek, and ye

^j The proper sense of ἡλικία is 'age,' and many insist on it here. But it refers to relative age in man, and hence is used for growth, or stature, as Luke xix. 3.

^k T. R. adds 'again.'

MATTHEW VII.

shall find. Knock, and it shall 8 be opened to you. For every one that asks receives; and he that seeks finds; and to him that 9 knocks it shall be opened. Or what man is there of you who, if his son shall ask of him a loaf of 10 bread,¹ will give him a stone; and if he ask a fish, will give him a 11 serpent? If therefore ye, being wicked, know [how] to give good gifts to your children, how much rather shall your Father who [is] in the heavens give good things to them that ask of him?

12 Therefore all things whatever ye desire that men should do to you, thus do ye also do to them;
 for this is the law and the prophets.

13 Enter in through the narrow gate, for wide the gate and broad the way that leads to destruction, and many are they who 14 enter in through it. For narrow^m the gate and straitened the way that leads to life, and they are few who find it.

15 But beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but within are ravening 16 wolves. By their fruits ye shall knowⁿ them. Do men gather a bunch of grapes from thorns, 17 or from thistles figs? So every good tree produces good fruits,

but the worthless tree produces 18 bad fruits. A good tree cannot produce bad fruits, nor a worthless tree produce good fruits.
 19 Every tree not producing good fruit is cut down and cast into 20 the fire. By their fruits then surely^o ye shall knowⁿ them.

21 Not every one who says to me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens, but he that does the will of my Father 22 who [is] in the heavens. Many shall say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied through thy name, and through thy name cast out demons, and through thy name done many 23 works of power? and then will I avow unto them, I never knew you. Depart from me, workers of lawlessness.

24 Whoever therefore hears these my words and does them, I will liken him to a prudent man, who^a built his house upon the^r rock; 25 and the rain came down, and the streams came, and the winds blew and fell upon that house, and it did not fall, for it was founded 26 upon the rock. And every one who hears these my words and does not do them, he shall be likened to a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand; 27 and the rain came down, and the

ⁿ $\epsilon\pi\iota\gamma\acute{\iota}\nu\omicron\sigma\kappa\omega$, 'recognize,' 'know well;' and so verse 20.

^o $\acute{\alpha}\rho\alpha$ (here $\acute{\alpha}\rho\alpha\gamma\epsilon$) has the force of bringing up what precedes, from which a necessary consequence follows. $\omicron\upsilon\upsilon$ shews it as a fact; $\acute{\alpha}\rho\alpha$ treats it as evident from what precedes: $\gamma\epsilon$ strengthens: 'is indeed,' 'surely,' 'at any rate.'

^r Here the article has the force of contrast, as noticed as to $\delta\pi\omicron\varsigma$, $\pi\lambda\omicron\iota\omicron\nu$ already. As in English, though the cases are more rare, we say, 'on the way,' 'the wayside.' In English 'the sand' is used as here, and may fairly justify 'the rock'—that which has that nature.

streams came, and the winds blew and beat upon that house, and it fell, and its fall was great,

²⁸ And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished these words, the crowds were astonished at his doctrine, for he taught them as having authority, and not as the scribes.

VIII. And when he had come down from the mountain, great crowds followed him. And behold, a leper came and did homage to him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou art able to cleanse me. And Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, I will; be cleansed. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed. And Jesus saith to him, See thou tell no man; but go, shew thyself to the priest, and offer the gift which Moses enjoined, for a witness to them.

⁵ And when he had entered into Capernaum, a centurion came to him, beseeching him, and saying, Lord, my servant lies paralytic in the house, suffering grievously. ⁷ And Jesus saith to him, I will come and heal him. And the centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not fit that thou shouldst enter under my roof; but only speak a word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man under authority, having under me soldiers, and I say to this [one], Go, and he goes; and to another, Come, and he comes; and to my bondsman, Do this,

¹⁰ and he does it. And when Jesus heard it, he wondered, and said to those who followed, Verily I say unto you, Not even in Israel have I found such faith. But I say unto you, that many shall come from the rising and setting [sun], and shall lie down at table with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of the heavens; ¹² but the sons of the kingdom shall be cast out into the outer darkness: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth. And Jesus said to the centurion, Go, and as thou hast believed, be it to thee. And his servant was healed in that hour.

¹⁶ And when the evening was come, they brought to him many possessed by demons, and he cast out the spirits with a word, and healed all that were ill; so that that might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet Esaias, saying, Himself took our infirmities and bore our diseases.

¹⁸ And Jesus, seeing great crowds around him, commanded to depart to the other side. And a scribe came up and said to him, Teacher, I will follow thee whithersoever thou mayest go. And Jesus saith to him, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the heaven roosting places; but the Son of man has not where he may lay his head.

 21 But another of his disciples said to him, Lord, suffer me first to go
 22 away and bury my father. But Jesus said to him, Follow me, and leave the dead to bury their own 23 dead. And he went on board ship, and his disciples followed him; 24 and behold, [the water] became very agitated on the sea, so that the ship was covered by the 25 waves; but he slept. And the disciples came and awoke him, saying, Lord save us: we perish.
 26 And he saith to them, Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Then, having arisen, he rebuked the winds and the sea, and there 27 was a great calm. But the men were astonished, saying, What sort [of man] is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?
 28 And there met him, when he came to the other side, to the country of the Gergesenes, two possessed by demons coming out of the tombs, exceeding dangerous, so that no one was able to 29 pass by that way. And behold, they cried out, saying, What have we to do with thee, Jesus, Son of God? hast thou come here before 30 the time to torment us? Now there was, a great way off from them, a herd of many swine feeding; 31 and the demons besought him, saying, If thou cast us out, suffer us to go away into the 32 herd of swine. And he said to them, Go. And they, going out, departed into the herd of swine; and lo, the whole herd [of swine^b] rushed down the deep slope into the sea, and died in the waters.

 33 But they that fed them fled, and went away into the city and related everything, and what had happened as to those possessed 34 by demons. And behold, the whole city went out to meet Jesus, and when they saw him they begged him to go away out of their coasts. (IX.) And going on board the ship,^c he passed over and 2 came to his own city. And lo, they brought to him a paralytic, laid upon a bed; and Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, Be of good courage, child; thy sins are forgiven.^d And behold, certain of the scribes said in themselves, This [man] blas-
 4 phemes. And Jesus, seeing their thoughts, said, Why do ye think
 5 evil things in your hearts? For which is easier: to say, Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say, Rise
 6 up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man has power^e on earth to forgive sins, (then he saith to the paralytic,) Rise up, take up thy bed and go
 7 into thy house. And he rose up
 8 and went to his house. But the crowds seeing [it], were in fear,^f and glorified God who gave such power^f to men.

⁹ And Jesus, passing on thence, saw a man sitting at the tax-office, called Matthew, and saith to him, Follow me. And he rose up and followed him. And it came to pass, as he lay at table in the house, that,^g behold, many tax-gatherers and sinners came and lay at table with Jesus and his disciples. And the Pharisees seeing [it], said to his disciples, Why does your teacher eat with tax-gatherers and sinners? But Jesus hearing it, said to them, They that are strong have not need of a physician, but those that are ill. But go and learn what [that] is—I will have mercy and not sacrifice; for I have not come to call righteous [men] but sinners.^h

¹⁴ Then came to him the disciples of John, saying, Why do we and the Pharisees often fast, but thy disciples fast not? And Jesus said to them, Can the children of the bride-chamber mourn so long as the bridegroom is with them? But days will come when the bridegroom will have been taken away from them, and then they will fast. But no one puts a patch of newⁱ cloth on an old garment, for its filling up takes from the garment, and a worse rent

²³ And when Jesus was come to the house of the ruler, and saw the fluteplayers and the crowd making a tumult, he said^k to them, Withdraw, for the damsel is not dead but sleeps. And they laughed at him. But when the crowd had been put out, he went in and took her hand; and the damsel rose up. And the fame of it went out into all that land. And as Jesus passed on thence, two blind [men]

It may be translated 'has just now died,' or 'has even now died.' Chrysostom and others give it as in text.

followed him, crying and saying, Have mercy on us, Son of David.

²⁸ And when he was come to the house, the blind [men] came to him. And Jesus saith to them, Do ye believe that I am able to do this? They say to him, Yea, ²⁹ Lord. Then he touched their eyes, saying, According to your ³⁰ faith be it unto you. And their eyes were opened; and Jesus charged them sharply, saying, See ³¹ let no man know it. But they, when they were gone out, spread his name abroad in all that land.

³² But as these were going out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man possessed by a demon.

³³ And the demon having been cast out the dumb spake. And the crowds were astonished, saying, It was never thus seen in Israel.

³⁴ But the Pharisees said, He casts out the demons through the prince of the demons.

³⁵ And Jesus went round all the cities and the villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom, and healing every disease and every ³⁶ bodily weakness.¹ But when he saw the crowds he was moved with compassion for them because they were harassed,^m and cast away as sheep not having a shepherd.

³⁷ Then saith he to his disciples, The harvest [is] great and the ³⁸ workmen [are] few; supplicate therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth workmen unto his harvest.

X. And having called to [him] his twelve disciples, he gave them powerⁿ over unclean spirits, so that they should cast them out; and heal every disease and every bodily weakness.

⁵ These twelve sent Jesus out when he had charged them, saying, Go not off into the way of the Gentiles, and into a city of ⁶ Samaritans enter ye not; but go ye rather to the lost sheep of the ⁷ house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of ⁸ the heavens has drawn nigh. Heal [the] infirm, raise [the] dead, cleanse lepers,^p cast out demons: ye have received gratuitously, give ⁹ gratuitously. Do not provide yourselves with gold, or silver, or ¹⁰ brass, for your belts, nor scrip for the way, nor two vests, nor sandals, nor a staff: for the workman is worthy of his nourishment.

¹¹ But into whatever city or village is nearer to it in English. δύναμις is the ability to do a thing.

ye enter, inquire who in it is worthy, and there remain till ye go forth. But when ye go into a^p house, salute it. And if the house indeed be worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you. And whosoever shall not receive you, nor shall hear your words, as ye go forth out of that house or that city, shake off the dust of your feet. Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in judgment-day than for that city.

Behold, I send you as sheep in the midst of wolves; be ye therefore prudent as the serpents and guileless as the doves. But beware of men; for they will deliver you up to sanhedrims, and scourge you in their synagogues; and ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake, for a testimony to them and to the nations. But when they deliver you up, be not careful how or what ye shall speak; for it shall be given to you in that hour what ye shall speak. For ye are not the speakers, but the Spirit of your Father which speaks in you.

But brother shall deliver up brother to death, and father child; and children shall rise up against parents and shall put them to death; and ye shall be hated of all on account of my name. But he that has endured to [the] end, he^q shall be saved.

But when they persecute you in this city, flee to the other; for verily I say to you, Ye will not have completed the cities of Israel until the Son of man be come. The disciple is not above his teacher, nor the bondsman above his lord. [It is] sufficient for the disciple that he should become as his teacher, and the bondsman as his lord. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more those of his household? Fear them not therefore; for there is nothing covered which shall not be revealed, and secret which shall not be known. What I say to you in darkness speak in the light, and what ye hear in the ear preach upon the houses.

And be not afraid^r of those who kill the body, but cannot kill the soul; but fear rather him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell.^s Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing?^t and one of them shall not fall to the ground without your Father; but of you even the hairs of the head are all numbered. Fear not therefore; ye are better than many sparrows. Whosoever therefore shall confess ^p Although οἶκος has the article, I apprehend it is the use of it already noted—that of contrast. 'Into the house,' in contrast to 'without doors,' whatever house it may be. me before men, I also will confess him before my Father which is in the heavens. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father who [is] in the heavens.

Do not think that I have come to send peace upon the earth: I have not come to send peace, but a sword. For I have come to set a man at variance with his father, and the daughter with her mother, and the daughter-in-law with her mother-in-law; and they of his household shall be a man's enemies. He who loves father or mother above me is not worthy of me; and he who loves son or daughter above me is not worthy of me. And he who does not take up his cross and follow after me is not worthy of me. He that finds his life shall lose it, and he who has lost his life for my sake shall find it. He that receives you receives me, and he that receives me receives him that sent me. He that receives a prophet in the name of a prophet, shall receive a prophet's reward; and he that receives a righteous man in the name of a righteous man, shall receive a righteous man's reward. And whosoever shall give to drink to one of these little ones a cup of cold water only, in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose its reward.

XI. And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished commanding his twelve disciples, he departed thence to teach and preach in their cities.

But John, having heard in the prison the works of the^a Christ, sent by^v his disciples, and said to him, Art thou the coming [one]? or are we to^w wait for another? And Jesus answering said to them, Go, report to John what ye hear and see. Blind [men] see, and lame walk; lepers are cleansed, and deaf hear; and^x dead are raised, and poor have glad tidings preached to them: and blessed is [he] whosoever shall not be offended in me. But as these went [away], Jesus began to say to the crowds concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? a reed moved about by the wind? But what went ye out to see? a man clothed in delicate raiment? behold, those who wear delicate things are in the houses of kings. But what went ye out to see? a prophet? Yea, I say to you, and more than a prophet: for this is he of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee. Verily I say to you, that there is not arisen among [the] born of women a greater than John the baptist. But the little one^y in the kingdom of the heavens is greater than he. But from the days of John the baptist until now, the kingdom of the heavens is taken by violence, and the violent seize on it. For all the prophets and the law have prophesied unto John. And if ye will receive it, this is Elias who is^a to come. He that has ears to hear, let him hear. But to whom shall I liken this generation? It is like children^a sitting in the markets, and calling to their companions, and saying, We have piped to you, and ye have not danced; we have sung dirges to you, and ye have not wailed. For John has come neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He has a demon. The Son of man has come eating and drinking, and they say, Behold, a man [that is] eating^b and wine-drinking, a friend of tax-gatherers and sinners:— and wisdom has been justified by her children.

Then began he to reproach the cities in which most of his works of power had taken place,^c because they had not repented. Woe to thee, Chorazin! woe to thee, Bethsaida! for if the works of power which have taken place in thee had taken place in Tyre and Sidon, they had^d long ago repented in sackcloth and ashes. But I say to you, that it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in judgment-day than for you. And thou, Capernaum, who hast been lifted up even to heaven, shalt be brought down even to hades. For if the works of power which have taken place in thee had taken place in Sodom, it had remained until this day. But I say to you, that it shall be more tolerable for [the] land of Sodom in judgment-day than for thee. At that time Jesus answering said, I praise thee, bearing witness to [thee], O Father, Lord of the heaven and the earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them to babes. Yea, O Father, for thus has [it] been well-pleasing in thy sight. All things have been delivered to me by my Father, and no one knows^e the Son but the Father, nor does any one know^e the Father but the Son, and he to whom the Son may be pleased to reveal [him]. Come to me, all ye who labour and are burthened, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest to your souls; for my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

^a ὁ μέλλων. By saying, 'who is to come,' it is left in the abstract pretty much as in Greek—the one who had this character in a Jew's mind according to prophecy. If we say, 'who is about to come,' the mind turns to a time yet future: 'who was' is interpretation.

^c ἐγένοντο, γεγόμεναι, 'taken place,' 'happened.' I do not say, 'had been wrought,' because it takes the mind off the place of their happening to their being wrought.

^d ἂν with an indicative: ἂν does not really govern a mood. If the fact is certain, it is connected with an indicative; if not, with optative or subjunctive; but its force is the mental supposition (not merely the fact) that it might have been otherwise. Even if a fact, it is not considered historically but mentally.

MATTHEW XII.

XII. At that time Jesus went on the sabbath through the corn-fields; and his disciples were hungry, and began to pluck the ears² and to eat. But the Pharisees, seeing [it], said to him, Behold, thy disciples are doing what is not³ lawful to do on sabbath. But he said to them, Have ye not read what David did when he was hungry,⁴ and they that were with him? How he entered into the house of God, and ate the shew loaves, which it was not lawful for him to eat, nor for those with him,⁵ but for the priests only? Or have ye not read in the law that on the sabbaths the priests in the temple profane the sabbath, and are blameless? But I say unto you, that there is here a greater thing⁶ than the temple. But if ye had known what is: I will [have] mercy and not sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the guiltless. For the Son of man is Lord⁷ of the sabbath.

⁸ And, going away¹ from thence, he came into their synagogue. ¹⁰ And, behold, there was a man having his² hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath? that³ they might accuse him. But he said to them, What man shall there be of you who has one sheep, and if this fall into a pit on the sabbath, will not lay hold of it and raise [it] up? How much better then is a man than a sheep! So that it is lawful to do¹² well on the sabbath. Then he says to the man, Stretch out thy hand. And he stretched [it] out, and it was restored sound as the¹⁴ other. But the Pharisees, having gone out, took counsel against him how they might destroy him. ¹⁵ But Jesus knowing it, withdrew thence, and great crowds followed¹⁶ him; and he healed them all: and charged it on them that they should not make him publicly¹⁷ known: that^k that might be fulfilled [that was] spoken by the¹⁸ prophet Esaias, saying, Behold my servant, whom I have chosen, my beloved in whom my soul has found its delight. I will put my Spirit upon him, and he shall shew forth judgment to the nations. ¹⁹ He shall not strive nor cry out, nor shall any one hear his voice²⁰ in the streets; a bruised reed shall he not break, and smoking flax shall he not quench, until he bring forth¹ judgment unto victures; but it signifies 'putting forth' as much as 'bringing forth': 'send forth' is more arbitrary. 'He produces;' but this does not suit in English here. It means that judgment was hid, and 'shut up among his treasures,' as said indeed in Deut. xxxii., and in due time it will be produced, without saying he brings it with him, or sends it without coming. It is brought out and displayed in its time. With this explanation I say 'bring forth.' 'Put forth' has somewhat the force of 'putting forth strength;' whereas it is producing, bringing out what till then was hidden and kept back. See chap. xii. 35.

² T. R. reads 'a greater than;' μείζων instead of μείζον.

 22 nations hope. Then was brought to him one possessed by a demon, blind and dumb, and he healed him, so that the [blind and]ⁿ dumb [man] both spake and saw.
 23 And all the crowds were amazed and said, Is this [man] the Son 24 of David? But the Pharisees, having heard it, said, This [man] does not cast out demons, but by 25 Beelzebub, prince of demons. But Jesus, knowing^o their thoughts, said to them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every city or house divided against itself will 26 not stand. And if Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself. How then shall his king-27 dom stand? And if I cast out demons by Beelzebub, your sons, by whom do they cast [them] out? For this reason they shall 28 be your judges. But if I by [the] Spirit of God cast out demons, then indeed the kingdom of God 29 is come upon you. Or how can any one enter into the house of the strong man and plunder his goods, unless first he bind the strong man? and then he will 30 plunder his house. He that is not with me is against me, and he that gathers not with me 31 scatters. For this reason I say unto you, Every sin and injurious speaking shall be forgiven to men, but speaking injuriously of the Spirit shall not be forgiven 32 to men. And whosoever shall have spoken a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him; but whosoever shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this age nor in the coming [one].

 33 Either make the tree good, and its fruit good; or make the tree corrupt, and its fruit corrupt.
 For from the fruit the tree is 34 known. Offspring of vipers! how can ye speak good things, being wicked? For of the abundance of 35 the heart the mouth speaks. The good man out of the good treasure^p brings forth good things;
 and the wicked man out of the wicked treasure brings forth wick-36 ed things. But I say unto you, that every idle word, whatsoever^q men shall say, they shall render an account of it in judgment-day: 37 for by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned.

 said to them, A wicked and adulterous generation seeks a sign, and a sign shall not be given to it save the sign of Jonas the pro-

 the belly of the great fish three days and three nights, thus shall the Son of man be in the heart of the earth three days and three they repented at the preaching of Jonas ; and behold, more than ⁴³ Jonas [is] here. A queen of [the] south shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it; for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and behold, more than Solomon [is] here.

⁴⁴ and does not find [it]. Then he says, I will return to my house whence I came out; and having come, he finds it unoccupied, ⁴⁵ swept, and adorned. Then he goes and takes with himself seven other spirits worse than himself, and entering in, they dwell there; and the last condition of that man becomes worse than the first. Thus shall it be to this wicked generation also.

⁴⁶ But while he was yet speaking to the crowds, behold, his mother and his brethren stood without ⁴⁷ seeking to speak to him. Then one said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren are standing without, seeking to speak to ⁴⁸ thee. But he answering said to him that spoke to him Who is my mother, and who are my ⁴⁹ brethren? And, stretching out his hand to his disciples, he said, Behold my mother and my brethren; ⁵⁰ for whosoever shall do the will of my Father who [is] in the heavens, he is my brother, and sister, and mother.

XIII. And that [same] day Jesus went out from the house and sat
² down by the sea. And great crowds were gathered together to him, so that going on board ship himself he sat down, and the whole crowd stood on the shore.
³ And he spoke to them many things in parables, saying, Behold, the sower went out to sow;
⁴ and as he sowed, some [grains] fell along the way, and the birds
⁵ came and devoured them; and others fell upon the rocky places where they had not much earth, and immediately they sprang up out of [the ground] because of not having [any] depth of earth,
⁶ but when the sun rose they were burnt up, and because of not having [any] root were dried up; and others fell upon the thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked
⁸ them; and others fell upon the good ground and produced fruit, one a hundred, one sixty, and
⁹ one thirty. He that has ears to hear, let him hear. And the disciples came up and said to him, Why speakest thou to them in ¹¹ parables? And he answering said to them, Because to you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of the heavens, but ¹² to them it is not given; for whoever has, there shall be given to him, and he shall be caused to be in abundance;[†] but he who has not, even what he has shall be ¹³ taken away from him. For this

[†] As to the good thing given. It is abstract: the object is not to say what is given, but the manner of God's dealing. περισσεύει has a causative force (see Eph. i.), and here has the same subject as 'shall be given.' What is given is caused to be in abundance. We may say also, 'he shall be in abundance,' a word used of the thing and of the person possessing it. 'It (or he) is in abundance.'

cause I speak to them in parables, because seeing they do not see, and hearing they do not hear nor understand; and by^u them is filled up the prophecy of Esaias, which says, Hearing ye shall hear and shall not understand, and beholding ye shall behold and not see; for the heart of this people has grown fat, and they have heard heavily with their ears, and they have closed their eyes as asleep, lest^v they should see with the eyes, and hear with the ears, and understand with the heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them. But blessed are your eyes because they see, and your ears because they hear; for verily I say unto you, that many prophets and righteous [men] have desired to see the things which ye behold and did not see [them], and to hear the things which ye hear and did not hear [them]. Ye, therefore, hear the parable of the sower. From every one who hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand [it], the wicked one comes and catches away what was sown in his heart: this is he that is sown by the wayside. But he that is sown on the rocky place—this is he who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy, but has no root in himself, but is for a time only; and when tribulation or persecution happens on account of the word, he is immediately offended. And he that is sown among thorns—this is he who hears the word, and the anxious cares of this life^w and the deceit of riches choke the word and he^x becomes unfruitful. But he that is sown upon the good ground—this is he who hears and understands the word, who bears fruit also, and produces, one a hundred, and one sixty, and one thirty.

And he set before them another parable, saying, The kingdom of the heavens has become^y like a man sowing good seed in his field; but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed darnel^z amongst the wheat and went away. But when the blade shot up and produced fruit, then appeared the darnel also. And the bondsmen of the householder came to him and said, Sir, hast thou not sown good seed in thy field? whence then has it the^a darnel? And he said to them, A man [that is] an enemy has done this. And the bondsmen said to him, Wilt thou then that we should go and gather it [up]? But he said, No; lest^b [in] gathering the darnel ye should root up the wheat with it. Suffer both to grow together unto the harvest, and in time of ^u T. R. reads ἐπί ἀναπλήρωσις is more than πληρώω. It is to supply what is wanting, and so 'fill up.' Since Esaias's time there had been much of this, but the rejection of Christ completed and filled it up. 'By them,' may be translated 'in them.' The sense is little different. 'By' casts more on their act and responsibility: ἐπί seems to have been introduced to avoid this sense of it.

the harvest I will say to the harvestmen, Gather first the darnel, and bind it into bundles to burn it; but the wheat bring together into my granary.

³¹ Another parable set he before them, saying, The kingdom of the heavens is like a grain of mustard which a man took and sowed ³² in his field, which is less indeed than all seeds, but when it is grown is greater than herbs, and becomes a tree, so that the birds of heaven come and roost in its branches.

³⁴ All these things Jesus spoke to the crowds in parables, and without a parable he did not speak ³⁵ to them, so that that might be fulfilled [which was] spoken by the prophet, saying, I will open my mouth in parables: I will utter things hidden from [the] world's foundation.

³⁷ But he answering said to them, He that sows the good seed is ³⁸ the Son of man, and the field is the world; and the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom, but the darnel are the sons ³⁹ of the evil [one]; and the enemy who has sowed it is the devil; and the harvest is [the] completion of [the] age, and the harvestmen are ⁴⁰ angels. As then the darnel is gathered and is burned in the fire, thus it shall be in the completion of this age. The Son of man shall send his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all offences, and those that ⁴² practise lawlessness; and they shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth. Then the righteous shall shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

⁴⁷ Again, the kingdom of the heavens is like a seyne which has been cast into the sea, and which has gathered together of ⁴⁸ every kind, which, when it has been filled, having drawn up on the shore and sat down, [they] gather the good into vessels and ⁴⁹ cast the worthless out. Thus shall it be in the completion of the age: the angels shall go forth and sever the wicked from the ⁵⁰ midst of the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire : there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth.

⁵¹ Jesus saith to them, Have ye understood all these things? They say to him, Yea, Lord.

⁵² And he said to them, For this reason every scribe disciplined to the kingdom of the heavens is like a man [that is] a householder who brings out of his treasure things new and old.

⁵³ And it came to pass when Jesus had finished these parables he withdrew thence. And having ⁵⁴ come into his own country, he taught them in their synagogue, so that they were astonished, and said, Whence has this [man] this wisdom and these works of power?

⁵⁵ Is not this the son of the carpenter? Is not his mother called Mary, and his brethren James, and Joses,^h and Simon, and Judas?

⁵⁶ And his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence then has this [man] all these things?

⁵⁷ And they were offendedⁱ in him. And Jesus said to them, A prophet is not without honour, unless in his country and in his house.

⁵⁸ And he did not there many works of power, because of their unbelief.

XIV. At that time Herod the tetrarch heard of the fame of Jesus,

² and said to his servants, This is John the baptist : he is risen from the dead, and because of this these works of power display

³ their force in him.^j For Herod had laid hold on John, and had bound him and put him in prison on account of Herodias the wife

⁴ of Philip his brother. For John said to him, It is not lawful for

⁵ thee to have her. And [while] desiring to kill him he feared the crowd, because they held him for a

⁶ prophet. But when Herod's birthday was celebrated, the daughter of Herodias danced before them,

⁷ and pleased Herod ; whereupon he promised with oath to give her

⁸ whatsoever she should ask. But she, being set on^k by her mother, says, Give me here upon a dish the head of John the baptist.

⁹ And the king was grieved ; but on account of the oaths, and those lying at table with [him],

ⁱ Or ' were stumbled at him.' ἐσκανδαλίζοντο, but the word 'stumbled' is too weak. σκανδαλον is literally 'the catch of a trap,' not a stumbling-stone. It is generally the occasion or means of getting into an evil case. See chap. xviii. 6.

^j The construction is disputed here ; it is ἐνεργούσιν ἐν αὐτῷ, as nearly as possible 'operate in him.' The passage has a certain reflective force as in French, s'opèrent en lui. But this can hardly be given in English ; the Authorized Version has attempted it by changing the word to 'shew forth.' I have sought to preserve the force of the verb used by adding 'their force.' The difficulty partly arises from the word which is used for the effects of power being the plural of power itself, because the power which wrought is more seen than the effects. Still I believe the intention is not to use δυνάμεις differently, only the mind turns more to the agent than the effect. 'Powers' and 'miracles' are the same word in Greek. Hence it may be translated 'these powers operate in him ;' but its reflective force above spoken of is, I doubt not, the true one. The 'shew forth' of the Authorized Version is alleged to be the force of the middle, which I doubt, but of the active I cannot find it is. For the sense, however, I should not object to 'display themselves in him.'

he commanded [it] to be given.

¹⁰ And he sent and beheaded John ¹¹ in the prison; and his head was brought upon a dish, and was given to the damsel, and she ¹² carried [it] to her mother. And his disciples came and took the body and buried it; and came ¹³ and brought word to Jesus. And Jesus, having heard it, withdrew thence by ship to a desert place apart.

And the crowds having heard [of it] followed him on foot from ¹⁴ the cities. And going out he^m saw a great crowd, and was moved with compassion about them, and ¹⁵ healed their infirm. But when even was come, his disciples came to him saying, The place is desert, and [much of] the [day] time already gone by; dismissⁿ the crowds that they may go into the villages and buy food for them-¹⁶ selves. But Jesus said to them,
They have no need to go: give ye ¹⁷ them to eat. But they say to him, We have not here save five ¹⁸ loaves and two fishes. And he said, Bring them here to me. And having commanded the crowds to recline upon the grass,^o having taken the five loaves and the two fishes he looked up to heaven, and blessed: and having broken the loaves, he gave [them] to the disciples, and the disciples [gave ¹⁹ them] to the crowds. And all ate and were filled, and they took up what was over and above of fragments twelve hand-baskets ²¹ full. But those that had eaten were about five thousand men, ²² besides women and children. And immediately he^m compelled the^p disciples to go on board ship, and to go on before him to the other side until he should have dis-²³ missed the crowds. And having dismissed the crowds, he went up into the^q mountain apart to pray.

And when even was come, he was ²⁴ alone there, but the ship was already in the middle of the sea tossed by the waves, for the wind ²⁵ was contrary. But in the fourth watch of the night he^r went off ²⁶ to them, walking on the sea. And the disciples, seeing him walking on the sea, were troubled, saying,
It is an apparition. And they ²⁷ cried out through fear. But Jesus immediately spoke to them saying, Take courage; it is I: be not ²⁸ afraid. And Peter answering him said, Lord, if it be thou, command me to come to thee upon ²⁹ the waters. And he said, Come.
And Peter, having descended from the ship, walked upon the waters ³⁰ to go to Jesus. But seeing the wind strong he was afraid; and beginning to sink he cried out, ³¹ saying, Lord, save me. And immediately Jesus stretched out his hand and caught hold of him, and said to him, O thou of little faith, ³² why didst thou doubt? And when they had gone up into the ³³ ship, the wind fell. But those in 36 were ill, and besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment; and as many as touched were made thoroughly well.

XV. Then the scribes and Pharisees from Jerusalem come up to 2 Jesus, saying, Why do thy disciples transgress what has been delivered^a by the ancients? for they do not wash their hands
 3 when they eat bread. But he answering said to them, Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God on account of your traditional teaching? For God commanded, saying, Honour^c father and mother; and, He that speaks ill^d of father or mother, let him
 5 die the death. But ye say, Who-soever shall say to his father or mother, It is a gift, whatsoever [it be] by which [received] from me

 11 Not what enters into the mouth defiles the man; but what goes forth out of the mouth, this defiles the man. Then his disciples, coming to [him], said to him, Dost thou know that the Pharisees, having heard this^h word, have been offended?ⁱ But he answering said, Every plant which my heavenly Father has not planted 14 shall be rooted up. Leave them alone; they are blind leaders of blind: but if blind lead blind, 15 both will fall into a ditch. And Peter answering said to him, Expound to us this parable. But he^j said, Are ye also still without intelligence? Do ye not yet^k apprehend, that everything that enters into the mouth finds its way into the belly, and is cast 18 forth into the draught? but those things which go forth out of the mouth come out of the heart, and 19 those defile man.^b For out of the heart come forth evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witnessings, blasphemies; these are the things which defile man;^b but the eating with unwashed hands does not defile the man.

²² But he did not answer her a word. And his disciples came to [him] and asked him, saying, Dismiss her, for she cries after us.

²³ But he answering said, I have not been sent save to the lost sheep of Israel's house. But she came and did him homage, saying,

²⁴ Lord, help me. But he answering said, It is not well to take the bread of the children and cast it to the dogs.^e But she said, Yea,^f Lord; for even the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from woman, thy faith [is] great. Be it to thee as thou desirest. And her daughter was healed from that very hour.

²⁵ the table of their masters. Then Jesus answering said to her, O

²⁶ And Jesus leaving that, came towards the sea of Galilee, and he went up into the mountain and sat down there; and great crowds came to him, having with them lame, blind, dumb, crippled, and many others, and they cast them at his^g feet, and he healed them.

²⁸ God of Israel. But Jesus, having called his disciples to [him], said, I am moved with compassion as to the crowd, because they remain with me now already three days and they have not anything which they can eat, and I would not send them away fasting lestⁱ they should faint on the way.

^f Or else we may say 'yet' here, as admitting the truth but pleading: ναί is used for affirming what is said, but also for beseeching, as, indeed, in English we say, 'Yea, do it,' 'Yes, do it.' 'Yet' seems perhaps to express this more clearly, as the admission of what Christ

said is thus evident; the 'but' is wanting if we say 'yea.' The Auth. Ver. avoids the difficulty discussed by all the critics, by translating freely, but the 'for even' of the original is lost. 'Yet' thus used gives assent and obsecration, and this seems the force of ναί. See Rev. xxii. 20, 'Even so come.' If we say 'Truth, Lord, we must add 'yet.' 'Truth, Lord, [yet hear] for even.' As to ναί having this tacitly beseeching character, see Philem. 20, and so it is taken by many. Otherwise ναί contradicts the Lord, who had said ὀκ, and καὶ γὰρ follows naturally. And I suspect this to be the better sense: 'Yes, Lord, you may do it, for even: ' so I have put it in the text.

Christ, the Son of the living God.
 17 And Jesus answering said to him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jonas,[†] for flesh and blood has not revealed [it] to thee, but my Father
 18 who is in the heavens. And I also, I say unto thee, that thou art Peter,[‡] and on this rock I will build my assembly, and hades[‡] gates shall not prevail against it.
 19 And I will give to thee the keys of the kingdom of the heavens; and whatever thou mayest bind upon the earth shall be bound in the heavens; and whatsoever thou mayest loose on the earth shall 20 be loosed in the heavens. Then he enjoined on his disciples that they should say to no man that he was[‡] the Christ.
 21 From that time Jesus began to shew to his disciples that he must go away to Jerusalem, and suffer many things from the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and the third day be raised.
 22 And Peter taking him to [him] began to rebuke him, saying, [God] be favourable to thee, Lord; this shall in no wise be unto thee.
 23 But turning round, he said to Peter, Get away behind me, Satan; thou art an offence to me, for thou savourest not the things of God,
 24 but the things of men. Then Jesus said to his disciples, If any one desires to come after me, let him deny himself and take up 25 his cross and follow me. For whosoever shall desire to save his life[‡] shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall 26 find it. For what does a man profit if he should gain the whole world and lose his soul?[‡] or what shall a man give in exchange

 27 for his soul? For the Son of man is about to come in the glory of his Father with his angels, and then he will render to each ac-
 28 cording to his doings. Verily I say unto you, There are some of those standing here who shall not taste of death at all[‡] until they shall have seen the Son of man coming in his kingdom.

XVII. And after six days Jesus takes Peter, and James, and John his brother with [him], and brings them up into a high mountain 2 apart. And he was transfigured before them. And his face shone as the sun, and his garments be-
 3 came white as the light; and lo, Moses and Elias appeared to them
 4 talking with him. And Peter answering said to Jesus, Lord, it is good we should be here. If thou wilt, let us make here three tabernacles: for thee one, and for Moses one, and one for Elias.
 5 While he was still speaking, behold, a bright cloud overshadowed[‡] them, and lo, a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I have found their faces and were greatly terrified. And Jesus coming to [them] touched them, and said, Rise up, and be not terrified. And lifting up their eyes, they saw no one but Jesus alone. And as they descended from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no one until the Son of man be risen up from among [the] dead. And his disciples demanded of him, saying, Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come? And he^a answering said to them, Elias indeed comes first and will restore all things. But I say unto you, that Elias has already come, and they have not known him, but have done unto him whatever they would. Thus also the Son of man is about to suffer from^b them. Then the disciples understood that he spoke to them of John the baptist. And when they came to the crowd, a man came to him, falling on his knees before him, and saying, Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is lunatic, and suffers^c sorely. For often he falls into the fire and often into the water; and I brought him to thy disciples and they were not able to heal him. And Jesus answering said, O unbelieving and perverted generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I bear with you? Bring him here to me. And Jesus rebuked him, and the demon went out from him, and the boy was healed from that hour. Then the disciples, coming to Jesus apart, said to him, Why were not we able to cast him out? And Jesus said to them, Because of your unbelief; for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say to this mountain, Be transported hence there, and it shall transport itself; and nothing shall be impossible^d to you. But this kind does not go out but by prayer and fasting.

And while they abode in Galilee, Jesus said to them, The Son of man is about to be delivered up into [the] hands of men, and they shall kill him; and the third day he shall be raised up. And they were greatly grieved. And when they came to Capernaum, those who received the didrachmas^e came to Peter and said, Does your teacher not pay the didrachma? He says, Yes.^f And when he came into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, What dost thou think, Simon? the kings of the earth, from whom do they receive custom or tribute? from their own sons or from strangers? XVIII. In that hour the disciples came to Jesus saying, Who then is greatest^h in the kingdom of the heavens? And Jesus having called a little child to [him], set it in their midst and said, Verily I say to you, Unless ye are converted and become as little children, ye will not at allⁱ enter into the kingdom of the heavens. Whoever^j therefore shall humble himself as this little child, he is the greatest^h in the kingdom of the heavens; and whosoever shall receive one such little child in my name, receives me. But whosoever shall offend^k one of these little ones who believe in me, it were profitable for him that a great millstone^l had been hung upon his neck and he sunk in the depths of the sea. Woe to the world because of offences!^k For it must needs be that offences^k come; yet woe to that^m man by whom the offence^k comes! And if thy hand or thy foot offend^k thee, cut themⁿ off and cast [them] from thee; it is good for thee to enter into life lame or maimed, [rather] than having two hands or two feet to be cast^o into eternal fire. And if thine eye offend^k thee, pluck it out and cast [it] from thee; it is good for thee to enter into life one-eyed, [rather] than having two eyes to be cast into the gehenna of fire. See that ye do not despise one of these little ones; for I say unto you that their angels in [the] heavens continually behold the face of my Father who is in [the] heavens. For the Son of man is come to save that [which was] lost. What think ye? If a certain man should have a hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, does he not, leaving the ninety and nine on the mountains, go and seek the one that has gone astray? And if it should come to pass that he find it, verily I say unto you, He rejoices more because of it than because of the ninety and nine not gone astray. So it^o is not the will of your Father who is in [the] heavens that one of these little ones should perish. But if thy brother sin against thee, go,^p reprove him between thee and him alone. If he hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he do not hear thee, take with thee one or two besides, that every matter may stand upon the word^q of two witnesses or of three. But if he will not listen to them, tell it to the assembly; and if also he will not listen to the assembly, let him be to thee as one of the nations and a tax-

²¹ Then Peter came to him and said, Lord, how often shall my brother sin against me and I forgive ²² him? until seven times? Jesus saith to him, I say not to thee until seven times, but until seventy times seven. For this cause ²³ the kingdom of the heavens has become like a^s king who would reckon with his bondsmen. And having begun to reckon, one debtor of ten thousand talents was ²⁴ brought to him. But he not having anything to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and everything that he had, and that ²⁵ payment should be made. The bondsman therefore falling down did him homage, saying, Lord, have patience with me and I will ²⁶ pay thee all. And the lord of that bondsman being moved with compassion, loosed him and forgave ²⁷ him the loan. But that bonds-

man having gone out, found one of his fellow-bondsmen who owed him a hundred denarii. And having seized him, he throttled him, saying, Pay [me]^t if thou owest anything. His fellow-bondsman therefore having fallen down at his feet, besought him, saying, Have patience with me and I will ²⁹ pay thee.^u But he would not, but went away and cast him into prison, until he should pay what ³⁰ was owing. But his fellow-bondsmen, having seen what had taken place, were greatly grieved, and went and recounted to their lord ³¹ all that had taken place. Then his lord, having called him to [him], says to him, Wicked bondsman! I forgave thee all that debt because^v thou besoughtest me; ³² shouldest not thou also have had compassion on thy fellow-bondsman, as I also had compassion ³³ on thee? And his lord being angry delivered him to the tormentors till he paid all that was ³⁴ owing to him. Thus also my heavenly Father shall do to you if ye forgive not from your hearts every one his brother.^w

 24 of the heavens; and again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the 25 kingdom of God. And when the disciples heard it they were exceedingly astonished, saying, Who 26 then can be saved? But Jesus, looking at [them], said to them, With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible.
 27 Then Peter answering said to him, Behold, we have left all and followed thee; what then shall hap-
 28 pen to us? And Jesus said to them, Verily I say unto you, That ye who have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit downⁱ upon his throne of glory, ye also shall sit on twelve thrones, judging the 29 twelve tribes of Israel. And every one who^j has left houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold, and shall 30 inherit life eternal; but many first shall be last, and last first. (XX.) For the kingdom of the heavens is like a^k householder who went out with the early morn to hire workmen for his 2 vineyard. And having agreed with the workmen for a denarius

the day, he sent them into his 3 vineyard. And having gone out about [the] third hour, he saw others standing in the market-
 4 place idle; and to them he said, Go also ye into my vineyard, and whatever may be just I will give you. And they went their way.
 5 And again, having gone out about the sixth and ninth hour, he did
 6 likewise. But about the eleventh hour,^l having gone out, he found others standing,^m and says to them, Why stand ye here all the day
 7 idle? They say to him, Because no man has hired us. He says to them, Go also ye into the vine-
 8 yard [and whatsoever may be just ye shall receive].ⁿ But when the evening was come, the lord of the vineyard says to his steward, Call the workmen and pay them their wages, beginning from the 9 last even to the first. And when they [who came to work] about the eleventh hour came, they re-
 10 ceived each a denarius. And when the first came, they supposed that they would receive more, and they received also themselves each a 11 denarius. And on receiving it they murmured against the master
 12 of the house, saying, These last have worked one hour, and thou hast made them equal to us who have borne the burden of the day 13 and the heat. But he answering said to one of them, [My] friend, I do not wrong thee. Didst thou it is my will to give to this last for me to do what I will in my own affairs ? Is thine eye evil be-the last be first, and the first last ;

 for many are called [ones], but few

17 And Jesus, going up to Jerusalem, took the twelve disciples^o with [him] apart in the 18 way, and said to them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man will be delivered up to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to up to the nations to mock and to scourge and to crucify, and the third day he shall rise again.

20 Then came to him the mother of the sons of Zebedee, with her sons, doing homage, and asking 21 something of him. And he said to her, What wilt thou ? She says to him, Speak [the word] that these my two sons may sit, one on thy right hand and one on thy^p 22 left in thy kingdom. And Jesus answering said, Ye know not what ye ask. Can ye drink the cup which I am about to drink ?^q
 They say to him, We are able.
 23 And he saith to them, Ye shall drink indeed my cup,^q but to sit on my right hand and on my left is not mine to give but to those for whom it is prepared of my 24 Father. And the ten, having heard of it, were indignant about 25 the two brothers. But Jesus having called them to [him], said, Ye know that the rulers of the nations exercise lordship over them, and the great exercise au-26 thority over them. It shall not be thus amongst you, but whosoever would be great among you 27 let him^r be your servant ; and whosoever would be first among you let him^r be your bondsman ; 28 as indeed the Son of man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.

29 And as they went out from Jericho a great crowd followed 30 him. And lo, two blind men, sitting by the wayside, having heard that Jesus was passing by, cried out, saying, Have mercy on 31 us, Lord, Son of David. But the crowd rebuked them, that they might be silent. But they cried out the more, saying, Have mercy 32 on us, Lord, Son of David. And Jesus, having stopped, called them and said, What will ye that I 33 shall do to you ? They say to him, Lord, that our eyes may be 34 opened. And Jesus, moved with compassion, touched their eyes ;
 and immediately their eyes had sight restored to them, and they followed him.

lage over against you, and immediately ye will find an ass tied and a colt with it; loose [them] and lead [them] to me. And if any one say anything to you, ye shall say, The Lord has need of them, and straightway he will send them. But all this came to pass, that that might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, Say to the daughter of Zion, Behold, thy king cometh to thee, meek, and mounted upon an ass, and a colt the foal^u of an ass. But the disciples, having gone and done as Jesus had ordered them, brought the ass and the colt and put their garments upon them, and he sat on them.^v But a very great crowd strewed their own garments on the way, and others kept cutting down branches from the trees and strewing them on the way. And the crowds who went before and who followed cried, saying, Hosanna to the Son of David; blessed [be] he who comes in the name of [the]^w Lord; hosanna in the highest. And as he entered into Jerusalem, the whole city was moved, saying, Who is this? And the crowds said, This is Jesus the prophet, who [is] from Nazareth of Galilee. And Jesus entered into the temple^x of God, and cast out all that sold and bought in the temple,^x and overthrew the tables of the money-changers and the seats of those that sold the doves. And he says to them, It is written, My house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it^y a den of robbers. And blind and lame came to him in the temple,^x and he healed them. And when the chief priests and the scribes saw the wonders which he wrought, and the children crying in the temple^x and saying, Hosanna to the Son of David, they were indignant, and said to him, Hearst thou what these say? And Jesus saith to them, Yea; have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise? And leaving them he went out of the city to Bethany, and there he passed the night. But early in the morning, as he came back into the city, he hungered. And seeing one fig-tree in the way, he came to it and found nothing on it but leaves only. And he saith to it, Let there be never more fruit of thee for ever. And the fig-tree was immediately dried up. And when the disciples saw [it] they wondered, saying, How immediately is the fig-tree dried up! And Jesus answering said to them, Verily I say to you, If ye have faith, and do not doubt, not only shall ye do what [is done] to this fig-tree, but even if ye should say to this mountain, Be thou taken away and be thou cast into the sea, it shall come to pass. temple the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him [as he was] teaching, saying, By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority? And Jesus answering said to them, I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I also will tell you by what authority I do these things: The baptism of John, whence was it? of heaven or of men? And they reasoned among themselves saying, If we should say, Of heaven, he will say to us, Why then have ye not believed him? but if we should say, Of men, we fear the crowd, for all hold John for a prophet. And answering Jesus they said, We do not know. He also said to them, Neither do I tell you by what authority I do these things. But what think ye? A man had two children, and coming to the first he said, Child, go to-day, work in my vineyard. And he answering said, I will not, but afterwards repenting himself he went. And coming to the second he said likewise; and he answering said, I [go], sir, and went not. Which of the two did the will of the father? They say to him, The first. Jesus says to them, Verily I say to you that the tax-gatherers and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you. For John came to you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not; but the tax-gatherers and the harlots believed him; but ye when ye saw [it] repented not yourselves afterwards to believe him.

33 Hear another parable: There was a householder who planted a vineyard, and made a fence round it, and dug a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went away out of the country. But when the time of fruit drew near, he sent his bondsmen to the husbandmen to receive his fruits. And the husbandmen took his bondsmen, and beat one, killed another, and stoned another. Again he sent other bondsmen more than the first, and they did to them in like manner. And at last he sent to them his son, saying, They will have respect for my son. But the husbandmen, seeing the son, said among themselves, This is the heir; come let us kill him and possess his inheritance. And they took him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him. When therefore the lord of the vineyard comes, what shall he do to those husbandmen? They say to him, He will miserably destroy those evil [men], and let out the vineyard to other husbandmen, who shall render^a him the fruits in their seasons. Jesus saith to them, Have ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, that has become

^b There is no good English word for this: out of England it is quite general that a part of the fruit or wine is paid in kind according to agreement, instead of a fixed rent. So with all kinds of produce. But we can hardly say 'pay fruits,' nor 'give,' nor indeed 'render;' but there is nothing better than this last. The usage makes the meaning plain, and the use of ἀποδώσει.

the head of the corner? This is of [the] Lord, and it is wonderful in our eyes! Therefore I say to you, that the kingdom of God shall be taken from you and shall be given to a nation producing the fruits of it. And he that falls on this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it shall grind him to powder. And the chief priests and the Pharisees, having heard his parable, knew that he spoke^b about them. And seeking to lay hold of him, they were afraid of the crowds, because they held him for a prophet.

XXII. And Jesus answering spoke to them again in parables, saying, The kingdom of the heavens has been made like to a king who made a wedding feast for his son, and sent his bondsmen to call the persons invited to the wedding feast, and they would not come. Again he sent other bondsmen, saying, Say to the persons invited, Behold, I have prepared my dinner; my oxen and my fatted beasts are killed, and all things ready; come to the wedding feast. But they made light of it, and went, one to his own land, and another to his commerce. And the rest, laying hold of his bondsmen, insulted and slew [them]. And [when] the king^c [heard of it he] was wroth, and having sent his forces, destroyed those murderers and burnt their city. Then he says to his bondsmen, The wedding feast is ready, but those invited were not worthy; go therefore into the thoroughfares of the highways, and as many as ye shall find invite to the wedding feast. And those bondsmen went out into the highways and brought together all as many as they found, both evil and good; and the wedding feast was furnished with guests. And the king having gone in to see the guests, beheld there a man not clothed with a wedding garment. And he says to him, [My] friend, how earnest thou in here not having on a wedding garment? But he was speechless. Then said the king to the servants, Bind him feet and hands, and take him away,^d and cast him out into the outer darkness: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth. For many are called ones, but few chosen ones. Then went the Pharisees and held a council how they might ensnare him in speaking. And they send out to him their disciples with the Herodians, saying, Teacher, we know that thou art true and teachest the way of God in truth, and troublest thyself about no one, for thou regardest not men's person; tell us therefore what thou thinkest: Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar or not? 18 But Jesus, knowing their wickedness, said, Why do ye tempt me, 19 hypocrites? Shew me the money of the tribute. And they presented to him a denarius. And he says to them, Whose [is] this image and superscription? They say to him, Cæsar's. Then he says to them, Pay then the things of Cæsar to Cæsar, and the things of God to God. And when they heard [him], they wondered and left him, and went away. 22 On that day came to him Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, and they demanded of him, 24 saying, Teacher, Moses said, If any one die, not having children, his brother shall marry^e his wife and shall raise up seed to his brother. 25 Now there were with us seven brethren; and the first having married died, and not having seed, left his wife to his brother. 26 In like manner also the second and the third, unto the seven. 27 And last of all the woman also died. In the resurrection therefore of which of the seven shall she be wife, for all had her? And Jesus answering said to them, Ye err, not knowing the scriptures nor the power of God. For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as angels of God in heaven. 31 But concerning the resurrection of the dead, have ye not read what was spoken to you by God, saying, 32 I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? God is not God of [the] dead, but of [the] living. And when the crowds heard it they were astonished at his doctrine. 34 But the Pharisees, having heard that he had put the Sadducees to silence, were gathered together. 35 And one of them, a lawyer, demanded, tempting him, and saying, Teacher, which is the great 36 commandment in the law? And he^f said to him, Thou shalt love [the] Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is [the] great and first^g commandment. 39 And [the] second is like it, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. On these two commandments the whole law and the prophets hang. 41 But the Pharisees being gathered together, Jesus demanded 42 of them, saying, What think ye concerning the Christ? whose son is he? They say to him, 43 David's. He saith to them, How then does David in Spirit call 44 him Lord, saying, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit on my right hand until I put thine enemies under^h 45 thy feet? If therefore David call 46 him Lord, how is he his son? And no one was able to answer him a word, nor did any one dare from that day to question him any more. (XXIII.) Then Jesus spoke to the 2 crowds and to his disciples, saying, The scribes and the Pharisees 3 have set down in Moses' seat: all things therefore, whatever they may tell you, do and keep.¹ But do not after their works, for they ⁴ say and do not, but^j bind burdens heavy and hard to bear, and lay them on the shoulders of men, but will not move them with their ⁵ finger. And all their works they do to be seen of men: for^k they make broad their phylacteries and enlarge the borders [of their garments],^l and love the chief place in feasts and the chief seats in the ⁷ synagogues, and salutations in the markets, and to be called of ⁸ men, Rabbi, Rabbi. But ye, be not ye called Rabbi; for one is your instructor,^m the Christ, and ⁹ all ye are brethren. And call not [any one] your father upon the earth; for one is your Father, he ¹⁰ who is in the heavens. Neither be called instructors;ⁿ for one is ¹¹ your instructor, the Christ. But the greatest of you shall be your ¹² servant. And whoever shall exalt himself shall be humbled, and whoever shall humble himself shall be exalted.

¹³ Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye shut up the kingdom of the heavens before men; for ye do not enter, nor do ye suffer those that are ¹⁵ entering to go in.ⁿ Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye compass the sea and the dry [land] to make one proselyte, and when he is become [such], ye

And, Whosoever ¹⁸ shall swear by the altar, it is nothing; but whosoever shall swear by the gift that is upon it is a ¹⁹ debtor. Fools and blind, for which is greater, the gift or the altar ²⁰ which sanctifies the gift? He therefore that swears by the altar swears by it, and by all things ²¹ that are upon it. And he that swears by the temple^o swears by it and by him that dwells^p in it. ²² And he that swears by heaven swears by the throne of God and ²³ by him that sits upon it. ²⁷ Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye are like whitened sepulchres, which^a appear beautiful outwardly, but within are full of dead men's bones and ²⁸ all uncleanness. Thus also ye, outwardly ye appear righteous to men, but within are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness. Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, for ye build the tombs of the prophets and adorn the monuments of the just, and ye say, If we had been in the days of our fathers we would not have been partakers with them in the blood ³¹ of the prophets. So that ye bear witness of yourselves that ye are the sons of those who slew the ³² prophets: and ye, fill ye up the ³³ measure of your fathers. Serpents, offspring of vipers, how should ye escape the judgment of gehenna?

³⁴ Therefore, behold, I send unto you prophets, and wise men, and scribes; and [some] of them ye will kill and crucify, and some of them ye will scourge in your synagogues, and will persecute from ³⁵ city to city; so that all righteous blood shed upon the earth should come upon you, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zacharias, son of Barachias, whom ye slew between the ³⁶ temple^r and the altar.  8 But all these are the beginning of 9 throes. Then shall they deliver you up to tribulation, and shall kill you; and ye shall be hated of all the nations for my name's
 10 sake. And then will many be offended, and will deliver one another up, and hate one another; 11 and many false prophets shall arise and shall mislead many; and because lawlessness shall prevail,^a the love of the 12 most shall grow
 13 cold; but he that has endured to 14 the end he shall be saved. And these glad tidings of the kingdom shall be preached in the whole habitable earth for a witness to all the nations, and then shall 15 come the end. When therefore ye shall see the abomination of desolation, which is spoken of by Daniel the prophet, standing in [what is a] holy place,^b (let him

 27 bers, do not believe [it]. For as the lightning goes forth from the east and shines to the west, so^d shall be the coming of the Son of the Son of man coming on the clouds of heaven with power and

the middle of the night there was a cry, Behold, the bridegroom;⁶ ⁷ go forth to meet him. Then all those virgins arose and trimmed ⁸ their lamps. But as they went away to buy, the bridegroom came, and the ones [that were] ready went in with him to the wedding feast, ¹¹ and the door was shut. Afterwards come also the rest of the virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open ¹² to us; but he answering said, Verily I say unto you, I do not ¹³ know you. Watch therefore, for ye do not know the day nor the hour.^r ¹⁴ For [it is] as [if] a man going away out of a country called his own bondsmen and delivered ¹⁵ to them his substance. And to one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one, to each according to his particular ability, and immediately went ¹⁶ away out of the country. And he that had received five talents went and trafficked with them, and made five other talents. In ¹⁷ like manner also he that [had received] the two, he also gained ¹⁸ two others. But he that had received the one went and dug in the earth and hid the money of ¹⁹ his lord. And after a long time the lord of those bondsmen comes ²⁰ and reckons with them. And he that had received the five talents came to [him] and brought five other talents, saying, [My] lord, thou deliveredst me five talents; behold, I have gained five other ²¹ talents besides them. His lord said to him, Well, good and faithful bondsman, thou wast faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things: enter into the ²² joy of thy lord. And he that had received two talents came to [him] and said, [My] lord, thou deliveredst me two talents; behold, I have gained two other talents be- ²³ sides them. His lord said to him, Well, good and faithful bondsman, thou wast faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things: enter into the joy of thy ²⁴ lord. And he that had received the one talent, coming to [him] also said, [My] lord, I knew thee that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou hadst not sowed, and gathering from where thou hadst ²⁵ not scattered, and being afraid I went away and hid thy talent in the earth; behold, thou hast [that ²⁶ is] thine. And his lord answering said to him, Wicked and slothful bondsman, thou knewest that I reap where I had not sowed, and gather from where I had not scattered; thou oughtest then to have ²⁷ put my money to the money-changers, and when I came I should have got what is mine with ²⁸ interest. ³¹ But when the Son of man comes^t in his glory, and all the^v angels with him, then shall he sit upon

³⁶ ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was ill, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and

³⁷ ye came to me. Then shall the righteous answer him saying, Lord, when saw we thee hungering, and nourished thee; or thirsting, and gave thee to drink? and

³⁸ when saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in; or naked, and clothed thee? and when saw we thee ill or in prison, and came to thee?

⁴⁰ And the King answering shall say to them, Verily I say to you, Inasmuch as ye have done it to one of the least of these my brethren, ⁴¹ ye have done it to me. Then shall he say also to those on the left, Go from me, cursed, into eternal fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: for I hungered, and ye gave me not to eat; and I thirsted, and ⁴² ye gave me not to drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me not in; naked, and ye did not clothe me; ill and in prison, and ye did not

XXVI. And it came to pass when Jesus had finished all these sayings, he said to his disciples, Ye know that after two days the passover takes place, and the Son of man is delivered up to be crucified. Then the chief priests^x and the elders of the people were gathered together to the palace of the high priest who [was] called

But the^y disciples seeing it became indignant, saying, To what end was this waste? for this^z might have been sold for much and been given to the poor. 10 But Jesus knowing [it] said to them, Why do ye trouble the woman? for she hath wrought a good work towards me. For ye have the^y poor always with you, 12 but me ye have not always. For in pouring out this ointment on my body, she has done it for my burying. Then one of the twelve, he [who was] called Judas Iscariote, 15 went to the chief priests and said, What are ye willing to give me, and I will deliver him up to you? And they appointed^a to him thirty 16 pieces of silver. And from that time he sought a good opportunity that he might deliver him up. 17 Now on the first [day] of [the feast of] unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying,^b Where wilt thou that we prepare 18 for thee to eat the passover? And he said, Go into the city unto such a one and say to him, The teacher says, My time is near, I will keep the passover in thy house^c

And as they were eating he said, Verily I say to you, that one of you shall deliver me up. And being exceedingly 22 grieved they began to say to him, each of them, Is it I, Lord? But he answering said, He that dips his hand with me in the dish, he 24 it is who shall deliver me up. The Son of man goes indeed according as it is written concerning him, but woe to that man by whom the Son of man is delivered up. It 25 were good for him if that man had not been born. And Judas, who delivered him up, answering said, Is it I, Rabbi? He saith to him, Thou hast said. 26 And as they were eating, Jesus, having taken the^d bread and blessed, broke [it] and gave [it] to the disciples and said, Take, eat; this 27 is my body. And having taken the^d cup and given thanks, he gave [it] to them, saying, Drink ye all 28 of it. saith Jesus to them, All ye shall be offended in me during this night. For it is written, I will smite the shepherd and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad; but after that I shall be risen, I will go before you to Galilee. And Peter answering said to him, If all shall be offended in thee, I will never be offended. Jesus said to him, Verily I say to thee, that during this night, before the cock shall crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. Peter says to him, If I should needs die with thee, I will in no wise deny thee. Likewise said all his disciples also.

Then Jesus comes with them to a place called Gethsemane, and says to the disciples, Sit here until I go away and pray yonder. And taking with [him] Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, he began to be sorrowful and deeply depressed. Then he saith to them, My soul is very sorrowful [even] unto death; remain here and watch with me. And going forward a little he fell upon his face, praying and saying, My Father, if it be possible let this cup pass from me; but not as I will, but as thou. And he comes to the disciples and finds them sleeping, and says to Peter, Thus ye have not been able to watch one hour with me? Watch and pray, that ye may not enter into temptation: the spirit is ready, but the flesh is weak. Again going away a second time he prayed saying, My Father, if this cannot pass from me unless I drink it, thy will be done. And coming he found them again sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. And leaving them, going away again he prayed the third time, saying the same thing. Then he comes to his disciples and says to them, Sleep on now and take your rest; behold, the hour has drawn nigh, and the Son of man is delivered up into the hands of sinners. Rise up, let us go; behold, he that delivers me up has drawn nigh. And while he was yet speaking, behold, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great crowd with swords and sticks from the chief priests and elders of the people. And he that delivered him up had given to them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, he it is: seize him. And immediately coming up to Jesus he said, Hail, Rabbi, and covered him with kisses. But Jesus said to him, [My] friend, for what purpose art thou come? Then coming up they laid hands upon Jesus and seized him. And behold, one of those with Jesus stretched out his hand and drew his sword, and smiting the bondsman of the high priest took off his ear. Then saith Jesus to him, Return thy sword to its place; for all who take the sword shall perish by the sword. Or thinkest thou that I cannot now call upon my Father and he will furnish me more than twelve ⁵⁴ legions of angels? How then should the scriptures be fulfilled ⁵⁵ that thus it must be? In that hour Jesus said to the crowds, Are ye come out as against a robber with swords and sticks to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple¹ and ye ⁵⁶ did not seize me. But all this is come^m to pass that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled.

 Then all the disciples forsook him and fled.

⁵⁷ But they that had seized Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and ⁵⁸ the elders were assembled. And Peter followed him at a distance, even to the palace of the high priest; and entering in sat with ⁵⁹ the officers to see the end. And the high priest and the eldersⁿ and the whole council sought false witness against Jesus, so that they ⁶⁰ might put him to death. And they found none,^o though many false witnesses came forward.^o But ⁶¹ at the last two false witnesses came forward and said, He^p said,
 I am able to destroy the temple^q
 of God, and in three days build it.
⁶² And the high priest standing up said to him, Answerest thou nothing? What do these witness ⁶³ against thee? But Jesus was silent. And the high priest answering said to him, I adjure thee

by the living God that^r thou tell us if thou art the Christ the Son ⁶⁴ of God. Jesus says to him, Thou hast said. Moreover, I say to you, from henceforth ye shall see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of power, and coming ⁶⁵ on the clouds of heaven. Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying, He has blasphemed: what need have we any more of witnesses? behold, now ye have heard ⁶⁶ the^s blasphemy. What think ye?
 And they answering said, He is liable to the penalty of death.
⁶⁷ Then they spit in his face, and buffeted him, and some struck him with the palms of their hand, ⁶⁸ saying, Prophecy to us, Christ,
 Who is it who struck thee?

⁶⁹ But Peter sat without in the palace-court,^t and a maid came to him saying, And thou hast been ⁷⁰ with Jesus of Galilee. But he denied before all, saying, I do not ⁷¹ know what thou sayest. And when he had gone out into the entrance, another saw him, and says to those there, This [man]- also was with Jesus the Nazarean.
⁷² And again he denied with an oath: I do not know the man.
⁷³ And after a little, those who stood [there], coming to [him], said to Peter, Truly thou too art of them, for also thy speech makes^u ⁷⁴ thee manifest. Then he began to curse and to swear, I know not bered the word of Jesus, who had said to him, Before the cock crow thou shalt deny me thrice. And he went out, outside, and wept bitterly.

XXVII. And when it was morning, all the chief priests and the elders of the people took counsel against^u
 Jesus so that they might put him
² to death. And having bound him they led him away, and delivered him up to Pontius Pilate the go-³ vernor. Then Judas, who delivered him up, seeing that he had been condemned, filled with remorse, returned the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and ⁴ the elders, saying, I have sinned
 [in] having delivered up guiltless blood. But they said, What is that ⁵ to us? see thou [to that]. And having cast down the pieces of silver in the temple,^v he left the place, and went away and hung himself.
⁶ And the chief priests took the pieces of silver and said, It is not lawful to cast [them] into the Corban, since it is [the] price of ⁷ blood. And having taken counsel, they bought with them the field of the pottor for a burying ground ⁸ for strangers. Wherefore that field has been called Blood-field ⁹ unto this day. Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, And I took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of him that was set a price on, whom they who were of the ¹⁰ sons of Israel had set a price on,
 and gave them for the field of the pottor, according as [the] Lord commanded me.

¹¹ But Jesus stood before the governor. And the governor questioned him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And Jesus ¹² said to him, Thou sayest. And when he was accused of the chief priests and the elders, he answered ¹³ nothing. Then says Pilate to him, Hearest thou not how many things they witness against thee?
¹⁴ And he answered him not so much as one word, so that the governor ¹⁵ wondered exceedingly. But at [the] feast the governor was accustomed to release one prisoner to the crowd, whom they would.
¹⁶ And he had then a notable prison-¹⁷ er, named Barabbas. They therefore being gathered together, Pilate said to them, Whom will ye that I release to you, Barabbas, or Jesus who is called ¹⁸ Christ? For he knew that they had delivered him up through ¹⁹ envy. But, as he was sitting on the judgment-seat, his wife sent to him, saying, Have nothing to do with that righteous man; for
 I have suffered to-day many things ²⁰ in a dream because of him. But the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds that they should beg for Barabbas and de-²¹ stroy Jesus. And the governor answering said to them, Which of the two will ye that I release unto you? But they said, Barab-²² bas. Pilate says to them, What then shall I do with Jesus, who is called Christ? They all say,^w governor said, What evil then has he done? But they cried more than ever, saying, Let him be crucified. And Pilate, seeing that it availed nothing, but that rather a tumult was arising, having taken water, washed his hands before the crowd, saying, I am guiltless of the blood of this righteous one: see ye [to it]. And all the people answering said, His blood [be] on us and on our children. Then he released to them Barabbas; but Jesus, having scourged [him], he delivered up that he might be crucified. Then the soldiers of the governor, having taken Jesus with them to the pretorium, gathered against him the whole band, and having taken off his garment, put on^x him a scarlet cloak. And having woven a crown out of thorns, put it on his head, and a reed in his right hand; and, bowing the knee before him, they mocked him saying, Hail, King of the Jews! And having spit upon him, they took the reed and beat [him] on his head. And when they had mocked him, they took the cloak off him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him away to crucify. And as they went forth they found a man of Cyrene, Simon by name, him they forced to go with them that he might bear his cross. And having come to a place called Golgotha, which means^y Place of a skull, they gave to him to drink vinegar^z mingled with gall; and having tasted [it] he would not drink. And having crucified him they parted his clothes amongst [themselves], casting lots.^a And sitting down, they kept guard over him there. And they set up over his head his accusation written: This is Jesus, the King of the Jews. Then are crucified with him two robbers, one on the right hand and one on the left. But the passers by reviled him, shaking their heads and saying, Thou that destroyest the temple^b and buildest it in three days, save thyself. If thou art Son of God, descend from the cross. And in like manner the chief priests also, mocking, with the scribes and elders, said, He saved others, himself he cannot save. If he be King of Israel,^c let him descend now from the cross, and we will believe him. He trusted upon God; let him save him now if he will [have] him. For he said, I am Son of God. And the robbers who had been crucified with him cast the same reproaches on him. Now from [the] sixth hour there was darkness over the whole land^d until [the] ninth hour; but about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice saying, Eli, Eli, lama sabacthani? that is, My God, my God, why hast thou abandoned

47 me? And some of those who stood there, when they heard [it], said, This [man] calls for Elias.
 48 And immediately one of them running and getting a sponge, having filled [it] with vinegar and fixed [it] on a reed, gave him to 49 drink. But the rest said, Let be; let us see if Elias comes to save 50 him. And Jesus, having again cried with a loud voice, gave up 51 the ghost. And lo, the veil of the temple^d was rent in two from the top to the bottom, and the earth was shaken, and the rocks
 52 were rent, and the tombs were opened; and many bodies of the 53 saints fallen asleep arose, and going out of the tombs after his arising, entered into the holy city and appeared unto many.
 54 But the centurion, and they who were with him on guard over Jesus, seeing the earthquake and the things that took place, feared greatly, saying, Of a truth this [man] was Son of God.
 55 And there were there many women beholding from afar off, who^e had followed Jesus from 56 Galilee ministering^f to him, among whom was Mary of Magdala, and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.
 57 Now when even was come there came a rich man of Arimathea, his name Joseph, who also himself
 58 was a disciple to Jesus. He, going to Pilate, begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded

59 the body to be given up. And Joseph having got the body^g wrapped it in a clean linen cloth, and deposited it in his new tomb which he had hewn in the rock; and having rolled a great stone to the door of the sepulchre, went 60 away. But Mary of Magdala was there, and the other Mary, sitting opposite the sepulchre.
 61 Now on the morrow, which is after the preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees came 62 together to Pilate, saying, Sir, we have called to mind that that misleader said when he was still alive, After three days I arise.
 63 Command therefore that the tomb be secured until the third day, lest^h his disciples should comeⁱ and steal him away, and say to the people, He is arisen from the dead; and the last error shall be 64 worse than the first. And Pilate said to them, Ye have a watch: go, secure it as well as ye know 65 how. And they went and secured the tomb, having sealed the stone, with the watch [besides].

XXVIII. But late on sabbath, as it was the dusk of the next day after sabbath, came Mary of Magdala and the other Mary to look at the tomb.

2 And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of [the] Lord, descending out of heaven, came and rolled away the stone^j

 5 became as dead men. And the angel answering said to the women, Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus the crucified [one].
 6 He is not here, for he is arisen quickly and say to his disciples that he is arisen from the dead, and behold, he goes before you

 Jesus met them, saying, Hail!

 there they shall see me.

 priests of all that had taken place.

 they gave a large sum of money hearing of the governor, we will persuade him and save you from money and did as they had been taught. And this report is cur-

^a T. R. reads 'in the prophets,' with A and its followers. The reading here is doubtful and disputed since the earliest days, being noticed by Porphyry. The reading in these quotations of names has not in the various cases the same certainty with me as the body of the text, the margin so easily supplied them. Cod. Sin. reads ἐν Ἠσαΐα τῷ π. My impression is, that it was originally ἐν τῷ προφήτῃ simply, and I find Kuster has the same thought.

fore thy face, who shall prepare thy way.^b

³ Voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare the way of [the] Lord, make his paths straight.

⁴ There came John baptizing in the wilderness, and preaching [the] baptism of repentance for remis-

⁵ sion of sins. And there went out to him all the district of Judæa, and all^c they of Jerusalem, and were baptized by him in the river Jordan, making confession of their

⁶ sins. And John was clothed in camel's hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins, and ate locusts

⁷ and wild honey. And he preached, saying, There comes he that is mightier than I after me, the ⁸ thong of whose sandals I am not fit to stoop down and unloose. I indeed have baptized you with water, but he shall baptize you with [the] Holy Ghost.

⁹ And it came to pass in those days [that] Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was bap-

¹⁰ tized by John at the Jordan. And straightway going up from the water, he saw the heavens parting

¹¹ asunder, and the Spirit, as a dove, descending upon him. And there came a voice out of the heavens: Thou art my beloved Son, in thee^d

I have found my pleasure.

¹² And immediately the Spirit drives him out into the desert.

¹³ And he was^e in the desert forty days tempted by Satan, and was with the wild beasts, and the angels ministered^f to him.

¹⁴ But after John was delivered up, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the glad tidings of the king-

¹⁵ dom of God, and saying, The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God has drawn nigh; repent and

¹⁶ believe in the glad tidings. And walking^g by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon, and Andrew his brother, casting out a net in the sea, for they were fishers.

¹⁷ And Jesus said to them, Come after me, and I will make you be-

¹⁸ come fishers of men; and straightway leaving their nets they fol-

¹⁹ lowed him. And going on thence a little, he saw James the [son] of Zebedee, and John his brother, and these in the ship repairing their nets: and straightway he called them; and leaving their father Zebedee in the ship with the hired [servants] they went away after him.

²¹ And they go into Capernaum. And straightway on the sabbath he entered into the synagogue and

²² taught. And they were astonished at his doctrine, for he taught them as having authority, and not as ²³ the scribes. And there was in their synagogue a man [possessed] by^h an unclean spirit, and ²⁴ he cried out saying, Eh!ⁱ what have we to do with thee, Jesus,

^e T. E. adds 'there.'

^f Elsewhere translated 'served.'

^g Many read 'passing on,' or 'as he passed on.'

^h ἐν, not merely he had one, he was completely under its power, characterized by it.

ⁱ The imperative of εἶπα, but used as an interjection, as a cry of dissatisfaction. There is some doubt if it should be read here at all.

Nazarene? Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the holy one of God.

25 And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace and come out of

26 him. And the unclean spirit, having torn him, and uttered a cry with a loud voice, came out

27 of him. And all were amazed, so that they questioned together among themselves, saying, What is this? what new doctrine is this? for with authority he commands even the unclean spirits

28 and they obey him. And his fame went out straightway into the whole region of Galilee around.

29 And straightway going out of the synagogue, they came with James and John into the house of Simon and Andrew. And the mother-in-law of Simon lay in a fever. And straightway they speak to

31 him about her. And he went up to [her] and raised her up, having taken her by the hand, and straightway the fever left her,

32 and she served them. But evening being come, when the sun had gone down, they brought to him all that were suffering, and

33 those possessed by^k demons, and the whole city was gathered together at the door. And he healed many suffering from various diseases; and he cast out many demons, and did not suffer the demons to speak because they

35 knew^l him. And rising in the morning long before day, he went out and went away into a desert

36 place, and there prayed. And Simon and those with him went 37 after him; and having found him, they say to him, All seek thee.

38 And he saith to them, Let us go elsewhere^m into the neighbouring country towns, that I may preach there also, for for this purpose am

39 I come forth. And he was preaching in their synagogues in the whole of Galilee, and casting out demons.

40 And there comes to him a leper, beseeching him, and falling on his knees to him, and saying to him, If thou wilt thou canst cleanse

41 me. But Jesus, moved with compassion, having stretched out his hand, touchedⁿ him, and saith to 42 him, I will, be thou cleansed. And as he spoke, straightway the leprosy left him, and he was cleansed.

43 And having sharply charged him, he straightway sent him away,

44 and saith to him, See thou say nothing to any one, but go shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing what Moses ordained, for a testimony to them.

45 But he, having gone forth, began to proclaim [it] much, and to spread the matter abroad, so that he could no longer enter openly into the city, but was without in desert places, and they came^o to him from every side.

II. And he entered again into Capernaum after [several] days, and it was reported that he was at

And there come to him [men] bringing 4 a paralytic borne by four; and, not being able to get near to him on account of the crowd, they uncovered the roof where he was, and having dug [it] up they let down the couch on which the paralytic 5 lay. But Jesus, seeing their faith, saith to the paralytic, Child, thy 6 sins are remitted thee. But certain of the scribes were there, sitting and reasoning in their hearts: 7 Why does this [man] thus speak? he blasphemeth.^q Who is able to remit sins except God alone? 8 And straightway Jesus, knowing^r in his spirit that they are reasoning thus within themselves, said to them, Why reason ye these 9 things in your hearts? Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, Thy sins are remitted thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy couch 10 and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man has power on the earth to remit sins, he says to 11 the paralytic, To thee I say, Arise, take up thy couch and go to thine 12 house. And he was raised up straightway, and, having taken up his couch, went out before [them] all, so that all were amazed, and glorified God, saying, We never saw it thus.

And the scribes and the Pharisees, having seen him eating with the sinners and taxgatherers, said to his disciples, Why [is it] that he eats and drinks with sinners and taxgatherers? And Jesus having 17 heard [it], saith to them, They that are strong have no need of a physician, but those who are ill. I have not come to call righteous 18 [men], but sinners.^u And the disciples of John and^v the Pharisees were fasting; and they come and say to him, Why do the disciples of John and those of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast 19 not? ¹⁹ Simon the Cananæan,^c and Judas Iscariote, who also delivered him up.

And they come home to [the] ²⁰ house. And again a crowd comes together, so that they cannot even ²¹ eat bread. And his relatives having heard [of it] went out to lay hold on him, for they said, He is ²² out of his mind. And the scribes who had come down from Jerusalem said, He has Beelzebub, and, By the prince of the demons he ²³ casts out demons. And having called them to [him], he said to them in parables, How can Satan ²⁴ cast out Satan? And if a kingdom has become divided against itself, that kingdom cannot subsist.
²⁵ And if a house has become divided against itself, that house cannot subsist. And if Satan ²⁶ rise up against himself, and is divided, he cannot subsist, but ²⁷ has an end. No one can, having entered into his house, plunder the goods of the strong man unless he first bind the strong man, and then he will plunder his house.

²⁸ Verily I say unto you, That all sins shall be forgiven to the sons of men, and all the^d injurious speeches [with] which they may ²⁹ speak injuriously; but whosoever shall speak injuriously against the Holy Spirit, to eternity has no forgiveness; but is subject to ³⁰ eternal judgment. Because they said, He has an unclean spirit.

³⁴ And looking around in a circuit at those that were sitting around him, he says, Behold my ³⁵ mother and my brethren: for whosoever shall do the will of God, he is my brother, and sister, and mother.

IV. And again he began to teach by the sea. And a great crowd was gathered together to him, so that going on shipboard he sat in the sea, and all the crowd were ² close to the sea on the land. And he taught them many things in parables. And he said to them in

And another fell among the thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no ⁸ fruit. And another fell on the good ground, and yielded fruit, growing up and increasing; ⁹ and bore, one thirty, and one sixty, and one a hundred. And he said, ¹⁰ He that has ears to hear, let him hear. And when he was alone, those about him with the twelve asked him [as to] the parable. ¹¹ And he said to them, To you is given [to know] ¹² the mystery of the kingdom of God; but to them who are without, all things are done in parables, that beholding they may behold and not see, and hearing they may hear and not understand, lest, it may be, ¹³ they should be converted and their sins be remitted them. And he saith to them, Do ye not know this parable? and how will ye be acquainted with all the para- ¹⁴ bles? The sower sows the word; ¹⁵ and these are they by the way, where the word is sown, and when they hear, immediately Satan comes and takes away the word that was sown in their hearts. ¹⁶ And these are they in like manner who are sown upon the rocky ground, who, when they hear ¹⁷ the word, immediately receive it with joy, and they have no root in themselves, but are for a time: then, affliction arising, or persecution on account of the word, immediately they are offended. ¹⁸ And others ¹⁹ are they who are sown among the thorns: these are they who hear the word, and the cares of ²⁰ life, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things, entering in choke the word, and it becomes unfruitful. ²¹ And these ²² are they who have been sown on the good ground, such as hear the word and receive it, and bear fruit; one thirty, and one sixty, and one a hundred [fold]. ²³ And he said to them, Does the lamp come that it should be put under the bushel or under the couch? [Is it] not that it should ²⁴ be set upon the lampstand? For there is nothing hidden which shall not be made manifest; nor does any secret thing take place but that it should come to light. ²⁵ If any one have ears to hear, let ²⁶ him hear. ²⁵ For whoever has, to him shall be given; and he who has not, even what he has shall be taken from him.

²⁶ And he said, Thus is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast the seed upon the earth, and should sleep and rise up night and day, and the seed should sprout and grow he does not know how. ²⁷ The earth bears fruit of itself, first the blade, then an ear, then full corn in the ear.

²⁸ But when the fruit is produced, immediately he sends the sickle, for the harvest is come. And he said, How^a should we liken the kingdom of God, or with what comparison should we compare

²⁹ it? As to a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown upon the earth, is less than all seeds

³⁰ which are upon the earth, and when it has been sown, mounts up and becomes greater than all herbs, and produces great branches, so that the birds of heaven can lodge under its shadow.

And with many such parables he spoke the word to them, as they were able to hear, but without a parable spake he not to them; and in private he explained all things to his disciples.

³¹ And on that day, when evening was come, he says to them, Let us go over to the other side: and having sent away the crowd, they

And awaking up he rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, Silence, be mute. And the wind fell, and there was a great calm. And he said to them, Why are ye thus fearful? how is it ye have not faith? And they feared [with] great fear, and said one to another, Who then is this that even the wind and the sea obey him?

V. And they came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gadarenes. And immediately on his going out of the ship, there met him out of the tombs a man possessed by^u an unclean spirit, who had his dwelling in the tombs, and no one was able to bind him, not even with chains; because he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been torn asunder by him, and the fetters were shattered, and no one was able to subdue him. he says,^w What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I adjure thee by God torment me not. For he had said to him, Come out, unclean spirit, out of the man. And he asked him, What is thy name? And he^x says to him, Legion is my name,^y because we are many. And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country. Now there was there just at the mountain^z a great herd of swine feeding; and they^a besought him, saying, Send us into the swine that we may enter into them. And Jesus immediately allowed them. And the unclean spirits going out entered into the swine, and the herd rushed down the steep slope into the sea (now they were about two thousand) and were choked in the sea. And those that were feeding them^b fled and reported^b it in the city and in the country. And they went out to see what it was that had taken place. And they come to Jesus, and they see the possessed of demons sitting and clothed and sensible, [him] that had had the legion: and they were afraid. And they that had seen [it] related to them how it had happened to the [man] possessed by demons, and concerning the swine. And they began to beg him to depart from their coasts. And Jesus having passed over in the ship again to the other side, a great crowd gathered to him; and he was by the sea. And behold,^e there comes one of the rulers of the synagogue, by name Jairus, and seeing him, falls down at his feet; and he besought him much, saying, My little daughter is at extremity; [I pray] that thou shouldst come and lay thy hands upon her so that she may be saved,^f and^g may live. And he went with him, and a large crowd followed him and pressed on him.

³⁰ was cured from the scourge. And immediately Jesus, knowing in himself the power that had gone out of him, turning round in the crowd, said, Who has touched my ³¹ clothes? And his disciples said to him, Thou seest the crowd pressing on thee, and sayest thou, ³² Who touched me? And he looked round to see her who had done

³⁵ thy scourge. As he was yet speaking, they come from the ruler of the synagogue's, saying, Thy daughter has died, why troublest thou the teacher any further?
³⁶ But Jesus immediately, having heard the word spoken, saith to the ruler of the synagogue, Fear ³⁷ not; only believe. And he suffered no one to accompany him save Peter and James, and John the

And he 10 said to them, Wherever ye shall enter into a house, there remain 11 till ye shall go thence. And as many as shall not receive you nor hear you, departing thence, shake off the dust which [is] under your feet for a testimony to them." 12 And they went forth and preached 13 that they should repent, and cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many infirm, and healed them. 14 And Herod the king heard [of him] (for his name had become public), and said, John the baptist is risen from among [the] dead, and on this account miracles are 15 wrought by him. For John had said to Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have the wife of thy brother. But Herodias kept it [in her mind] against him, and wished 19 to kill him, and could not: for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just and holy man, and kept him safe;^r and having heard him, did many things, and heard 21 him gladly. And a holiday^s being come, when Herod, on his birthday, made a supper to his grandees, and to the chiliarchs, and the chief [men] of Galilee; and the daughter of the same Herodias came in, and danced, and pleased Herod and those that were with [him] at table, and^t the king said to the damsel, Ask of me whatsoever thou wilt and I will give it thee. 23 And he swore to her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask me I will give 24 thee, to half of my kingdom. ^r Or 'observed him diligently.' The word has the force of 'watching closely, and keeping in mind, whether to pay attention to, or to preserve.' Which of these applications is the just one is the question. It is used four times in the New Testament (three besides this); twice for 'preserved,' as the wine and the bottles; once for Mary's 'keeping' the words of Jesus in her heart: in the Septuagint, for 'keeping back from evil;' 'keeping the wicked for the day of destruction;' 'watching a man's ways, words;' 'keeping favour, anger, preservation of life—of words in the heart.' I should have preferred 'observed him diligently,' but that I do not find that it is used of a person, meaning 'paying attention' to what he says. It is used of words and opinions, but then the word has still the force of 'keeping them safe.'

And the king, [while] made very sorry, on account of the oaths and those at table with him, would not break his word with her.^a And immediately the king, having sent one of the guard, ordered his head to be brought. And he went out and beheaded him in the prison, and brought his head upon a dish, and gave it to the damsel, and the damsel gave it to her mother. And his disciples having heard [it], came and took up his body, and laid it in a tomb.

And the apostles are gathered together to Jesus. And they related to him all things, both what they had done and what they had taught. And he said to them, Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest a little. For those coming and those going were many, and they had not leisure even to eat. And they went away apart into a desert place by ship. And many saw them going, and recognized them,^v and ran together there on foot, out of all the cities, and outwent them [and came together to him].^w And on leaving [the ship] Jesus saw a great crowd, and he was moved with compassion for them, be-

And when it was already late in the day, his disciples coming to him say, The place is desert, and it is already late in the day; send them away that they may go into the country and villages around, and buy themselves bread, for they have nothing to eat. And he answering said to them, Give ye them to eat. And they say to him, Shall we go and buy two hundred denarii worth of bread and give them to eat? And he says to them, How many loaves have ye? Go and see. And when they knew they say, Five, and two fishes. And he ordered them to make them all sit down by companies on the green grass. And they sat down in ranks by hundreds and by fifties. And having taken the five loaves and the two fishes, looking up to heaven, he blessed and brake the loaves, and gave [them] to his disciples, that they might set [them] before them. And the two fishes he divided among all. And they all ate and were satisfied. And they took up of fragments twelve hand baskets full, and of the fishes. ¹⁰ For Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother; and, He who speaks ill^g of father or mother, let him surely die. But ye ¹¹ say, If a man say to his father or his mother, [It is] corban (that is, gift), whatsoever thou mightest ¹² have profit from me by. And ye no longer suffer him to do anything for his father or his mother, ¹³ making void the word of God by your traditional teaching which ye have delivered; and many such ¹⁴ like things ye do. And having called again^h the crowd, he said to them, Hear me, all [of you], ¹⁵ and understand: There is nothing from outside a man entering into him which can defile him; but the things which go out from him, those it is which defile the ¹⁶ man. If any one have ears to ¹⁷ hear, let him hear. And when he went indoors from the crowd, his disciples asked him concerning ¹⁸ the parable. And he saith to them, Are ye also thus unintelligent? Do ye not perceive that all that is outside entering into ¹⁹ the man cannot defile him, because it does not enter into his heart but into his belly, and goes out into the draught, purging all ²⁰ meats? And he said, That which goes forth out of the man, that ²¹ defiles the man. For from within, out of the heart of men, go forth evil thoughts, adulteries, ²² fornications, murders, thefts, covetousness,¹ wickedness, deceit, licentiousnesses, a wicked eye, injurious language,¹ haughtiness, ²³ folly; all these wicked things go forth from within and defile the man.

²⁴ And he rose up and went away thence into the borders of Tyre and Sidon; and having entered into a house he would not have any one know [it], and he could ²⁵ not be hid. For a woman having heard of him, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, came ²⁶ and fell at his feet (and the woman was a Greek, Syrophenician by race), and asked him that he would cast the demon out of her ²⁷ daughter. But Jesus said to her, Suffer the children^k to be first filled; for it is not right to take the children's^k bread and cast it ²⁸ to the dogs.¹ But she answered and says to him, Yea, Lord; for even the dogs under the table eat of ²⁹ the children's^m crumbs.  ceive nor understand? Have ye 18 your heart yet hardened? Having eyes, see ye not? and having ears, do ye not hear? and do ye not 19 remember? When I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many hand-baskets full of fragments took ye up? They say 20 to him, Twelve. And when the seven for the four thousand, the filling of how many baskets of fragments took ye up? And they 21 said, Seven. And he said to them, How do ye not understand?
 22 And he comes to Bethsaida; and they bring him a blind man, and beseech him that he might touch 23 him. And taking hold of the hand of the blind man he led him out of the village, and having spit upon his eyes, he laid his hands upon him, and asked him if he beheld^v 24 anything. And having looked up, he said, I behold men like trees 25 walking. Then he laid his hands again upon his eyes, and made him look up.^w And he was restored and looked on all men 26 clearly. And he sent him to his house, saying, Neither enter into the village, nor tell [it] to any one in the village.
 27 And Jesus went forth, and his disciples, into the villages of Cæsarea-Philippi. And by the way he asked his disciples, saying unto them, Whom do men say 28 that I am? And they answered,

 John the baptist; and others,
 Elias; but others, One of the prophets. And he^x asks^y them, But ye, whom do ye say that I am?
 And Peter answering says to him,
 29 Thou art the Christ. And he 30 charged them straitly,^z in order that they should tell no man about 31 him. And he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer much, and be rejected of the elders and of the chief priests and of the scribes, and be killed,
 and after three days rise [again].
 32 And he spoke the thing^a openly.
 And Peter, taking him to [him], 33 began to rebuke him. But he, turning round and seeing his disciples, rebuked Peter, saying,^b Get away behind me, Satan, for thy mind is not on the things that are of God, but on the things that are 34 of men. And having called the crowd with his disciples, he says to them, Whoever desires to come after me, let him deny himself, and let him take up his cross and 35 let him follow me. For whosoashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful genera-

 also be ashamed when he shall come in the glory of his Father with the holy angels. (IX.) And he said to them, Verily I say to you, There are some of those who stand here that will not^f taste death until they see the kingdom of God come^g in power.

² And after six days Jesus takes with [him] Peter and James and John, and takes them up on a high mountain by themselves apart.
 And he was transfigured before ³ them; and his garments became shining, exceeding white, as snow, such as fuller on earth could not ⁴ whiten them. And there appeared to them Elias with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus.
⁵ And Peter answering says to Jesus, Rabbi, it is good that we should be here; and let us make three tabernacles, for thee one, and for Moses one, and for Elias ⁶ one. For he knew not what he should say, for they were filled ⁷ with fear. And there came a cloud overshadowing^h them, and there came a voice out of the cloud,ⁱ This is my beloved Son:
⁸ hear him. And suddenly having looked around, they no longer saw any one, but Jesus alone with ⁹ themselves. And as they descended from the mountain, he charged them that they should relate to no one what they had seen unless when the Son of man should be risen from among [the] ¹⁰ dead. And they kept that saying, questioning among themselves,^j what^k rising from among [the] ¹¹ dead was. And they asked him saying, Why do^l the scribes say that Elias must first have come?

¹² And he answering said to them,
 Elias indeed, having first come, restores all things; and how it is written of the Son of man that he must suffer much, and be set at ¹³ nought: but I say unto you, that Elias also is come, and they have done to him whatever they would,
 as it is written of him.

¹⁴ And when he came to his disciples he saw a great crowd around them, and scribes disputing a-¹⁵ gainst them. And immediately all the crowd seeing him were amazed, and running to [him], ¹⁶ saluted him. And he asked them,^m
 What do ye question with them answered,ⁿ Teacher, I brought to 19 out, and they could not. But he answering them^o saith, O unbelieving generation! till when shall I be with you? till when shall I bear with you? bring him to me.

 20 And they brought him to him.
 And seeing him the spirit immediately tore him; and falling upon 21 the earth, he rolled foaming. And he asked his father, How long a time is it that it has been like this with him? And he said, From 22 childhood; and often it has cast him both into fire and into waters that it might destroy him: but, if thou canst [do] anything, be moved with pity on us, and help us.
 23 And Jesus said to him, The "if thou canst" is [if thou canst] believe. All things are possible to 24 him that believes. And immediately the father of the young child crying out said with tears, I 25 believe,^p help mine unbelief. But Jesus, seeing that the crowd was running up together, rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I command thee, come out of him and 26 enter no more into him. And having cried out and torn [him]^q much, he came out; and he became as if dead, so that the most^r said, 27 He is dead. But Jesus, having taken hold of him by the hand, lifted him up, and he rose up.
 28 And when he was entered into the house, his disciples asked him privately, Wherefore could not we 29 cast him out? And he said to them, This kind can go out by nothing but by prayer and fasting.

30 And going forth from thence they went through Galilee; and he would not that any one knew 31 it; for he taught his disciples and said to them, The Son of man is delivered into men's hands; and they shall kill him, and, having been killed, he shall rise up on 32 the third day.* But they understood not the saying, and feared 33 to ask him. And he came to Capernaum, and being in the house, he asked them, Of what were ye reasoning^t by the way?
 34 And they remained silent, for by the way they had been reasoning with one another who [was] great-35 est. And sitting down he called the twelve; and he saith to them,
 If any one would be first, he shall be last of all, and minister of all.
 36 And taking a child he set it in their midst, and having taken it 37 in his arms he said to them, Whosoever shall receive one of such children in my name, receives me;
 and whosoever shall receive me, does not receive me, but him who 38 sent me. And John answered him saying, Teacher, we saw a person casting out demons in thy name, who does not follow us, and we forbid him, because he does not 39 follow us. But Jesus said, Forbid him not; for there is no one who shall do a miracle in my name,
 and be able soon [after] to speak 40 ill of me; for he who is not against

⁴³ And if thy hand serve as a snare to thee, cut it off: it is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having [thy] two hands to go away into hell,^w into the fire un-

⁸ his father and mother and shall be joined to his wife, and they

¹⁷ And as he went forth into the way, a person ran up to [him], and kneeling to him asked him, Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life? But Jesus said to him, Why callest thou me good? no one is good but one, [that is] God. Thou knowest the commandments: do not commit adultery, do not kill, do not steal, do not bear false witness, do not defraud, honour thy father and mother. And he answering said to him, Teacher, all these things have I kept from my youth. And Jesus looking upon him loved him, and said to him, One thing lackest thou: go, sell all that thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me, taking up the cross. But he, sad at the word, went away grieved, for he had large possessions. And Jesus looking around says to his disciples, How difficultly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

²⁴ And the disciples were amazed at his words. And Jesus again answering says to them, Children, how difficult it is that those who trust in riches should enter into that a camel should go through the eye of a needle than a rich man enter into the kingdom of God. And they were exceedingly astonished, saying to one another, And who can be saved? But Jesus looking on them saith, With men it is impossible,^e but not with God; for all things are possible with God. 'Peter began to say to him, Behold, we have left all things and have followed thee.

²⁹ ¶ Jesus answering said, Verily I say to you, There is no one who has left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, [or wife,^h] or children, or lands, for my sake and for the sakeⁱ of the gospel, that shall not receive an hundredfold now in this time; houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the coming age eternal life. But there shall be many first last, and the last first.

³² And they were in the way going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was going on before them, and they were amazed and were afraid as they followed. And taking the twelve again to [him], he began to tell them what was going to happen to him: Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be delivered up to the chief priests and to the scribes, and they shall condemn him to death, and shall deliver him up to the nations. Are ye able to drink the cup which I drink, or^l be baptized [with] the baptism that I am baptized with? And they said to him, We are able. But to sit on my right hand or^l on my left is not mine to give; but for^m those for whom it is prepared. And the ten having heard [of it], began to be indignant about James and John. not thus among you; but whosoever would be great among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first of you shall be bondsman of all. For also the Son of man did not come to be ministered to, but to minister, and give his life a ransom for many.

And they call the blind [man], saying to him, Be of good courage, rise up, he calls thee. And, throwing away his garment, he rose up^q and came to Jesus. As to ἀλλά for εἰ μή, compare Mark ix. 8, and Matt. xvii. 8, and 2 Cor. ii. 5. The difference is that εἰ μή connects itself with the previous phrase. 'They saw no one but.' 'No one but' is one idea. With ἀλλά it is complete without the second phrase, and ἀλλά comes in in contrast. 'They saw no man any more,' i. e., of those appearing in glory; 'but [they saw] Jesus alone.' So here: 'It is not mine to give.'  jected, this is become the corner ¹¹ stone: this^a is [the] Lord's doing, and it^a is wonderful in our eyes?

¹² And they sought to lay hold of him, and they feared the crowd; for they knew that he had spoken the parable of them. And they left him and went away.

¹³ And they send to him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, that they might catch him
¹⁴ in speaking. And they came, and say to him, Teacher, we know that thou art true, and carest for none; for thou regardest not the person of men, but teachest the way of God with truth: Is it law-

²³ In the resurrection,^r when they shall rise [again], of which of them shall she be wife, for the seven ²⁴ had her as wife? And Jesus answering said to them, Do not ye therefore err, not knowing the scriptures nor the power of God?
²⁵ For when they rise from among [the] dead they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as^t ²⁶ angels who [are] in the heavens. But concerning the dead that they rise, have ye not read in the book of Moses, in the section of the bush, how God spoke to him saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of thy strength. This is [the] first 31 commandment. And [a] second like it [is] this: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. There is not another commandment greater 32 than these. And the scribe said to him, Right, teacher; thou hast spoken according to [the] truth.

 For he^v is one, and there is none 33 other besides him; and to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength; and to love one's neighbour as one's self, is more than all the burnt offerings and sacrifices.
 34 And Jesus, seeing that he had answered intelligently, said to him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. And no one dared 35 question him any more. And Jesus answering said [as he was] teaching in the temple,^w How do the scribes say that the Christ is son 36 of David? for David himself said [speaking] in the Holy Spirit, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit on my right hand until I put thine enemies [as] footstool of thy feet.
 37 David himself therefore calls him Lord, and whence is he then his son? And the mass of the people^x 38 heard him gladly. And he said to them in his doctrine, Beware of the scribes, who like to walk about in long robes, and salutations in the market places; and [the] first seats in the synagogues, and [the] first places at suppers; 40 who devour the houses of widows, and as a pretext make much prayer. These shall receive a 41 severer judgment. And Jesus, having sat down opposite the treasury, saw how the crowd was casting money into the treasury; 42 and many rich cast in much. And a poor widow came and cast in two mites, which is a farthing.

 43 And having called his disciples to [him] he said^y to them, Verily I say unto you, This poor widow has cast in more than all who have 44 cast into the treasury. For all have cast in of that which they had in abundance, but she of her destitution has cast in all that she had, the whole of her living.

XIII. And as he was going out of the temple, one of his disciples says to him, Teacher, see what 2 stones and what buildings! And Jesus answering said to him, Seest thou these great buildings? not a stone shall be left upon a stone which shall not be thrown down.
 3 And as he sat on the mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew 4 asked him privately, Tell us, when shall these things be, and what the sign when all these things are 5 going to be fulfilled. And Jesus answering them began to say,
 Take heed lest any one mislead 6 you. For many shall come in my name, saying, It is I, and shall 7 mislead many. But when ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars, be not disturbed, for [this] must happen, but the end [is] not yet.

⁸ For nation shall rise up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be earthquakes in [different] places, and there shall be famines and troubles: these things [are the] beginnings of throes. But ye take heed to yourselves, for they shall deliver you up to sanhedrims and to synagogues: ye shall be beaten, and shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake for a testimony to them; and the gospel must first be preached to all the nations. But when they shall lead you away to deliver you up, be not careful beforehand as to what ye shall say, nor prepare your discourse: but whatsoever shall be given you in that hour that speak; for ye are not the speakers, but the Holy Spirit.

¹² But brother shall deliver up brother to death, and father child; and children shall rise up against their parents and cause^z them to

¹⁵ be put to death. And ye shall be hated of all on account of my name; but he that shall endure to

¹⁸ days! and pray that it^c may not

¹⁹ be in winter; for those days shall be distress such as there has not been the like since [the] beginning of creation which God created until now, and never shall

²⁰ be; and if [the] Lord^d had not cut short those days, no flesh should have been saved; but on account of the elect whom he has chosen,

²¹ he has out short those days. And then if any one say to you, Lo, here [is] the Christ, or lo, there,

²² believe [it] not. For false Christs and false prophets will arise, and give signs and wonders to deceive,

²³ if possible, even the elect. But do ye take heed: behold, I have told

²⁴ you all things beforehand. But in those days, after that distress,^e the sun shall be darkened and the

²⁵ moon shall not give its light; and the stars of heaven shall be falling down,^e and the powers which are in the heavens shall be shaken;

he send his angels and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from end of earth to end of heaven. But learn the parable from the fig-tree : when its branch already becomes tender and puts forth the leaves, ye know that the summer is nigh. Thus also ye, when ye see these things happening, know that it is nigh, at the doors. Verily I say unto you, This generation shall in no wise pass away till all these things take place. The heaven and the earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away. But of that day or of that hour no one knows, neither the angels who are in heaven, nor the Son, but the Father only. Take heed, watch and pray, for ye do not know when the time is : as a man going away out of the country, leaving his house and giving to his bondsmen the authority, and to each one his work, and commanded the doorkeeper that he should watch. Watch therefore, for ye do not know when the master of the house comes : evening, or midnight, or cockcrow, or morning ; lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. But what I say to you, I say to all, Watch.

XIV. And the passover and the [feast of] unleavened bread was after two days. And the chief priests and the scribes were seeking how they might get hold of him by craft and kill him. For they said, Not in the feast, lest perhaps there be a tumult of the people. And when he was in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, as he lay at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster flask of ointment of pure nard, very costly ; and having broken the alabaster flask, poured it out on his head. And there were some indignant in themselves and saying, Why has this waste been made of the ointment ? for this ointment could have been sold for more than three hundred denarii and given to the poor. And they spoke very angrily at her. But Jesus said, Let her alone ; why do ye trouble her ? she has wrought a good work as to me ; for ye have the poor at all times with you, and whenever ye would ye can do them good ; but me ye have not at all times. What she could she has done. She has beforehand anointed my body for the burial. And verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel may be preached in the whole world, what this [woman] has done shall be also spoken of rejected. The Greek fathers were as much at a loss as moderns, and generally, as Theophylact, understood it to mean 'pure.' This would confirm its being a Latin word. It is not of very great consequence ; the sense is plain : that it was of the best and most precious kind.

- 10 And Judas^p Iscariote, one of the twelve, went away to the chief priests that he might deliver him up to them; and they, when they heard it, rejoiced, and promised him to give money. And he sought how he could opportunely deliver him up.
- 12 And the first day of unleavened bread, when they slew the passover, his disciples say to him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare that thou mayest eat the passover? And he sends two of his disciples, and says to them, Go into the city, and a man shall meet you carrying a pitcher of water; follow him. And wher-ever he enters, say to the master of the house, The teacher says, Where is my^q guest-chamber that I may eat the passover with my disciples? and he will shew you a large upper room furnished ready. There make ready for us.
- 16 And his disciples went away and came into the city, and found as he had said to them; and they made ready the passover. And when evening was come, he comes with the twelve. And as they lay at [table] and were eating, Jesus said, Verily I say to you, One of you shall deliver me up; he who is eating with me.^r And they began to be grieved, and to say to him, one by one, Is it I? and another, Is it I? But he answered^s and said to them, One of

And as they were eating, Jesus having taken bread, when he had blessed, brake [it], and gave [it] to them, and said, Take^u [this]: this is my body. And having taken the cup, when he had given thanks, he gave [it] to them, and they all drank out of it. And he said to them, This is my blood, that of the new covenant, that shed for many. Verily I say to you, I will no more drink at all of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new^v in the kingdom of God. And having sung a hymn, they went out to the mount of Olives. And Jesus saith to them, All ye shall be offended,^w for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered abroad. But after I am risen, I will go before you into Galilee. But Peter said to him, Even if all should be offended,^x yet not I. And Jesus saith to him, Verily I say to thee, that thou^x to-day, in this night, before the cock shall crow twice, thou shalt thrice deny me. But he said so much exceedingly the more, If I should have to die with thee, I will in no way deny thee. And likewise said they all too.

32 And they come to a place whose name [is] Gethsemane, and he saith to his disciples, Sit here while I shall pray. And he takes with him Peter and James and John, and he began to be amazed and oppressed in spirit. And he saith to them, My soul is full of grief even unto death; abide here and watch. And, going forward a little, he fell upon the earth; and he prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass away from him. And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible to thee; take away this cup from me; but not what I will, but what thou. And he comes and finds them sleeping. And he saith to Peter, Simon, dost thou sleep? Hast thou not been able to watch one hour? Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation. The spirit indeed [is] willing, but the flesh weak. And going away he prayed again, saying the same thing. And returning, he found them again sleeping, for their eyes were heavy; and they knew not what they should answer him. And he comes the third time and saith to them, Sleep on now and take your rest. It is enough; the hour is come; behold, the Son of man is delivered up into the hands of sinners. Arise, let us be going; behold, he that delivers me is drawn nigh. And immediately, as he was yet speaking, Judas comes up, being one of the twelve, and with him a great crowd, with swords and sticks, from the chief priests and

44 the scribes and the elders. Now he that delivered him up had given them a sign between them, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that is he; lay hold of him, and lead him away safely. And being come, straightway coming up to him, he says, Rabbi, Rabbi; and he covered him with kisses. And they laid their hands upon him, and seized him: but one of those who stood by, having drawn his sword, struck the bondsman of the high priest, and took off his ear. And Jesus answering said to them, Are ye come out as against a robber, with swords and sticks to take me? I was daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye did not seize me: but [it is] that the scriptures may be fulfilled. And all left him and fled. And a certain young man followed him with a linen cloth cast about his naked [body]; and the young men seize him, but he, leaving the linen cloth behind [him], fled from them naked. And they led away Jesus to the high priest. And there come together to him all the chief priests and the elders and the scribes. And Peter followed him afar off, till [he was] within the court of the high priest's palace; and he was sitting with the officers and warming himself in the light [of the fire]. And the chief priests and the whole sanhedrim sought testimony against Jesus to cause him to be put to death, and did not find [any]. For many bore false witness against him, and

⁵⁷ And certain persons rose up and bore false testimony against him, ⁵⁸ saying, We heard him saying, I will destroy this temple* which is made with hands, and in the course of three days I will build another not made with hands. ⁵⁹ And neither thus did their testimony agree. And the high priest, rising up before them all, asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? What do these testify ⁶¹ against thee? But he was silent, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and says to him, Thou art the Christ, the Son ⁶² of the blessed? And Jesus said, I am [so]. And ye shall see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of power, and coming with ⁶³ the clouds of heaven. And the high priest, having rent his clothes, says, What need have we any ⁶⁴ more of witnesses? Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him ⁶⁵ to be guilty of death. And some began to spit upon him, and cover up his face, and box him, and say to him, Prophecy; and the officers struck him with the palms of their hands.^a

⁶⁶ And Peter being below in the court of the palace, there comes

* ναόν, the house itself.

^a Many for ἐβαλλον read ἐλαβον, 'received him with buffets,' as both classes of MSS read, A &c. and B confirmed by κ. The Latin gives the sense merely. ἐλαβον is read even in one of Matthæi's, which he says generally agrees with the best codices and v, which he puts in the very first class. Scrivener however treats it as a mistake. Griesbach and De Wette do not accept it. I notice it in this note, disposed to receive ἐλαβον which is certainly supported

one of the maids of the high ⁶⁷ priest, and seeing Peter warming himself, having looked at him, says, And thou wast with the ⁶⁸ Nazarene Jesus. But he denied, saying, I know not nor understand what thou sayest. And he went out into the vestibule; and ⁶⁹ a cock crew. And the maid seeing him, again began to say to those that stood by, This is [one] ⁷⁰ of them. And he again denied. And again, after a little, those that stood by said to Peter, Of a truth thou art [one] of them, for ⁷¹ also thou art a Galilean.^b But he began to curse and to swear, I know not this man of whom ye ⁷² speak. And the second time a cock crew. And Peter remembered the word that Jesus said to him, Before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice; and when he thought^c thereon he wept.

XV. And immediately in the morning the chief priests, having taken counsel with the elders and scribes and the whole sanhedrim, bound Jesus and carried [him] away, and delivered [him] up to ² Pilate. And Pilate asked him, Thou art the King of the Jews? And he answered and said to him, ³ Thou sayest. And the chief priests ⁴ accused him urgently. And Pilate by MSS. The sense is the same. Some of the doctors 'began to spit on him,' &c., and the attendant officers received him with these insults, a novus gradus, another step, as Bengel says, in the scene of his blessed humiliation. Both give a perfectly good sense. See quotations in Stud. und Krit. 133, 1843. According to Scrivener, Peschito, Vul., It. have as T. R.

asked him again, saying, Answerest thou nothing? See of how many things they bear witness ⁵ against thee. But Jesus still answered nothing, so that Pilate ⁶ marvelled. But at [the] feast he released to them one prisoner, whomsoever they begged [of him]. ⁷ Now there was the [person] named Barabbas bound with those who had made insurrection with [him], [and] that had committed murder ⁸ in the insurrection. And the crowd crying out^d began to beg [that he would do to them] as he had ⁹ always done. But Pilate answered them, saying, Will ye that I release to you the King of the ¹⁰ Jews? for he knew that the chief priests had delivered him up ¹¹ through envy. But the chief priests stirred up the crowd that he might rather release Barabbas ¹² to them. And Pilate answering said to them again, What will ye then that I do [to him] whom ye ¹³ call King of the Jews? And they ¹⁴ cried out again, Crucify him. And Pilate said to them, What evil then has he done? But they ¹⁵ cried out the more^e urgently, Crucify him. And Pilate, desirous of contenting the crowd, released to them Barabbas, and delivered up Jesus, when he had scourged him, that he might be ¹⁶ crucified. And the soldiers led him away into the court which is [called the] prætorium, and they call together the whole band.^f ¹⁷ And they clothe him with purple, and bind round on him a crown of thorns which they had plaited. ¹⁸ And they began to salute him, ¹⁹ Hail, King of the Jews! And they struck his head with a reed, and spat on him, and, bending the ²⁰ knee, did him homage. And when they had mocked him, they took the purple off him, and put his own clothes on him; and they lead him out that they may crucify him. And they compel to come with him a certain passer by, Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the field, the father of Alexander and Rufus, that he might carry ²² his cross. And they bring him to the place [called] Golgotha, which, being interpreted, is The ²³ place of a skull. And they gave him [to drink^g] wine medicated with myrrh; but he did not take ²⁴ it. And having crucified him, they part^h his clothes amongst [themselves], casting lots on them ²⁵ what each one should take. And it was the third hour, and they ²⁶ crucified him. And the superscription of what he was accused of was written up, "The King of ²⁷ the Jews." And with him they crucify two robbers, one on his right hand, and one on his left. ²⁸ [And the scripture was fulfilled which says, And he was reckoned ²⁹ with the lawless.ⁱ] And they that passed by outraged him, shaking their heads, and saying, Aha, thou that destroyest the temple^j and buildest it in three days, save thyself, and descend from the cross. In like manner^k the chief priests also, with the scribes, mocking with one another, said, He saved others; himself he cannot save. Let the Christ, the King of Israel, come down now from the cross, that we may see and may believe. And they that were crucified with him reproached him.

³³ And when the sixth hour was come, there came darkness over the whole land^l until the ninth hour; and at the ninth hour, Jesus cried with a loud voice, saying, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabacthani^p which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? And some of those who stood there, when they heard [it], said, Behold, he calls for Elias. And one, running and filling a sponge with vinegar, fixed it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let alone, let us see if Elias comes to take him down. And Jesus, having uttered a loud cry, expired. And the veil of the temple^m was rent in two from the top to the bottom. And the centurion who stood by over against him, when he saw that he had expired having thus cried out, said, Truly this man was Son of God. And there were women also looking on from afar off, among whom was both Mary of Magdala, and Mary the [mother] of James the less and of Joses, and Salome; ⁴¹ who also, when he was in Galilee, followed him and ministered to him; and many others who came up with him to Jerusalem.

⁴² And when it was already evening; since it was [the] preparation, that is, [the day] before a sabbath, ⁴³ Joseph of Arimathæa, an honourable counsellor, who also himself was awaiting the kingdom of God, coming,ⁿ emboldened himself and went in to Pilate and begged the ⁴⁴ body of Jesus. And Pilate wondered if he were already dead; and having called the centurion, he inquired of him if he had long ⁴⁵ died. And when he knew from the centurion, he granted the body ⁴⁶ to Joseph. And having bought fine linen, and having taken him down, he swathed him in the fine linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was cut out of rock, and rolled a stone to the door of the ⁴⁷ sepulchre. And Mary of Magdala and Mary [mother] of Joses saw where he was put.

XVI. And the sabbath being now past, Mary of Magdala, and Mary the [mother] of James, and Salome, bought aromatic spices that they might come and embalm him. ² And very early on the first day of the week they come to the sepulchre, the sun having risen. And they said to one another, Who shall roll us away the stone out of ⁴ the door of the sepulchre? And when they looked, they see that the stone has been rolled away: ⁵ for it was very great. And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right, clothed in a white robe, and they ⁶ were amazed^o and alarmed; but he says to them, Be not alarmed.^o Ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, the crucified one. He is risen, he is not here; behold the place where ⁷ they had put him. But go, tell his disciples and Peter, he goes before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him, as he said to ⁸ you. And they went out,^p and fled from the sepulchre. And trembling and excessive amazement possessed them, and they said nothing to any one, for they were afraid.

⁹ Now when he had risen very early, the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary of Magdala, out of whom he had cast ¹⁰ seven demons. She went and told it to those that had been with him, who were grieving and weeping. ¹¹ And when these heard that he was alive and had been seen of her, ¹² they disbelieved [it]. And after these things he was manifested to two of them in another form as they walked, going into the coun-

¹³ try; and they went and told it to the rest; neither did they believe ¹⁴ them. Afterwards as they lay at table he was manifested to the eleven, and reproached [them with] their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they had not believed those who had seen him risen. And he said to them, Go into all the world, and preach the glad tidings to all the creation. ¹⁵ He that believes and is baptized shall be saved, and he that disbelieves shall be condemned. ¹⁷ And these signs shall follow those that have believed: in my name they shall cast out demons; they shall speak with new tongues; ¹⁸ they shall take up serpents; and if they should drink any deadly thing, it shall not injure them; they shall lay hands upon the infirm, and they shall be well. ¹⁹ The Lord^q therefore, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven, and sat at the right hand of God. And they, ²⁰ going forth, preached everywhere, the Lord working with [them], and confirming the word by the signs following upon [it].^r

LUKE.

FORASMUCH as many have undertaken to draw up a relation concerning the matters fully believed ² among us, as those who from the beginning were eye-witnesses of and attendants on the Word have ³ delivered them to us, it has seemed good to me also, accurately acquainted from the origin with all things, to write to thee with method, most excellent Theophilus, that thou mightest know the certainty of those things in which thou hast been instructed.

There was in the days of Herod, the king of Judæa, a certain priest, by name Zacharias, of the course of Abia, and his wife, of the daughters of Aaron, and her name Elizabeth. And they were both just before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless. And they had no child, because Elizabeth was barren, and they were both advanced in years.^a And it came to pass, as he fulfilled his priestly service before God in the order of his course, it fell to him by lot, according to the custom of the priestly service, to enter into the temple^b of the Lord to burn incense. And all the multitude of the people were praying without at the hour of incense. And an angel of [the] Lord appeared to him, standing on the right of the altar of incense. And Zacharias was troubled, seeing [him], and fear fell upon him. But the angel said to him, Fear not, Zacharias, because thy supplication has been heard, and thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John. And he shall be to thee joy^c and rejoicing, and many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great before [the]^d Lord, and he shall drink no wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with [the] Holy Ghost even^e from his mother's womb. And many of the sons of Israel shall he turn to [the]^f Lord their God. And he shall go before him in [the] spirit and power of Elias, to turn hearts of fathers to children, and disobedient ones to^g [the] thoughts of just [men], to make ready for [the]^h Lord a prepared people. And Zacharias said to the angel, How shall I know this, for I am an old man, and my wife advanced inⁱ years? And the angel answering, said to him, I am Gabriel, who stand before God, and I have been sent to speak to thee, and to bring these glad tidings to thee;^j and behold, thou shalt be silent and not able to speak till the day in which these things shall take place, because thou hast not believed my words, the which^k shall be fulfilled in their time. And the people were awaiting Zacharias, and they

^d The MSS and editors vacillate greatly as to the article before Κύριον. In very many cases it is left out because Κύριος is a name, being used by the LXX for Jehovah, and so in the New Testament. My impression is that it is so here. Cod. Sin. has not the article. Latin affords no help. Vat. has τοῦ. In English we must have the article.

^e The ἔτι, which gives a date, precludes Meyer's idea: ἔτι ἐν would have been 'already in,' he being still there.

^f Here without article; for Jehovah as a name.

^g ἐν: but 'through' would suppose other men, whereas it is here characteristic merely of their own new path.

^h Literally 'in her days.'

ⁱ Or 'to bring the glad tidings of these things to thee.'

^j οὕτως, 'which are such as shall be;' character, not merely a relative pronoun. I have imitated an expression of the Authorized Version used elsewhere, by adding the article, which, though somewhat antiquated, gives in a measure the idea of character, and will serve to distinguish generally οὕτως from ὅς.

wondered at his delaying in the temple.^k But when he came out he could not speak to them, and they recognized that he had seen a vision in the temple.^k And he was making signs to them, and continued dumb. And it came to pass, when the days of his service were completed, he departed to his house.

Now after these days, Elizabeth his wife conceived, and hid herself five months, saying, Thus has the Lord done to me in [these] days in which he has looked upon [me] to take away my reproach among men.

But in the sixth month, the angel Gabriel was sent of God to a city of Galilee, of which [the] name [was] Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name [was] Mary.

And the angel came in to her, and said, Hail, [thou] favoured [one]! the Lord [is] with thee: blessed [art] thou amongst women. But she, seeing [the angel], was troubled at his word, and reasoned in her mind what^m this salutation might be. And the angel said to her, Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favour with God; and behold, thou shalt conceive in the womb and bear a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. Heⁿ shall be great, and shall be called

Son of [the] Highest,^o and [the]^p Lord God shall give him the throne of David his father; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for the ages,^q and of his kingdom there shall not be an end. But Mary said to the angel, How shall this be, since I know not a man?

And the angel answering said to her, [The] Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and power of [the] Highest overshadow thee, wherefore the holy thing also which shall be born shall be called Son of God. And behold, Elizabeth, thy kinswoman, she also has conceived a son in her old age, and this is the sixth month to her [that was] called barren: for nothing shall be impossible with God. And Mary said, Behold the bondsmaid of [the] Lord,^r be it to me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

And Mary, rising up in those days, went into the hill country with haste, to a city of Judah, and entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elizabeth.

And it came to pass, as Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elizabeth was filled with [the] Holy Spirit, and cried out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed [art] thou amongst women, and blessed the fruit of thy womb. And whence [is] this to me, that the

 they called it after the name of his father as to what he might asked for a writing-table, he wrote, saying, John is his name. And 64 they all wondered. And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue, and he spake, blessing 65 God. And fear came upon all who dwelt round about them; and in the whole hill country of Judæa

 all these things were the subject heard them laid them up in their heart, saying, What then will this child be? And [the] † Lord's

II. But it came to pass in those days that a decree went out from Cæsar Augustus, that a census should be made of all the habitable world. The census itself first took place when Cyrenius had the government of Syria. And all went to be inscribed in the census' roll, each to his own city: and Joseph also went up from Galilee out of the city Nazareth to Judæa, to David's city,^b the which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family of David,

Let us make our way then now as far as Bethlehem, and let us see this thing that is come to pass which the Lord has made known ¹⁶ to us. And they came with haste and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger; ¹⁷ and having seen [it] they made known about the country the thing which had been said to ¹⁸ them concerning this child. And all who heard [it] wondered at the things said to them by the ¹⁹ shepherds. But Mary kept all these things [in her mind], pondering [them] in her heart. And ²⁰ the shepherds returned glorifying and praising God for all things which they heard and saw as it had been said to them.

²¹ And when eight days were fulfilled for circumcising him,^e his name^f was called Jesus, which was the name given by the angel before he had been conceived ²² in the womb. And when the days were fulfilled for their^g purifying according to the law of Moses, they brought him to Jerusalem to present [him] to the ²³ Lord (as it is written in the law of [the] Lord:^h Every male that opens the womb shall be called ²⁴ holy to the Lord), and to offer a sacrifice according to what is said in the law of [the] Lord:^h A pair of turtle doves, or two young ²⁵ pigeons. And behold, there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; and this man was just and pious, awaiting [the] consolation of Israel, and [the] Holy ²⁶ Spirit was upon him. And it was divinely communicated to him by the Holy Spirit that he should not see death before he should ²⁷ see [the]^h Lord's Christ. And he came in the Spirit into the temple, and as the parents brought in the child Jesus that they might do for him according to the custom of the law, he^j received him into his arms and blessed God, ²⁸ and said, Lord,^k now thou lettest thy bondsman go, according to ²⁹ thy word, in peace, for mine eyes ³⁰ have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the ³¹ face of all people; a light for revelation of [the] Gentiles and [the] ³² glory of thy people Israel. And Joseph^l and his mother wondered at all the things which were said ³³ concerning him. And Simeon blessed them, and said to Mary his mother, Lo, this [child] is for the fall and rising up of many in Israel, and for a sign spoken ³⁴ against; (and a sword shall go through thine own soul;) so that the thoughts may be revealed ³⁵ from many hearts. And there was a prophetess, Anna, daughter of Phanuel, of [the] tribe of Asher, who was far advanced in ³⁶ years, having lived with her husband

And when they had completed all things according to the law of [the] Lord,^w they returned to Galilee to their own city Nazareth. And the child grew strong,^x filled with wisdom, and God's grace was upon him.

41 And his parents went yearly to Jerusalem at the feast of the 42 passover. And when he was twelve years old, and they had gone to Jerusalem according to 43 the custom of the feast, and had completed the days, as they returned the boy Jesus remained behind in Jerusalem, and his 44 parents^r knew not of it; but, supposing him to be in the company that journeyed together, they went a day's journey, and sought him among their relations 45 and acquaintances: and not having found him they returned to 46 Jerusalem seeking him. And it came to pass, after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the teachers and hearing them and asking them 47 questions. And all who heard him were astonished at his under- 48 standing and answers. And when they saw him they were amazed: and his mother said to him, Child, why hast thou dealt thus with us? behold, thy father and I have 40 sought thee distressed. And he said to them, Why [is it] that ye have sought me? did ye not know that I ought to be [occupied] 50 in my Father's business? And they^s understood not the thing 51 that he said to them. And he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and he was in subjection to them. And his mother kept all these things in her heart. 52 And Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and men.

III. Now in the fifteenth year of the government of Tiberius Cæsar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judæa, and Herod tetrarch of Galilee, and Philip his brother tetrarch of Ituræa and the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, in the high 2 priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, [the] word of God came upon John, the son of Zacharias, in the 3 wilderness. And he came into all the district round the Jordan, preaching [the] baptism of repentance for [the] remission of 4 sins; as it is written in [the] book of [the] words^t of Esaias the prophet: " Voice of one crying in the wilderness: Prepare ye the way of [the] Lord,^w make straight his 5 paths. ⁷ He said therefore to the crowds which went out to be baptized by him, Offspring of vipers, who has warned you to flee from the coming wrath? Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance; and begin not to say in yourselves, We have Abraham for [our] father, for I say unto you, that God can, out of these stones, raise up children to Abraham. And already also the axe is applied ^u to the root of the trees: every tree therefore not bringing forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire.

¹⁰ And the crowds asked him, saying, What should ^v we do then?

¹¹ He answered, and says to them, He that has two vests let him give to him that has none; and he that has food let him do likewise.

¹² And tax-gatherers came also to be baptized, and they said to him, Teacher, what should ^v we do?

¹³ And he said to them, Take no more money than what is appointed to you. And persons engaged in military service also asked him, saying, And we, what should ^v we do? And he said to them, Oppress no one, nor accuse falsely, and be satisfied with your pay.

¹⁵ But as the people were in expectation, and all were reasoning in their hearts concerning John,

whether he might be the Christ,

¹⁶ John answered all, saying, I baptize you with water, but the mightier than I is coming, the band of whose sandals I am not fit to unloose, he shall baptize you with ^w [the] Holy Spirit and fire; whose winnowing fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner, but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable. Exhorting ^x then many other things also, he announced [his] glad tidings to the people; but Herod the tetrarch being reproved by him as to Herodias, the wife of his brother,^y and as to all the wicked things which Herod had done, added this also to all [the rest], that he shut up John in prison.

²¹ And it came to pass, all the people having been baptized, and Jesus having been baptized and praying, that the heaven was opened, and the Holy Spirit descended in a bodily form as a dove upon him; and a voice came out of heaven,^z Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I have found my delight.

²⁰ [the] Lord.^s And having rolled up the book, when he had delivered it to the attendant, he sat down; and the eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed upon him.
²¹ And he began to say to them, To-day this scripture is fulfilled in ²² your ears. And all bore witness to him, and wondered at the words of grace which were coming out of his mouth. And they said, Is ²³ not this the son of Joseph? And he said to them, Ye will surely say to me this parable, Physician, heal thyself; whatsoever we have heard has taken place in Capernaum do here also in thine own ²⁴ country. And he said, Verily I say to you, that no prophet is acceptable in his [own] country.
²⁵ But of a truth I say to you, There were many widows in Israel in the days of Elias, when the heaven was shut up for three years and six months, so that a great famine
²⁶ came upon all the land, and to none of them was Elias sent but to Sarepta of Sidonia,^h to a woman [that was] a widow. And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Elisha the prophet, and none of them was cleansed ²⁸ but Naaman the Syrian. And they were all filled with rage in the synagogue, hearing these ²⁹ things; and rising up they cast him out of the city, and led him up to the brow of the mountain upon which their city was built, so that they mightⁱ throw him

³⁰ down the precipice; but he, passing through the midst of them,
³¹ went his way, and descended to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the sabbaths.
³² And they were astonished at his doctrine, for his word was with authority.
³³ And there was in the synagogue a man having a spirit of an unclean demon, and he cried with a ³⁴ loud voice, saying, Eh!^j what have we to do with thee, Jesus, Nazarene? hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, ³⁵ the Holy [One] of God. And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out from^k him. And the demon, having thrown him down into the midst, came out from^k him without doing ³⁶ him any injury. And astonishment came upon all, and they spoke to one another, saying, What word [is] this? for with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and they come out.
³⁷ And a rumour went out into every place of the country round concerning him. And rising up out of the synagogue, he entered into the house of Simon. But Simon's mother-in-law was suffering under a bad fever; and they asked him ³⁸ for her. And standing over her, he rebuked the fever, and it left her; and forthwith standing up

⁴² And when it was day he went out, and went into a desert place, and the crowds sought after^m him, and came up to him, and [would have] kept him back that he⁴³ should not go from them. But he said to them, I must needs announce the glad tidings of the kingdom of God to the other cities also, for for this I haveⁿ been⁴⁴ sent forth. And he was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee.

V. And it came to pass, as the crowd pressed on him to hear the word of God, that^o he was standing by the lake of Gennesaret: and he saw two ships standing by the lake, but the fishermen, having come down from them, were washing their nets. And getting into one of the ships, which was Simon's, he asked him to draw out a little from the land; and he sat down and taught the crowds out⁴ of the ship. But when he ceased speaking, he said to Simon, Draw out into the deep [water] and let⁵ down your nets for a haul. And Simon answering said to him, Master, having laboured through the whole night we have taken nothing, but at thy word I will⁶ let down the net. And having done this, they enclosed a great multitude of fishes, and their net⁷ broke. And they beckoned to their partners who were in the other ship to come and help them, and they came, and filled both the ships so that they were sinking. But Simon Peter seeing it, fell at Jesus' knees, saying, Depart from me, for I am a sinful⁹ man, Lord. For astonishment had laid hold on him and on all those who were with him at the haul of fishes which they had taken; and in like manner also on James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said to Simon, Fear not; henceforth thou shalt¹¹ be taking men. And having run the ships on shore, leaving all they followed him.

¹³ And it came to pass as he was in one of the cities, that^p behold, there was a man full of leprosy, and seeing Jesus, falling upon his face, he besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt thou art able to¹³ cleanse me. And stretching forth his hand he touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean: and immediately the leprosy departed from¹⁴ him. And he enjoined him to tell no one; but go, shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing as Moses ordained, for a testimony to them. 17 And it came to pass on one of the days, that^s he was teaching, and there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, who were come out of every village of Galilee and Judæa and [out of] Jerusalem; and [the] Lord's^t power was [there] to heal them; 18 and lo, men bringing upon a couch a man who was paralyzed; and they sought to bring him in, and 19 put him before him. And not finding what^u way to bring him in, on account of the crowd, going up on the house [top] they let him down through the tiles, with his little couch, into the midst before Jesus.

20 And seeing their faith, he said,^v Man, thy sins are forgiven thee.

21 And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason [in their minds], saying, Who is this who speaks blasphemies? Who is able to forgive sins but God alone? But Jesus, knowing their reasonings, answering said to them, Why 22 reason ye in your hearts? which is easier to say, Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and 23 walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man has power on the earth to forgive sins, he said to the paralyzed man, I say to thee, Arise, and take up thy little 24 couch and go to thine house. And 25 immediately standing up before them, having taken up that whereon he was laid, he departed to his house glorifying God. And astonishment seized all, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to-day.

27 And after these things he went forth and saw a tax-gatherer, Levi by name, sitting at the receipt of taxes, and said to him, Follow 28 me. And having left all, rising 29 up, he followed him. And Levi made a great entertainment for him in his house, and there was a great crowd of tax-gatherers and others who were at table with 30 them. And their scribes and the Pharisees murmured at his disciples, saying, Why do ye eat and drink with the^w tax-gatherers and 31 sinners? And Jesus answering said to them, They that are in sound health have no need of a physician, but those that are ill. 32 I am not come to call righteous persons, but sinful ones to repentance. And they said to him, 33 Why do the disciples of John fast often and make supplications, in like manner those also of the Pharisees, but thine eat and drink? 34 And he said to them, Can ye make the sons of the bridechamber fast when the bridegroom is with them? 35 But days will come when also the bridegroom will have been taken away from them, then shall they 36 fast in those days. VI. And it came to pass on the second first sabbath, that he went through^z cornfields, and his disciples were plucking the ears and eating [them], rubbing [them] in² their hands. But some of the Pharisees said to them, Why do ye what is not lawful to do on the sabbath? And Jesus answering said to them, Have ye not read so much as this, what David did when he hungered, he and those⁴ who were with him, how he entered into the house of God and took the show bread and ate, and gave to those also who were with him, which it is not lawful that [any]⁵ eat, unless the priests alone? And he said to them, The Son of man⁶ is Lord of the sabbath also. And it came to pass on another sabbath also that he entered into the synagogue and taught; and there was there a man, and his right hand⁷ was withered. And the scribes and the Pharisees were watching^a if he would heal on the sabbath, that they might find something⁸ of which to accuse him. But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man who had the withered hand, Get up, and stand in the midst. And having risen up he⁹ stood [there]. Jesus therefore said to them, I will ask you^b if it is lawful on the sabbath to do good or to do evil? to save life or to destroy [it]? And having looked around on them all, he said to him,^c Stretch out thy hand. And he did so, and his hand was restored^d as the other. But they were filled with madness, and spoke together among themselves what they should do to Jesus.

VII. And when he had completed all his words in the hearing of the people, he entered into Capernaum. And a certain centurion's ² bondsman who was dear to him ³ was ill and about to die; and having heard of Jesus he sent to him elders of the Jews, begging him that he might come and save ⁴ his bondsman. And Jesus went with them; but already, when he was not far from the house, the centurion sent to him friends, saying to him, Lord, do not trouble thyself, for I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my ⁷ roof. Wherefore neither did I count myself worthy to come to thee. But say by a word and my ⁸ servant shall be healed. For I also am a man placed under authority, having under myself soldiers, and I say to this, Go, and he goes; and to another, Come, and he comes; and to my servant, Do ⁹ this, and he does it. And Jesus hearing this wondered at him, and turning to the crowd following him said, I say to you, Not even in Israel have I found so ¹⁰ great faith. And as he drew near to the gate of the city, ¹³ behold, a dead man was carried out, the only son of his mother, and she a widow, and a very considerable crowd of the city [was] with her. ¹⁴ And the Lord seeing her, was moved with compassion for her, and said to her, Weep not; and coming up he touched the bier, and the bearers stopped. And he said, Youth, I say to thee, Awake up. And the dead sat up and began to speak, and he gave him ¹⁵ to his mother; and fear seized on all, and they glorified God, saying, A great prophet has been raised ¹⁶ up amongst us; and, God has visited his people. And this report went out in all Judæa, concerning him, and in all the surrounding country. ¹⁷ And the disciples of John brought him word concerning all these things: and John, having called two of his disciples, sent to Jesus, saying, Art ¹⁸ thou he that is coming, or do we await another? who were coming to him out of each city, he spoke by parable. The sower went out to sow his seed; and as he sowed, some fell by the way, and it was trodden under foot, and the fowls of the air devoured it up; and other fell upon the rock, and having sprung up, it was dried up because it had not moisture; and other fell in the midst of the thorns, and the thorns having sprung up with [it] choked it; and other fell into^x the good ground, and having sprung up bore fruit a hundredfold. As he said these things he cried, He that has ears to hear, let him hear. And his disciples asked him saying, What may this parable be? And he said, To you it is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to the rest in parables, in order that seeing they may not see, and hearing they may not understand. But the parable is this, The seed is the word of God. But those by the wayside are those who hear: then comes the devil and takes away the word from their hearts that they may not believe and be saved. But those upon the rock, those who when they hear receive the word with joy, and these have no root, who believe for a time, and in time of trial fall away. But that that fell where^y the thorns were, these are they who having heard, go away, and are choked under cares and riches and pleasures of life,^z and bring no fruit to perfection. But that in^x the good ground, these are they who, in an honest and good heart, having heard the word keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience. And no one having lighted a lamp covers it with a vessel or puts it under a couch, but sets it on a lampstand that they who enter in may see the light. For there is nothing hid which shall not become manifest, nor secret which shall not be known and come to light. Take heed therefore how ye hear; for whosoever has, to him shall be given, and whosoever has not, even what he seems to have shall be taken from him.

And his mother and his brethren came to him, and could not get to him because of the crowd. And it was reported to him, saying, Thy mother and thy brethren stand without wishing to see thee. But he answering said to them, My mother and my brethren are those who hear the word of God and do [it].

But he, rising up, rebuked the wind and the raging of the water, and they ceased, and there was a calm.

²⁵ And he said to them, Where is your faith? And, being afraid, they were astonished, saying to one another, Who then is this, that he commands even the winds and the water, and they obey him?

²⁶ And they arrived in the country of the Gadarenes, which is over

²⁷ against Galilee. And as he got out [of the ship] on the land, a certain man out of the city met him, who had demons a long time, and put on no clothes, and did not abide in a house, but in the ²⁸ tombs. But seeing Jesus, he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beseech thee, torment me not.

²⁹ For he had commanded the unclean spirit to go out from the man. For very often it had seized him; and he had been bound, kept with chains and fetters, and breaking the chains he was driven by the demon into the deserts.

³⁰ And Jesus asked him saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion: for many demons had

³¹ entered into him. And they besought him that he would not command them to go away into

³² the bottomless pit. And there was there a herd of many swine feeding on the mountain, and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into those; and he

³³ suffered them. And the demons, going out from the man, entered into the swine, and the herd rushed down the precipice into the lake, and were choked. But they that fed [them], seeing what had happened, fled, and ^breported [it] to the city and to the country.

³⁵ And they went out to see what had happened, and came to Jesus, and found the man from whom the demons had gone out, sitting clothed, and of sane mind, at the feet of Jesus. And they were ³⁶ afraid. And they also who had seen it reported to them how the possessed man had been healed.

³⁷ And all the multitude of the surrounding country of the Gadarenes asked him to depart from them, for they were possessed with great fear; and he, going

³⁸ up into the ship, returned. But the man out of whom the demons had gone besought him that he might be with him. But he ^csent

³⁹ him away, saying, Return to thine house and relate what things God has done to thee. And he went away through the whole city publishing all the things Jesus had done for him.

And as he went the crowds ⁴³ thronged him. And a woman who years, who, having spent all her living on physicians, could not be ⁴⁴ cured by any one, coming up be-

 Jesus said, Who has touched me?
 But all denying, Peter and those close thee in and press upon thee, and sayest thou, Who has touch-

 that she was not hid, came trem-

 the ruler of the synagogue, saying saying, Fear not: only believe,

 when he came to the house he suffered no one to go in but Peter and John and James and the fa-

But the crowds knowing [it] followed him; and he received them and spake to them of the kingdom of God, and cured those that had need of healing.
- 11 But the day began to decline, and the twelve came and said to him, Send away the crowd that they may go^k into the villages around and into the fields, and lodge and find victuals, for here we are in a desert place. And he said to them, Give ye them to eat. And they said, We have not more than five loaves and two fishes, unless we should go and buy food for all this people; for they were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, Make them sit down in companies by fifties. And they did so, and made them all sit down. And taking the five loaves and the two fishes, looking up to heaven he blessed them, and brake and gave to the disciples to set before the crowd. And they all ate and were filled; and there was taken up of what had remained over and above to them in fragments twelve large baskets.^l

And he said to them all, If any one will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me; for whosoever shall desire to save his life shall lose^m it, but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake he shall save it. For what shall a man profit if he shall have gained the whole world and have destroyed, or come under the penalty of the loss of himself? So it seems to be in the quotation from Sophocles. I am aware Matthew has τῶν, but he has τὸ περισσεῖον. The mass of fragments was there before his mind, and

standing here who shall not^a taste death until they shall have seen the kingdom of God. And it came to pass after these words, about eight days, that^o taking Peter and John and James he went up into^p a mountain to pray. And as he prayed the fashion of his countenance became different and his raiment white [and] effulgent. And lo, two men talked with him, who^q were Moses and Elias, who, appearing in glory, spoke of his departure which he was about to accomplish in Jerusalem. But Peter and those with him were oppressed with sleep: but having fully awoke up they saw his glory, and the two men who stood with him. And it came to pass as they departed from him, Peter said to Jesus, Master,^r it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias, not knowing what he said. But as he was saying these things, there came a cloud and overshadowed them, and they feared as they^s entered into the cloud: and there was^t a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son: hear him. And as the voice was^u [heard] Jesus was found alone: and they kept silence, and related to no one in those days any of the things they had seen.

And it came to pass on the following day, when they came down from the mountain, a great crowd met him. And lo, a man from the crowd cried out, saying, Teacher, I beseech thee look upon my son, for he is my only child: and behold, a spirit takes him, and suddenly he cries out, and it tears him with foaming, and with difficulty departs from him after crushing him. And I besought thy disciples that they might cast him out, and they could not. And Jesus answering said, O unbelieving and perverted generation, how long^v shall I be with you and suffer you? Bring hither thy son. But as he was yet coming the demon tore him and dragged him all together. And Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit and healed the child, and gave him back to his father. And all were astonished at the glorious greatness of God. And as all wondered at all the things which Jesus did,^w he said to his disciples, Do ye let these words sink into your ears. For the Son of man is about to be delivered into men's hands. But they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them that they should not perceive it. And they feared to ask him concerning this saying. And a reasoning came in amongst them, who should be [the] greatest of them. And Jesus seeing the reasoning of their heart, having

 51 And it came to pass when the days of his receiving up were fulfilled, that^d he stedfastly set his

 53 And they did not receive him, because his face was [turned as]

 55 Elias did? But turning he rebuked them [and said, Ye know 56 not of what spirit ye are.^e] And they went to another village. And it came to pass as they went in the way one said to him, I will follow thee wherever thou goest, of the heaven roosting places, but the Son of man has not where he 58 may lay his head. And he said to another, Follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me to go first 59 and bury my father. But Jesus said to him, Suffer the dead to bury their dead, but do thou go and announce the kingdom of 60 God. And another also said, I will follow thee, Lord, but first allow me to bid adieu to those at 61 my house. But Jesus said to him, No one having laid his hand on [the] plough and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God.

X. Now after these things the Lord appointed seventy others also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place where he was about himself to

³⁰ who is my neighbour? And Jesus replying said, A certain man descended from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell into [the hands of] robbers, who also, having stripped him and inflicted wounds, went away, leaving him in a half dead ³¹ state. And a certain priest happened to go down that way, and seeing him, passed on the ³² opposite side; and in like manner also a Levite, being at the spot, came and looked [at him] and passed on on the opposite
³³ side. But a certain Samaritan journeying came to him, and seeing [him],^m was moved with compassion, and came up [to him] ³⁴ and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine; and having put him on his own beast, took him to the inn and took care of

he said, He that shewed him mercy. And Jesus^o said to him, Go and do thou likewise.

⁴⁰ word. Now Martha was distracted with much serving, and coming up she said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister has left me to serve alone? Speak to her therefore that she may help me.
⁴¹ But Jesus answering said to her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things;
⁴² but there is need of one, and Mary has chosen the good part, which shall not be taken from her.

XI. And it came to pass as he was in a certain place praying, when he ceased, one of his disciples said to him, Lord, teach us to pray, even as John also taught his

And I say to you, Ask, and it shall be given to you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened to you. For every one that asks receives; and he that seeks finds; and to him that knocks it will be opened. But of whom of you who is a father shall a son ask bread, and [the father] give him a stone? or also a fish, and instead of a fish shall give him a serpent? or if also he shall ask an egg, shall give him a scorpion? If therefore ye, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much rather shall the Father who is of^x heaven give [the] Holy Spirit to them that ask him?

¹⁴ And he was casting out a demon, and it was dumb; and it came to pass, the demon being gone out, the dumb [man] spake. And the crowds wondered. But some from among them said, Through Beelzebub the^y prince of the demons

¹⁶ casts he out demons. And others tempting [him] sought from him a sign out of heaven. But he knowing their thoughts said to them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and a house set against a house falls; and if also Satan is divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? Because ye say that I cast out demons through Beelzebub. But if I through Beelzebub cast out demons, your sons—through whom do they cast them out? Therefore they shall be your judges. But if by the finger of God I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God is come upon you. ²³ But he^a said, Yea rather, blessed are they who hear the word of

³⁰ but the sign of Jonas.^d For as Jonas was a sign to the Ninevites, thus shall also the Son of man be

³³ Solomon is here. Men of Nineveh shall stand up in the judgment with this generation and shall condemn it, because they repented at the preaching of Jonas: and behold, more than Jonas is here.

⁴⁰ wickedness. Fools, has not he who has made the outside made

⁴¹ the inside also? But rather give alms of what ye have, and behold,

⁴⁸ killed them. Ye bear witness then and consent to the works of your fathers; for they killed them, ⁴⁹ and ye build their sepulchres. For this reason also the wisdom of God has said, I will send to them prophets and apostles, and of these shall they kill and drive out ⁵⁰ by persecution, that the blood of all the prophets which has been poured out from the foundation of the world may be required of this generation, from the blood ⁵¹ of Abel to the blood of Zacharias, who perished between the altar and the house; yea, I say to you, It shall be required of ⁵² this generation. Woe unto you, the doctors of the law, for ye have taken away the key of knowledge; yourselves have not entered in, and those who were entering in ye have hindered. ⁵³ And as he said these things to them, the scribes and the Pharisees began to press him urgently, and to make him speak of many ⁵⁴ things; watching him,^a to catch something out of his mouth.

XII. In those [times] the myriads of the crowd being gathered together, so that they trod one on another, he began to say to his disciples first,¹ Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is ² hypocrisy: but there is nothing covered up which shall not be revealed, nor secret that shall not ³ be known; therefore whatever ye have said in the darkness shall be heard in the light, and what ye have spoken in the ear in chambers shall be proclaimed upon the ⁴ housetops. But I say to you, my friends, Fear not those who kill the body and after this have no ⁵ more that they can do. But I will shew you whom ye shall fear: Fear him who after he has killed has authority to cast into hell. ⁶ Yea, I say to you, Fear him. Are not five sparrows sold for two assaria? and one of them is not ⁷ forgotten before God. But even the hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not therefore, ye are better than many sparrows. ⁸ But I say to you, Whosoever shall confess me before men, the Son of man will confess him also ⁹ before the angels of God; but he that shall have denied me before men shall, be denied before the ¹⁰ angels of God; and whoever shall say a word against the Son of man it shall be forgiven him, but to him that speaks injuriously against the Holy Spirit it shall not ¹¹ be forgiven. But when they bring you before the synagogues and rulers and the authorities, be not careful how or what ye shall answer, or what ye shall say; for the Holy Spirit shall teach you in the hour itself what should be said. ¹² And a person said to him out of the crowd, Teacher, speak to my brother to divide the inheritance with me. But he said to him, Man, who established me ¹³ [as] a judge or a divider over you? ¹⁴ And he said to them, Take heed

¹ Some join προειπεν with 'beware,' as Meyer, De Wette: 'first of all beware;'

but needlessly, I think. It was the first thing on his heart to tell them. Not as Bengel, 'first to the disciples, and then, verse 54, to the multitude.'

and keep yourselves from all covetousness, for [it is] not because a man is in abundance [that] his life is in his possessions. And he spake a parable to them, saying, The land of a certain rich man brought forth abundantly. And he reasoned within himself, saying, What shall I do? for I have not [a place] where I shall lay up my fruits. And he said, This will I do: I will take away my granaries and build greater, and there I will lay up all my produce and my good things; and I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much good things laid by for many years; repose thyself, eat, drink, and be merry. But God said to him, Fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; and whose shall be what thou hast prepared? Thus is he who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich towards God.

And he said to his disciples, For this cause I say unto you, Be not careful for life what ye shall eat, nor for your body what ye shall put on. The life is more than meat and the body than raiment. Consider the ravens, that they sow not, nor reap; which have neither storehouse nor granary; and God feeds them. How much better are ye than the birds? But which of you by being careful can add to his stature one cubit? If therefore ye cannot [do] even what is least, why are ye careful about the rest? Consider the lilies how they grow; they neither toil nor spin; but I say unto you, Not even Solomon in all his glory was clothed as one of these. But if God thus clothe the grass, which to-day is in the field and to-morrow is cast into [the] oven, how much more you, O-ye of little faith? And ye, seek not what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink, and be not in anxiety; for all these things do the nations of the world seek after, and your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things; but seek his kingdom, and all these things shall be added to you. Fear not, little flock, for it has been the good pleasure of your Father to give you the kingdom. Sell what ye possess and give alms; make to yourselves purses which do not grow old, a treasure which does not fail in the heavens, where thief does not draw near nor moth destroy.

For where your treasure is, there also will your heart be. Let your loins be girded about, and lights burning; and ye like men who wait their own lord whenever he may leave the wedding, that when he comes and knocks they may open to him immediately. Blessed are those servants whom the lord [on] coming shall find watching. Verily I say unto you, that he will gird himself

⁵ There is an emphatic article here imand make them recline at table, and coming up will serve them.

38 And if he come in the second watch, and come in the third watch, and find them thus, blessed 39 are those servants. But this know, that if the master of the house had known in what hour the thief was coming, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be dug through.

40 And ye therefore, be ye ready, for in the hour in which ye do not think [it] the Son of man comes.

41 And Peter said to him, Lord, sayest thou this parable to us or also to all? And the Lord said, 42 Who then is the faithful and prudent steward, whom his lord will set over his household, to give the measure of corn in season?

43 Blessed is that servant whom his lord [on] coming shall find doing thus. Verily I say to you, that he will set him over all that he has. But if that servant should say in his heart, My lord delays to come, and begin to beat the menservants and the maidservants, and to eat and to drink and to be drunken, the lord of that servant shall come in a day which he does not expect, and in an hour which he does not know, and shall cut him in two, and appoint him his part with the unbelievers.

47 But that servant who knew his own lord's will and had not prepared [himself], nor done his will, shall be beaten with many

48 [stripes]; but he who knew it not, and did things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few. And to every one to whom much has been given much shall be required from him; and to whom men have committed much, they will ask from him the more. I have come to cast a fire on the earth; and what will I if already it has been kindled? But I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straitened until it shall have been accomplished. Think ye that I have come to give peace in the earth? Nay, I say to you, but rather division; for from henceforth there shall be five in one house divided; three shall be divided against two, and two against three. Father^a against son, and son against father; mother against daughter, and daughter against mother; a mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. And he said also to the crowds, When ye see a^a cloud rising out of the west, straightway ye say, A shower is coming; and so it happens. And when [ye see] the south wind blow, ye say, There will be heat; and it happens. Hypocrites, ye know how to judge of the appearance of the earth and of the heaven, how [is it then that] ye do not discern this time? And why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right? For^a as thou go-

^a T. R. connects 'shall be divided,' in singular, with 'father.' M, B, D, &c., It., Vul. as in text. It is noticeable that from 'father' to 'mother' the noun is in the dative: 'mother-in-law' to 'mother-in-law' it is an accusative; is it because of the nearer relationship of the former?

^a The 'for' here is the practical conclusion the Lord draws as to the need of Israel's reconciling itself with God. 'Hearing what I say, that is what you

est with thine adverse party before a magistrate, strive in the way to be reconciled with him, lest¹ he drag thee away to the judge, and the judge shall deliver thee to the officer, and the officer cast thee²⁰ into prison. I say unto thee, Thou shalt in no wise come out thence until thou hast repaid the very last mite.

XIII. At the same time there were present some who told him of the Galileans whose blood Pilate mingled with [that of] their sacrifices. And Jesus answering said to them, Think ye that these Galileans were sinners beyond all the Galileans because they suffered such things? No, I say to you, but if ye repent not, ye shall⁴ all perish in the same manner. Or those eighteen on whom the tower in Siloam fell and killed them, think ye that they were debtors beyond all the⁵ men who dwell in Jerusalem? No, I say to you, but if ye repent not ye shall all⁶ perish in like manner. And he spake this parable: A certain [man] had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard, and he came seeking fruit upon it and did not find [any].⁷ And he said to the vinedresser, Behold, these three years I come seeking fruit on this fig-tree and find none: cut it down, why does it also render the ground useless?⁸ But he answering said to him, Sir, let it alone for this year also, until I shall dig about it and put dung,⁹ and if it shall bear fruit— but if not, after that thou shalt cut it down.

¹⁰ And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. And lo, there was a woman¹¹ having a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and she was bent together and wholly unable to lift¹² her head up. And Jesus seeing her, called to [her], and said to her, Woman, thou art loosed from¹³ thine infirmity. And he laid his hands upon her, and immediately she was made straight, and¹⁴ glorified God. But the ruler of the synagogue, indignant because Jesus healed on the sabbath, answering said to the crowd, There are six days in which [people] ought to work; in these therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day. The Lord therefore answered him and said, Hypocrites!¹⁵ does not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the manger and leading [it] away¹⁶ water [it]? And this [woman], who is a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan has bound, lo, these eighteen years, ought she not to be loosed from this bond on the¹⁷ sabbath day? And as he said these things, all who were opposed to him were ashamed; and all the crowd rejoiced at all the glorious things which were being done by him.¹⁸ And he said, To what is the kingdom of God like? and to what¹⁹ shall I liken it? and cast into his garden ; and it grew and became a great tree, and the fowls of heaven lodged in its

31 The same day certain Pharisees came, saying to him, Get out and go hence, for Herod is desirous to

to them, Of which of you shall an ass^b or ox fall into a well, that he does not straightway pull him ⁶ up on the sabbath day? And they were not able to answer him to these things.

⁷ And he spoke a parable to those that were invited, remarking how they chose out the first places, ⁸ saying to them, When thou art invited by any one to a wedding, do not lay thyself down in the first place at table, lest perhaps a more honourable than thee be ⁹ invited by him, and he who invited thee and him come and say to thee, Give place to this man, and then thou begin with shame ¹⁰ to take the lowest place. But when thou hast been invited, go and put thyself down in the last place, that when he who has invited thee comes, he may say to thee, Friend, go up higher. Then shalt thou have honour before all^c that are lying [at table] with ¹¹ thee; for every one that has exalted himself shall be abased, and he that abases himself shall be exalted.

¹² And he said also to him that had invited him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, nor thy kinsfolk, nor rich neighbours, lest, it may be, they'also should invite thee in return, and a recompense ¹³ be made thee; but when thou makest a feast, call poor, crippled, ¹⁴ lame, blind, and thou shalt be blessed; for they have not [the means] to recompense thee; for it shall be recompensed thee in the resurrection of the just.

¹⁵ And one of those that were lying [at table] with [them] hearing these things, said to him, Blessed [is] he who shall eat bread in the ¹⁶ kingdom of God. And he said to him, A certain man made a great ¹⁷ supper and invited many. And he sent his bondsman at the hour of supper to say to those who were invited, Come, for al- ¹⁸ ready all things are ready. And all began, without exception, to excuse themselves. The first said to him, I have bought land, and I must go out and see it; I pray ¹⁹ thee hold me for excused. And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them; I pray thee hold me for ex- ²⁰ cused. And another said, I have married a wife, and on this ac- ²¹ count I cannot come. And the^d bondsman came up and brought back word of these things to his lord. Then the master of the house, in anger, said to his bonds- ²² man, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring here the poor and crippled ²³ and lame and blind. And the bondsman said, Sir, it is done as thou hast commanded, and there ²⁴ is still room. And his lord said to the bondsman, Go out into the ways and fences^e and compel to come in, that my house may be

²⁵ And great crowds went with him; and, turning round, he said

²⁶ to them, If any man come to me and shall not hate his own father and mother, and wife, and children, and brothers, and sisters, yea, and his own life too, he cannot

²⁷ be my disciple; and whoever does not carry his cross and come after me cannot be my disciple.

²⁸ For which of you, desirous of building a tower, does not first sit down and count the cost, if he have what [is needed] to complete

³⁰ saying, This man began to build and was not able to finish? Or,

³¹ what king, going on his way to engage in war with another king, does not, sitting down first, take counsel whether he is able with ten thousand to meet him coming against him with twenty thousand;

³² and if not, while he is yet far off, having sent an embassy, he asks

³³ for terms of peace? Thus then every one of you who forsakes not all that is his own cannot be

XV. And all the tax-gatherers and the sinners were coming¹ near to

² him to hear him; and the Pharisees and the scribes murmured, saying, This [man] receives sin-

⁴ ing, What man of you having a hundred sheep, and having lost one of them, does not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness and go after that which is lost,

⁵ until he find it? and having found it, he lays it upon his own

⁶ shoulders, rejoicing; and being come to the house, calls together the friends and the neighbours, saying to them, Rejoice with me, for I have found my lost sheep.

⁷ I say unto you, that thus there shall be joy in heaven for one repenting sinner, [more] than for ninety and nine righteous who^k

⁹ and having found it, she calls together the friends and neighbours, saying, Rejoice with me, for I have found the drachma which I

perty that falls [to me]. And he divided to them what he was possessed of.¹ And after not many days the younger son gathering all together went away into a country a long way off, and there dissipated his property, living in debauchery. But when he had spent all, there arose a violent famine throughout that country, and he began to be in want. And he went and joined himself to one of the citizens of that country, and he sent him into his fields to feed swine. And he longed to fill his belly with the husks^m which the swine were eating; and no man gave to him. And coming to himself, he said, How many hired servants of my father's abound in bread, and I perish hereⁿ by famine. I will rise up and go to my father, and I will say to him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee; ^o I am no longer worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants. And he rose up and went to his own father. But while he was a long way off, his father saw him, and was moved with compassion, and ran, and fell upon his neck, and covered him with kisses. And the son said to him, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before thee: ^p I am no longer worthy to be called thy son. But the father said to his bondsmen, Bring out the best robe and clothe him in

[it], and put a ring on his hand and sandals on his feet; and bring the fatted calf and kill it, and let us eat and make merry: for this my son was dead and has come to life,^p was lost and has been found. And they began to make merry. And his elder son was in the field; and as, coming [up], he drew nigh to the house he heard music and dancing. And having called one of the servants, he inquired what these things might be. And he said to him, Thy brother is come, and thy father has killed the fatted calf because he has received him safe and well. But he became angry and would not go in. And^r his father went out and besought him. But he answering said to his father, Behold, so many years I serve thee, and never have I transgressed thy commandment; and to me hast thou never given a kid that I might make merry with my friends; but when this thy son, who has devoured thy substance with harlots, is come, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf. But he said to him, Child, thou art ever with me, and all that is mine is thine. It was right to make merry and rejoice, because this thy brother was dead and has come to life again, and was lost and has been found.

³ canst be no longer steward. And the steward said within himself, What shall I do; for my lord is taking the stewardship from me? I am not able to dig; I am ashamed to beg. I know what I will do, that when I shall have been removed from the stewardship I may be received into their houses.
⁵ And having called to [him] each one of the debtors of his own lord, he said to the first, How much owest thou to my lord?
⁶ And he said, A hundred baths of oil. And he said to him, Take thy writing and sit down quickly
⁷ and write fifty. Then he said to another, And thou, how much dost thou owe? And he said, A hundred cors of wheat. And he says to him, Take thy writing and ⁸ write eighty. And the lord praised the unrighteous steward because he had done prudently. For the sons of this world are, for their own generation, more prudent than the sons of light. And I say to you, Make to yourselves friends with the mammon of unrighteousness, that when ye fail ye may be received* into the ¹⁰ eternal dwellings. He that is faithful in the least is faithful ¹¹ also in much; and he that is unrighteous in the least is unrighteous also in much. If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who shall ¹² entrust to you the true? and if ye have not been faithful in that which is another's, who shall give ¹³ to you your own? No servant can serve two masters, for either he will hate the one and will love the other, or he will cleave to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

¹⁴ And the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things, and mocked him. And he said to them, Ye are they who justify themselves before men, but God knows your hearts; for what amongst men is highly thought of is an abomination before God.
¹⁶ The law and the prophets [were] until John: from that time the glad tidings of the kingdom of God are announced, and every one ¹⁷ forces his way into it. It is easier that the heaven and the earth should pass away than that one ¹⁸ tittle of the law should fail. Every one who puts away his wife and marries another commits adultery. And every one that marries one put away from a husband commits adultery.
¹⁹ There was a rich man, and he was clothed in purple and fine linen, making good cheer in splendour every day. And there was a poor man, by name Lazarus, who was laid at his gateway full of ²¹ sores, and desiring to be filled with the crumbs which fell from the table of the rich man; but the dogs also coming licked his sores.
²² And it came to pass that the poor man died, and that he was carried away by the angels into the bosom of Abraham. And the rich man

²³ also died, and was buried. And in hades lifting up his eyes, being in torments, he sees Abraham afar off and Lazarus in his bosom.

²⁴ And he crying out said, Father Abraham, have compassion on me, and send Lazarus that he may dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am suffering in this flame.

²⁵ But Abraham said, Child, recollect that thou hast fully received ^a thy good things in thy lifetime, and likewise Lazarus evil things. But now he is comforted here, ^v and ²⁶ thou art in suffering. And besides all this, between us and you a great chasm is fixed, so that those who desire to pass hence to you cannot, nor do they [who are where you are] pass thence to us.

²⁷ And he said, I beseech thee then, father, that thou wouldest send him to the house of my father,

²⁸ for I have five brothers, so that he may earnestly testify to them, that they also may not come to

²⁹ this place of torment. But ^w Abraham says to him, They have Moses and the prophets: let them

³⁰ hear them. But he said, Nay, father Abraham, but if one from the dead should go to them, they ³¹ will repent. And he said to him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, not even if one rise from the dead will they be persuaded.

XVII. And he said to his ^z disciples, It cannot be but that offences ⁷ come, but woe [to him]

² by whom they come! It would be [more] profitable for him if a millstone were hung about his neck and he cast into the sea, than that he should be a snare

⁴ And if he should sin against thee seven times in the day, and seven times ^c should return to thee, saying, I repent, thou shalt forgive him.

¹⁶ them, seeing that he was cured, turned back, glorifying God with the sky from [one end] under heaven to [the other end] under heaven,

 20 Thou knowest the commandments: Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness; Honour thy father and 21 thy mother. And he said, All these things have I kept from my youth.
 22 And when Jesus had heard this, he said to him, One thing is lacking to thee yet: Sell all that thou hast and distribute to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in the heavens,* and come, follow me.
 23 But when he heard this he became very sorrowful, for he was 24 very rich. But when Jesus saw that he became very sorrowful, he said, How difficultly shall those who have riches enter into the 25 kingdom of God; for it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.
 26 And those who heard it said, And

XIX. And he entered and passed² through Jericho. And behold, there was a man by name called Zacchæus, and he was chief tax-gatherer, and he³ was rich. And he sought to see Jesus who he was: and he could not for the crowd, for he was little in stature.⁴ And running on before, he got up into a sycamore that he might see him, for he was going to pass⁵ that^x [way]. And when he came up to the place, Jesus looked up and saw him, and said to him, Zacchæus, make haste and come down, for to-day I must remain⁶ in thy house. And he made haste and came down, and received⁷ him with joy. And all murmured when they saw [it], saying, He has turned in to lodge with a sinful⁸ man. But Zacchæus stood and said to the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor, and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I return him fourfold.⁹ And Jesus said to him, To-day salvation is come to this house, inasmuch as he also is a son of¹⁰ Abraham; for the Son of man has come to seek and to save that which is lost.¹¹ But as they were listening to these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was near to Jerusalem, and they thought that the kingdom of God was about to be immediately manifested. He said therefore, A certain high-born man went to a distant country to receive for himself a kingdom and¹² return. And having called his own ten bondsmen, he gave to them ten minas, and said to them,¹³ Trade while I am coming. But his citizens hated him, and sent an embassy after him, saying, We will not that this [man] should¹⁴ reign over us. And it came to pass on his arrival back again, having received the kingdom, that² he desired these bondsmen to whom he gave the money to be called to him, in order that he might know what every one had¹⁵ gained by trading.^a And the first came up, saying, [My] Lord, thy mina has produced ten minas.¹⁷ And he said to him, Well [done], thou good bondsman; because thou hast been faithful in that which is least, be thou in authority over ten cities. And the second came, saying, [My] Lord, thy mina has made five minas.¹⁹ And he said also to this one, And²⁰ thou, be over five cities. And another came, saying, [My] Lord, lo, [there is] thy mina, which I have kept laid up in a towel.²¹ For I feared thee because thou art a harsh man: thou takest up what thou hast not laid down, and thou reapest what thou hast not²² sowed. ^b He says to him, Out of thy mouth will I judge thee, wicked bondsman: thou knewest that I am a harsh man, taking up what I have not laid down and reaping ²³ what I have not sowed. And why didst thou not give my money to [the]^c bank; and I should have received it, at my coming, with ²⁴ interest? And he said to those that stood by, Take from him the mina and give [it] to him who has ²⁵ ten minas. And they said to him, ²⁶ Lord, he has ten minas. For I say unto you, that to every one that has shall be given; but from him that has not, even what he has shall be taken from him. ²⁷ Moreover those mine enemies, who would not [have] me to reign over them,^d bring them here and slay [them] before me.

²⁸ And having said these things, he went on before, going up to ²⁹ Jerusalem. And it came to pass as he drew near to Bethphage and Bethany, towards the mountain called [the mount] of Olives, he ³⁰ sent two of his disciples, saying, Go into the village over against [you], in which ye will find, on entering it, a colt tied up, on which no [child] of man ever sat at any time: loose it and lead it ³¹ here. And if any one ask you, Why do ye loose [it]? thus shall ye say to him, Because the Lord ³² has need of it. And they that were sent, having gone their way, found as he had said to them. ³³ And as they were loosing the colt, its masters said to them, Why

³⁴ loose ye the colt? And they said, Because^e the Lord has need of it: ³⁵ and they led it to Jesus; and having cast their own garments on the colt, they put Jesus on [it]. ³⁶ And as he went they strewed their clothes in the way. ³⁷ And as he already drew near, at the descent of the mount of Olives, all the multitude of the disciples began, rejoicing, to praise God with a loud voice for all the works of power which they had ³⁸ seen, saying, Blessed the king that comes in the name of [the] Lord:^f peace in heaven, and glory in the highest. And some of the Pharisees from the crowd said to him, Teacher, rebuke thy disciples. And he answering said to them, I say unto you, If these shall be silent, the stones will cry ⁴¹ out. And as he drew near, seeing the city he wept over it, saying, If thou hadst known, even thou, even at least in this thy day, the things that are for thy peace: but now they are hid from ⁴³ thine eyes; for days shall come upon thee, that^g thine enemies shall make a palisaded mound about thee, and shall close thee around, and keep thee in on every ⁴⁴ side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children in thee; and shall not leave in thee a stone upon a stone, because thou knewest not the season of thy visitation.

⁴⁷ And he was teaching day by day in the temple; ^s and the chief priests and the scribes and the chief of the people sought to destroy him, and did not find what they could do, for all the people hung on him to hear.

XX. And it came to pass on one of the ^h days, as he was teaching the people in the temple, ^s and announcing the glad tidings, the chief priests and the scribes with ² the elders came up, and spoke to him, saying, Tell us by what right thou doest these things, or who is it who has given thee this right?

³ And he answering said to them, I also will ask you something, and ⁴ tell me, The baptism of John, was it from heaven or from men?

⁵ And they reasoned among themselves, saying, If we should say From heaven, he will say, Why ¹ have ye not believed him? but if we should say, From men, the whole people will stone us, for they are persuaded that John is a prophet.

⁷ And they answered, they did not ⁸ know whence. And Jesus said to them, Neither do I tell you by what right I do these things.

⁹ And he began to speak to the people this parable: A ¹ man planted a vineyard and let it out to husbandmen, and left the ¹⁰ country for a long time. And in the season he sent to the husbandmen a bondsman, that they might give to him of the fruit of the vineyard; but the husbandmen, after having beaten him, sent ¹¹ [him] away empty. And again he sent another bondsman; but they, after having beaten him also, and cast insult upon him,

¹² sent [him] away empty. And again he sent a third; and they, having wounded him also, cast ¹³ [him] out. And the lord of the vineyard said, What shall I do?

I will send my beloved son: perhaps when they see him they will respect [him]. But when the ¹⁴ husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the heir; ^k let us kill him that the inheritance may become

¹⁵ ours. And after having cast him out of the vineyard, they killed [him]. What therefore shall the lord of the vineyard do to them?

¹⁶ He will come and will destroy those husbandmen, and will give the vineyard to others. And when they heard it, they said, ¹⁷ May it never be! But he looking at them said, What is this then that is written, The stone which the builders had rejected, this has become the head of the corner?

¹⁸ Every one falling on that stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall it shall grind

sent out suborned persons, pretending to be just men, that they might take hold of him in [his] language,¹ so that they might^m deliver him up to the power and authority of the governor. And they asked him, saying, Teacher, we know that thou sayest and teachest rightly, and acceptest no [man's] person, but teachest in²² truth the way of God: Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Cæsar, or not? But perceiving their deceit he said to them, Why do ye tempt me? Shew me a denarius. Whose image and title has it? And answering they said, Cæsar's.²⁴ And he said to them, Render therefore what is Cæsar's to Cæsar, and what is God's to God.²⁶ And they were not able to take hold of him in his expressions before the people, and, wondering at his answer, they were silent.²⁷ And some of the Sadducees, who deny that there is any resurrection, coming up [to him], asked him, saying, Teacher, Moses wrote to us, If any one's brother, who has a wife, die, and he die childless, his brother shall take the wife and raise up seed to his brother. There were then seven brethren; and the first, having taken a wife, died childless; and the second [took the woman, and he died childless;]ⁿ and the third took her; and in like manner also the seven^o left no children and died; and last of all the woman also died. In the resurrection therefore of which of them does she become wife, for the seven had her as wife? And Jesus^p said to them, The sons of this world^q marry and are given in marriage, but they who are counted worthy to have part in that world,^q and the resurrection from among [the] dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; for neither can they die any more, for they are equal to angels, and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection. But that the dead rise, even Moses shewed in the [section on the] bush, when he called [the] Lord^r the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob; but he is not God of [the] dead but of [the] living; for for him all live. And some of the scribes answering said, Teacher, thou hast well spoken. And they did not dare any more to ask him anything. And he said to them, How do they say that the Christ is David's son, and David himself says in the book of Psalms, The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand until I put thine enemies [as] footstool of thy feet? David therefore calls him Lord, and how is he his son? And, as all the people were listening, he said to his disciples, Beware of the scribes, who like to walk in long robes, and who love salutations in the market-places, and

⁵ And as some spoke of the temple,
 that it was adorned with goodly stones and consecrated offerings, ⁶ he said, [As to] these things which ye are beholding, days are coming in which there shall not be left stone upon stone which be not led astray, for many shall come in my name, saying, I am

 Go ye not therefore after them.

and tumults, be not terrified, for these things must first take place, but the end is not immediately.

 shall rise against nation, and shall be both great earthquakes in pestilences; and there shall be fearful sights and great signs

 things they shall lay their hands

³ Or 'possess your souls.' In the first sense, that of the text, it is the same as Matt. xxiv. 13; Luke xvii. 33; Matt. xvi. 25; Luke ix. 24, &c.; compare Mark xiii. 13. For the second, ἀποβῆτε certainly means 'possess,' as κτήσασθε, Acts iv. 34; see 1 Thess. iv. 4, which does not mean, evidently, 'obtain a wife,' as alleged. Compare Matt. x. 9; Luke xviii. 12. There is the idea in the word of 'having by getting.' Kypke's interpretation, 'preserving our lives,' seems out of place. The idea is, 'they would have Messiah's deliverance,' and it is so worded as to leave a better one to the killed, though some would win life here below.

the mountains, and they who are in the midst of it depart out, and they that are in the country not 23 enter into it; for these are days of avenging, that all the things that are written may be accomplished. But woe to them that are with child and to them that give suck in those days, for there shall be great distress upon the land and wrath upon^w this people.
 24 And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and be led captive into all the nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of [the] nations until [the] times of [the] nations be fulfilled. And there shall be signs in sun and moon and stars, and upon the earth distress of nations in perplexity at the roar of the sea and rolling waves,^x men ready to die through fear and expectation of what is coming on the habitable earth, for the powers of the heavens shall 27 be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.
 28 But when these things begin to come to pass, look up and lift up your heads, because your redemption draws nigh. And he spake a parable to them: Behold the fig-tree and all the trees; when they already sprout ye know of your 30 own selves, [on] looking [at them,] that already the summer is near.
 31 So also ye, when ye see these things take place, know that the kingdom of God is near. Verily 32 I say to you, that this generation shall in no wise pass away until 33 all come to pass. The heaven and the earth shall pass away, but my words shall in no wise pass away.

 34 But take heed to yourselves lest possibly your hearts be laden with surfeiting and drinking and cares of life, and that day come upon 35 you suddenly, unawares; for as a snare shall it come upon all them that dwell upon the face of the 36 whole earth. Watch therefore, praying at every season, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things which are about to come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man.
 37 And by day he was teaching in the temple,^y and by night, going out, he remained abroad on the mountain called [the mount] of 38 Olives, and all the people came early in the morning to him in the temple^z to hear him.

XXII. Now the feast of unleavened bread, which [is] called the 2 passover, drew nigh, and the chief priests and the scribes sought how they might kill him,
 3 for they feared the people. And Satan entered into Judas, who was called Iscariote, being of the 4 number of the twelve. And he went away and spoke with the chief priests and² captains as to how he should deliver him up to 5 them. And they were rejoiced, and agreed to give him money.
 6 And he came to an agreement to do it, and sought an opportunity to deliver him up to them away from the crowd.

 8 was to be killed. And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare the passover for us, that 9 we may eat [it]. But they said to him, Where wilt thou that we 10 prepare [it]? And he said to them, Behold, as ye enter into the city a man will meet you, carrying an earthen pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he goes 11 in; and ye shall say to the master of the house, The teacher says to thee, Where is the guestchamber where I shall eat the passover 12 with my disciples? And he^a will shew you a large upper room fur-13 nished: there make ready. And having gone they found it as he had said to them; and they prepared the passover.
 14 And when the hour was come,
 he placed himself at table, and the [twelve]^b apostles with him.
 15 And he said to them, With desire
 I have desired to eat this passover 16 with you before I suffer. For I say unto you, that I will not eat any more at all of it until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.
 17 And having received a cup, when he had given thanks, he said, Take this and divide it among your-18 selves. For I say unto you, that I will not drink at all of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of 19 God come. And having taken a loaf, when he had given thanks,
 he broke it, and gave it to them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. In like manner saying, This cup [is] the new covenant in my blood, which is poured

 the hand of him that delivers me 22 up [is] with me on the table; and the Son of man indeed goes as it is determined, but woe unto that man by whom he is delivered up.
 23 And they^c began to question together among themselves who then it could be of them who was 24 about to do this. There was also a strife among them which of them should be held to be the 25 greatest. And he said to them,
 The kings of the nations rule over them, and they that exercise authority over them are called bene-26 factors. But ye [shall] not [be] thus; but let the greater among you be as the younger, and the 27 leader as he that serves. For which [is] greater, he that is at table or he that serves? [Is] not he that is at table? But I am in the midst of you as the one that 28 serves. But ye are they who have persevered with me in my tempt-29 ations. And I appoint unto you, as my Father has appointed unto 30 me, a kingdom, that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

 ready to go both to prison and to

 Peter, the cock shall not^e crow to-day before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me.
 35 And he said to them, When I sent you without purse and scrip and 36 And they said, Nothing. He said therefore to them, But now he that has a purse let take him [it], in like manner also a scrip, and he that has none let him sell his 37 garment and buy a sword; for I say unto you, that this that is written must yet be accomplished in me,

 And he was reckoned among [the] said, Lord, behold here are two swords. And he said to them,

 It is enough.
 39 And going forth he went according to his custom to the mount of Olives, and the^f disciples 40 also followed him. And when he was at the place he said to them, Pray that ye enter not into temp-

 from them about a stone's throw,
 and having knelt down he prayed, 42 saying, Father, if thou wilt remove this cup from me:—but then,^g not my will, but thine be done.
 43 And an angel appeared to him from heaven strengthening him.
 44 And being in conflict he prayed more intently. And his sweat became as great drops of blood,

45 falling down upon the earth. And rising up from his^h prayer, coming to the^f disciples, he found them 46 sleeping from grief. And he said to them, Why sleep ye? rise up and pray that ye enter not into 47 temptation. As he was yet speaking, lo, a crowd, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went on before them, and drew 48 near to Jesus to kiss him. And Jesus said to him, Judas, deliv-erest thou up the Son of man with a kiss?

49 And they who were around him, seeing what was going to follow,
 said to him, Lord, shall we smite 50 with [the] sword? And a certain one from among them smote the bondsman of the high priest and 51 took off his right ear. And Jesus answering said, Suffer thus far;
 and having touched his ear, he 52 healed him. And Jesus said to the chief priests and captains of the templeⁱ and elders, who were come against him, Have ye come out as against a robber, with 53 swords and sticks? When I was day by day with you in the templeⁱ ye did not stretch out your hands against me; but this is your hour and the power of darkness.

54 And having laid hold on him,
 they led him [away], and they

And after a short time another seeing him said, And thou art of them. But Peter said, Man, I am not. And after the lapse of about one hour another stoutly maintained it, saying, In truth this man also was with him; for also he is a Galilean. And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately, while he was yet speaking, [the]ⁱ cock crew. And the Lord, turning round, looked at Peter; and Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he said to him, Before [the]ⁱ cock shall crow thou shalt deny me thrice. And Peter going forth without, wept bitterly. And the men who held him^j mocked him, beating [him]; and covering him up, ^kasked him, saying, Prophecy, who is it that has struck thee? And they said many other injurious things to him. And when it was day, the elderhood of the people, both [the] chief priests and scribes, were gathered together, and led him into their own council, saying, If thou art the Christ, tell us? And he said to them, If I tell you, ye will not at all believe; and if I should^l ask [you], ye would not answer me at all, nor let me go;^m butⁿ henceforth shall the Son of man be sitting on the right hand of the power of God. And they all said, Thou then art the Son of God? And he said to them, Ye say that I am. And they said, What need have we any more of witness, for we have heard ourselves out of his mouth? (XXIII.) And the whole multitude of them, rising up, led him to Pilate.

² And they began to accuse him, saying, We have found this [man] perverting our^o nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cæsar, saying, that he³ himself is Christ, a king. And Pilate demanded of him, saying, Thou art the king of the Jews? And he answering him said, Thou sayest. And Pilate said to the chief priests and the crowds, I find no guilt in this man. But they insisted, saying, He stirs up the people, teaching throughout all Judæa, beginning from Galilee⁶ even on to here. But Pilate, having heard Galilee [named], demanded if the man were a⁷ Galilean; and having learned that he was of Herod's jurisdiction, remitted him^p to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem in those⁸ days. And when Herod saw Jesus he greatly rejoiced, for he had been a long while desirous of seeing him, because of hearing many things concerning him, and he hoped to see some sign done⁹ by him; and he questioned him

 10 him nothing. And the chief priests and the scribes accused him vio-

 having set him at nought and mocked him, having put a splendid robe upon him, sent him back 12 to Pilate. And Pilate and Herod became friends with one another the same day, for they had been at enmity before between themselves.

13 And Pilate, having called together the chief priests and the 14 rulers and the people, said to them, Ye have brought to me this for I remitted you to him, and behold, nothing worthy of death 16 is done by him.^a Having chas-

 lease one for them at [the] feast.^r) 18 But they cried out in a mass, saying, Away with this [man] and 19 release Barabbas for us; who was one who, for a certain tumult which had taken place in the city and [for] murder, had been cast 20 into prison. Pilate therefore, desiring to release Jesus, again ad-21 dressed them. But they cried out in reply, saying, Crucify, crucify 22 him. And he said the third time to them, What evil then has this [man] done? I have found no cause of death in him: I will chastise him therefore and release 23 him. But they were urgent with loud voices, begging that he might be crucified. And their voices and those of the chief priests pre-24 vailed. And Pilate adjudged that what they begged should take 25 place. And he released^s him who, for tumult and murder, had been cast into prison, whom they begged for, and Jesus he delivered up to their will.

26 And as they led him away, they laid hold on a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the fields, and put the cross upon him to 27 bear it behind Jesus. And a great multitude of the people, and of women who^t wailed and lamented him, followed him. And Jesus turning round to them^u said, Daughters of Jerusalem, do which they will say, Blessed [are]

 Fall upon us; and to the hills,

 two others also, malefactors, were led with him to be put to death.

LUKE XXIII, XXIV.

Jesus said, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do. And, parting out his garments, they cast lots. And the people stood beholding, and the rulers also with them sneered, saying, He has saved others; let him save himself if this is the Christ, the chosen one of God. And the soldiers also made game of him, coming up and offering him vinegar, and saying, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself. And there was also an inscription written over him in Greek, and Roman, and Hebrew letters: This is the king of the Jews.

Now one of the malefactors who had been hung spoke insultingly to him, Art not thou the Christ? save thyself and us. But the other answering rebuked him, saying; Dost thou too not fear God, thou that art under the same judgment? and we indeed justly, for we receive the just recompense of what we have done; but this [man] has done nothing amiss. And he said to Jesus, Remember me, Lord, when thou comest in thy kingdom. And Jesus said to him, Verily I say to thee, To-day shalt thou be with me in paradise.

And it was about the sixth hour, and there came darkness over the whole land^w until the ninth hour. And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple rent in the midst. And Jesus, having cried with a loud voice, said, Father, into thy hands I^z commit my spirit. And having said this, he expired. Now the centurion, seeing what took place, glorified God, saying, In very deed this man was just. And all the crowds who had come together to that sight, having seen the things that took place, returned, beating [their]^y breasts. And all those who knew him stood afar off, the women also who had followed him from Galilee, beholding these things.

And behold, a man named Joseph, who was a counsellor, a good man and a just, (this [man] had not assented to their counsel and deed,) of Arimathea, a city of the Jews, who also himself waited for the kingdom of God—he having gone to Pilate begged the body of Jesus; and having taken it down, rolled it in fine linen and placed him^z in a tomb hewn in the rock, where no one had ever been laid. And it was the preparation day, and the sabbath twilight was coming on. And women^a who^b had come along with him out of Galilee having followed, saw the sepulchre and how his body was placed. And having returned they prepared aromatic spices and ointments, and remained quiet on the sabbath, according to the commandment. (XXIV.) But on the morrow of the sabbath, very early indeed in the morning, they came to the tomb, bringing the aromatic spices which they had² prepared.^c And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre. And entering in they found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass as they were in perplexity about it, that, behold two men suddenly stood by them in shining raiment. And, as they were filled with fear and bowed their faces to the ground, they said to them, Why seek ye the living one among the dead? He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spoke to you, being yet in Galilee, saying, The Son of man must be delivered up into the hands of sinners, and be crucified, and rise the third day. And they remembered his words; and, returning from the sepulchre, related all these things to the eleven and to all the rest. Now it was Mary of Magdala, and Joanna, and Mary [the mother] of James, and the others with them, who told these things to the apostles. And their words appeared in their eyes as an idle tale, and they disbelieved them. But Peter rising up, ran to the sepulchre, and stooping down he sees the linen clothes lying [there] alone, and went away home, wondering at what had happened. And behold, two of them were going on the same day to a village distant sixty stadia from Jerusalem, called Emmaüs; and they conversed with one another about all these things which had taken place. And it came to pass, as they conversed and reasoned, that Jesus himself drawing nigh went with them; but their eyes were holden so as not to know him. And he said to them, What discourses are these which pass between you as ye walk, and are downcast? And one of them, named Cleopas, answering said to him, Thou sojournest alone in Jerusalem, and dost not know what has taken place in it in these days? And he said to them, What things? And they said to him, The things concerning Jesus the Nazarean, who was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people; and how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him up to [the] judgment of death and crucified him. But we had hoped that he was [the one] who is about to redeem Israel. But then, besides all these things, it is now, to-day, the third day since these things took place. And withal, certain women from amongst us astonished us, having been very early at the sepulchre, and, not having found his body, came, saying that they also had seen a vision of angels, who say that he is living. And some of those with us went to the sepulchre, and found it so as the women also had said, but him they saw not. And he said to them, O senseless and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken. Ought not the Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory? And having begun from Moses and from all the prophets, he interpreted to them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself. And they drew near to the village where they were going, and he made as though he would go farther. And they constrained him, saying, Stay with us, for it is toward evening and the day is declining. And he entered in to stay with them. And it came to pass as he was at table with them, having taken the bread, he blessed, and having broken it, gave^h it to them. And their eyes were opened, and they recognized him. And he disappeared from them. And they said to one another, Was not our heart burning in us as he spoke to us on the way, and as he opened the scriptures to us? And rising up the same hour, they returned to Jerusalem. And they found the eleven, and those with them, gathered together, saying, The Lord is indeed risen and has appeared to Simon. And they related what [had happened] on the way, and how he was made known to them in the breaking of bread.¹ As they were saying these things, he^j himself stood in their midst, and saith to them, Peace [be] with you. But they, being confounded and being frightened, supposed they beheld a spirit. And he said to them, Why are ye troubled? and why are thoughts rising in your hearts? behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself. Handle me and see, for a spirit has not flesh and bones as ye see me having. And having said this, he shewed them [his] hands and [his] feet. But while they yet did not believe for joy and were wondering, he said to them, Have ye anything here to eat? And they gave^k him part of a broiled fish and of a honeycomb; and he took it^l and ate before them. And he said to them, These [are] the words which I spoke to you while I was yet with you, that all that is written concerning me in the law of Moses and prophets and psalms must be fulfilled. Then he opened their understanding to understand the scriptures, and said to them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved the Christ to suffer, and to rise from among the dead the third day; and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name to all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things. And behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you; but do ye remain in the city^m till ye be clothed with power from on high. And he led them out as far as Bethany, and having lifted up his hands, he blessed them. And it came to pass as he was blessing them, he was separated from them and was carried up into heaven. And they, having done him homage, returned to Jerusalem with great joy, and were continually in the temple praising and blessing God.ⁿ

IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and ² the Word was God. He^a was in ³ the beginning with God. All things received being through him, and without him not one [thing] received being which has received being.

him, and the world knew him not. ¹¹ He came to his own,^f and his own^g ¹² received him not; but as many as received him, to them gave he [the] right to be^h children of God, to those that believe on his name; ¹³ who have been born, not of blood nor of flesh's will nor of man's will, but of God.

¹⁴ And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us (and we have contemplated his glory, a glory as of an only-begotten with a father), ¹⁵ full of grace and truth; (John bears witness of him, and has cried, saying, This is he of whom I said, He that comes after me is preferred before me, for he was ¹⁶ before me;) forⁱ of his fulness we^j all have received, and grace ¹⁷ upon grace. For the law was given by Moses: grace and truth subsists^k through Jesus Christ.

* It is well to remark that the introduction of the personal pronoun is so universal in John, that it is impossible always to give it an emphatic sense. I have noted its presence by this mark^{*} so that each can judge for himself when the emphasis is not marked in the translation.

The same spirit of emphasis causes the very frequent use of ἐκεῖνος. Its sense is 'that,' contrasted with 'this,' hence is emphatic; as 'that man,' in English, sometimes having the sense of such a one as that. There is a long but not very deep or acute article of A. Buttmann on its use in this Gospel, in Stud. u. Krit., 1860.

^e Or 'is light to every man.' Not 'enlighteneth,' but 'sheds its light upon.'

Not, I judge, 'every man coming, in spite of the ancients. 'Comer into the world' is a Rabbinical expression for man, but this refers to the incarnation, as verse 10 shews. The fathers' view of it was Platonism, which John refutes in every point. The introduction of ἄνθρωπον makes the citing the Rabbinical expression as an argument for the interpretation, 'every one coming into the world,' a mistake. For the Rabbis use 'comers into the world' as equivalent to 'man.'

^f εἰς τὰ ἴδια, 'what was his own,' but used by John in the most general way for 'persons.'

^g οἱ ἴδιοι.

^h γενέσθαι: to take that place.

ⁱ T. R. reads 'and,' with several authorities.

^j 'Have come,' that which not having actually been in being before (i.e., in the world) now begins to be so, ἐγένετο. So the Word 'was,' but everything 'ἐγένετο.' The world ἐγένετο through him. He ἐγένετο flesh.

¹⁸ No one has seen God at any time; the only-begotten Son, who is in^m the bosom of the Father, he hath ¹⁹ declared him. And this is the witness of John, when the Jews sent from Jerusalem priests and Levites that they might ask him, ²⁰ Thou, who art thou? And he acknowledged and denied not, and acknowledged, I am not the Christ.
²¹ And they asked him, What then? Art thou Elias? And he says, I am not. Art thou the prophet?
²² And he answered, No. They said therefore to him, Who art thou? that we may give an answer to those who sent us. What sayest ²³ thou of thyself? He said, I [am] [the] voice of one crying in the wilderness,ⁿ Make straight the path of [the] Lord,^o as said Esaias the ²⁴ prophet. And they were sent ²⁵ from among^p the Pharisees. And they asked him and said to him, Why baptizest thou then, if thou art not the Christ, nor Elias, nor the prophet?
²⁶ John answered them saying, I baptize with water.^q In the midst of you stands^r whom ye
²⁷ do not know, he^s who comes after me, the string of whose sandal I ²⁸ am not worthy to unloose. These things took place in Bethany,^t across the Jordan, where John was baptizing.
²⁹ On the morrow he^u sees Jesus coming to him, and says, Behold the Lamb of God, who takes away ³⁰ the sin of the world. He it is of whom I said, A man comes after me who takes a place before me, ³¹ because he was before me; and I did not know him; but that he might be manifested to Israel, ³² therefore have I come baptizing with water. And John bore witness, saying, I beheld the Spirit descending as a dove from heaven, ³³ and it abode upon him. And I knew him not; but he who sent me to baptize with water, he^w said to me, Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending and abiding on him, he it is who baptizes with ³⁴ [the] Holy Spirit. And I have seen and borne witness that this is the Son of God.

³⁵ Again, on the morrow, there stood John and two of his disciples.
³⁶ And, looking at Jesus as he walked, he says, Behold the Lamb
³⁷ of God. And the two disciples heard him speaking, and followed ³⁸ Jesus. But Jesus having turned, and seeing them following, saith to them, What seek ye? And ³⁹ they said to him, Rabbi, (which, being interpreted, signifies Teacher,) where abidest thou? He saith to them, Come and see. They went therefore,^x and saw where he abode;^y and they abode with

 7 Jesus saith to them, Fill the

 they filled them up to the brim.

 9 But when the feast-master had did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested his glory; and his disciples believed on him. After this he descended to Capernaum, he and his mother and his brethren and his disciples; and there they abode not many days.

13 And the passover of the Jews was near, and Jesus went up to 14 Jerusalem. And he found in the temple^b the sellers of oxen and sheep and doves, and the money-changers sitting; and, having made a scourge of small cords, he cast them all out of the temple, bothⁱ the sheep and the oxen; and he poured out the change of the money-changers, and overturned 15 the tables, and said to the sellers of doves, Take these things hence; make not my Father's house a 17 house of merchandize. [And] his disciples remembered that it is written, The zeal of thy house 18 devours^j me. The Jews therefore answered and said to him, What sign shewest thou to us that thou 19 doest these things? Jesus answered and said to them, Destroy this temple,^k and in three days I 20 will raise it up. The Jews therefore said, Forty and six years was this temple^k building, and thou wilt raise it up in three days? 21 But he^l spoke of the temple^k of his body. When therefore he was 22 raised up from among [the] dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this,^m and believed the scripture and the word which Jesus had spoken.

23 But when he was in Jerusalem, at the passover, at the feast, many believed onⁿ his name, beholding 24 his signs which he wrought. But Jesus himself did not trust himself to them, because he knew all 25 [men]; and that he had not need that any should testify of man, for himself knew what was in man.

III. But there was a man from among the Pharisees, his name Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews; 2 he came to him^o by night, and said to him, Rabbi, we know that thou art come a teacher from God, for none can do these signs that thou doest unless God be 3 with him. Jesus answered and said to him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except any one be born anew^p he cannot see the kingdom 4 of God. Nicodemus says to him, How can a man be born being old? can he enter a second time into the womb of his mother and 5 be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except any one be born of water and of Spirit, he cannot enter into the 6 kingdom of God. That [which is] born of the flesh is flesh; and that [which is] born of the Spirit 7 is spirit. Do not wonder that I said to thee, It is needful that ye 8 should be born anew. whence it comes and where it goes: thus is every one [that is] ⁹ born of the Spirit. Nicodemus answered and said to him, How ¹⁰ can these things be? Jesus answered and said to him, 'Thou art the teacher of Israel and knowest ¹¹ not these things!?' Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that which we know, and we bear witness of that which we have seen, ¹² and ye receive not our witness. If I have said the earthly things to you, and ye believe not, how, if I say the heavenly things to you, ¹³ will ye believe? And no one has gone up into heaven save he who came down out of heaven, the Son ¹⁴ of man who is in heaven. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, thus must the Son of ¹⁵ man be lifted up, that every one who believes on^a him may not ¹⁶ perish, but^r have life eternal. For God so^s loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believes on^a him may not perish, but have life eternal. ¹⁷ For God has not sent his Son into the world that he may judge the world, but that the world may ¹⁸ be saved through him. He that believes on^a him is not judged; but he that believes not has been already judged, because he has not believed on^a the name of the ¹⁹ only begotten Son of God. And this is the judgment, that light is come into the world, and men have loved darkness rather than light; ²⁰ for their works were evil. For every one that does evil hates the light, and does not come to the light that his works may not be ²¹ shewn as they are;† but he that practises the truth comes to the light that his works may be manifested that they have been wrought in God.

²² After these things came Jesus and his disciples into the land of Judæa; and there he abode with them and baptized. And John also was baptizing in Ænon, near Salim, because there was a great deal of water there. And they came to [him] and were bap- ²⁴ tized. For John was not yet cast ²⁵ into prison. There was then a reasoning of the disciples of John with a Jew^u about purification. ²⁶ And they came to John and said to him, Rabbi, he who was with thee beyond the Jordan, to whom thou barest witness, behold, he baptizes, and all come to him. ²⁷ John answered and said, A man can receive nothing unless it be ²⁸ given him out of heaven. ^t I have hesitated a moment whether οὐτω referred to the kind of love, the giving of ζωὴ αἰωνία, which precedes, and is the great subject of John, in contrast with all earthly blessings and favour. Then ὥστε would thus be, that he has loved men in view of eternal life, 'so that' he

the bride is the bridegroom; but the friend of the bridegroom, who stands and hears him, rejoices in heart^w because of the voice of the bridegroom: this my joy then is fulfilled. He must increase, but I must decrease. He who comes from above is above all. He who^x has his origin in the earth is of the earth, and speaks [as] of the earth. He who comes out of heaven is above all, and what he has seen and has heard this he testifies; and no one receives his testimony. He that receives his testimony has set to his seal that God is true; for he whom God has sent speaks the words of God, for God^y gives not the Spirit by measure.

35 The Father loves the Son, and has given all things [to be] in his hand. He that believes on the Son has life eternal, and he that is not subject^z to the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides upon him.

IV. When therefore the Lord knew that the Pharisees had heard that Jesus makes and baptizes more² disciples than John, (however, Jesus himself did not baptize, but his disciples,) he left Judæa and went away again^a into Galilee. And he must needs pass through⁴ Samaria. He comes therefore to a city of Samaria called Sychar, near to the land which Jacob gave⁶ to his son Joseph. Now a fountain^b of Jacob's was there; Jesus therefore, being wearied with the way he had come, sat just as he was^c at the fountain. It was about⁷ the sixth hour. A woman comes out of Samaria to draw water. Jesus saith to her, Give me to⁸ drink (for his disciples had gone away into the city that they might⁹ buy provisions). The Samaritan woman therefore says to him, How dost thou, being a Jew, ask to drink of me who am a Samaritan woman? for Jews have no intercourse with Samaritans. Jesus answered and said to her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that says to thee, Give me to drink, thou¹¹ wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. The woman says to him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep; whence then hast thou the living¹² water? Art thou¹³ greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well, and drank of it himself, and his sons, and his cattle? Jesus answered and said to her, Every one who drinks of this water shall¹⁴ thirst again; but whosoever drinks of the water which I¹⁵ shall give him shall never thirst for ever,^d

but the water which I shall give him shall become in him a fountain of water, springing up into 15 eternal life. The woman says to him, Sir, give me this water, that I may not thirst nor come here to 16 draw. Jesus saith to her, Go, call 17 thy husband, and come here. The woman answered and said, I have not a husband. Jesus saith to her, Thou hast well said, I have not a 18 husband; for thou hast had five husbands, and now he whom thou hast is not thy husband: this 19 thou hast spoken truly. The woman says to him, Sir, I see that 20 thou art a prophet. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain, and ye say that in Jerusalem is the place where one must worship.
 21 Jesus saith to her, Woman, believe me, [the] hour is coming when ye shall neither in this mountain nor in Jerusalem worship the Father.
 22 Ye worship ye know not what: we worship what we know, for salvation is of the Jews. But 23 [the] hour is coming and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth; for also the Father seeks 24 such as his worshippers. God is a spirit, and they who worship him must worship in spirit and 25 truth. The woman says to him, I know that Messias is coming, who is called Christ; when 26 he comes he will tell us all 27 things. Jesus saith to her, I who speak to thee am he. And upon this came his disciples, and wondered that he spoke with a woman; yet no one said, What seekest thou? or, Why speakest thou 28 with her? The woman then left her waterpot and went away into the city, and says to the men, 29 Come, see a man who told me all things I had ever done: is 30 not he the Christ? They went out of the city and came to him.

 31 But^h meanwhile his disciples asked him, saying, Rabbi, eat.
 32 But he said to them, I have food
 33 to eat which ye do not know. The disciples therefore said to one another, Has any one brought him 34 [anything] to eat? Jesus saith to them, My food is that I should do the will of him that has sent me, and that I should finish his 35 work. Do not ye say, that there are yet four months and the harvest comes? Behold, I say to you, Lift up your eyes and behold the fields, for they are already white 36 to harvest. ⁱHe that reaps receives wages and gathers fruit unto life eternal, that both he that sows and he that reaps may re-
 37 joice together. For in this is [verified] the true^j saying, It is one who sows and another who 38 reaps. I have sent you to reap that on which ye have not laboured; others have laboured, and ye have entered into their labours.
 39 But many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him because of the word of the woman, who may be to our minds much as a present thing for this life. Οὐ μὴ εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα is strong in negation, and expresses lasting for ever.

cast me into the pool; but while I am coming another descends before me. Jesus saith to him, Arise, take up thy couch and walk. And immediately the man became well, and took up his couch and walked: and on that day was sabbath. The Jews therefore said to the healed [man], It is sabbath, it is not permitted thee to take up thy couch. He answered them, He that made me well, he said to me, Take up thy couch and walk. They asked him therefore, Who is the man who said to thee, Take up thy couch and walk? But he that had been healed knew not who it was, for Jesus had slidden away, there being a crowd in the place. After these things Jesus finds him in the temple, and said to him, Behold, thou art become well: sin no more, that something worse do not happen to thee. The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well. And for this the Jews persecuted Jesus [and sought to kill him],^a because he had done these things on sabbath. But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto and I work. For this therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he had not only violated the sabbath, but also said that God was his own Father, making himself equal with God. Jesus therefore answered and said to them, Verily, verily, I say to you, The Son can do nothing of himself save whatever he sees the Father doing: for whatever things he does, these things also the Son does in like manner. For the Father loves the Son and shews him all things which he himself does; and he will shew him greater works than these, that ye may wonder. For even as the Father raises up the dead and quickens [them], thus the Son also quickens whom he will; for neither does the Father judge any one, but has given all judgment to the Son; that all may honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He who honours not the Son honours not the Father who has sent him. Verily, verily, I say unto you, that he that hears my word, and believes him that has sent me, has life eternal, and does not come into judgment, but is passed out of death into life. Verily, verily, I say to you, that an hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that have heard shall live. For even as the Father has life in himself, so he has given to the Son also to have life in himself, and has given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is Son of man. Wonder not at this, for an hour is coming in which all who are in the tombs shall hear his voice, and shall go forth; those that have practised good, to resurrection of life; and those that have done evil, to resurrection of judgment. I cannot do anything of myself; as I hear, I judge, and my judgment is rightteous, because I do not seek my will, but the will of him^v that has sent me. If I^v bear witness concerning myself, my witness is not true. It is another who bears witness concerning me, and I know that the witness which he bears concerning me is true. Ye^v have sent unto John, and he has borne witness to the truth. But I^v do not receive witness from man, but I say this that ye might be saved. He^w was the burning and shining^x lamp, and ye^v were willing for a season to rejoice in his light. But I^v have the witness [that is] greater than [that] of John; for the works which the Father has given me that I should complete them, the works themselves which I^v do, bear witness concerning me that my Father has sent me. And the Father who has sent me, himself^y has borne witness concerning me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor have seen his shape, and ye have not his word abiding in you; for whom he^w hath sent, him ye^v do not believe. Ye search^z the scriptures, for ye^v think that in them ye have life eternal, and they [it is] which bear witness^a concerning me; and ye will not come to me that ye might have life. I do not receive glory from men, but I know you that ye have not the love of God in you.^b I^v am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not; if another come in his own name, him ye will receive. How can ye^v believe who receive glory one of another, and seek not the glory which [comes] from God alone?^c Think not that I^v will accuse you to the Father: there is [one] who accuses you, Moses, on whom ye^v trust: for if ye had believed Moses, ye would have believed me, for he^w wrote of me. But if ye do not believe his^d writings, how shall ye believe my words?

VI. After these things Jesus went away beyond the sea of Galilee, [or] of Tiberias, and a great crowd followed him because they saw the signs which he wrought upon the sick. And Jesus went up into the mountain,^f and there sat with his disciples; but the passover, the feast of the Jews, was near. Jesus then, lifting up his eyes and seeing that a great crowd is coming to him, saith to Philip, Whence shall we buy loaves that these may eat? But this he said trying him, for he^g knew what he was going to do. Philip answered him, Loaves for two hundred denarii are not sufficient for them, that each^h may have some little [portion]. Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place: the men therefore sat down, in number about five thousand. Andⁱ Jesus took the loaves, and having given thanks, distributed [them]^j to those that were set down; and in like manner of the small fishes as much as^k they would. When therefore they had been filled, he saith to his disciples, Gather together the fragments which are over and above, that nothing may be lost. They gathered [them] therefore together, and filled twelve large baskets full of fragments of the five barley loaves, which were over and above to those that had eaten. The men therefore, having seen the sign which Jesus had done, said, This is truly the prophet which is coming into the world. Jesus therefore, knowing that they were going to come and seize him, that they might make [him]^k king, departed again to the mountain himself alone. But when evening was come, his disciples went down to the sea, and having gone on board ship, they went over the sea to Capernaum. And it had already become dark, and Jesus had not come to them, and the sea was agitated by a strong wind blowing. Having rowed then about twenty-five or thirty stadia, they see Jesus walking on the sea, and coming near the ship, and they were frightened. But he

And having found him the other side of the sea, they said to him, Rabbi, when art thou²⁶ arrived here? Jesus answered them and said, Verily, verily, I say to you, Ye seek me, not because ye have seen the signs, but because ye have eaten of the²⁷ loaves and been filled. Work not [for] the food which perishes, but [for] the food which abides unto life eternal, which the Son of man shall give to you; for him^p has the Father sealed, [even] God.²⁸ They said therefore to him, What should we do that we may work²⁹ the works of God? ^z I am not quite content with this, but in the phrase 'heard of the Father and learned [from him],' 'heard of' is, to say the least, ambiguous in English. It is what is received directly from himself, παρά with a genitive, the same word as 'of' God in what follows. I add 'himself' that its immediateness may be felt, which is the point of the sentence.

of heaven : if any one shall have eaten of this bread, he shall live for ever ; but the bread which I shall give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. The Jews therefore contended among themselves, saying, How can he give us this flesh to eat? Jesus therefore said to them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Unless ye shall have eaten the flesh of the Son of man, and drank his blood, ye have no life in yourselves. He that eats my flesh and drinks my blood has life eternal, and I will raise him up at the last day ; for my flesh is truly food and my blood is truly drink. He that eats my flesh and drinks my blood dwells in me and I in him. As the living Father has sent me and I live on account of the Father, he also who eats me shall live also on account of me. This is the bread which has come down out of heaven. Not as the fathers ate and died : he that eats this bread shall live for ever. These things he said in [the] synagogue, teaching in Capernaum. Many therefore of his disciples having heard [it] said, This word is hard ; who can hear it? But Jesus, knowing in himself that his disciples murmur concerning this, said to them, Does this offend you? If then ye see the Son of man ascending up where he was before? It is the Spirit quickens, the flesh profits nothing : the words which I have spoken unto you are spirit and are life ; but there are some of you who do not believe. For Jesus knew from the beginning who they were who did not believe, and who would deliver him up. And he said, Therefore said I unto you, that no one can come to me unless it be given to him from the Father. From that [time] many of his disciples went away back and walked no more with him. Jesus therefore said to the twelve, Will ye also go away? Simon Peter answered him, Lord, to whom shall we go? thou hast words of life eternal ; and we have believed and known that thou art the holy one of God. Jesus answered them, Have not I chosen you the twelve? and of you one is a devil. He spoke of Judas [the son] of Simon, Iscariote, for he [it was who] should deliver him up, being one of the twelve.

² Jews sought to kill him. Now the tabernacles, the feast of the ³ Jews, was near. His brethren therefore said to him, Remove hence and go into Judæa, that thy disciples also may see thy works
⁴ which thou doest; for no one does anything in secret and himself seeks to be known in public. If thou doest these things, manifest ⁵ thyself to the world: for neither did his brethren believe on him.
⁶ Jesus therefore saith unto them, My time is not yet come, but your ⁷ time is always ready. The world cannot hate you, but me it hates, because I bear witness concerning ⁸ it that its works are evil. Ye, go ye up to this feast. I go not up^m to this feast, for my time is not ⁹ yet fulfilled. Having said these things to them he abode in Galilee. But when his brethren had ¹⁰ gone up, then he himself also went up to the feast, not openly,
¹¹ but as in secret. The Jews therefore sought him at the feast, and ¹² said, Where is he?ⁿ And there was much murmuring concerning him among the crowds. Some said, He is [a] good [man]; others said, No; but he deceives the ¹³ crowd. However no one spoke openly concerning him on account of [their] fear of the Jews.
¹⁴ But when it was now the middle of the feast, Jesus went up into

¹⁶ never learned? Jesus therefore answered them and said, My doctrine is not mine, but [that] of ¹⁷ him that has sent me. If any one desire to practise his will, he shall know concerning the doctrine, whether it is of God, or [that] I ¹⁸ speak from myself. He that speaks from himself seeks his own glory; but he that seeks the glory of him that has sent him, he is true, and unrighteousness is not in him.
¹⁹ Has not Moses given you the law, and no one of you practises the law? Why do ye seek to kill

²⁴ kill? and, behold, he speaks openly, and they say nothing to him. Have the rulers then indeed recognized that this is^u the Christ?

³¹ But many of the crowd believed on him, and said, Will the Christ, when he comes, do more signs than those^w which this [man] has done? The Pharisees heard the crowd murmuring those things concerning him, and the Pharisees and the chief priests sent officers

³³ that they might take him. Jesus therefore said,^x Yet a little while I am with you, and I go to him

³⁶ Greeks? What word is this which he said, Ye shall seek me and shall not find [me]; and where I am ye cannot come? In the last, the great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, If any one thirst, let him come to me

³⁸ and drink. He that believes on me, as the scripture has said, out of his belly shall flow rivers of

³⁹ living water. But this he said concerning the Spirit, which they that believed on him were about to receive; for [the] ^y Spirit was not yet, because Jesus had not yet been glorified. [Some]^z out of the crowd therefore, having heard this word, they said, This is truly ⁴² Has not the scripture said that the Christ comes of the seed of David, and from the village of Bethlehem, where David was?

⁴⁴ the crowd on account of him. But some of them desired to take him, but no one laid hands upon him.

Which of you convinces me of sin? ^qIf I speak truth, why do ye not believe me? He that is of God hears the words of God: therefore ye hear them not, because ye are not of God. The Jews^r answered and said to him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan and hast a demon? 40 Jesus answered, I have not a demon; but I honour my Father, and ye dishonour me. But I do not seek my own glory: there is 51 he that seeks and judges. Verily, verily, I say unto you, If anyone shall keep my word he shall never 52 see death. The Jews therefore^s said to him, Now we know that thou hast a demon. Abraham has died, and the prophets, and thou sayest, If anyone keep my word 53 he shall never taste death. ⁸ The neighbours therefore, and those who used to see him before, that he was a beggar,^a said, Is not this he that was sitting and

¹⁰ It is I. They said therefore to him, How^d have thine eyes been ¹² They said to him, Where is he?^c He says, I do not know.

¹⁵ The Pharisees therefore also again asked him how he received his sight. And he said to them, He put mud upon my eyes, and I

¹⁷ among them. They say therefore^f again to the blind [man], What dost thou say of him, that he has opened thine eyes? And he said, ¹⁸ He is a prophet. The Jews therefore did not believe concerning him that he was blind and had received sight, until they had called the parents of him that had

²¹ blind; but how he now sees we do not know, or who has opened his eyes we do not know. He^g is of age: ask him;^h he^g will speak concerning himself. His parents said these things because they feared the Jews, for the Jews had already agreed that if anyone confessed him [to be the] Christ, he should be excommunicated from the syna-²³ gogue. On this account his parents ²⁴ said, He is of age: ask him.^h They called therefore a second time the man who had been blind, and said to him, Give glory to God; we and said to them, Now in this is a wonderful thing, that ye do not know whence he is, and he has 31 opened mine eyes. But^m we know that God does not hear sinners; but if any man be Godfearing and 32 do his will, him he hears. Since time was, it has not been heard that anyone opened the eyes of 33 one born blind. If this [man] were not of God he would be able 34 to do nothing. They answered and said to him, Thou^r hast been wholly born in sins, and thou^r teachest us? And they cast him 35 out. Jesus heard that they had cast him out, and having found him, he said to him, Thou, dost thou believe on the Son of God?

 36 Heⁿ answered and said, ° Who is he, Lord, that I may believe on 37 him? Jesus said to him, Thou hast both seen him, and he that 38 speaks with thee is he. And he said, I believe, Lord: and he did 39 him homage. And Jesus said, For judgment am I^r come into this world, that they which see not 40 become blind. And some of the Pharisees who were with him heard these things, and they said to him, 41 Are we^r blind also? Jesus said to them, If ye were blind ye would not have sin; but now ye say, We see, your sin^p remains. (X.) Verily, verily, I say to you, He that enters not in by the door to the fold of the sheep, but mounts up elsewhere, heⁿ is

2 a thief and a robber; but he that enters in by the door is [the] shepherd of the sheep. To him the porter opens; and the sheep hear his voice; and he calls his own sheep by name, and leads them
 4 out. ¶ When he has put forth all his own, he goes before them, and the sheep follow him, because 5 they know his voice. But they will not follow a stranger, but will flee from him, because they know 6 not the voice of strangers. This allegory spake Jesus to them, but theyⁿ did not know what it was 7 [of] which he spoke to them. Jesus therefore said again to them, Verily, verily, I say to you, I^r am

 9 not hear them. I^r am the door: if anyone enter in by me, he shall be saved, and shall go in and shall

I am the good shepherd; and I know those that are mine, and am known of ¹⁵ those that are mine,* as the Father knows me and I know the Father; and I lay down my life ¹⁶ for the sheep. And I have other sheep which are not of this fold; those also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one flock, one shepherd. ¹⁷ On this account the Father loves me, because I lay down my life ¹⁸ that I may take it again. No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have authority† to lay it down and I have authority to take it again. I have received this commandment of my Father. ¹⁹ There was a division‡ again among the Jews on account of these ²⁰ words; but many of them said, He has a demon and raves; why ²¹ do ye hear him? Others said, These sayings are not [those] of one that is possessed by a demon. Can a demon open blind people's ²² eyes? And the feast of the dedication was celebrating at Jerusalem, and it was winter. And Jesus ²³ walked in the temple in the porch of Solomon. The Jews therefore ²⁴ surrounded him, and said to him, Until when dost thou hold our soul in suspense? The Jews therefore again took stones that they might stone [him]. ³² Jesus answered them, Many good works have I shewn you of my Father; for which work of them ³³ do ye stone me? The Jews answered him, For a good work we stone thee not, but for blasphemy, and because thou, being a man, ³⁴ makest thyself God. XI. But there was a certain [man] sick, Lazarus of Bethany, of the village of Mary and Martha her ² sister. It was ³ [the] Mary who anointed the Lord with ointment and wiped his feet with her hair, whose brother Lazarus was sick. ⁴ His sisters therefore sent to him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom ⁵ thou lovest is sick. But when Jesus heard [it], he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of ⁶ God may be glorified by it. Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, ⁷ and Lazarus. When therefore he heard, he is sick, he remained two days then in the place where ⁸ he was. Then, after this, he saith to his ⁹ disciples, Let us go into Judæa again. The disciples say to him, Rabbi, [even but] now the Jews sought to stone thee, and ¹⁰ goest thou thither again? Jesus answered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If anyone walk in the day he does not stumble, because he sees the light of this ¹¹ world; but if anyone walk in the night he stumbles, because the ¹² light is not in him. These things said he; and after this he says to them, Lazarus, our friend, is fallen asleep; but I go that I may awake ¹³ him out of sleep. The ¹⁴ disciples therefore said to him, Lord, if he be fallen asleep he will get well. But Jesus spoke of his death, but they ^b thought that he spoke ^c of the rest of sleep. Jesus therefore then said to them plainly, Lazarus ¹⁵ has died. And I rejoice on your account that I was not there, in order that ye may believe. But ¹⁶ let us go to him. Thomas therefore, called Didymus, ^d said to his fellow disciples, Let us also go that we may die with him.

¹⁷ Jesus therefore [on] arriving found him to have been four days already in the tomb. Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about fifteen ¹⁸ stadia off, and many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary that they might console them concerning ¹⁹ their brother. Martha then, when she heard, Jesus is coming, went to him; but Mary sat in the ²⁰ house. Martha therefore said to Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died; ²¹ but ^e even now I know, that whatsoever thou shalt ask ^f of God, God ²² will give thee. Jesus saith to her, Thy brother shall rise again. ²³ Martha says to him, I know that he will rise again in the resurrection in the last day. Jesus said to her, I am the resurrection and the life: he that believes on me, ²⁴ though he have died, shall live; ²⁵ and every one who lives and believes on me shall never die. ²⁶ Believest thou this? She says to him, Yea, Lord; I believe that ²⁷ thou art the Christ, the Son of God, who should come into the ²⁸ world. And having said this, she went away and called her sister Mary secretly, saying, The teacher ²⁹ is come and calls thee. She, when she heard [that], rises up ³⁰ quickly and comes to him. Now Jesus had not yet come into the village, but was in the place where ³¹ Martha came to meet him. The Jews therefore who were with her in the house and consoling her, seeing Mary that she rose up quickly and went out, followed her, saying, She goes to the tomb ³² that she may weep there. Mary therefore, when she came where Jesus was, seeing him, fell at his feet, saying to him, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had ³³ not died. Jesus therefore, when he saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her weeping, was deeply moved^h in spirit, and was ³⁴ troubled,ⁱ and said, Where have ye put him? They say to him, ³⁵ Lord, come and see. Jesus wept. ³⁶ The Jews therefore said, Behold ³⁷ how he loved him! And some of them said, Could not this man, who has opened the eyes of the blind [man], have caused that this [man] also should not have ³⁸ died? Jesus therefore again deeply moved^j in himself comes to the tomb. It was a cave, and a ³⁹ stone lay upon it. Jesus saith, Take away the stone. Martha, the sister of the dead, says to him, Lord, he stinks already, for ⁴⁰ he is four days [there]. Jesus saith to her, Did I not say to thee that if thou shouldst believe thou shouldst see the glory of God? ⁴¹ They took therefore the stone away.^k And Jesus lifted up his eyes on high and said, Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard ⁴² me; but I knew that thou always hearest me; but on account of the crowd who stand around I have said [it,] that they may believe that ⁴³ thou hast sent me. And having said this he cried with a loud ⁴⁴ voice, Lazarus, come forth. And the dead came forth, bound feet and hands with graveclothes, and his face was bound round with a handkerchief. Jesus saith to them, Loose him and let him go. ⁴⁵ Many therefore of the Jews who came to Mary and saw what he^l ⁴⁶ had done, believed on him; but some of them went to the Pharisees and told them what Jesus ⁴⁷ had done. The chief priests therefore and the Pharisees gathered a council, and said, What do we? for ⁱ Or 'groaned.' I am not satisfied with 'deeply moved,' nor can I accept the interpretations of those who insist on the sense drawn from the classical use of ἐμβριόσμαι, found also in the Gospels (Matt. ix. 30; Mark i. 43; xiv. 5). It is originally 'snorting.' But here, as within in spirit, it is not the expression of anger. It was the feeling produced by the deep pain caused by seeing the power of death over the human spirit. There was so far indignation that there was deep antagonism to the power of evil and Satan in death. The fathers (see Suicer), with many moderns, understand it as repres-

ing what was passing in his own spirit, restraining himself. But then it would be reproving himself, which cannot be, and does not suit with ἐν ἑαυτῷ, verse 38. Lucian is quoted for 'groaning.' It may be 'groaned' is the best word. Epiphanius attributes ἐμβριόσμαι to the Lord as a proof of his humanity, along with other subjective feeling. Vol. i. 1002. Compare the use of analogous words in Hebrew in Gen. xl. 6; 1 Sam. xv. 11.

48 this man does many signs. If we let him thus alone all will believe on him, and the Romans will come and will take away both our 40 place and our nation. But a certain one of them, Caiaphas, being high priest that year, said to them, 50 Ye know nothing, nor consider that it is profitable for us that one man die for the people, and not 51 that the whole nation perish. But this he did not say of himself; but, being high priest that year, prophesied that Jesus was going 52 to die for the nation; and not for the nation only, but that he should also gather together into one the children of God who were scattered abroad. From that day 53 therefore they took counsel that they might kill him. Jesus therefore 54 walked no longer openly among the Jews, but went away thence into a country near the desert, to a city called Ephraim, and there he sojourned with his^m disciples.
 55 But the passover of the Jews was near, and many went up to Jerusalem out of the country before the passover, that they might 56 purify themselves. They sought therefore Jesus, and said among themselves, standing in the temple, What do ye think? that he will

57 not come to the feast? Nowⁿ the chief priests and the Pharisees had given commandment^o that if any one knew where he was^p he should make it known, that they might take him.

XII. Jesus therefore, six days before the passover came to Bethany, where was the dead [man] Lazarus, whom he raised from among [the]
 2 dead. There therefore they made him a supper, and Martha served, but Lazarus was one of those at 3 table with him. Mary therefore, having taken a pound of ointment of pure^q nard of great price, anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair, and the house was filled with the odour
 4 of the ointment. One of his disciples therefore, Judas [son] of Simon, Iscariote, who was about 5 to deliver him up, says, Why was this ointment not sold for three hundred pence and given to the 6 poor? But he said this, not that he cared for the poor, but because he was a thief and had the bag, and carried what was put into [it].
 7 Jesus therefore said, Suffer her to have kept this for the day of my 8 preparation for burial:^r for ye have the poor always with you, knew that he was^a there ; and they came, not because of Jesus only, but also that they might see Lazarus whom he raised from among ¹⁰ [the] dead. But the chief priests took counsel that they might kill ¹¹ Lazarus also, because many of the Jews went away on his account

¹² and believed on Jesus. On the morrow a great crowd who came to the feast, having heard that Jesus is coming into Jerusalem, ¹³ took branches of palms and went out to meet him, and cried, Hosanna, blessed [is] he that comes in the name of [the] Lord, the ¹⁴ king of Israel. And Jesus having found a young ass, sat upon it, as ¹⁵ it is written, Fear not, daughter of Zion : behold, thy king cometh, sitting on an ass's colt. Now^t his disciples knew not these things at the first ; but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written of him, and that they had done these ¹⁷ things to him. The crowd therefore that was with him bore witness because^u he had called Lazarus out of the tomb, and raised him ¹⁸ from among [the] dead. Therefore also the crowd met him because they had heard that he had done this sign. The Pharisees therefore said to one another, Ye see that ye profit nothing ; behold, the world is gone after him.
²⁰ And there were certain Greeks among those who came up that they might worship^v in the feast ;
²¹ these therefore came to Philip, who was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and they asked him, saying, Sir, we ²² desire to see Jesus. Philip comes and tells Andrew, and again Andrew comes and Philip, and they^w ²³ tell Jesus. But Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come that the Son of man should be ²⁴ glorified. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except the grain of wheat falling into the ground die, it abides alone ; but if it die, it ²⁵ bears much fruit. He that loves his life shall lose it, and he that hates his life in this world shall ²⁶ keep it to life eternal. If any one serve me, let him follow me ; and where I^x am, there also shall be my servant. And if any one serve me, him shall my Father honour.

²⁷ Now is my soul troubled, and what shall I say ? Father, save me from this hour. But on account of this I have come to this ²⁸ hour. Father, glorify thy name. There came therefore a voice from heaven, I both have glorified and ²⁹ will glorify [it] again. The crowd therefore which stood [there] and heard [it] said that it had thundered. Others said, An angel has ³⁰ spoken to him. Jesus answered and said, Not on my account has this voice come, but on yours.
³¹ Now is [the] judgment of this world ; now shall the prince of this world be cast out : and I^y if I be lifted up out of the earth will

²¹ Having said these things, Jesus was troubled in spirit, and testified and said, Verily, verily, I say to you, that one of you shall deliver me up. The disciples therefore looked one on another, doubting ²² of whom he spoke. But there was at table one of his disciples, in the bosom of Jesus,

it is to whom I, after I have dipped the morsel, give it. And having dipped the morsel, he gives it to Judas [the son] of Simon, Iscariote. And, after the morsel, then entered Satan into him.²⁷ Jesus therefore says to him, What thou doest, do quickly. But none of those at table knew why he said this to him; but some supposed because Judas had the bag that Jesus was saying to him, Buy the things of which we have need for the feast; or that he should give something to the poor. Having therefore received the morsel, he²⁸ went out immediately; and it was night.²⁹

When therefore he was gone out Jesus saith, Now is³⁰ the Son of man glorified, and God is³¹ glorified in him. If God be³² glorified in him, God also shall glorify him in himself, and shall glorify him immediately. Children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me; and, as I said to the Jews, Where I go ye cannot come, I say to you also now.³³

A new commandment I give to you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all know that ye are disciples of mine, if ye have love amongst yourselves. Simon Peter says to him, Lord, where goest thou? Jesus answered him, Where I go thou canst not follow me now, but thou shalt follow me after.³⁴

Peter says to him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay³⁵ down my life for thee. Jesus answers,³⁶ Thou wilt lay down thy life for me! Verily, verily, I say to thee, The cock shall not crow till thou hast denied me thrice.

XIV. Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe on God, believe³⁷ also on me. And ye know where I go, and ye know the way.⁴⁰

Thomas says to him, Lord, we know not where thou goest, and⁴¹ how can we know the way? Jesus saith to him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes⁴² to the Father unless by me. If ye had known me ye would have known also my Father, and henceforth ye know him and have⁴³ seen him. Philip says to him, Lord, shew us the Father and it⁴⁴ suffices us. Jesus saith to him, Am I so long a time with you, and thou hast not known me, Philip? He that has seen me has seen the Father; and how sayest thou,⁴⁵ Shew us the Father? ¹² Verily, verily, I say to you, He that believes on me, the works which I do shall he do also, and he shall do greater than these, because I go to the¹³ Father. And whatsoever ye shall ask¹⁴ in my name this will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it. If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will beg¹⁵ the Father, and he will give you another Comforter¹⁶ that he may be¹⁷ with you for ever, the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it does not see him nor know him; but¹⁸ ye know him, for he abides with you, and shall be in you. I will not leave you orphans, I am coming to you.

²⁰ In that day ye shall know that I [am] in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you. He that has my commandments and keeps them, he it is that loves me; but he that loves me shall be loved by my Father, and I will love him and²¹ manifest myself to him. Judas, not the Iscariote, says to him, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself to us and not to the world? Jesus answered and said to him, If any one love me, he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our abode²² with him. He that loves me not does not keep my words; and the word which ye hear is not mine, but [that] of the Father who has sent me. These things I have said to you, abiding with you; but the Comforter, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he²³ shall teach you all things, and will bring to your remembrance all the things which I have said to you. I leave peace with you; I give my peace to you; not as the world gives do I give to you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it fear.

²⁴ Ye have heard that I have said unto you, I go away and I am coming to you. If ye loved me ye would rejoice that I go to the Father, for my Father is greater than I. And now I have told you before it comes to pass, that when it shall have come to pass ye may believe. I will no longer speak much with you, for the ruler of the²⁵ world comes, and in me he has nothing; but that the world may know that I love the Father,

² It is to be remarked here, as noticed by others, that two words are used for asking or demanding, αἰτέω and ῥωτάω; the latter familiar, the former supplicatory. The former is never used of Christ with the Father, save by Martha as to God, which confirms this view of the word. Both words are used of the disciples with Christ; only the former of the disciples with the Father. Here ῥωτάω.

³ I have used the word 'Comforter' for want of a better. It is one who carries on the cause of any one and helps them. This Christ did on earth; this (1 John ii) he does now in heaven, and the Holy Ghost on earth: 'manages our cause, our affairs, for us.' If 'solicitor' were not too common, it just answers the sense.

³ more fruit. Ye are already clean by reason of the word which I

⁴ have spoken to you. Abide in me and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself unless it abide in the vine, thus neither

⁵ [can] ye unless ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches. He that abides in me and I in him, he^z bears much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing.

⁶ Unless any one abide in me, he is cast out as the branch, and is dried up; and they gather them and cast them into the fire, and they are burned.

⁷ If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall come to pass to

⁸ you. In this is my Father glorified that^a ye bear much fruit, and ye shall become disciples of mine.

⁹ As the Father hath loved me I also have loved you: abide in my

¹⁰ love. If ye shall keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love, as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his

¹¹ love. I have spoken these things to you that my joy may be^b in ¹² you, and your joy be full. This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you.

¹³ No one has greater love than this, that one should lay down his life

¹⁴ for his friends. Ye are my friends if ye practise whatever I com-

¹⁵ mand you. I call you no longer bondsmen, for the bondsman does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you friends, for all things which I have heard of my Father I have ¹⁶ made known to you. Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and have set you that ye should go and that ye should bear fruit, and that your fruit should abide, that whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name he may give

¹⁷ you. These things I command

¹⁸ you, that ye love one another. If the world hate you, know^c that it

¹⁹ has hated me before you. If ye were of the world, the world would love its own; but because ye are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world, on account of this the world hates

²⁰ you. Remember the word which I said unto you, The bondsman is not greater than his master. If they have persecuted me they will also persecute you; if they have kept my word they will keep also ²¹ yours. But they will do all these things to you on account of my raean. Jesus saith to them, I am he. And Judas also, who delivered him up, stood with 6 them. When therefore he said to them, I am he, they went away backward and fell to the ground. 7 He demanded of them therefore again, Whom seek ye? And they 8 said, Jesus the Nazaraean. Jesus answered, I told you that I am he. If therefore ye seek me, let 9 these go away; that the word might be fulfilled which he spake, As to those which thou hast given me, I have not lost one of them. 10 Simon Peter therefore, having a sword, drew it, and smote the bondsman of the high priest, and cut off his right ear; and the bondsman's name was Malchus. 11 Jesus therefore said to Peter, Put the sword into the sheath; the cup which the Father has given me, shall I not drink it? 12 The band therefore, and the chiliarch, and the officers of the Jews, took Jesus and bound him; 13 and they led him away to Annas first; for he was father-in-law to Caiaphas, who was high priest 14 that year. But it was Caiaphas who counselled the Jews that it was better that one man should 15 perish^s for the people. Now Simon Peter followed Jesus, and the other disciple. disciple therefore, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the portress and brought ¹⁷ in Peter. The maid therefore, who [was] portress, says to Peter, Art thou also of the disciples of this man? He^t says, I am not. ¹⁸ But the bondsmen and officers, having made a fire of coals (for it was cold), stood and warmed themselves; and Peter was standing with them and warming himself. ¹⁹ The high priest therefore demanded of Jesus concerning his disciples and concerning his doctrine. Jesus answered him, I spoke openly to the world; I taught always in the synagogue and in the temple, where all the Jews^u come together, and in secret ²¹ I have said nothing. Why demandest thou of me? Demand of those who have heard, what I have said to them; behold, they know what ²³ I have said. But as he said these things, one of the officers who stood by gave a blow on the face to Jesus, saying, Answerest thou the high priest thus? Jesus answered him, If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil; but if well, why smitest thou me? ²⁴ Annas, then, had sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest. ²⁵ But Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said therefore to him, Art thou also of his disciples? He^t denied, and ²⁶ said, I am not. ²⁸ They lead therefore Jesus from Caiaphas to the prætorium; and it was early morn. And they entered not into the prætorium, that they might not be defiled, but^v ²⁹ eat the passover. Pilate therefore went out to them and said, What accusation do ye bring against this man? They answered and said to him, If this [man] were not an evildoer we should not have delivered him up to thee. ³¹ Pilate therefore said to them, Take him, ye, and judge him according to your law. The Jews therefore said to him, It is not permitted to us to put any one to death; that ³² the word of Jesus might be fulfilled which he spake signifying ³³ what death he should die. Pilate therefore entered again into the prætorium and called Jesus, and said to him, Thou art the king of the Jews? Jesus answered him, ³⁴ Dost thou say this of thyself, or have others said it to thee concerning me? Pilate answered, ³⁵ Am I a Jew? Thy nation and the chief priests have delivered thee up to me: what hast thou ³⁶ done? Jesus answered, My kingdom is not of this world; if my kingdom were of this world, my servants had fought that I might not be delivered up to the Jews; but now my kingdom is not from ³⁷ hence. Pilate therefore said to him, Thou art then a king? Jesus answered, Thou sayest [it], that I am a king. I have been born for this, and for this I Pilate says to them, Take him ye and crucify [him], for I find no ⁷ fault in him. The Jews answered him, We have a law, and according to our law he ought to die, because he made himself Son of God.

²² name, because they have not known him that has sent me. If I had not come and spoken to them they had not had sin; but now they have no excuse for their

Jesus having said these things, went out with his disciples beyond the torrent Cedron, where was a garden, into which he entered, he^q and his disciples. And Judas also, who delivered him up, knew the place, because Jesus was often there in company with his 3 disciples. Judas therefore, having got the band, and officers of the chief priests and Pharisees, comes there with lanterns, and torches, 4 and weapons. Jesus therefore, knowing all things that were coming upon him, went forth and said 5 to them, Whom seek ye? They answered him, Jesus the Naza-

JOHN XIX.

- skull, which is in Hebrew called ¹⁸ Golgotha; where they crucified him, and with him two others, [one] on this side, and [one] on that, and Jesus in the middle.
- ¹⁹ And Pilate wrote a title and put it on the cross. But there was written, Jesus the Nazaraean, the king ²⁰ of the Jews. This title therefore many of the Jews read, for the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city;^d and it was written in Hebrew, Greek,^e Latin.
- ²¹ The chief priests of the Jews therefore said to Pilate, Do not write, The king of the Jews, but that he said, I am the king of the ²² Jews. Pilate answered, What I ²³ have written I have written. The soldiers therefore, when they had crucified Jesus, took his clothes, and made four parts, to each soldier a part, and the vest; but the vest was seamless, woven through ²⁴ the whole from the top. They said therefore to one another, Let us not rend it, but let us cast lots for it, whose it shall be; that the scripture might be fulfilled which says, They parted my garments among themselves, and on my vesture they cast lots. The soldiers therefore did these things.
- ²⁵ And by the cross of Jesus stood his mother, and the sister of his mother, Mary the wife of Clopas, ²⁶ and Mary of Magdala. Jesus therefore, seeing his mother, and the disciple standing by whom he loved, says to his mother, Woman,
- ²⁷ behold thy Son. Then he saith unto the disciple, Behold thy mother. And from that hour the disciple ²⁸ took her to his own [home]. After this, Jesus, knowing that all things were now finished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, ²⁹ I thirst. There was a vessel therefore there full of vinegar, and having filled a sponge with vinegar, and putting hyssop round it,^f they put it up to his mouth.
- ³⁰ When therefore Jesus had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished; and having bowed his head he ³¹ delivered up his spirit. The Jews therefore, that the bodies might not remain on the cross on the sabbath, for it was [the] preparation, (for^g the day of that sabbath was a great [day],) demanded of Pilate that their legs might be ³² broken and they taken away. The soldiers therefore came and broke the legs of the first and of the other that had been crucified with ³³ him; but coming to Jesus, when they saw that he was already dead, ³⁴ they did not break his legs, but one of the soldiers pierced his side with a spear, and immediately there came out blood and water.
- ³⁵ And he who saw it bears^h witness, and his witness is true, and heⁱ knows that he says true that ye ³⁶ also^j may believe. For these things took place that the scripture might be fulfilled, Not a ³⁷ bone of him shall be broken. And again another scripture says,

^d Or 'the place of the city where Jesus was crucified was near.'

They shall look on him whom they pierced.

38 And after these things Joseph of Arimathea, who was a disciple of Jesus, but secretly through fear of the Jews, demanded of Pilate that he might take the body of Jesus: and Pilate allowed it. He came therefore and took away the 39 body of Jesus. And Nicodemus also, who at first came to Jesus by night, came, bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds weight. They took 40 therefore the body of Jesus and bound it up in linen with spices, as it is the custom with the Jews to prepare for burial.]

41 But there was in the place where he had been crucified a garden, and in the garden a new tomb in which 42 no one had ever been laid. There therefore, on account of the preparation of the Jews, because the tomb was near, they laid Jesus. (XX.) And on the first day of the week Mary of Magdala comes, in early morn, to the tomb, while it was still dark, and sees the stone
3 taken away from the tomb. She runs therefore and comes to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple to whom Jesus was attached, and says to them, They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have 8 laid him. Peter therefore went forth and the other disciple, and 4 came to the tomb. And the two ran together, and the other disciple ran forward faster than Peter, and came first to the sepulchre,

5 and stooping down he sees the linen cloths lying; he did not how-
6 ever go in. Simon Peter therefore comes, following him, and entered into the tomb, and sees 7 the linen cloths lying, and the handkerchief which was upon his head not lying with the linen cloths, but folded up in a distinct 8 place by itself. Then entered in therefore the other disciple also who came first to the tomb, and 9 he saw and believed; for they had not yet known the scripture, that he must rise from among [the]
10 dead. The disciples therefore went away again to their own
11 [home.] But Mary stood at the tomb weeping without. As therefore she wept, she stooped down 12 into the tomb, and beholds two angels sitting in white [garments], one at the head and one at the feet, where the body of Jesus had 13 lain. And they^k say to her, Woman, why dost thou weep? She says to them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid 14 him. ^lHaving said these things she turned backward and beholds Jesus standing [there], and knew 15 not that it was^m Jesus. Jesus says to her, Woman, why dost thou weep? Whom seekest thou? She supposing that it was^m the gardener, says to him, Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I 16 will take him away. Jesus says to her, Mary. She, turning round, says to him in Hebrew,ⁿ Rab-

 18 God and your God. Mary of Magdala comes bringing word to the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had said these 19 things to her. When it was evening on that day, [which was] the first day of the week, and the doors shut where the disciples were,^p through fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in the midst and saith to them, 20 Peace [be] to you. And having said this, he shewed to them his hands and his side. The disciples rejoiced therefore, having seen the 21 Lord. Jesus said therefore again to them, Peace [be] to you: as my Father sent me forth, I^r also send 22 you. And having said this he breathed into [them], and saith to them, Receive [the] Holy Spirit:
 23 whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted to them; whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained.
 24 But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus,^q was not with 25 them when Jesus came. The other disciples therefore said to him, We have seen the Lord. But he said to them, Unless I see in his hands the mark of the nails, and put my finger into the mark of the nails, and put my hand into 26 his side, I will not believe. And eight days after his disciples were again within, and Thomas with them. Jesus comes, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst 27 and said, Peace [be] to you. Then he says to Thomas, Bring thy finger here, and see my hands; and bring thy hand and put it into my side; and be not unbelieving, but 28 believing. ^rThomas answered and said to him, My Lord and my God.

 29 Jesus saith to him, Because thou hast seen me^s thou hast believed: blessed they who have not seen and have believed.

30 Many other signs therefore also Jesus did before his disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life in his name.

XXI. After these things Jesus manifested himself again to the disciples at the sea of Tiberias. And he manifested himself thus.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael who was of Cana of Galilee, and the [sons] of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples.

⁶ And he said to them, Cast the net at the right side of the ship and ye will find. They cast therefore, and they could no longer draw it,

⁷ from the multitude of fishes. That disciple therefore whom Jesus loved says to Peter, It is the Lord. Simon Peter therefore, having heard that it was the Lord, girded his overcoat [on him] (for he was naked), and cast himself into the

⁸ sea; and the other disciples came in the small boat, for they were not far from the land, but somewhere about two hundred cubits,

⁹ dragging the net of fishes. When therefore they went out on the land, they see a fire of coals there, and fish laid on it, and bread.

¹⁰ Jesus says to them, Bring of the fishes which ye have now taken.

¹¹ Simon Peter went up and drew the net to the land full of great fishes, a hundred and fifty-three; and though there were so many,

¹² the net was not rent. Jesus saith to them, Come and dine. But none of the disciples dared inquire of him, Who art thou? ¹³ knowing it was the Lord. Jesus comes and takes the bread and gives it to them, and the

¹⁴ fish in like manner. This is already the third time that Jesus had been manifested to the disciples, being risen from among

thou me more than these? He says to him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I am attached to thee. He says to him, Feed my lambs. He says to him again the second time, Simon, son of Jonas, ¹⁷ lovest thou me? He says to him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I am attached to thee. He says to him, Shepherd my sheep. He says to him the third time, Simon, son of Jonas, ¹⁸ art thou attached to me? Peter was grieved because he said to him the third time, Art thou attached to me? and said to him, Lord, thou knowest^a all things; thou knowest^a that I am attached to thee. Jesus says to him, Feed my sheep. Verily, verily, I say to thee, When thou wast young thou girdedst thyself, and walkedst where thou desiredst; but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thy hands, and another shall gird thee, and bring thee where thou ¹⁹ dost not desire. But he said this signifying by what death he should glorify God. And having said this, he saith to him, Follow me.

I COMPOSED the first discourse, O Theophilus, concerning all things which Jesus began both to do and ² to teach, until that day in which, having by the Holy Spirit charged the apostles whom he had chosen, ³ he was taken up; ^a to whom also he presented himself living, after he had suffered, with many proofs; being seen by them during forty days, and speaking of the things which concern the kingdom of ⁴ God; and, being assembled with [them], commanded them not to depart from Jerusalem, but to await the promise of the Father, which [said he] ye have heard of ⁵ me. For John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit after ⁶ now not many days. They therefore, being come together, asked him, saying, Lord, is it at this time that thou restorest the kingdom ^b to Israel? And he said to

⁷ them, It is not yours to know times and seasons, which the Father has placed in his own ⁸ authority; ^c but ye will receive ^d power, the Holy Spirit having come upon you, and ye shall be my ^e witnesses both in Jerusalem and in all Judæa and Samaria, ⁹ and to the end of the earth.^f And having said these things he was taken up, they beholding him, and a cloud received him out of their sight.^g

¹⁰ And as they were gazing into heaven, as he was going, lo, also two men stood by them in white ¹¹ clothing, who also said, Men of Galilee, why do ye stand looking into heaven? ^a λαμβάνω has the sense of taking (more active) or receiving; but in general in the New Testament, ἀναλαμβάνω has the more active sense; always, unless Mark xvi. 19, 1 Tim. iii. 16, and this chapter, in all which it speaks of the ascension. where its force is 'taken up;'; δέχομαι is more passive reception.

Olives, which is near Jerusalem, a sabbath day's journey off. And when they were come into [the city], they went up to the upper chamber where were staying both Peter, and John, and James, and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James son of Alphæus, and Simon the zealot, and Jude [the brother] of James. These gave themselves all with one accord to continual prayer, with [several] women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren. And in those days Peter, standing up in the midst of the disciples,^h said, (the crowd of names [who were] together [was] about a hundred and twenty,) Brethren,ⁱ it was necessary that the scripture should have been fulfilled which the Holy Spirit spoke before, by the mouth of David, concerning Judas, who became guide to those who took Jesus; for he was numbered amongst^j us, and had received a part in this service. (This [man] then indeed got^k a field with [the]^l reward of iniquity, and, having fallen down headlong, burst in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out. And it was known to all the dwellers of Jerusalem, so that that field was called in their own^m dialect Aceldama; that is, field of blood.) For it is written in [the] book of Psalms, Let his homestead become desolate, and let there be no dweller in it; and, Let another take his overseership. It is necessary therefore that of the men who have assembled with us all [the] time in whichⁿ the Lord Jesus came in and went out^o among us, beginning from the baptism of John, until the day in which he was taken up from us, one of these should be a witness with us of his resurrection. And they appointed two, Joseph who was called Barsabas, who had been surnamed Justus, and Matthias. And they prayed, and said, Thou, Lord, knower of the hearts of all, shew which one of these two thou hast chosen, to receive the lot of this service and apostleship, from which Judas transgressing fell to go to his own place. And they gave lots on them,^p and the lot fell on Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

⁴ And they were all filled with [the] Holy Spirit, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit
⁵ gave to them to speak forth. Now there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, pious men, from every nation
⁶ of those under heaven. But the rumour of this having spread,^u the multitude came together and were confounded, because each one heard them speaking in his ⁷ own dialect. And all were amazed and wondered, saying,^v Behold, are not all these who are speaking

¹² And they were all amazed and in perplexity, saying one to another,

it is also used. I do not like the word 'blast,' it is too sudden and passing. 'Blowing' is the word, but a 'rushing blowing' does not do.

^v Or 'this voice having taken place.' In spite of De Wette and Alford, I believe what is in the text to be the sense. Kuinoel, accepted by Bloomfield and others, takes it as the loud voice of the speakers. But this is not φωνῆς, nor would it have spread over the city; nor would the sound of the mighty rushing wind over the city have brought them there. It was—happened—at the place which brought the crowd there; that is, it was not the mighty rushing wind being heard everywhere. The end of the verse goes to confirm this What struck those who came was hearing their own tongues. Alford says Gen. xiv. 16 and Jer. xxvii. (L.) 46 are no examples. Why not? The rumours of Jacob's coming spread to Pharaoh's house. Schleusner, who does not accept this sense, admits it as being right in Hebrew and Septuagint Greek.

^x διαχλευάζοντες, the reading of the best authorities and editors, is a stronger word than χλευάζοντες of T. R. Literally 'mocking.'

^z ἐπιφανῆ, in Hebrew ארר, 'terrible, wonderful.' But ἐπιφανής, though used for 'illustrious,' 'glorious,' has in it the sense of 'manifestation, appearing, displaying itself.' Compare Tit. ii. 11, 13.

ACTS II.

21 day of [the]^a Lord come. And it shall be that whoever shall call upon the name of [the] Lord shall 22 be saved. Men of Israel,^a hear these words: Jesus the Nazarean, a man borne witness to^b by God to you by works of power and wonders and signs, which God wrought by him in your midst, as 23 yourselves^c know—him, given up by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye,^d by [the] hand of lawless [men],^e have 24 crucified and slain. Whom God has raised up, having loosed the pains of death, inasmuch as it was not possible that he should be 25 held by its power; for David says as to him, I foresaw the Lord continually before me, because he is at my right hand that I may 26 not be moved. Therefore has my heart rejoiced and my tongue exulted; yea, more,^f my flesh also 27 shall dwell in hope, for thou wilt not leave my soul in hades, nor wilt thou give thy gracious^g one
 28 to see corruption. Thou hast made known to me [the] paths of life, thou wilt fill me with joy with thy countenance. Brethren,^h let it
 29 be allowed to speak with freedom to you concerning the patriarch David, that he has both died and been buried, and his monument is

30 amongst us unto this day. Being therefore a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn to him with an oath, of the fruit of his loinsⁱ
 31 to set upon his throne; he seeing [it] before spoke concerning the resurrection of the Christ,^j that^k neither has he been left in hades
 32 nor his flesh seen corruption. This Jesus has God raised up, whereof all 33 we are witnesses. Having therefore been exalted by the right hand of God, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured out this 34 which ye^l behold and hear. For David has not ascended into the heavens, but he says himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit at my 35 right hand until I have put thine enemies [to be] the footstool of 36 thy feet. Let the whole house of Israel therefore know assuredly that God has made him, this Jesus whom ye have crucified, both^m Lord and Christ.
 37 And having heard [it] they were pricked in heart, and said to Peter and the other apostles, What shall we do, brethren?ⁿ
 38 And Peter said to them, Repent, and be baptized, each one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for remission of^o sins, and ye will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.

^c ἀποδεδειγμένον, 'borne witness to, to you,' is not, I am aware, agreeable English; but 'approved,' in the modern use, at any rate, is not the sense; and 'among you' is feeble. The manifestation or demonstration was to the Jews. The witness was borne to them, objectively to Jesus as its subject.

And with many other words he testified and exhorted,^p saying, Be saved from ⁴¹ this perverse generation. Those then who had accepted^q his word were baptized; and there were added that day about three thou- ⁴³ sand souls. And they persevered in the teaching and fellowship of the apostles, ^r in breaking of ⁴³ bread and prayers. And fear was upon every soul, and many wonders and signs took place ⁴⁴ through the apostles' means. And all that believed were together, ⁴⁵ and had all things common, and sold their possessions and substance, and distributed them to all, according as any one might ⁴⁶ have need. And every day, being constantly in the temple with one accord, and breaking bread in [the] house, they received their food with gladness and simplicity of ⁴⁷ heart, praising God, and having favour with all the people; and the Lord added [to the assembly] ^a daily those that were to be saved. ^t is not this last here. It is the class of persons then God was saving. It is not a doubt as to their being saved, nor a state, but a class. Compare Luke xiii. 'Are the σωζόμενοι, that class, few?' So the English means there 'that be saved.' The Jews discussed this point much, as may be seen in Lightfoot and Schoetgen.

^u Cod. Sin. confirms the omission of ἐκκλησία, ii. 47, and reads πέτρος δέ: but as it is disputed, I have changed nothing. The sense is substantially the same. Ἐπί τὸ αὐτό is used as it is here. for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple, and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him. And as he^v held Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the portico which is called Solomon's, greatly wondering. And Peter seeing it, answered the people, Men of Israel,^w why are ye astonished at this? or why do ye gaze on us as if we had by our own power or piety made him to walk? The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his servant Jesus, whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the presence of Pilate, when he^x had judged that he should be let go. But ye denied the holy and righteous one, and demanded that a man [that was] a murderer should be granted to you; but the originator^y of life ye slew, whom God raised up from among [the] dead, whereof we are witnesses: and, by faith in his name, his name has made this man strong whom ye behold and know; and the faith which is by him has given him this complete soundness in the presence of you all. And now, brethren, I know that ye did it in ignorance, as also your rulers; but God has thus fulfilled what he had announced beforehand by the mouth of all the prophets, that his Christ^a should suffer. Repent therefore and be converted, for the blotting out of your sins, so that times of refreshing may come from [the] presence of the Lord, and he may send Jesus Christ, who was foreordained^a for you, whom heaven indeed must receive till [the] times of [the] restoring of all things, of which God has spoken by the mouth of^b his holy prophets since time began.^c Moses indeed^d said,^e A prophet shall [the] Lord your God raise up to you out of your brethren like me: him shall ye hear in everything whatever he shall say to you. And it shall be that whatsoever soul shall not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people. And indeed all the prophets from Samuel and those in succession after [him], as many as have spoken, have announced also these days. Ye are [the] sons of the prophets and of the covenant which God appointed to our fathers, saying to Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed. To you first God, having raised up his servant,^f has sent him, blessing you in turning each one [of you] from your wickedness.

IV. And as they were speaking to the people, the priests and captain of the temple^ε and the Sadducees came upon them, being distressed on account of their teaching the people and preaching by ^hJesus the resurrection from ⁱamongⁱ [the] dead; and they laid hands on them, and put them in ward till the morrow; for it was already evening.

⁵ And it came to pass on the morrow that their rulers and elders and scribes were gathered ⁶together at Jerusalem, and Annas the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of [the]^j high priestly family; and having placed them in the midst they inquired, In what power or in what name have ye ⁸done this? Then Peter, filled with [the]^k Holy Spirit, said to them, Rulers of the people and ⁹elders of Israel,^k if we this day are called on to answer as to the good deed [done] to the infirm ¹⁰man, how he has been cured, be it known to you all, and to all the people of Israel, that in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarean, whom ye have crucified, whom God has raised from among [the] dead, by him this [man] stands here ¹¹before you sound [in body]. He is the stone which has been set at nought by you the builders, which is become the head of the corner.

¹² And salvation is in none other, for neither is there another name under heaven which is given among men by which we must be saved.

¹³ But seeing the boldness of Peter and John, and perceiving that they were unlettered and uninstructed men, they wondered; and they recognized them that they were ¹⁴with Jesus. And^l beholding the man who had been healed stand with them, they had nothing to

¹⁵reply; but having commanded them to go out of the council they conferred with one another, saying, What shall we do to these

¹⁶men? for that indeed an evident sign has come to pass through their means is manifest to all that inhabit Jerusalem, and we cannot

¹⁷deny it. But that it be not further spread among the people, let us threaten them severely^m no longer to speak to any man in this

¹⁸name. And having called them, they charged [them]ⁿ not to speak at all nor teach in the name of ¹⁹Jesus. But Peter and John answering said to them, If it be righteous before God to listen to you rather than to God, judge ye;

²⁰for as for us, we cannot refrain^o from speaking of the things which

^m Literally 'with threat.' a Hebraism. Some leave it out, probably as a correction for better Greek.

ⁿ T. R. has 'them' in text.

²³ And having been let go they came to their own [company], and reported all that the chief priests ²⁴ and elders had said to them. And they having heard it, lifted up their voice with one accord to God, and said, Lord,^a thou art the God^o who made the heaven and the earth and the sea, and ²⁵ all that is in them; who hast said by the mouth of thy servant David,^p Why have [the] nations raged haughtily and [the] peoples ²⁶ meditated vain things? The kings of the earth were there, and the rulers were gathered together against the Lord and against his ²⁷ Christ. For in truth against thy holy servant Jesus, whom thou hadst anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with [the] nations, and peoples of Israel, have been gathered together in this ²⁸ city^q to do whatever thy hand and thy counsel had determined be- ²⁹ fore should come to pass. And now, Lord, look upon their threatenings, and give to thy bondsmen with all boldness to speak

³¹ And when they had prayed, the place in which they were assembled shook, and they were all filled with the^r Holy Spirit, and spoke the word of God with boldness.

³² And the heart and soul of the multitude of those that had believed were one, and not one said that anything of what he possessed was his own, but all things ³³ were common to them; and with great power did the apostles give witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was ³⁴ upon them all. For neither was there any one in want among them; for as many as were owners of lands or houses, selling them, brought the price of what was sold ³⁵ and laid it at the feet of the apostles; and distribution was made to each according as any one might have need.

^p I have left the T. B. The reading is uncertain, and, if read as in A, B, is, the translation is as difficult. 'Our father' is added to 'David,' and the words 'by the Holy Spirit.' One must say perhaps, 'who by the Holy Spirit (through the mouth of thy servant David our father), hast said.' So also It., Vul.

 himself part of the price, [his]^t wife also being privy to it; and having brought a certain part laid 3 it at the feet of the apostles. But Peter said, Ananias, why has Satan filled thy heart that thou shouldst lie to the Holy Spirit, and put aside for thyself a part of 4 the price of the estate? While it remained did it not remain to thee? and sold, was [it not] in thine own power? Why is it that thou hast purposed this thing in thine heart? Thou hast not lied to 5 men, but to God. And Ananias, hearing these words, fell down and expired. And great fear came 6 upon all who heard [it].^u And the young men, rising up, swathed him up for burial, and, having carried him out, buried him.
 7 And it came to pass about three hours afterwards, that his wife,
 not knowing what had happened,
 8 came in. And Peter answered her, Tell me if ye gave the estate for so much? And she said, Yes, for 9 so much. And Peter said to her,^v
 Why [is it] that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of [the] Lord? Lo, the feet of those that have buried thy husband [are] at the door, and they shall 10 carry thee out. And she fell down immediately at his feet and expired. And when the young men came in they found her dead; and, having carried her out, they buried her by her husband.

11 And great fear came upon all the assembly, and upon all who 12 heard these things. And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders done among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch, 13 but of the rest durst no man join them, but the people magnified 14 them; and believers were more than ever added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women;) ¹⁵
 so that they brought out the sick into the streets and put [them] on beds and couches, that at least the shadow of Peter, when he came, might overshadow some one of 16 them. And the multitude also of the cities round about came together to^w Jerusalem, bringing sick persons and persons beset by unclean spirits, who were all healed.
 17 And the high priest rising up,
 and all they that were^x with him,
 which is the sect of the Saddu-18 cees, were filled with wrath, and laid^y hands on the apostles and put them in the public prison.
 19 But an angel of [the] Lord during the night opened the doors of the prison, and, leading them out, said, 20 Go ye and stand and speak in the temple to the people all the words 21 of this life. And when they heard it, they entered very early into the temple and taught. And when the high priest was come, and

Israel, and sent to the prison to 22 have them brought. And when the officers were come, they did not find them in the prison; and 23 returned and reported, saying, We found the prison^y shut with all security, and the keepers^z standing at^z the doors; but when we had opened [them], within we found 24 no one. And when they heard these words, both the priest^a and the captain of the temple and the chief priests were in perplexity as to them, what this would come to.
 25 And a certain person coming reported to them,^b Lo, the men whom ye put in the prison are in the temple, standing and teaching the people.
 26 Then the captain, having gone with the officers, brought them, not with violence, for they feared 27 the people, lest they should be stoned.^c And they bring them and set them in the council.
 28 And the high priest asked them, saying,^d We strictly enjoined
 you not to teach in this name:
 and, lo, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and purpose to bring upon us the blood of this 29 man. But Peter answering, and the apostles, said, God must be 30 obeyed rather than men. The God of our fathers has raised up Jesus, whom ye have slain, having 31 hanged on a cross.^e Him has God exalted by his right hand as leader and saviour, to give repentance to 32 Israel and remission of sins. And we are his witnesses of these things, and the Holy Spirit also, which God has given to those that 33 obey him. But they, when they had heard [these things], were cut to the heart, and took counsel to 34 kill them. But a certain [man], a Pharisee, named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, held in honour of all the people, rose up in the council, and commanded to put the apostles^f out for a short while, 35 and said to them, Ye Israelites,^g take heed to yourselves as regards these men what ye are going to do; for before these days Theudas rose up, alleging himself to be somebody, to whom a number of men, about four hundred, were joined; who was slain, and all, as many as obeyed him, were dis-37 persed and came to nothing. After him rose Judas the Galilean in the days of the census, and drew away [a number^h of] people after him; and he perished, and all, as many as obeyed him, were scat-38 tered abroad. And now I say to you, Withdraw from these men and let them alone, for if this counsel or this work have its origin from men, it will be destroyed; 39 but if it be from God, ye will not be able to put themⁱ down, lest ye be found also fighters against God.

⁴⁰ And they listened to his advice ; and having called the apostles, they beat them, and enjoined them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and ⁴¹ dismissed them. They therefore went their way from [the] presence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to be ⁴² honoured for the^j name. And every day, in the temple and in the houses, they ceased not teaching and announcing the glad tidings that Jesus [was] the Christ.^k

VI. But in those days, the disciples multiplying in number, there arose a murmuring of the Hellenists against the Hebrews because their widows were overlooked in ² the daily ministrations. And the twelve, having called the multitude of the disciples to [them], said, It is not right^l that we, leaving the word of God, should ³ serve tables. Look out therefore, brethren, from among yourselves seven men, well reported of, full of [the] Holy Spirit and wisdom, whom we will^m establish over this ⁴ business ; but we will give ourselves up to prayer and the ministrations of the word. And the saying pleased the whole multitude : and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and [the] Holy Spirit, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas, a proselyte of Antioch, whom they set before the apostles ; and, having prayed, they ⁷ laid their hands on them. And the word of God increased, and the number of the disciples in Jerusalem was very greatly multiplied, and a great crowd of the priests obeyed the faith.

⁸ And Stephen, full of graceⁿ and power, wrought wonders and great signs^o among the people. ⁹ And there arose up certain of those of the synagogue called of freedmen,^p and of Cyrenians, and of Alexandrians, and of those of Cilicia and Asia, disputing with ¹⁰ Stephen. And they were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit ¹¹ with^q which he spoke. Then they suborned men, saying, We have heard him speaking blasphemous words against Moses and God. ¹² And they roused the people, and the elders, and the scribes. ^l De Wette and Alford, after Meyer and others, reject this sense of ἀρεστόν, alleging that the use of it in the LXX is always with אֲנִי : but it is largely used there for אַחֲרַי, coming after ; and even if אֲנִי is referred to 'in God's sight,' still אֲנִי has its own sense. Chrysostom gives it the sense of ἀρεστός (Hom. xiv. on Acts), however, it is only the general idea he expressed by it. I apprehend therefore 'right,' 'proper,' is the sense ; not merely that it did not please the apostles. Pleasing to God, I understand ; but when used for man it is arbitrary, as to Sarah,

^p Some would translate this as a proper name referring to Libertum, a city in Africa. The two other words seem to favour this. If λεγομένων refers only to Λιβερτινῶν, as Alford supposes, that would tend to confirm the meaning of 'freedmen.'

^q Or 'by'; the Holy Spirit, but seen as in Stephen, that by which he spoke. As remarked by many, 'which' refers grammatically to Spirit, but in sense to wisdom and Spirit both.

And all who sat in the council, looking fixedly on him, saw his face as [the] face of an angel.

VII. And the high priest said, Are these things then^a so? And he said, Brethren and fathers,^b hearken. The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Charran, and said to him, Go out of thy land and out of thy kindred, and come into the^c land which I will shew thee. Then going out of the land of the Chaldeans he dwelt in Charran, and thence, after his father died, he removed him into this land in which ye now dwell. And he did not give him an inheritance in it, not even what his foot could stand on; and promised to give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when he had no child. And God spoke thus: His seed shall be a sojourner in a strange land, and they shall enslave them^d and evil entreat [them] four hundred years; and the nation to which they shall be in bondage will I judge, said God; and after these things they shall come forth and serve me in this place. And he gave to him [the] covenant of circumcision; and thus he begat Isaac and circumcised [him] the eighth day; and Isaac Jacob, and Jacob the twelve patriarchs. And the patriarchs, envying Joseph, sold him away into Egypt. And God was with him, and delivered him out of all his tribulations, and gave him favour and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he appointed him chief over Egypt and all his house. But a famine came upon all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and great distress, and our fathers found no food. But Jacob, having heard of there being corn in Egypt, sent out our fathers first; and the second time Joseph was made known to his brethren, and the family of Joseph became known to Pharaoh. And Joseph sent and called down to him his father Jacob and all [his] kindred, seventy-five souls. And Jacob went down into Egypt and died, he and our fathers, and were carried over to Sychem and placed in the sepulchre which Abraham bought for a sum of money of the sons of Emmor the [father] of Sychem. But as the time of the promise drew near which God had promised^e to Abraham, the people increased and multiplied in Egypt, until another king over Egypt^f arose who did not know Joseph. ²⁸ words and deeds. And when a period of forty years was fulfilled to him, it came into his heart to look upon his brethren, the sons ²⁴ of Israel; and seeing a certain one wronged, he defended him, and avenged him that was being oppressed, having smitten the ²⁵ Egyptian. For he thought that his brethren would understand that God by his hand was giving them deliverance. But they under-²⁶ stood not. And on the morrow he shewed himself to them as they were contending, and compelled them to peace, saying, Ye^b are ²⁷ brethren,^c why do ye wrong one another? But he that was wrong-²⁸ ing his neighbour thrust him away, saying, Who established thee ruler and judge over us? Dost thou wish

^b T. R. has ὑμεῖς, i. e., emphasis on 'ye.'

^c I have here, as in other places, omitted 'men,' which is a Hebraism and cannot be rightly expressed in English. 'Men, brethren, and fathers,' ver. 2, gives three classes in English, which is not meant. It is, 'ye men who are [my] brethren and fathers:' so here 'ye are men brethren.'

^e The sentence without the article is much more emphatic, as John the Baptist says φωνῇ βοῶντος. It is a kind of solemn title. Κύριος is very often used in the New Testament without the article as a name answering to Jehovah, following the LXX: so here. It thus becomes confounded with the title of Christ. It amounts to 'there came an utterance of Jehovah.'

^f T. R. adds 'to him.'

^g T. R. repeats 'the God.'

^h ἐξέλθεσθαι, middle voice. It has the sense of 'taking to or for oneself,' not merely deliverance as by removing the scourge, but by taking the people.

the Red Sea, and in the wilderness 87 forty years. This is the Moses who said to the sons of Israel, A prophet shall [the] Lord^j God raise up to you out of your brethren like me [him shall ye 38 hear].^k This is he who was in the assembly in the wilderness, with the angel who spoke to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers ;
 who received living oracles to give 39 to us ; to whom our fathers would not be subject, but thrust [him]
 from them, and in their hearts 40 turned back to Egypt, saying to Aaron, Make us gods who shall go before us ; for this Moses, who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we know not what has 41 happened to him. And they made a calf in those days, and offered sacrifice to the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.
 42 But God turned and delivered them up to serve the host of heaven ; as it is written in [the] book of the prophets, Have ye offered me victims and sacrifices forty years in the wilderness, O 43 house of Israel? Yea,^l ye took up the tent of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, the forms which ye made to do homage to them ; and I will transport you 44 beyond Babylon. Our fathers^m had the tent of the testimony in the wilderness, as he that spoke to Moses commanded to make it according to the model which he 45 had seen ; which also our fathers, receiving from their predecessors, brought in with Joshua when they entered into possessionⁿ of [the lands] of the nations, whom God drove out from [the] face of our fathers, until the days of David ; 46 who found favour before God, and asked to find a tabernacle for the 47 God of Jacob ; but Solomon built 48 him a house. But the Most High dwells not in [places]^o made with 49 hands ; as says the prophet, The heaven [is] my throne and the earth the footstool of my feet : what house will ye build me? saith [the] Lord, or where [is the] place of my 50 rest? has not my hand made all 51 these things? O stiffnecked and uncircumcised in heart^p and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Spirit ; 52 as your fathers, ye also. Which of the prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain those who announced beforehand concerning the coming of the Just One, of whom ye have now become deliverers up and mur-53 derers! who have received the law as ordained^q by [the] ministry of angels, and have not kept [it].

 54 And hearing these things they were out to the heart, and gnashed 55 their teeth against him ; but being full of the Holy Spirit, having fixed

^j T. R. adds 'your.' Some leave out 'Lord' too.

^k These words are doubtful, added to complete the quotation.

^l This is quoted from the LXX, but the καί I have translated 'yea' is a simple reproduction of the Hebrew ו, which means many things beside 'and.' 'It is not to me ye offered them, but,' or 'ye did not such thing, and took up ;' 'nay, but' may serve to give its force.

^m T. R. reads 'the tent of the testimony was in the midst of our fathers,' ἐν.

his eyes on heaven, he saw [the] glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God, and said, Lo, I behold the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing at the right hand of God. And they cried out with a loud voice, and held their ears, and rushed upon him with one accord; and having cast [him] out of the city, they stoned [him]. And the witnesses laid aside their clothes at the feet of a young man called Saul. And they stoned Stephen praying,⁷ and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit. And kneeling down, he cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And having said this, he fell asleep. (VIII). And Saul was consenting to his being killed.

And on that day there arose a great persecution against the assembly which was in Jerusalem, and all were scattered into the countries of Judæa and Samaria except the apostles. And pious men buried Stephen and made great lamentation over him. But Saul ravaged the assembly, entering into the houses one after another, and dragging off both men and women delivered them up to prison.

Those then that had been scattered went through [the countries] announcing the glad tidings of the word. And Philip, going down to a city of Samaria, preached the Christ to them; and the crowds with one accord gave heed to the things spoken by Philip, when they heard [him] and saw the signs which he wrought. For from many⁸ who had unclean spirits they went out, crying with a loud voice; and many that were paralyzed and lame were healed. And there was great joy in that city.

But a certain man, by name Simon, had been before in the city using magic arts and astonishing the nation of Samaria, saying, that himself was some great one. To whom they had all given heed, from small to great, saying, This is the power of God which is called⁹ great. And they gave heed to him, because that for a long time he had astonished them by his magic arts. But when they believed Philip announcing the glad tidings¹⁰ concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. And Simon also himself believed; and, having been baptized, continued constantly with Philip; and, beholding¹¹ the signs and great works of power which took place, was astonished. And the apostles who were in Jerusalem, having heard that Samaria had received the word of God, sent ⁷ ἐπικαλούμενον, 'invoking,' 'calling on,' but in English we must have a word after this, which mars the connection here. The Authorized Version seems to separate God and the Lord Jesus. 'Calling on the Lord' would leave God out. The Spirit of God, I doubt not, has purposely left both 'Lord' and 'God' out. No one can be called upon but God really, so that the word has great force when used as here.

I have said 'praying' for want of a better word.

⁸ The reading is perplexed here, the reading of many uncials being unintelligible grammatically. But the sense remains evident.

 19 offered them money, saying, Give to me also this power, in order that on whomsoever I may lay hands he may receive [the] Holy 20 Spirit. And Peter said to him, Thy money go with thee to destruction, because thou hast thought that the gift of God can 21 be obtained by money. Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter, for thy heart is not upright before 22 God. Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and supplicate the Lord,* if indeed the thought of thy heart may be forgiven thee;
 23 for I see thee to be in the [gall] of bitterness and bond of unrighteousness. And Simon answering 24 said, Supplicate ye for me to the Lord, so that nothing may come upon me of the things of which ye have spoken.
 25 They therefore, having testified and spoken the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and announced^x the glad tidings to many villages of the Samaritans.
 26 But [the] angel of [the] Lord spake to Philip, saying, Rise up and go southward on the way which goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza: the same is desert.

 27 And he rose up and went. And lo, an Ethiopian,^y a eunuch, a man in power under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who was over all her treasure, who had come to worship at Jerusalem, 28 and was returning and sitting in his chariot: and he was reading
 29 the prophet Esaias. And the Spirit said to Philip, Approach 30 and join this chariot. And Philip, running up, heard him reading the prophet Esaias, and said, Do you then know what you are reading
 31 of? And he said, How should I be able unless some one guide me? And he begged Philip to come up 32 and sit with him. And the passage of the scripture which he read was this: He was led as a sheep to slaughter, and as a lamb is dumb in presence of him that shears him, thus he opens not his mouth.
 33 In his humiliation his judgment has been taken away, and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.
 34 And the eunuch answering Philip said, I pray thee, concerning whom does the prophet say this? of himself or of some other? And Philip, opening his mouth and beginning from that scripture, announced the 35 glad tidings of Jesus to him. And as they went along the way they came upon a certain water, and the eunuch says, Behold water; what hinders my being baptized?^z

IX. But Saul, still breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, came ² to the high priest and asked of him letters to Damascus, to the synagogues, so that if he found any who were of the way, both men and women, he might bring ³ [them] bound to Jerusalem. But as he was journeying, it came to pass that he drew near to Damascus, and suddenly there shone ⁴ round about him a light out of ⁵ heaven, and falling on the earth he heard a voice saying to him, Saul, Saul, why dost thou persecute me? And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And he [said], ⁶ I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest. ⁷ But rise up and enter into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou ⁸ must do. And all who heard were astonished and said, Is not this he who destroyed in Jerusalem those who called on this name, and here was come for this purpose, that he might bring them bound to the chief priests? ²² But Saul increased the more in power, and confounded the Jews who dwelt in Damascus, proving that this is the Christ. ²³ Now when many days were fulfilled, the Jews consulted together ²⁴ to kill him. And they watched also^l the gates both day and night, that they might kill ²⁵ him; but the disciples took him by night and let him down through the wall, lowering him in a basket. ²⁶ And^m having arrived at Jerusalem he essayed to join himself to the disciples, and all were afraid of him, not believing that he was ²⁷ a disciple. Tabitha, which being interpreted means Dorcas.^a She^b was full of good works and alms-deeds which she did. And it came to pass in those days that she grew sick and died; and, having washed her, they put her in the upper room. But Lydda being near to Joppa, the disciples, having heard that Peter was there, sent two men to him, beseeching him, Thou must not delay coming to us.^c And Peter rising up went with them, whom, when arrived, they brought up into the upper chamber; and all the widows stood by him weeping and shewing him the vests and garments which Dorcas had made while she was with them. But Peter, putting them all out, and kneeling down, prayed. And, turning to the body, he said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes, and, seeing Peter, sat up. And having given her [his] hand, he raised her up, and having called the saints and the widows, presented her living. And it became known throughout the whole of Joppa, and many believed on the Lord. And it came to pass that he remained many days in Joppa with a certain Simon, a tanner.

X. But^d a certain man in Cæsarea,—by name Cornelius, a centurion of the band called Italic, ^e pious, and fearing God with all his house, both giving much alms to the people, and supplicating God continually,—saw plainly in a vision, about^f the ninth hour of the day, an angel of God coming unto him, and saying to him, Cornelius. But he, having fixed his eyes upon him, and become full of fear, said, What is it, Lord? And he said to him, Thy prayers and thine alms have gone up for a memorial before God. And now send men to Joppa and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter. He lodges with a certain Simon, a tanner, whose house is by the sea.^g And when the angel who was speaking to him^h had departed, having called two of his household and a pious soldier of those who were constantly with him, and related all things to them, he sent them to Joppa. And on the morrow, as these were journeying and drawing near to the city, Peter went up on the house to pray, about the sixth hour. And he became hungry and desired to eat.  16 thou make common. And this took place thrice, and the vessel was straightway^d taken up into 17 heaven. And as Peter doubted in himself what the vision which he had seen might mean, behold, also the men who were sent from Cornelius, having sought out the house

 18 of Simon, stood at the gate, and having called [some one], inquired if Simon who was surnamed Peter 19 was lodged there. But as Peter continued pondering^e over the vision, the Spirit said to him, Behold, three men seek thee; but rise up, go down, and go with them, nothing doubting, because 20 I have sent them. And Peter going down to the men^f said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause for which ye come?
 21 And they said, Cornelius, a centurion, a righteous man, and fearing God, and borne witness to by the whole nation of the Jews, has been divinely instructed by a holy angel to send for thee to his house, and hear words from thee.
 22 Having therefore invited them in, he lodged them. And on the morrow rising up he^g went away with 43 and dead. To him all the prophets bear witness that every one that believes on him will receive through his name remission of sins.

44 While Peter was yet speaking these words the Holy Spirit fell upon all those who were hearing the word. And the faithful of the circumcision were astonished, as many as came with Peter, that upon the nations also the gift of the Holy Spirit was poured out;

14 speak words to thee whereby thou shalt be saved, thou and all thy 15 house. And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them even as upon us also at the beginning.
16 And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he said, John baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with [the]

²⁷ In these days prophets went down from Jerusalem to Antioch; ²⁸ and one from among them, by name Agabus, rose up and signified by the Spirit that there was going to be a great famine over all the inhabited earth, which also came to pass under Claudius.^b ²⁹ And they determined, according as any one of the disciples was well off, each of them to send to the brethren who dwelt in Judæa, ³⁰ to minister^c [to them]; which also they did, sending it to the elders by the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

XII. At that time Herod the king laid his hands on some of those of ² the assembly to do them hurt, and slew James, the brother of John, ³ with the sword. And seeing that it was pleasing to the Jews, he went on to take Peter also: (and they were the^d days of unleavened ⁴ bread:) whom having seized he put in prison, having delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep, purposing after the pass-over to bring him out to the people. Peter therefore was kept in the prison; but unceasing prayer was made by the assembly to God ⁶ concerning him. And when Herod was going to bring him forth, that night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and guards before the ⁷ door kept the prison. And lo, an angel of [the] Lord came there, and a light shone in the prison:^e and having smitten the side of Peter, he roused him up, saying, Rise up quickly. And his chains fell off ⁸ from his hands. And the angel said to him, Gird [thyself] and bind on thy sandals. And he did so. And he says to him, Cast thy upper garment about thee ⁹ and follow me. And going forth he followed him, and did not know^f that what was happening by means of the angel was real, ¹⁰ but supposed he saw a vision. And having passed through a first and second guard, they came to the iron gate which leads into the city, which opened to them of itself; and going forth they went down one street, and immediately ¹¹ the angel left him. And Peter, being come to himself, said, Now I know certainly that [the] Lord has sent forth his angel and has taken me out of the hand of Herod and all the expectation of the ¹² people of the Jews. And having become clearly conscious [of what had happened], he came to the house of Mary, the mother of John who was surnamed Mark, where were many gathered together and praying. And when he ¹³ had knocked^g at the door of the entry, a maid came to listen, by ¹⁴ name Rhoda; and having recognized the voice of Peter, through joy did not open the entry, but running in, reported that Peter was standing before the entry.

15 And they said to her, Thou art mad. But she maintained that it was so. And they said, It is his angel. But Peter continued knocking: and having opened, they saw him and were astonished.

17 And having made a sign to them with his hand to be silent, he related to them how the Lord had brought him out of prison; and he said, Report these things to James and to the brethren. And he went out and went to another place. And when it was day there was no small disturbance among the soldiers, what then was become of Peter. And Herod having sought him and not found him, having examined the guards, commanded [them] to be executed. And he went down from Judæa to Cæsarea and stayed [there]. And he^d was in bitter hostility with [the] Tyrians and Sidonians; but they came to him with one accord, and, having gained Blastus the king's chamberlain, sought peace, because their country was nourished by the king's. And on a set day, clothed in royal apparel and sitting on the elevated seat [of honour], Herod made a public oration to them. And the people cried out, A god's voice and not a man's. And immediately an angel of [the] Lord smote him, because he did not give the glory to God, and he expired, eaten of worms. But the word of God grew and spread itself.

25 And Barnabas and Saul returned

XIII. ^p Note, in verse 18 we have the accusative, τ. χρόνον, 'during that period'; here it is the dative, not properly 'duration,' but an epoch. When I say 'four hundred and fifty years,' there must be a period of course, but the difference seems to me to be the same as of durant and pendant in French. All through the whole of the time is durant; the space of time in which a thing happens is pendant. It may be only a given moment of that space. Thus Herodotus says, 'the fishermen used their nets to catch fish—ἡν ἡμέρα, 'by day—in the daytime, but as bed-clothes—τὴν νύκτα—all the night.' Thus 'there were judges,' as in English Version, 'during the lapse of a space of four hundred and fifty years, up to Samuel.' Where the computation begins is not stated. The judges were given after the land's being given by lot, and that order of things reached up to Samuel, to four hundred and fifty years, whenever that four hundred and fifty years began. It might be at the Exodus, and very probably so. But it is not that there were judges during all that time. Indeed they were only raised up occasionally. I have no difficulty myself as to the chronology, notwithstanding the dicta of some men. The main blunder of their computations lies in this: they have taken Eli and Samson as distinct periods from the Philistine oppression, whereas it is perfectly clear the Philistine oppression included both. We have to go on to Mizpeh for the close. Josephus gives them ten twelve years for Samuel. You have ἑτη ρεσσαράκοντα for the period and duration of Saul's reign, that is, the accusative, not the dative.

bearing witness he said, I have found David, the son of Jesse, a man after my heart, who shall 23 do all my will. Of this man's seed according to promise has God brought^a to Israel a Saviour
 24 Jesus; John having proclaimed before the face of his entry [among the people] [the] baptism of repentance to all the people
 25 of Israel. And as John was fulfilling his course he said, Whom do ye suppose that I am? I am not [he]. But, behold, there comes one after me, the sandal of whose feet I am not worthy to loose.
 26 Brethren, sons of Abraham's race, and those who among you fear God, to you has the word of 27 this salvation been sent: for those who dwell in Jerusalem, and their rulers, not having known him, have fulfilled also the voices of the prophets which are read on every sabbath, [by] judging him.
 28 And having found no cause of death [in him], they begged of 29 Pilate that he might be slain. And when they had fulfilled all things written concerning him, they took him down from the cross^b and put 30 him in a sepulchre; but God raised 31 him from among [the] dead, who appeared for many days to those who had come up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who^c are now^d his witnesses to the people.

 32 And we declare unto you the glad tidings of the promise made to the fathers, that God has fulfilled this to us their children, having raised up Jesus; as it is also written in the second psalm, Thou art my Son: this day have I begotten thee. But that he raised him from among [the] dead, no more to return to corruption, he spoke thus: I will give to you the faithful 35 mercies^e of David. Wherefore also he says in another, Thou wilt not suffer thy gracious^e one to see 36 corruption. For David indeed, having in his own generation ministered to the will of God,^f fell asleep, and was added to his 37 fathers and saw corruption. But he whom God raised up did not see 38 corruption. Be it known unto you therefore,^g brethren, that by this man remission of sins is preach-39 ed to you, and from all things from which ye could not be justified in the^h law of Moses, in him every one that believes is justified.
 40 See therefore that that which is spoken in the prophets do not 41 come upon you: Behold, ye despisers, and wonder and perish;

^e Mercies, δoσια; 'gracious one,' δοσιον. The words are the same, only singular and plural. It may and sometimes does mean 'holy,' but is not the regular word for it (ἅγιος): here it answers to chesed in Hebrew, and in the second phrase is contrasted, Psalm lxxxix., with holy (kodesh), which is applied to Jehovah, ver. 18; 19, chesed. The beginning of the Psalm speaks of the mercies (chashim) or gracious ways of the Lord, and then in verse 19 of that One in whom these graces or mercies are centred and conveyed, the Christ to whom the apostle here applies it. The word chesed is generally 'pious,' 'gracious' applied to men, and 'grace' and 'loving-kindness' in God.

^h Many take away 'the' in the text. This abstract use of ἐν νόμῳ without the article makes νόμῳ the manner or character of the justification.

ACTS XIII, XIV.

for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will no wise believe if one declare it to you.

42 And as they went out^a they begged that these words might be spoken to them the ensuing sabbath. And the congregation of the synagogue having broken up, many of the Jews and of the worshipping proselytes followed Paul and Barnabas, who speaking to them persuaded them to continue in the grace of God. And on the coming sabbath almost all the city was gathered together to hear the word of God.^b But the Jews, seeing the crowds, were filled with envy, and contradicted the things said by Paul, contradicting and speaking injuriously. But Paul and Barnabas spoke boldly and said, It was necessary that the word of God should be first spoken to you; but, since ye thrust it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to the nations; for thus has the Lord enjoined us: I have set thee for a light of the nations, that thou shouldst be for salvation to the end of the earth. And [those of] the nations, hearing it, rejoiced, and glorified the word of the Lord, and believed, as many as were ordained to eternal life. And the word of the Lord was carried through the whole country. But the Jews excited the women of the upper classes^c who were worshippers, and the first people of the city, and raised a persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and cast them out of their coasts. But they, having shaken off the dust of their feet against them, came to Iconium. And the disciples were filled with joy and [the] Holy Spirit.

XIV. And it came to pass in Iconium that they entered together into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake that a great multitude of both Jews and Greeks believed. But the Jews who did not believe stirred up the minds of [those of] the nations and made [them] evil-affected against the brethren. They stayed therefore a good while, speaking boldly, [confiding] in the Lord,^d who gave witness to the word of his grace in giving^e signs and wonders to be done by their hands. And the multitude of the city was divided and some were with the Jews and some with the apostles. And when an assault was making, both of [those of] the nations and [the] Jews with their rulers, to use [them] ill and stone them, they, being aware of it, fled to the cities of Lycaonia, Lystra, and Derbe, and the surrounding country, and there they were announcing the glad tidings.

8 And a certain man in Lystra, impotent in his feet, sat, [being]^f lame from his mother's womb, who had never walked. This [man] heard Paul speaking, who, fixing

 The gods, having made themselves heard [it], rent their garments,

 and rushed out^b to the crowd, ye these things? We also are men of like passions with you, preachingⁱ to you to turn from these vanities to the living God, who made the heaven, and the earth and the sea, and all things

 tions suffered all the nations to go ¹⁷ in their own ways, though indeed he did not leave himself without witness, doing good, and giving to you^j from heaven rain and fruitful seasons, filling your^k hearts with these things, they with difficulty kept the crowds from sacrificing encircled him, he rose up and entered into the city. And on the ²² and^l Iconium and^l Antioch, es-the faith, and that through many tribulations we must enter into ²³ the kingdom of God. And having chosen them elders in each assembly, having prayed with fastings, they committed them to the Lord, on whom they had be-

 Pisidia they came to Pamphylia, ²⁵ and having spoken the word^m in Perga, they came down to Atta-²⁶ lia; and thence they sailed away to Antioch, whence they had been committed to the grace of God for the work which they had fulfilled.

 brought together the assembly,
 they related to them all that God had done with them, and that he had opened a door of faith to the

² not be saved. A commotion therefore having taken place, and no small discussion on the part of Paul and Barnabas against them, they arranged that Paul and Barnabas, and certain others from amongst them, should go to Jerusalem to the apostles and elders about this question.

³ They therefore, having been set on their way by the assembly, passed through Phœnicia and Samaria, relating the conversion of [those of] the nations. And they caused great joy to all the ⁴ brethren. And being arrived at Jerusalem, they were received by the assembly, and the apostles, and the elders, and related all that God had wrought with them.

⁵ And some of those who were of the sect of the Pharisees, who believed, rose up from among [them], saying that they ought to circumcise them and enjoin them

⁶ to keep the law of Moses. And the apostles and the elders were gathered together to see about

⁷ this matter. And much discussion having taken place, Peter, standing up, said to them, Brethren,^p ye know that from the earliest^q days God amongst you^r chose that the nations by my mouth should hear the word of the glad

⁸ tidings and believe. And the heart-knowing God bore them witness, giving them the Holy

⁹ Spirit as to us also, and put no difference between^s us and them, having purified their hearts by

¹⁰ faith. Now therefore why tempt ye God, by putting^t a yoke upon the neck of the disciples which

It is explanatory of what precedes, namely, 'that,' &c. It sometimes runs into the force of ὥστε, as in Rev. xvi. 9, but in general the infinitive is explanatory; ὥστε a consequence. See verse 29 of this chapter.

ACTS XV.

18 things known from eternity.^v
 19 Wherefore I judge, not to trouble those who from the nations turn 20 to God; but to write to them to abstain from pollutions of idols, and from^w fornication, and from what is strangled, and from blood.
 21 For Moses, from generations of old, has in every city those who preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath.
 22 Then it seemed good to the apostles and to the elders, with the whole assembly, to send chosen men from among them with Paul and Barnabas to Antioch, Judas called^x Barsabbas and Silas, leading men among the
 23 brethren, having by their hand written thus: ^y The apostles, and the elders, and the brethren,^z to the brethren who are from among [the] nations at Antioch, and [in] Syria, and Cilicia, greeting: Inasmuch as we have heard that some who went out from amongst us have troubled you by words, upsetting your souls, [saying that ye must be circumcised and keep the law;]^a to whom we 25 gave no commandment; it seemed good to us, having arrived at a common^b judgment, to send chosen men to you with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, men who have 26 given up their lives for the name

27 of our Lord Jesus Christ. We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who themselves also will relate to you by word [of mouth]
 28 the same things. For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary
 29 things: to abstain from things sacrificed to idols, and from blood, and from what is strangled, and from fornication; keeping yourselves from which ye will do
 30 well. Farewell. They therefore, being let go, came to Antioch, and having gathered the multitude delivered to [them] the epistle. And 31 having read it, they rejoiced at the consolation. And Judas and Silas, being themselves also prophets, exhorted the brethren with much discourse, and strengthened 32 them. And having passed some time [there], they were let go in peace from the brethren to those 33 who^c sent them.^d And Paul and Barnabas stayed in Antioch, teaching and announcing the glad tidings, with many others also, of the word of the Lord.
 34 But after certain days Paul said to Barnabas, Let us return now and^e visit the^f brethren in every city where we have announced the word of the Lord, [and see] how 35 they are getting on. And Barnabas proposed to take with [them]

 thought it, not well to take with them him who had abandoned them, [going back] from Pamphylia, and not gone with them to the 30 work. There arose therefore^h very warm feeling, so that they separated from one another; and Barnabas taking Mark sailed 40 away to Cyprus; but Paul having chosen Silas went forth, committed by the brethren to the grace 41 of God.ⁱ And he passed through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the assemblies.

XVI. And he came to Derbe and Lystra: and behold, a certain disciple was there, by name Timo-theus, son of a^j Jewish believing woman, but [the] father a Greek, 2 who had a [good] testimony of the brethren in Lystra and Iconium.
 3 Him would Paul have go forth for they all knew his father that decrees determined on by the apostles and^l elders who were in fore were confirmed in the faith,

 and increased in number every day.
 6 Having passed therefore through Phrygia and the Galatian country, having been forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in 7 Asia, having come down^m to Mysia, they attempted to go to Bithynia, and the Spirit of Jesusⁿ 8 did not allow them; and having passed by Mysia they descended 9 to Troas. And a vision appeared to Paul in the night: There was a certain Macedonian man, standing and^o beseeching him, and saying,

 Pass over into Macedonia and help 10 us. And when he had seen the vision, immediately we sought to go forth to Macedonia, concluding that the Lord had called us to announce to them the glad tid-11 ings. Having sailed therefore away from Troas, we went in a straight course to Samothracia, and on the morrow to Neapolis, 12 and thence to Philippi, which is [the] first city of that part of Macedonia, a colony. And we were staying in that city certain days.
 13 And on the sabbath day we went outside the gate^p by the river, where it was the custom for prayer to be, and we sat down and spoke to the women who had assembled.
 14 And a certain woman, by name Lydia, a seller of purple of the city of Thyatira, who worshipped God, heard; whose heart the Lord opened to attend to the things 15 spoken by Paul. And when she had been baptized and her house, she besought [us], saying, If ye and, having received a commandment to Silas and Timotheus, that they should come to him as quick as possible, they departed.

¹⁶ But in Athens, while Paul was waiting for them, his spirit was painfully excited in him seeing the city given up to idolatry. He reasoned therefore in the synagogue with the Jews, and those who worshipped, and in the marketplace every day with those he met with. But some also^d of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers attacked him. And some said, What would this chatterer say? and some, He seems to be an announcer of foreign demons, because he announced the glad tidings of Jesus and the resurrection to them. And having taken hold on him they brought [him] to Areopagus,^e saying, Might we know what this new doctrine which is spoken by thee [is]? For thou bringest certain strange things to our ears. We wish therefore to know what these things may mean. Now all [the] Athenians and the strangers sojourning there spent their time in nothing else than to tell and to hear the news. And Paul standing in the midst of Areopagus^e said, Athenians,^f in every way I see you given up to demon worship; for, passing through and beholding your shrines, I found also an altar on which was inscribed, To the unknown God.

Whom^g therefore ye reverence, notknowing [him], him I announce to you. The God who has made the world and all things which are in it, he being Lord of heaven and earth, does not dwell in temples made with hands, nor is served by men's hands as needing something, himself giving to all life and breath and^h all things; and has made of one blood every nation of men to dwell upon the whole face of the earth, having determined ordainedⁱ times and the boundaries of their dwelling, that they might seek God;^j if indeed they might feel after him and find him, although he is not far from each one of us; for in him we live and move and exist; as also some of the poets amongst you have said, For we are also his offspring. Being therefore [the] offspring of God, we ought not to think that which is divine to be like gold or silver or stone, [the] graven form of man's art and imagination. God therefore having overlooked the times of ignorance, now enjoins men that they should all^k everywhere repent, because he has set a day in which he is going to judge the habitable earth in righteousness by [the] man whom he has appointed, giving the proof [of it] to all [in] having raised him from among [the] dead. And when they heard [of the] resurrection of [the] dead, some mocked, and some said,

We will hear thee again concern-23 ing this. ¹ Thus Paul went out of 24 their midst. But some men joining themselves to him believed;
 among whom also was Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman by name Damaris, and others with them.

XVIII. And after these things, having left Athens, he^m came to 2 Corinth; and finding a certain Jew by name Aquila, of Pontus by race, just come from Italy, and Priscilla his wife, (because Claudius had ordered all the Jews to 3 leave Rome,) came to them, and because they were of the same trade abode with them, and wrought. For they were tent-4 makers by trade. And he reasoned in the synagogue every sabbath, and persuaded Jews and 5 Greeks. And when both Silas and Timotheus came down from Macedonia, Paul was pressedⁿ in respect of the word,^o testifying to the Jews that Jesus was the 6 Christ.^p But as they opposed and spoke injuriously, he shook his clothes, and said to them, Your blood be upon your own head: I [am] pure;^q from henceforth I will 7 go to the nations. And departing thence he came to the house of a certain man, by name Justus, who worshipped God, whose house ad-8 joined the synagogue. But Crispus the ruler of the synagogue believed in the Lord with all his house; and many of the Corinthians hearing, believed, and were 9 baptized. And the Lord said by vision in [the] night to Paul, Fear not, but speak and be not 10 silent; because I am with thee, and no one shall set upon thee to injure thee; because I have much 11 people in this city. And he remained there a year and six months, teaching among them the 12 word of God. But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews with one consent rose against Paul and led him to the judgment

 13 seat, saying, This [man] persuades men to worship God contrary to 14 the law. But as Paul was going to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews, If indeed it was some wrong or wicked criminality, O Jews, of reason I should have borne with 15 you; but if it be questions^r about words, and names, and the law that ye have, see to it yourselves; for I do not intend to be drove them from the judgment 17 seat. And having all^s laid hold on Sosthenes the ruler of the synagogue, they beat him before the judgment seat. And Gallio troubled himself about none of 18 these things. And Paul, having yet stayed there many days, took leave of the brethren and sailed thence to Syria, and with him

24 But a certain Jew, Apollos by name, an Alexandrian by race, an eloquent man, who was mighty in the scriptures, arrived at Ephesus.

25 He was instructed in the way of the Lord, and being fervent in his spirit, he spoke and taught exactly the things concerning Jesus,^v knowing only the baptism

19 declaring their deeds. And many of those that practised curious arts brought their books [of charms] and burnt them before all. And they reckoned up the prices of them, and found it fifty

20 thousand pieces of silver. Thus with might the word of the Lord increased and prevailed.

21 And when these things were fulfilled, Paul purposed in his spirit to go to Jerusalem, passing through Macedonia and Achaia, saying, After I have been there I must see 22 Rome also. And having sent into Macedonia two of those ministering to him, Timotheus and Erastus, he remained himself awhile in Asia.

23 And there took place at that time no small disturbance about the 24 way. For a certain [man] by name Demetrius, a silver beater, making silver temples of Artemis^h brought

25 no small gain to the artisans; whom having brought together, and those who wrought in such things, he said, Men, ye know that our well-

26 living arises from this work, and ye see and hear that this Paul has persuaded and turned away a great crowd, not only of Ephesus, but almost of all Asia, saying that they are no gods which are made

27 with hands. Now not only there is danger for us that our business come into discredit, but also that the temple of the great goddess Artemis be counted for nothing, and that her greatness should be destroyed whom the whole of Asia and the world

28 reveres. And having heard [this], and being filled with rage, they cried out, saying, Great [is] Artemis of the Ephesians. And the wholeⁱ city was filled with confusion, and they rushed with one accord to the theatre, having seized and carried off with [them] Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians, fellow-travellers of Paul. ³⁰ But Paul intending to go in to the people, the disciples suffered him ³¹ not; and some of the asiarchs^k also, who were his friends, sent to him and urged him not to throw ³² himself into the theatre. Different persons therefore cried out some different thing; for the assembly was tumultuous, and the most did not know for what cause they had come together. But from among the crowd they put forward Alexander, the Jews pushing him forward. And Alexander, beckoning with his hand, would have ³⁴ made a defence to the people. But, recognizing that he was a Jew, there was one cry from all, shouting for about two hours, Great [is] Artemis of the Ephesians. ³⁵ And the townclerk, having quieted the crowd, said,^l Ephesians,^m what man is there then who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is temple-keeper of Artemis the great,ⁿ and of the [image] which fell down from heaven?^o ³⁶ These things therefore being undeniable, it is necessary that ye should be calm and do nothing ³⁷ headlong. For ye have brought these men, [who are] neither temple plunderers, nor speak ³⁸ injuriously of your^p goddess. If therefore Demetrius and the artisans who [are] with him have a matter against any one, the courts are being held, and there are proconsuls: let them accuse ³⁰ one another. But if ye inquire anything concerning other matters, it will be settled in the regular assembly. For also we ⁴⁰ are in danger to be put in accusation for sedition for this [affair] of to-day, no cause existing in reference to which we shall be able to give a reason for this con- ⁴¹ course. And having said these things, he dismissed the assembly. XX. But after the tumult had ceased, Paul having called the disciples to [him]^q and embraced [them], went away to go to ³ Macedonia. And having passed through those parts, and having exhorted them with much dis- ⁵ course, he came to Greece. And having spent three months [there], a treacherous plot against him having been set on foot by the Jews as he was going to sail to Syria, the resolution was adopted of returning through Macedonia. ⁴ And there accompanied him as far as Asia, Sopater, [son] of Pyrrhus,^r a Beroean; and of Thessalonians Aristarchus and Secundus and Gaius, and Timotheus of Derbe, and of Asia Tychicus and ⁵ Trophimus. ¹⁶ day we came to Miletus: for Paul thought it desirable to sail by Ephesus, so that he might not be made to spend time in Asia; for he hastened, if it was possible for him, to be the day of Pentecost

¹⁷ at Jerusalem. But from Miletus having sent to Ephesus, he called over [to him] the elders of the ¹⁸ assembly. And when they were come to him, he said to them, Ye know how I was with you all the time from the first day that I

¹⁹ arrived in Asia, serving the Lord with all lowliness, and² tears, and temptations which happened to me through the plots of the Jews;

²⁰ how I held back nothing of what is profitable, so as not to announce [it] to you, and to teach you publicly and in every house, testifying

^d I am fully satisfied that this is the right translation. To make it a question of the divinity of Christ (which I hold to be of the foundation of Christianity) is simply absurd. Wetstein, Griesb., Lach., Tisch., Meyer, De Wette, Alford, have Κυρίου (i.e., Lord), not God at all, following A. C, D, E, and a host of other MSS. Matthæi has Κυρίου καὶ Θεοῦ, with all the Russian MSS. B and n have Θεοῦ; others Χριστοῦ. I am persuaded that the reading is Θεοῦ and has been tampered with because of the difficulty of the phrase. διὰ τοῦ αἵματος τοῦ ἰδίου is generally received. Further, Athanasius, particularly in his second letter to Apollinarius, condemns all such language as 'the blood of God' as doctrinally false and the boldness of the Arians—used by them because they did not believe in the true divinity of Jesus, declaring scripture does not speak so. God could not be said to die or suffer; nor flowing of blood be applied to him. In one place you have, The scriptures have nowhere taught αἷμα Θεοῦ δίχα σαρκός. The old editions had διὰ σαρκός. The latter is the form of all the language of Athanasius. At any rate, it is in Acts xx., if at all, δίχα σαρκός. On the other hand, Chrysostom has Θεοῦ and τοῦ ἰδίου αἵματος. His comment on it is general: only we have the evidence that already the false reading had crept in, for τοῦ ἰδίου αἵματος is not received as genuine.

Quotations from the Fathers will be found in Wetstein in loco. Heb. ix. 12, xiii. 12, and even Chrys., as far as they go, shew what the more natural form of 'his own blood' would be in Greek. It has been questioned whether ἰδιος can be so used in the singular. But we have it in John's Gospel, chap. xv. 19. It is used in the neuter singular for material things, Acts iv. 32. The torturing passage, as we find it in the manuscripts, I believe arose from their not seeing the sense I have given to it here, a touching expression of the love of God. The use of the neuter singular in John is common with πᾶς in this way. At any rate, it is strange to found an argument for the divinity of Christ on a passage where Θεοῦ is rejected by almost all important editions, founding it on an expression which Athanasius declares to be nowhere found in scripture, and only used by Arians because they do not believe in the divinity of Christ. The subject is treated in the second book against Apollinarius: in particular in sections xii.—xiv., p. 758. Benedict. ed., 1777, vol. I., part 2.

said, that they would no more see his face. And they went down with him to the ship.

XXI. And when, having got away¹ from them, we at last sailed away, we came by a direct course to Cos, and on the morrow to Rhodes, and² thence to Patara. And having found a ship passing over into Phœnicia, we went on board and³ sailed; and having sighted Cyprus, and left it on the left hand, we sailed to Syria, and made the land at Tyre, for there the ship was to discharge⁴ her cargo. And having found out the disciples, we remained there seven days; who said to Paul by the Spirit not to go up to Jerusalem.⁵ But when we had completed the days, we set out and took our journey, all of them accompanying us, with wives and children, till [we were] out of the city. And kneeling down upon the shore we⁶ prayed. And having embraced one another, we went on board ship,⁷ and they returned home. And we, having completed the voyage, arrived from Tyre at Ptolemais, and having saluted the brethren we remained one day with them.⁸ And leaving on the morrow,^k we came to Cæsarea; and entering into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was of the seven, we abode⁹ with him. Now this man had four virgin daughters who prophesied.¹⁰ And as we stayed there many days, a certain man, by name Agabus, a prophet, came down from Judæa,

¹¹ and coming to us and taking the girdle of Paul, and having bound his own hands and feet, said, Thus saith the Holy Spirit, The man whose this girdle is shall the Jews thus bind in Jerusalem, and deliver him up into the hands of [the]¹² Gentiles. And when we heard these things, both we and those of the place besought [him] not¹³ to go up to Jerusalem. But Paul answered, What do ye, weeping and breaking my heart? for I am ready not only to be bound but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus. And¹⁴ when he would not be persuaded, we were silent, saying, The will¹⁵ of the Lord be done. And after these days, having got our effects ready, we went up to Jerusalem.¹⁶ And [some] of the disciples from Cæsarea went with us, bringing [with them] a certain Mnason, a Cyprian, an old disciple with whom¹⁷ we were to lodge.¹ And when we were arrived at Jerusalem the¹⁸ brethren gladly received us. And on the morrow Paul went in with us to James, and all the elders¹⁹ came there. And having saluted them, he related one by one the things which God had wrought among the nations by his ministry.²⁰ And they having heard [it] glorified God,^m and said to him, Thou seest, brother, how many myriads there are of the Jews who have believed,²¹ and all are zealous of the law. ²⁶ Then Paul taking the men, on the next day, having been purified,^o entered with them into the temple, signifying the time the days of the purification would be fulfilled, until the offering was offered for every

²⁷ one of them. And when the seven days were nearly completed, the Jews from Asia, having seen him in the temple, set all the crowd in a tumult, and laid hands upon

³¹ as they were seeking to kill him, a representation came to the chiliarch of the band that the whole

³² of Jerusalem was in a tumult; who, taking with him immediately soldiers and centurions, ran down upon them. But they, seeing the chiliarch and the soldiers, ceased

³³ beating Paul. Then the chiliarch came up and laid hold upon him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and inquired who he might be and what he had

³⁴ done. And different persons cried a different thing in the crowd. But he, not being able to know the certainty on account of the uproar, commanded him to be a Jew^a of Tarsus, citizen of no insignificant city of Cilicia, and I beseech of thee, allow me to speak ⁴⁰ to the people. And when he had allowed him, Paul, standing on the stairs, beckoned with his hand to the people; and a great silence having been made, he addressed them in the Hebrew tongue, saying, (XXII.) Brethren^r and fathers, hear my defence which I now

² make to you. And hearing that he addressed them in the Hebrew tongue, they kept the more quiet;
³ and he says, I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but brought up in this city at the feet of^s Gamaliel, educated according to [the] exactness of the law of [our] fathers, being zealous for God, as ye are

⁵ men and women; as also the high priest bears me witness, and all the elderhood; from whom also, having received letters to the brethren, I went to Damascus to bring those also who were there, bound, to ⁶ Jerusalem, to be punished. And it came to pass,^t as I was journeying and drawing near to Damascus, that, about mid-day, there suddenly shone out of heaven a great
⁷ light round about me. And I fell to the ground, and heard a voice saying to me, Saul, Saul, why
⁸ persecutest thou me? And I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said to me, I am Jesus the Nazarean, whom thou perse-

¹⁰ And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said to me, Rise up and go to Damascus, and there it shall be told thee of all things which it is appointed thee to do.
¹¹ And as I could not see, through the glory of that light, being led by the hand by those who were with me, I came to Damascus.
¹² And a certain Ananias, a pious man according to the law, borne witness to by all the Jews who ¹³ dwelt [there], coming to me and standing by me, said to me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight. And I, in the same hour, received

And he said to me, Go, for I will send thee to the nations afar off. And they heard him until this word, and lifted up their voice, saying, Away with such [a one] as that from the earth, for it was^x not fit he should live. And, as they were crying, and throwing away their clothes, and casting dust into the air, the chiliarch commanded him to be brought into the fortress, saying that he should be examined by scourging, that he might ascertain for what cause they cried thus against him. But as they stretched him forward with the thongs, Paul said to the centurion who stood [by], Is it lawful for you to scourge a man [who is] a Roman and uncondemned? And the centurion, having heard it, went and reported it to the chiliarch, saying, What art thou going to do? for this man is a Roman. And the chiliarch coming up said to him, Tell me, art thou^a a Roman? And he said, Yes. And the chiliarch said, I, for a great sum, bought this citizenship. And Paul said, But I was also [free] born. Immediately therefore those who were going to examine him left him, and the chiliarch also was afraid when he ascertained that he was a Roman, and because he had bound him.

³⁰ And on the morrow, desirous to know the certainty [of the matter] why he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him,^a and commanded the chief priests and all the^b council to meet,^c and having brought Paul down set him before them.

And thou, dost thou sit judging me according to the law, and breaking the law commandest me to be smitten? ⁴ And those that stood by said, Dost thou rail against the high priest of God? And Paul said, I was not conscious, brethren, that he was high priest; for it is written, Thou shalt not speak evilly of the ruler of thy people. But Paul, knowing that the one part [of them] were of the Sadducees and the other of the Pharisees, cried out in the council, Brethren,^d I am a Pharisee, son of Pharisees: I am judged concerning the hope and resurrection of [the] dead. And when he had spoken this, there was a tumult of the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the multitude was divided. tended, saying, We find nothing evil in this man; and if a spirit has spoken to him, or an angel—
 10 And a great tumult having arisen, the chiliarch, fearing lest Paul should have been torn in pieces by them, commanded the troop to come down and take him by force from the midst of them, and to 11 bring [him] into the fortress. But the following night the Lord stood by him and said, Be of good courage; ^f for as thou hast testified the things concerning me at Jerusalem, so thou must bear witness 12 at Rome also. And when it was day, the Jews, ^g having banded together, put themselves under a curse, saying that they would neither eat nor drink till they 13 should kill Paul. And they were more than forty who had joined 14 together in this oath; and they went to the chief priests and elders, and said, We have cursed ourselves with a curse to taste
 15 nothing until we kill Paul. Now therefore do ye with the council make a representation to the chiliarch so that he may bring him down ^h to you, as about to determine more precisely what concerns him, and we before he draws near are ready to kill him.
 16 But Paul's sister's son, having heard of the lying in wait, came and entered into the fortress and 17 reported [it] to Paul. And Paul, having called one of the centurions, said, Take this youth to the chiliarch, for he has some-18 thing to report to him. He therefore, having taken him with [him], led him to the chiliarch, and says, The prisoner Paul called me to [him] and asked me to lead this youth to thee, who has something 19 to say to thee. And the chiliarch having taken him by the hand, and having gone apart in private, inquired, What is it that thou hast

 20 to report to me? And he said, The Jews have agreed together to make a request to thee, that thou mayest bring Paul down to-morrow into the council, as about to inquire something more precise concern-
 21 ing him. Do not thou then be persuaded by them, for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, who have put themselves under a curse neither to eat nor drink till they kill him; and now they are ready waiting the

And desiring to know¹ the charge on which they accused him I brought him down²⁹ to their council, whom I found to be accused of questions of their law, but to have no charge laid against him [making him] worthy³⁰ of death or of bonds. But having received information of a plot about to be put in execution against the man by the Jews, I have immediately sent him to thee, commanding also his accusers to say before thee the things that³¹ are against him. Farewell. The soldiers therefore, according to their orders, took Paul and brought³² him by night to Antipatris, and on the morrow, having left the horsemen to go with him, returned to the fortress. And these having entered into Cæsarea, and given up the letter to the governor, ³⁴presented Paul also to him. And^k having read [it], and asked of what eparchy he was, and learned that³⁵ [he was] of Cilicia, he said, I will hear thee fully when thine accusers also are arrived. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's prætorium.

XXIV. And after five days came down the high priest Ananias, with the elders, and a certain orator called Tertullus, and laid their informations against Paul before the

² governor. And he having been called, Tertullus began to accuse, saying, Seeing we enjoy great peace through thee, and that excellent measures are executed for this³ nation by thy forethought, we receive [it] always and everywhere, most excellent Felix, with⁴ all thankfulness. ²² And Felix,^e knowing accurately the things concerning the way, adjourned them, saying, When Lysias the chiliarch is come down I will determine your affair;^f ²³ ordering the centurion to keep him,^g and that he should have freedom, and to hinder none of his friends to minister^h to him.

²⁴ And after certain days, Felix having arrived with Drusilla his wife, who was a Jewess, he sent for Paul and heard him concerning ²⁵ the faith in Christ. And as he reasoned concerning righteousness, and temperance, and the judgment about to come, Felix, being filled with fear, answered, Go for the present, and when I get an opportunity I will send for thee; hopingⁱ at the same time
²⁶ that money would be given him by Paul:^j wherefore also he sent for him the oftener and communed
²⁷ with him. But when two years were completed, Felix was relieved by Porcius Festus as his successor; and Felix, desirous to oblige the Jews to acquire their favour, left Paul bound.

XXV. Festus therefore being come into the eparchy, after three days went up to Jerusalem from Cæsarea. And the chief priests and the chief of the Jews laid informations before him against Paul,
⁸ and besought him, asking as a grace against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem, laying people in wait to kill him on the ⁴ way. Festus therefore answered that Paul should be kept at Cæs-

 the persons of authority among you, says he, going down too, if there be anything in this man, ⁶ accuse him. And having remained among them not more than eight^a or ten days, he went down to Cæsarea; and on the next day, having sat down on the judgment-seat, commanded Paul to be brought.
⁷ And when he was come, the Jews who were come down from Jerusalem stood round, bringing many and grievous charges^b which they ⁸ were not able to prove: Paul^c answering for himself, Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Cæsar, have I offended [in] any-⁹ thing. But Festus, desirous of obliging the Jews to acquire their favour, answering Paul, said, Art thou willing to go up to Jerusalem,
 there to be judged before me con-¹⁰ cerning these things? But Paul said, I am standing before the judgment-seat of Cæsar, where I ought to be judged. To the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou also ¹¹ very well knowest.^d If then I have done any wrong and committed anything worthy of death,
 I do not deprecate dying; but if there is nothing of those things of which they accuse me, no man can give me up to them for nothing.
¹² I appeal to Cæsar. Then Festus, having conferred with the council, answered, Thou hast appealed to Cæsar? To Cæsar shalt thou ¹³ go. And when certain days had elapsed, Agrippa the king and Bernice arrived at Cæsarea to salute ¹⁴ Festus. And when they had spent many days there, Festus laid before the king the matters relating to Paul, saying, There is a certain ¹⁵ man left prisoner by Felix, concerning whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews laid informations, requiring judgment

¹⁶ against him: to whom I answered,
 It is not [the] custom of the Romans to give up any man^e before that the accused have the accusers face to face, and he get opportunity of defence touching ¹⁷ the charge. When therefore they had come together here, without putting it off, I sat the next day on the judgment-seat and commanded the man to be brought:
¹⁸ concerning whom the accusers, standing up, brought no such accusation of guilt as I sup-¹⁹ posed; but had against him certain questions of their own system of worship, and concerning a certain Jesus who is dead, whom Paul ²⁰ affirmed to be living. And as I myself was at a loss as to an inquiry into these things, I said,
 Was he willing to go to Jerusalem and there to be judged ²¹ concerning these things? But Paul having appealed to be kept for the cognizance of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I shall

ACTS XXV, XXVI.

²³ send him to Cæsar. And Agrippa said to Festus, I myself also would desire to hear the man. And he said, To-morrow^f thou shalt hear him.

²⁴ And Festus said,^g King Agrippa, and all men who are here present with us, ye see this person, concerning whom all the multitude of the Jews applied to me both in Jerusalem and here, crying out against [him] that he ought not to

²⁵ live any longer. But I, having found that he had done nothing worthy of death, and this [man] himself having appealed to Augustus, I have decided to send him,

²⁶ concerning whom I have nothing certain to write to my lord. Wherefore I have brought him before you, and specially before thee, king Agrippa, so that an examination having been gone into I may have

²⁷ something to write: for it seems to me senseless sending a prisoner not also to signify the charges against him.

XXVI. And Agrippa said to Paul, It is permitted thee to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretching out his hand answered in his defence; I count myself happy, king Agrippa, in having to answer to-day before thee concerning all of which I am accused by the Jews,

³ especially because thou art acquainted with all the customs and questions which are among the Jews; wherefore I beseech thee to

⁴ hear me patiently. My manner of life then from my youth, which from its commencement was

⁵ passed among my nation in Jerusalem, know all the Jews, who

⁶ knew me before from the outset [of my life], if they would bear witness, that according to the strictest sect of our religion I

⁶ lived a Pharisee. And now I stand to be judged because of the hope of the promise made by God to

⁷ our^a fathers, to which our whole twelve tribes serving incessantly day and night hope to arrive; about which hope, O king,¹ I am

⁸ accused of [the] Jews. Why should it be judged a thing incredible in your sight if God raises the dead?

⁹ I indeed myself thought that I ought to do much against the name

¹⁰ of Jesus the Nazarean. Which also I did in Jerusalem, and myself shut up in prisons many of the saints, having received the authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death I

¹¹ gave my vote. And often punishing them in all the synagogues, I compelled them to blaspheme. And, being exceedingly furious against them, I persecuted them even to cities out [of our own land].

¹² And when, [engaged] in this, I was journeying to Damascus, with authority and power from the chief

¹³ priests, at mid-day, on the way, I saw, O king, a light above the brightness of the sun shining from heaven round about me and those who were journeying with me.

- ¹⁴ And, when we were all fallen to the ground, I heard a voice speaking to me, and saying, in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? [it is] hard for thee to kick against goads.
- ¹⁵ And I said, who art thou, Lord? And the Lord^k said, I am Jesus whom thou^l persecutest: but rise up and stand on thy feet; for for this purpose have I appeared to thee, to appoint thee to be a servant^m and a witness both of what thou hast seen, and of what I shall appear to thee in, taking thee out from among the people, and the nations, to whom now I send thee, ¹⁸ to open their eyes, that they may turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to God, that they may receive remission of sins and inheritance among them that are sanctified by faith in me.
- ¹⁹ Whereupon, king Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly ²⁰ vision; but have, first to those both in Damascus and Jerusalem, and to all the region of Judæa, and to the nations, announced that they should repent and turn to God, doing works worthy of repentance.
- ²¹ On account of these things the Jews, having seized me in the temple, attempted to lay hands ²² on and destroy me. Having therefore met with [the] help which is from God, I have stood firm unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying nothing else than those things which both the prophets and Moses have said ²³ should happen, [namely] whether Christ should suffer; whether he first, through resurrection of [the] dead, should announce light bothⁿ to the people and to the nations.

²⁴ And as he answered for his defence with these things, Festus says^o with a loud voice, Thou art mad, Paul; much learning turns thee to madness. But he said,^p I am not mad, most excellent Festus, but utter words of truth ²⁵ and soberness; for the king is informed about these things, to whom also I speak with all freedom. For I am persuaded that he is a stranger to none of these things; for this was not done in ²⁷ a corner. King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that ²⁸ thou believest. And Agrippa [said] to Paul, In a little thou persuadest ²⁹ me to become a christian. And Paul said, I would to God, both in little and in much, that not only thou, but all who hear me this ³⁰ day, should become such as I also am, except these bonds. And^q the king stood up, and the governor and Bernice, and those who ³¹ sat with them, and having gone apart, they spoke to one another, saying, This man does nothing ³² worthy of death or of bonds. And Agrippa said to Festus, This man might have been let go, if he had not appealed to Cæsar.

determined that we should sail to Italy, they delivered up Paul and certain other prisoners to a centurion, by name Julius, of Augustus' company. And going on board a ship of Adramyttium about to^r navigate by the places along Asia, we set sail, Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica, being with us. And the next day we arrived at Sidon. And Julius treated Paul kindly and suffered him to go to his friends and refresh himself. And setting sail thence we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were contrary. And having sailed over the waters of Cilicia and Pamphylia we came to Myra in Lycia: and there the centurion having found a ship of Alexandria sailing to Italy, he made us go on board her. And sailing slowly for many days, and having with difficulty got abreast of Cnidus, the wind not suffering us, we sailed under the lee of Crete abreast of Salmone; and coasting it with difficulty we came to a certain place called Fair Havens, near to which was [the] city of Lasea. And much time having now been spent, and navigation being already dangerous because the fast also was already past, Paul counselled them, saying, Men, I perceive that the navigation will be with disaster and much loss, not only of the cargo and the ship, but also of our lives. But the centurion believed rather the helmsman and the shipowner than what was said by Paul. And the harbour being ill adapted to winter in, the most counselled to set sail thence, if perhaps they might reach Phenice to winter in, a port of Crete looking north-east and south-east.^s And [the] south wind blowing gently, supposing that they had gained their object, having weighed anchor they sailed close in shore along Crete. But not long after there came down it a hurricane called Euroclydon. And the ship being caught and driven, and not able to bring her head to the wind, letting her go we were driven [before it]. But running under the lee of a certain island called Clauda, we were with difficulty able to make ourselves masters of the boat; which having hoisted up, they used helps, frapping^t the ship; and fearing lest they should^v run into Syrtis and run aground, having lowered the gear they were so driven. But the storm being extremely violent on us, on the next day they threw cargo overboard, and on the third day with their own hands they cast away the ship furniture. And neither sun nor stars appearing for many days, and no small storm lying on us, in the end all hope of our being saved was taken away. And when they had been a long while without taking food, Paul then standing up in the midst of them said, Ye ought, O men, to have hearkened to me and not have made sail from Crete and have gained this disaster and loss: and now I exhort you to be of good courage, for there shall be no loss at all of life of [any] of you, only of the ship. For an angel of the God whose I am and whom I serve stood by me this night, saying, Fear not, Paul; thou must stand before Cæsar; and behold, God has granted to thee all those that sail with thee. Wherefore be of good courage, men, for I believe God that thus it shall be, as it has been said to me. But we must be cast ashore on a certain island. And when the fourteenth night was come, we being driven about in Adria, towards the middle of the night the sailors supposed that some land neared them, and having sounded found twenty fathoms, and having gone a little farther and having again sounded they found fifteen fathoms; and fearing lest we^w should be cast on rocky places, casting four anchors out of the stern they wished that day were come.

^s The direction is expressed by that of winds, but κατά is the point 'to which' not 'from which' the wind blows. Lids is a south-west wind, and Chorus a north-west. But down the wind is, of course, just the opposite point.

But the sailors wishing to flee out of the ship, and having let down the boat into the sea under pretext of being about to carry out anchors from the prow, Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, Unless these abide in the ship ye cannot be saved. Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and let her fall. And while it was drawing on to daylight, Paul exhorted them all to partake of food, saying, Ye have passed the fourteenth day watching in expectation without taking food. Wherefore I exhort you to partake of food, for this has to do with your safety; for not a hair from the head of any one of you shall perish.^x And, having said these things and taken a loaf, he gave thanks to God before all, and having broken it began to eat. And all taking courage, themselves also took food. And we were in the ship, all the souls, two hundred and seventy-six. And having satisfied themselves with food, they lightened the ship, casting out the wheat into the sea.

And when it was day they did not recognize the land; but they perceived a certain bay having a strand, on which they were minded, if they should be able, to run the ship ashore; and, having cast off the anchors, they left [them] in the sea, at the same time loosening the lashings of the rudders, and hoisting the foresail to the wind, they made for the strand. And falling into a place where two seas met they ran the ship aground, and the prow having stuck itself fast remained unmoved, but the stern was broken up by the force of the waves. And [the] counsel of the soldiers was that they should kill the prisoners lest any one should swim off and escape. But the centurion, desirous of saving Paul, hindered them of their purpose, and commanded those who were able to swim, casting themselves first [into the sea], to get out on land ; 44 and the rest, some on boards, some on some of the things [that came] from the ship ; and thus it came to pass that all got safe to land.

XXVIII. And when they got safe [to land] we^v then knew that the 2 island was called Melita. But the barbarians shewed us no common kindness ; for, having kindled a fire, they took us all in because of 3 the rain that was falling and because of the cold. And Paul having gathered a certain² quantity of sticks together in a bundle and laid [it] on the fire, a viper coming out from^a the heat seized his hand.
 4 And when the barbarians saw the beast hanging from his hand, they said to one another, This man is certainly a murderer, whom, [though] saved out of the sea, Nemesis has not allowed to live.
 5 He however,^b having shaken off the beast into the fire, felt no
 6 harm. But they expected that he would have swollen or fallen down suddenly dead. But when they had expected a long time and saw nothing unusual happen to him, changing their opinion, they said he was a god.

7 Now in the country surrounding that place were the lands belonging to the chief man^c of the island, by name Publius, who received us and gave [us] hospitality three days in

8 a very friendly way. And it happened that the father of Publius lay ill of fever and dysentery, to whom Paul entered in, and having prayed and laid his hands on him
 9 cured him. But this^d having taken place, the rest also who had sicknesses in the island came and were 10 healed : who also honoured us with many honours, and on our leaving they made presents to us of what should minister to our wants.

11 And after three months we sailed in a ship which had wintered in the island, an Alexandrian, with 12 [the] Dioscuri for its ensign. And having come to Syracuse we remained three days. Whence, going in a circuitous course, we arrived at Rhegium ; and after one day, the wind having changed to south, on the second day we came to 14 Puteoli, where, having found brethren, we were begged to stay with them seven days. And thus 15 we went to Rome. And thence the brethren, having heard about us, came to meet us as far as Appii Forum and Tres Tabernæ, whom, when Paul saw, he thanked God and took courage.

16 And when we came to Rome, [the centurion delivered up the prisoners to the pretorian prefect, but]^e Paul was allowed to remain by himself with the soldier who

For this cause therefore I have called you to [me] to see and to speak to you; for on account of the hope of Israel I²¹ have this chain about me. And they said to him, For our parts, we have neither received letters from Judæa concerning thee, nor has any one of the brethren who has arrived reported or said any²² thing evil concerning thee. But we beg^h to hear of thee what thou thinkest, for as concerning this sect it is known to us that it is²³ everywhere spoken against. For the heart of this people has become fat, and they hear heavily with their ears, and they have closed their eyes, lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and²⁸ I should heal them. EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS.

PAUL, bondsman of Jesus Christ, [a] called^a apostle, separated to 2 God's glad tidings, (which he had before promised by his prophets
 3 in holy writings,^b) concerning his Son (come of David's seed according 4 to flesh, marked out Son of God in power, according to [the] Spirit^c of holiness, by resurrection of [the] dead) Jesus Christ our
 5 Lord; by whom we have received grace and apostleship in behalf of his name, for obedience of faith among all the nations,
 6 among whom are ye also [the] called^d of Jesus Christ: to all that are in Rome, beloved of God, called^e saints: Grace to you and peace from God our Father and [our] Lord Jesus Christ.
 8 First, I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is proclaimed in the 9 whole world; for God is my witness, whom I serve in my spirit in the glad tidings of his Son, how unceasingly I make mention of 10 you, always beseeching at my prayers, if any way now at least I may be prospered,^f by the will 11 of God to come to you. For I greatly desire to see you, that I may impart to you some spiritual 12 gift to establish you; that is, to have mutual comfort among you, each by the faith which [is] in the 13 other, both yours and mine. But I do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, that I often proposed to come to you, (and have been hindered until the present time,) that I might have some fruit among you also, even as among 14 the other nations. I am a debtor both to Greeks and barbarians, 15 both to wise and unintelligent: so, as far as depends on me, am I ready to announce the glad tidings to you also who [are] in Rome.

 16 For I am not ashamed of the glad tidings: ^g for it is God's power to salvation, to every one that

^a 'A called apostle,' and ver. 7 'called saints:' in the latter case the sense is changed in the Authorized Version. In the original they are designated as already saints, 'saints by the calling of God,' not as simply called to be so. 'Called saints' is ambiguous in English: the sense is determined in the note on verse 7.

^b 'In holy writings:' there is no article; and 'in the holy scriptures' is not warranted by the original. The statement of the apostle is general, addressing himself, as he does, to Gentiles.

^c In many cases it is impossible to put a small or a large S rightly to the word Spirit, as the presence and power of the Holy Ghost characterizes the state, and that and the state are both included. And so it is here. It is divine, not merely human, perfectness, and by the Holy Ghost, yet it is Christ's state. But it is not merely a state, but that state which consists in the presence and power of the Holy Ghost. and is the absolute expression of it. On the whole, I put a large S here, but it is the Son manifested on earth who is spoken of, and characteristic of him. Resurrection was the proof, but he who had eyes to see saw what came in flesh justified in the Spirit even when here, the same Spirit which was quickening power in resurrection, as 1 Peter iii. 18, ζῶσαντες ἐν πνεύματι.

^e That is, saints by calling: 'called to be saints' is not the meaning of the passage.

^f εὐδοχήσομαι does not refer to a prosperous journey, but to the hope that God may favour or prosper him so that he may come; he had long wished it, and hoped that at last it might be granted him.

^g T. R. adds 'of Christ.'

ROMANS I.

believes, both to Jew first, and to 17 Greek : for righteousness of God^h is revealed therein, on the principle of faith, to faith : according as it is written, But the just shall live byⁱ faith.

18 For there is revealed wrath of God from heaven upon all impiety and unrighteousness of men holding the truth in unrighteousness.

19 Because what may be known of God is manifest among them, for God has manifested [it] to them,— 20 for from [the] world's creation the invisible things of him are perceived, being apprehended by the mind through the things that are made, both his eternal power and divinity,^j—so as to render^k them inexcusable.

21 Because,^l knowing God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful ; but fell into folly in their thoughts,^m and their heart, without understanding, was 22 darkened : professing themselves 23 to be wise, they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God into [the] likeness of an image of corruptible man and of birds and quadrupeds and rep-24 tiles. Wherefore God gave them up alsoⁿ in the lusts of their heart to uncleanness, to dishonour their 25 bodies between themselves : who^o changed the truth of God into falsehood, and honoured and served the creature more than him who had created [it], who is blessed 26 for ever. Amen. For this reason God gave them up to vile lusts ;

 for both their females changed the natural use into that contrary to 27 nature ; and in like manner the males also, leaving the natural use of the female, were inflamed in their lust towards one another ;
 males with males working shame,
 and receiving in themselves the recompense of their error which 28 was fit. And according as they did not think good^p to have God in [their] knowledge, God gave them up to a reprobate^q mind to 29 do unseemly things ; being filled with all unrighteousness,^r wickedness, covetousness, malice ; full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, evil

^h 'Righteousness of God.' The absence of the article may arrest the mind here, and in some other places, in this part of the epistle. It is likely to do so, because the righteousness of God is now a known doctrine ; not so when the apostle taught. This righteousness of God was a wholly new thought, as was indeed wrath from heaven : wrath on earth was not. The gospel, or 'glad tidings,' was the power of God to salvation, because righteousness of God (that kind of righteousness) was revealed—not that of man required. See also chap. iii. 21.

ⁱ 'By faith.' The word 'by' is the same in Greek (ἐκ) as that translated 'on the principle of.' I have left 'by' as being a quotation.

^j Here θεϊότης is characteristic ; not θεότης, 'Godhead,' as in Col. ii. 9.

^k εἰς τὸ εἶναι does not affirm that they are, simply, but the consequence of the display of creative glory in what was seen. 'So that they should,' or 'might be,' is ambiguous in English, and implies purpose. Hence I have said 'so as to render,' which gives the sense.

^l This is the second reason : the first is ver. 19.

^m διαλογισμοῖς signifies the 'inward reasonings of the mind.' The word 'thoughts' in English conveys this best.

ⁿ The 'also' is doubtful here.

^p ἐδοκίμασαν is not 'they liked ;' the word means 'to assay, test, prove ;' and thence 'approve, or hold for good.'

^q Or, as some, 'a mind void of moral discernment,' ἀδόκιμον answering to 'did not think good ;' οὐκ ἐδοκίμασαν.

II. Therefore thou art inexcusable, O man, every one who judgest, for in that in which thou judgest another, thou condemnest⁷ thyself ; for thou that judgest doest the² same things. But we know that the judgment of God is according to truth upon those who do such³ things. And thinkest thou this, O man, who judgest those that do such things, and practisest them [thyself], that thou shalt escape⁴ the judgment of God ? or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering ; not knowing that the goodness of God leads thee to⁵ repentance ? but, according to thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up to thyself wrath, in [the] day of wrath, and revelation of [the] righteous judgment of⁶ God, who shall render to each⁷ according to his works : to them who, in patient continuance of good works,⁸ seek for glory, honour, and incorruptibility,⁹ life⁸ eternal. But to those that are contentious, and are disobedient to the truth, but obey unrighteousness, [there shall be] wrath⁹ and indignation,² tribulation and distress, on every soul of man that works evil, both of Jew first, and¹⁰ of Greek ; but glory and honour and peace to every one that works good, both to Jew first, and to¹¹ Greek : for there is no acceptance¹² of persons with God. For as many as have sinned without law shall perish also without law ; and as many as have sinned under law¹³ shall be judged by law, (for not the hearers of the law [are] just before

³ The ancients and Calvin and others would translate 'God-haters;' but I doubt, in spite of ancient opinion drawn from reasoning, that it has this sense. It seems to me that it had acquired the sense of 'abominable,' 'abominably wicked:' as 'cursed children' does not mean that a curse is pronounced, but that they are so bad as to be fit to be only thus designated. So the moral state of θεοστυγίης. See Fritzsche, Meyer, &c. Suidas and Œcumenius give it only as an opinion, not as the use of the word in Greek. Kypke's citations do not, I think, prove anything; they accord with the general sense given.

⁵ δικαίωμα, that which the righteous will of God requires, hence even an ordinance of his will, or a righteous act meeting his requirement. See Luke i. 6 and Rom. v 18; and also Rev. xv. 4, where it is judgment itself. See Rom. ii. 5.

⁶ πράσσω is 'to do an act' as a matter of fact to carry it out into a fact; ποιέω 'to make, produce.' I have therefore translated πράσσω 'to do,' and ποιέω 'practise,' which is more a course of action going on, doing it, as in German was machst du dort.

⁷ The constant use of σύν with the verb, by the apostle, is very difficult, sometimes impossible, to render justly. The apostle means here that not only their own passions hurry them away, but, being thoroughly corrupt, they enjoy other people's sinning; associating themselves in thought and spirit with them, as taking pleasure in their doing so.

⁸ There is in Greek a paronomasia, strengthening the sense: κρίνεις τὸν ἕτερον, σεαυτὸν κατακρίνεις.

⁹ Literally 'work,' in the singular.

¹⁰ ἀφθαρσία, 'incorruptibility,' not 'immortality': the resurrection, or change, of the body is looked for; and it is thus a part of christian truth.

¹¹ T. R. reads 'indignation and wrath.'

ROMANS II, III.

God, but the doers of the law shall 14 be justified. For when [those of the] nations, which have no law, practise by nature the things of the law, these, having no law, are 15 a law to themselves; who² shew the work of the law written^a in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts accusing or else excusing them-16 selves between themselves;) in [the] day when God shall judge the secrets of men, according to my glad tidings, by Jesus Christ.

17 But if^b thou art named a Jew, and retest in the law, and makest 18 thy boast in God, and knowest the will, and discerningly approvest
 the things that are more excellent,
 being instructed out of the law;
 19 and hast confidence that thou thyself art a leader of the blind, a light of those who [are] in dark-20 ness, an instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, having the form of knowledge and of truth in the law: thou then that teachest 21 another, dost thou not teach thyself? thou that preachest not to steal, dost thou steal? thou that 22 sayest [man should] not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, 23 dost thou commit sacrilege? thou who boastest in law, dost thou by transgression of the law dishonour 24 God? For the name of God is blasphemed on your account among the nations, according as 25 it is written. For circumcision indeed profits if thou keep^c the law; but if thou be a law-transgressor, thy circumcision is become 26 uncircumcision. If therefore the uncircumcision keep the requirements of the law, shall not his uncircumcision be reckoned^d for 27 circumcision, and uncircumcision by nature, fulfilling the law, judge thee, who, with^e letter and circumcision, [art] a law-transgres-28 sor? For he is not a Jew who circumcision which is outward in 29 flesh; but he [is] a Jew [who is so] inwardly;^g and circumcision, of the heart, in spirit, not in letter;

 whose praise [is] not of men, but of God.

III. What then [is] the superiority of the Jew? or what the profit of 2 circumcision? Much every way:
 and first indeed, that to them were entrusted the oracles of God.
 3 For what? if some have not believed, shall their unbelief make the faith of God of none effect?
 4 Far be the thought: but let God

^c T. R. reads 'behold,' ἴδε, instead of εἰ δέ.

^e The word commonly translated 'imputed.'

^f δὲ, with the genitive, has the sense of 'in a given state or condition, as well as 'by means of.' 'By letter and circumcision' gives no definite sense here. I have endeavoured to express the sense by

 'with,' as their having or possessing letter and circumcision practically puts them in that condition.

righteousness, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who inflicts wrath?^b I speak according to 6 man. Far be the thought: since how shall God judge the world?
 7 For if the truth of God in my lie has more¹ abounded to his glory, why yet am I also judged as a 8 sinner? and not, according as we are injuriously charged, and according as some affirm that we say, Let us practise evil things, that good ones may come? whose judgment is just.

9 What then? are we better? No, in no wise: for we have before charged both Jews and Greeks 10 with being all under sin: according as it is written, There is not a righteous [man], not even one:
 11 There is not the [man] that understands, there is not one that 12 seeks after God. All have gone out of the way, they have together become unprofitable; there is not one that practises goodness, there is not so much as one:
 13 Their throat [is] an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit: asps' poison [is]
 14 under their lips: whose mouth

^b 'Inflicts wrath' is hardly English, as wrath is a sentiment of the mind; and it is what reaches another which is inflicted, as punishment or pain. But 'executes' is not the sense, nor is 'takes vengeance.' The form of expression is in Greek, as in the use of 'inflict' in English, a figure of the effect for the cause. ἐπιφέρει τὴν ὀργήν. Parkhurst gives 'inflicts wrath' or 'vengeance;' so I have ventured it.

¹ Or 'has more abounded by my lie.' In the translation in the text the thought is 'he remained true in spite of my failure.'

^k Literally 'in the law.'

^l γένηται: 'become in that state,' not as future, but as the existing consequence. Hence I say 'be.'

^m Or 'because:' so Meyer, Alford, and De Wette, referring it to what goes before.

is full of cursing and bitterness:
 15 swift their feet to shed blood:
 16 ruin and misery in their ways:
 17 and way of peace they have not
 18 known: there is no fear of God
 19 before their eyes. Now we know that whatever the things the law says, it speaks to them who [are] under^a the law, that every mouth may be stopped, and all the world be¹ under judgment to God.

20 Wherefore^m by works of law no flesh shall be justified before him; for by law [is] knowledge of sin.

21 But now without law righteousness of God is manifested, borne witness to by the law and the 22 prophets: ⁿ righteousness of God by faith of Jesus Christ towards all, and upon all those who believe: for there is no difference;
 23 for all have sinned, and come
 24 short^o of the glory of God; being justified freely by his grace through the redemption which [is] in Christ
 25 Jesus; whom God has set forth a mercy-seat,^p through faith in his blood, for [the] shewing forth of his righteousness, in respect of the passing by^q the sins that had taken place before, through the

But it is a much more general proposition deduced from that, as the second part of the sentence shews, which does refer to what goes before.

ⁿ Greek has δέ, but it is better left out for the sense in English.

^o 'Come' is the present fact: 'they come short': 'are short' is too familiar. I add the note, otherwise 'come' might seem dependent on 'have.' 'Are come' is the perfect.

^p I do not think this word can be used for '[a] propitiatory [sacrifice]' or 'propitiation': it certainly is not its habitual use in LXX; and we have the two parts of the work of the great day of atonement, here and in chap. iv. 75.

^q 'In respect of the passing by the sins.' I have hesitated as to using διά with the

ROMANS III, IV.

²⁶ forbearance of God; for [the] shewing forth of his righteousness in the present time, so that he should be just, and justify him that is of [the] faith of Jesus.

²⁷ Where then [is] boasting? It has been excluded. By what law? of works? Nay, but by law of faith;

²⁸ for^r we reckon that a man is justified by faith, without works of

²⁹ law. Is [God] the God of Jews only? is he not of [the] nations

³⁰ also? Yea, of nations also: since indeed [it is] one God who shall justify [the] circumcision on the principle of faith, and uncircum-

³¹ cision by faith. Do we then make void law by faith? Far be the thought: [no,] but we establish law.

IV. What shall we say then that Abraham our father^s according

² to flesh has found? For if Abraham has been justified on the principle of works, he has whereof to boast, but not before God.

³ For what does the scripture say? And Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as^t right-

⁴ eousness. Now to him that works accusative in this sense here; but on the whole I do not doubt it gives the sense. God had passed by, not brought into judgment, the sins of Old Testament believers; and the accomplishment of the atonement shewed his righteousness in this. Now the righteousness is itself shewn, and to be relied on.

^t I am not quite satisfied with 'as;' but I am that it is the nearest approach to the sense in English. 'For,' I object to; because then faith is made of positive worth, having the value of righteousness; whereas the sense is that he was holden for righteous in virtue of faith. 'For' does not go far enough as righteousness; too far as to a positive value of faith. Faith might be reckoned for righteousness, and yet the

the reward is not reckoned as of

⁵ grace, but of debt: but to him who does not work, but believes on him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is reckoned as righteousness.

⁶ Even as David also declares the blessedness of the man to whom God reckons righteousness

⁷ without works: Blessed [they] whose lawlessnesses have been forgiven, and whose sins have been ⁸ covered: blessed [the] man to whom^v [the] Lord shall not at all reckon sin.^w

⁹ [Does] this blessedness then [rest] on the circumcision, or also on the uncircumcision? For we say that faith has been reckoned

¹⁰ to Abraham as righteousness. How then has it been reckoned? when he was in circumcision, or in uncircumcision? Not in circumci-

¹¹ sion, but in uncircumcision. And he received [the] sign of circumcision [as] seal of the righteousness of faith which [he had] being in uncircumcision, that he might^x be [the] father of all them that believe being in uncircumcision, that righteousness might be reckoned righteousness come short of what was required; whereas if it be reckoned as righteousness, the last word is taken in its own value as such: 'the man was held to be righteous,' 'to have righteousness.' It is a Hebrew form. See Psalm cvi. 31. I apprehend too that Genesis xv. 6, where there is no preposition, makes the force of the expression plain.

^v Many read 'whose sin:' or for φ: 'whose sin [the] Lord shall not at all reckon [to him]'

^w That is, 'not account of him as having any.'

^x εἰς τὸ εἶναι, 'in order to his being.' It is necessary perhaps to say 'that he might be' in English; but there is an expression of purpose which goes rather too far. See note to chap. i. 20.

¹² to them also; ⁷ and father of circumcision, not only to those who are of [the] circumcision, but to those also who walk in the steps of the faith, during uncircumcision, of our father Abraham.²

¹³ For [it was] not by law that the promise was to Abraham, or to his seed, that he should be heir of [the] world, but by righteousness

¹⁴ of faith. For if they which [are] of law be heirs, faith is made vain, and the promise made of no effect. For law ^a works wrath;

¹⁵ but ^b where no law is neither [is there] transgression. Therefore [it is] on the principle of faith, that [it might be] according to grace,

¹⁶ in order to the promise being sure to all the seed, not to that only which [is] of the law, but to that also which [is] of Abraham's faith,

¹⁷ who is father of us all (according as it is written, I have made thee father of many nations) before the God whom he believed, who quickens the dead, and calls the things which be not as being;

¹⁸ who against hope believed in hope to his becoming father of many nations, according to that which was spoken, So shall thy seed be: and not being weak in faith, he considered not ^d his own body already become dead, being about a hundred years old, and the deadening of Sarah's womb,

²⁰ and hesitated not at the promise of God through unbelief; but found strength in faith, ^e giving glory to

²¹ God; and being fully persuaded that what he has promised he is able also to do; wherefore also it was reckoned to him as righteousness.

²² Now it was not written on his account alone that it was

²³ reckoned to him, but on ours also, to whom, believing upon him who has raised from among ²⁴ the dead Jesus our Lord, who has been delivered for our offences and has been raised for our justification, it will be reckoned.

V. Therefore having been justified on the principle of faith, we have ^f peace toward God through our ² Lord Jesus Christ; by whom we have ^g also access by faith into this favour in which we stand, and we boast in hope of the glory of God.

³ And not only [that], but we also

⁷ Some omit 'also' on good authority, perhaps rightly.

² Some may doubt of the accuracy of the translation of ver. 12, from the apparent order of the Greek words. However, I give without any hesitation the translation in the text, adding this notice to any one who can consult the Greek. It is merely the apparent form of the phrase which leads to another translation. 'Father of circumcision' means, he in whom real separation to God was first publicly established. Perhaps 'of the faith, during [his] uncircumcision, of our father Abraham' may be clearer. This notice will at any rate suffice.

^a Or 'for the law.'

^e Or 'with:' ἐν is the state or condition of his mind in believing. See 1 Cor. ix. 10.

^d Some omit 'not,' and take δέ in ver. 20 like ἀλλὰ.

^e 'Found strength in faith' may seem rather free; but 'strengthened by faith' might very easily be applied to his body in this passage; whereas ἐνδυναμῶθι is inwardly strengthened: 'was strong' is not a just translation. It is, I apprehend, in opposition to οὐ διεκρίθη τῇ ἀπιστίᾳ. ἐνδύναμος is 'gifted with strength.' Abraham was gifted with strength, by faith (i.e., inwardly, in contrast with doubt).

^f Many read 'let us have.'

^g Perfect: 'have obtained and possess.'

boast in tribulations, knowing that 4 tribulation works endurance; and endurance, experience; and expe-5 rience, hope; and hope does not make ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which has been 6 given to us: for we being still without strength, in [the] due time
 Christ has died^h for [the] ungodly.
 7 For scarcely for a just [man] will one die, for perhaps for a good [man] some one might also dare
 8 to die; but God commends his own love to us, in that, we being still sinners, Christ has died for 9 us. Much rather therefore, having been now justified in [the power of] his blood, we shall be 10 saved by him from wrath. For if, being enemies, we have been reconciled to God through the death of his Son, much rather, having been reconciled, we shall

^h Or 'died.' It is the aorist; but 'has died' is used in English for the fact, which is the force of the aorist. That is, it is so used where the moral import is an abiding one, and time is not in question, though no abiding effect is meant. 'He has taken a journey.' The simple preterite i.e., without auxiliary, is not an aorist in English; it is historical, and the fact is viewed as passed and done with, or part of a whole so regarded.

ⁱ Or 'by his blood,' 'by his life': when ἐν is used morally it has the force of 'in the power,' 'intrinsic character of;' ἐν σαρτί, ἐν πνεύματι. It is not the same preposition here as in that which I have translated 'through the death.' Here the article and αὐτοῦ give it a somewhat more instrumental character.

^k The epistle divides itself here, as to doctrine, into two distinct parts, which a new paragraph hardly shews. Up to verse 11 'sins' had been treated of; from this point 'sin.'

^l This is a different word from that translated 'reckoned' in chapter iv. (both 'imputed' in Auth. Ver.) There, a man is estimated such or such, judicially esteemed such: here, a particular fault is

be saved by^l [the power of] his life.

11 And not only [that], but [we are] making our boast in God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom now we have received the reconciliation.

12 ^k For this [cause], even as by one man sin entered into the world, and by sin death; and thus death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned: (for until law sin was in [the] world; but sin is not put to account^l when there is no law; but death reigned^m from Adam until Moses, even upon those who had not sinnedⁿ in the likeness of Adam's transgression, who is [the] figure of him to come.

13 But [shall]^o not the act of favour [be] as the offence? For if by the offence of one the many have died, much rather has the grace of God, and the free gift in grace, which put to a person's account. The former is found in Gal. iii. 8, 2 Cor. v. 19; this only in Philem. 18.

^m Or 'has reigned.'

ⁿ Or 'according to.' 'Sinning after' has rather the character of copying, which is not the sense here. It refers to Hosea vi. 7. They, like Adam, have transgressed the covenant: this of Israel. But they who had no law did not: ἐπί is here the form or character in or with which anything happens; that which gives it its character. It is a characterizing condition of the act: a common use of ἐπί with a dative. So Heb. x. 28, ix. 17. So ἐφ' ᾧ ἐπί πόσῳ. Herodian, quoted by Fritzsche, ἐφ' ἑτέρας εἰσελθὼν ἐλπίσιν. It must be differently translated in different cases in English. In verse 12 here 'in that' or 'for that'; in Herodian 'with other hopes'; ἐπί πόσῳ, for 'how much.' Heb. x. 28: 'on [the credit or testimony of] two or three witnesses.' Heb. ix. 17: 'where death is come in, has intervened.' It is a condition necessary to, or characterizing what is done by, the verb.

^o Or 'not as the offence [is] the act of favour.'

[is] by one man Jesus Christ, ¹⁶abounded unto the many. And [shall]^p not as by one that has sinned [be] the gift? For the judgment [was] of ^qone to condemnation, but the act of favour, of many offences unto justification.^r For if by the offence of the one death reigned by the one, much rather shall those who receive the abundance of grace, and of the free gift of righteousness, reign in life by the one Jesus Christ:^s so then as [it was] by one offence towards all men to condemnation, so by one righteousness^t towards all men for justification of life. For as indeed by the disobedience of the one man the many have been constituted sinners; so also by the obedience of the one the many will be constituted righteous. But law came in,^u in order that the offence might abound; but where sin abounded, ²¹grace has overabounded, in order that, even as sin has reigned in [the power of] death, so also grace might reign through righteousness^v to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

VI. What then shall we say? Should^w we continue in sin that ²grace may abound? Far be the thought. We who have died to sin, how shall we still live in it? ³Are you ignorant that we, as many as have been baptized unto Christ Jesus, have been baptized unto his ⁴death? We have been buried therefore with him by baptism unto death, in order that, even as Christ has been raised up from among [the] dead by the glory of the Father, so we also should walk in new- ⁵ness of life. For if we are become identified with him in the likeness of his death, so also we shall be of ⁶[his] resurrection; knowing this, that our old man has been crucified with [him], that the body of sin might be annulled, that we ⁷should no longer serve sin. For he that has died is justified^x from ⁸sin. Now if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall ⁹also live with him, knowing that

^q That is, had its foundation in, was grounded on, one single thing or act.

^r 'Justification,' or 'judicial righteousness.' Here the Greek is more exact than English perhaps allows. δικαίωμα is the state of accomplished subsisting righteousness before God, in which justification places us; δικαιώσεις, the act of justifying. In English we must use justification for both. I cannot say 'righteousness'; it might be practical δικαιοσύνη. In the last verse of chap. iv. it is δικαιώσεις, because it was the doing of it which was in view, for our justifying; not, as some read, because we were justified—this can be said only (v. 1) in connection with faith, and would have been δὲ τὸ δικαιωθῆναι ἡμᾶς. Διὰ τὴν δικαιοσύνην ἡμῶν is the effect future to the rising again. I would add, δώρημα is translated 'gift,' χάρισμα 'act of favour,' and δωρεὰ 'free gift,' to distinguish them.

^s Verses 18 to 17 are a parenthesis.

^t Here 'righteousness' is, as in ver. 16, δικαίωμα, translated there 'justification,' which here it evidently cannot be; it is the accomplished subsisting righteousness answering to the one offence.

^u παρεισήλθεν, came in as an extra thing, or by the bye.

^v δικαιοσύνη. It is the thing on that principle, not simply an effectuated accomplished δικαίωμα.

^w T. R. reads 'shall we.' It is the subjunctive, ἐπιμένωμεν for ἐπιμενοῦμεν, what is called the deliberative subjunctive: 'Are we to do so?'

^x 'Justified,' δεδικαιώται: 'free' is ambiguous, and might be supposed to be ἐλεύθερος. It is justified, cleared, discharged. From 'sin,' note, not 'sins.'

ROMANS VI, VII.

Christ having been raised up from among [the] dead dies no more : death has dominion over him no more. For in that he has⁷ died, he has⁷ died to sin once for all ; but in that he lives, he lives to God.

¹¹ So also ye reckon yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus.⁸ Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body to obey^a its lusts. Neither yield^b your members instruments of unrighteousness to sin, but yield yourselves to God as alive from among^c [the] dead, and your members instruments of righteousness to God.

¹⁴ For sin shall not have dominion over you, for ye are not under law but under grace.

¹⁵ What then ? should^d we sin because we are not under law but under grace ? Far be the thought.

¹⁶ Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves bondsmen for obedience, ye are bondsmen to him whom ye obey, whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness ? But thanks [be] to God, that ye were bondsmen of sin, but have obeyed from the heart the form of teaching into which ye were instructed.

¹⁸ Now, having got your freedom from sin, ye have become bondsmen to righteousness. I speak humanly on account of the weakness of your flesh. For even as ye have yielded your members in bondage^e to uncleanness and to lawlessness unto lawlessness, so now yield^f your members in bondage to righteousness unto holiness.

²⁰ For when ye were bondsmen of sin ye were free from righteousness.

VII. Are ye ignorant, brethren, (for I speak to those knowing law,) that law^g rules over a man^h as long as he lives ? For the married woman is bound by law to her husband so long as he is alive ; but if the husband should die, she is clear from the law of the husband : so then, the husband being alive, she shall be called an adulteress if she be to another man ; but if the husband should die she is free from the law, so as not to be an adulteress though she be toⁱ another man. So that, my brethren

⁷ Or 'died.' It is the fact.
⁸ T. R. adds 'our Lord,' with good authorities.
^a T. R. reads 'in its lusts.' The MSS vary.
^b The distinction between πιστάτετε and παροστήσατε—that is, the present, which has a continuous present sense ; and the aorist, which gives the act in itself—I have sought in vain a means of distinguishing in English. μηδὲ πιστάτετε, 'neither yield your members.' It is at no time to be done. παροστήσατε, 'let it have been done' as a once accomplished act.

^e 'Out of dead are alive.' The order of the words gives a contrasted force to the ἐκ νεκρῶν ; not merely that they came thence. But 'out of dead alive' is hardly English.
^f Or 'are we to sin?' the subjunctive aorist. T. R. reads 'shall.'
^g The word translated 'in bondage' is an adjective, expressing the state of slavery, to which no word answers in English.
^h This is the aorist, the act done once for all, have it done.
ⁱ Or 'the law.'

ren, ye also have been made dead to the law by the body of the Christ, to be to another who has been raised up from among [the] dead, in order that we might bear fruit to God.

⁵ For when we were in the flesh the passions of sins, which [were] by the law, wrought in our members ⁶ to bring forth fruit to death; but now we are clear from the law, having died^h in that in which we were held, so that we should serve in newness of spirit, and not in oldness of letter.

⁷ What shall we say then? [is] the lawⁱ sin? Far be the thought. But I had not known sin, unless by law: for I had not had conscience also of lust unless the law had said, Thou shalt not ⁸ lust; but sin, getting a point of attack by the commandment, wrought in me every lust; for ⁹ without law sin [was] dead. But I was alive without law once; but the commandment having come, ¹⁰ sin revived, but I died. And the commandment, which [was] for life, was found, [as] to me, itself ¹¹ [to be] unto death: for sin, getting a point of attack by the commandment, deceived^j me, and by it slew ¹² [me]. So that the law indeed [is]

holy, and the commandment holy, ¹³ and just, and good. Did then that which is good become^k death to me? Far be the thought. But sin, that it might appear sin, working^l death to me by that which is good; in order that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful. For we know that the law is spiritual: but I^m am fleshly,ⁿ sold under sin. For that which I do,^o I do not own: for not what I will, this I do; but what I ¹⁴ hate, this I practise. But if what I do not will, this I practise, I ¹⁵ consent to the law that [it is] ¹⁶ right. Now then it is no longer I that do^o it; but the sin that ¹⁷ dwells in me. For I know that in me, that is, in my flesh, good does not dwell: for to will is there with me;^p but to do^o right [I find]^q ¹⁸ not. For I do not practise the good that I will; but the evil I ¹⁹ do not will, that I do.^o But if what I do not will, this I practise, it is no longer I do^o it, but the ²⁰ sin that dwells in me. I find then the law upon me who wills to practise what is right, that with me ²¹ evil is there.^p For I delight in the law of God according to the inward man: but I see another law ²² in my members, warring in oppo-

^h 'Having died.' T. B. reads 'that being dead in which.' But it is an unfounded reading. Erasm. and Steph. 1550 have ἀποθανόντες; Beza ἀποθανόντος.

^j ἐξηπάτησε.

^k T. R. reads rather 'is become,' γέγονε: ἐγένετο is read by all the best uncial MSS. κ, B, A, C, D, and Porph. (Tisch.) Meyer, Lachm. Alford have ἐγένετο. I notice it as Tisch. and Griesb. have γέγονεν. Two MSS, F, G, omit both.

^m I have put 'I' in italics when the personal pronoun ἐγώ is emphatically introduced in Greek and the emphasis is not otherwise apparent; the position of ἐμοί 'me,' produces the same effect, save in verse 9; the contrast is there apparent.

ⁿ σαρκινός. T. B. reads σαρκικός.

^o καταργάζομαι, 'work out to a result:' same word as in verse 12.

^p 'Is there with me.' I find no better way of translating, though I am not satisfied. The word is παράκειται μοι, and in verse 21, ἐμοί παράκειται. 'Sin is by me,' —vorhanden.

sition to the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which exists in my members. O wretched man that I [am]! who shall deliver me out of this body of death? I thank God, through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then I myself with the mind serve God's law; but with the flesh sin's law.

VIII. There is then now no condemnation, to those in Christ Jesus.†

‡ For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has set me free from the law of sin and of death.

§ For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, having sent his own Son, in likeness of flesh of sin, and for sin, has condemned sin in

¶ the flesh, in order that the righteous requirement* of the law should be fulfilled in us, who do not walk according to flesh but

‡ according to Spirit. For they that are according to flesh mind the things of the flesh; and they that are according to Spirit, the things of the Spirit. For the mind of the flesh [is] death; but the mind of the Spirit life and peace.

§ Because the mind of the flesh is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God; for

¶ neither indeed can it be: and they

that are in flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in flesh but in Spirit,† if indeed God's Spirit dwell in you; but if any one has not [the] Spirit of Christ he is not of him: but if Christ be in you, the body is dead on account of sin, but the Spirit life on account of righteousness. But if the Spirit of him that has raised up Jesus from among [the] dead dwell in you, he that has raised up Christ from among [the] dead shall quicken your mortal bodies also on account‡ of his Spirit which dwells in you. So then, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to flesh; for if ye live according to flesh, ye are about to die; but if, by the Spirit, ye put to death the deeds of the body, ye will live: for as many as are led by [the] Spirit of God, these are sons of God. For ye have not received a spirit of bondage again for fear, but ye have received a spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The Spirit itself bears witness with our spirit, that we are children of God. And if children, heirs also: heirs of God, and Christ's joint heirs; if indeed we suffer with [him], that we may also be glorified with * [him].

* T. R. adds 'who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit' to this verse; but it cannot be translated as in Auth. Ver. The Greek, were it to stand as part of the text, must be translated, 'There is no condemnation for those who, in Christ Jesus, walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit;' or, 'those in Christ Jesus, who,' &c.

‡ Another instance of the difficulty of putting a large or small 'S.' It is clearly the state and characteristic of the believer;

but it is so by the presence of the Spirit. See too verse 15.

‡ T. B. reads 'by, or through, his Spirit.' The reading was the subject of mutual charges of corrupting the text between the orthodox and the Macedonians in the fourth century.

* This is an example of the frequent use of συν prefixed to the verb, often difficult to render in English. 'If we co-suffer that we may be co-glorified' answers to it, but is hardly tolerable as English.

ROMANS VIII.

¹⁸ For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy [to be compared] with the coming glory to be revealed to us.¹⁹ For the anxious^a looking out of the creature expects the revelation of the sons of God: for the creature has been made subject to vanity, not of its will, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same, ²¹ in hope that the creature itself also shall be set free from the bondage of corruption into the liberty of the glory of the children of God.^a For we know that the whole creation^b groans together and travails in pain together until ²³ now. And not only [that], but even we ourselves, who have the first-fruits of the Spirit, we also ourselves groan in ourselves, awaiting adoption, [that is] the redemption of our body. For we have been saved in hope; but hope seen is not hope; for what any one sees, ²⁵ why does he also hope? But if what we see not we hope,^c we ²⁶ expect in patience. And in like manner the Spirit joins^d also its help to our weakness; ^e for we do not know what we should pray for as is fitting, but the Spirit itself makes intercession^f with groan-

ings which cannot be uttered. ²⁷ But he who searches the hearts knows what [is] the mind of the Spirit, because he intercedes for saints according to God. But we ²⁸ do^g know that all things work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called ²⁹ according to purpose. Because whom he has foreknown, he has also predestinated [to be] conformed to the image of his Son, so that he should be [the] first-born ³⁰ among many brethren. But whom he has predestinated, these also he has called; and whom he has called, these also he has justified; but whom he has justified, these also he has glorified. ³¹ What shall we then say to these things? If God [be] for us, who ³² against us? He who, yea, has not spared his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not also with him grant us all things? ³³ Who shall bring an accusation against God's elect? [It is] God ³⁴ who justifies: who is he that condemns? [It is] Christ who has died, but rather has been also raised up; who is also at the right hand of God; who also ³⁵ intercedes for us: who shall sepa-

¹ 'The glory about to be revealed:' ἀποκαλυφθῆναι depends, I suppose, grammatically on μέλλουσιν; but the sense is most nearly given in the text. See Gal. iii. 23, and 1 Cor. iii. 22. The emphasis is on μέλλουσιν in contrast with τοῦ νῦν καιροῦ.

^a Or 'constant.'

^b 'Glorious liberty' does not give the sense: the creature has not part in the liberty of grace; it will in that which glory gives.

^c 'Creation' is the translation of the same word as that rendered 'creature' in verses 9—21; but the word 'whole' gives it a concrete, and not an abstract, character; and therefore I have here translated it 'creation.'

^d 'Hope for' may seem more correct English, but separates from the force of the preceding words, with which we are all familiar.

^e συναντιλαμβάνεται. ἀντιλαμβάνω is 'to take up a person's cause, so as to help them.' But we have the συν, 'with,' added, which I have rendered by the word 'join,' though not satisfied with it.

^f Or 'infirmity.' T. R. reads 'weaknesses' or 'infirmities.'

rate us from the love of Christ? tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or danger, or sword? According as it is written, For thy sake we are put to death all the day long; we have been reckoned as sheep for slaughter. But in all these things we more than conquer through him that has loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers,^b nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which [is] in Christ Jesus our Lord.

IX. I say [the] truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience bearing witness with me in [the] Holy Spirit, that I have great grief and uninter-rupted pain in my heart,¹ for I have wished, I myself, to be a curse from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen, according to flesh; who are Israelites; whose [is] the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the law-giving, and the service,² and the promises; whose [are] the fathers; and of whom, as according to flesh, [is] the Christ, who is over all^k God blessed for ever. Amen.

¹ Here the sense depends on the punctuation. It may be 'pain in my heart for my brethren,' or 'a curse from Christ for my brethren.' I apprehend, in the apostle's mind the last phrase is connected with both: he parenthetically states how far his heart had gone for Israel, and then continues the phrase. This want of strictness of continuation of grammatical structure is very common with the apostle from the ardour of his style, and only adds force to what he says. He had loved

Not however as though the word of God had failed; for not all [are] Israel which [are] of Israel; nor because they are seed of Abraham [are] all children: but, In Isaac shall a seed be called to thee. That is, [they that are] the children of the flesh, these [are] not the children of God; but the children of the promise are reckoned as seed. For this word [is] of promise, According to this time I will come, and there shall be a son to Sarah.¹ And not only [that], but Rebecca having conceived by one, Isaac our father, [the children] indeed being not yet born, or having done anything good or worthless^m (that the purpose of God according to election might abide, not of works, but of him that calls), it was said to her, The greater shall serve the less: according as it is written, I have loved Jacob, and I have hated Esau.
What shall we say then? [Is there] unrighteousness with God? Far be the thought. For he says to Moses, I will shew mercy to whom I will shew mercy, and I will feel compassion for whom I will feel compassion. So then [it is] not of him that wills, nor of him that runs, but of God that shews mercy.

them as much as Moses. (Ex. xxxii. 32.) His pain was continuous: the wish he speaks of, like Moses's, was a moment's earnest appeal, as beside himself.

^k 'Who is over all:' ὁ ὢν ἐπὶ is more emphatic than ὁ ἐπὶ πάντων: he exists and subsists as such. It may be translated also 'is,' or 'exists God over all.'

¹ The apostle's object is, not to state what the word of promise is, but that the word he quotes, on which all depended, is a matter of promise.

^m T. R. reads 'evil.' It is φαῦλον for κακόν.

¹⁹ Thou wilt say to me then, Why does he yet find fault? for who resists his purpose? Aye, but thou, O man, who art thou that answerest again to God? Shall the thing formed say to him that has formed it, Why hast thou made me thus? Or has not the potter authority over the clay, out of the same lump to make one vessel to honour, and another to dishonour? And if God, minded to shew his wrath and to make his power known, endured with much longsuffering vessels of wrath fitted for destruction; and that he might make known the riches of his glory upon vessels of mercy, which he had before prepared for glory, us, whom he has also called, not only from amongst [the] Jews, but also from amongst [the] nations? As he says also in Hosea, I will call not-my-people My people; and the-not-beloved

^a 'Raised thee up from amongst.' ἐξήγειρα. The ἐξ has a definite force, but needs some word governed by it in English. I have said, 'that I might thus,' because it is not ἕνα, the ultimate end; but ὁπως, the means or way of doing it. 'That,' by itself, in English, is ambiguous in this respect; 'so that' can hardly be used in the first member of the sentence: I have so expressed it in the second: in each case it is ὁπως.

^q T. R. reads 'of law,' with many good authorities. The oldest versions have it, the Vulg. not.

^r 'As of works.' What I have here translated 'of' is the preposition I have elsewhere translated 'on the principle of.' But this very sense is clearer in having simply 'of' after the 'as,' and the sentence less encumbered.

^s 'That stumblingstone' is not exact, and spoils the sense. Christ is the stumblingstone, as he goes on to explain.

own heart and my supplication which [I address] to God for them¹ is for salvation. For I bear them witness that they have zeal for God, but not according to knowledge. For they, being ignorant of God's righteousness, and seeking to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted to the righteousness of God. For Christ is [the] end of law for righteousness to every one that believes.

⁵ For Moses lays down in writing the righteousness which is of the law, The man who has practised those things shall live by them. ⁶ But the righteousness of faith speaks thus: Do not say in thine heart, Who shall ascend to the heavens? That is, to bring ⁷ Christ down. Or, Who shall descend into the abyss? That is, to bring up Christ from among ⁸ [the] dead. But what says it? The word is near thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we ⁹ preach: that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth, Jesus as Lord,^v and shalt believe in thine heart that God has raised him from among [the] dead, thou shalt be ¹⁰ saved. For with [the] heart is believed^w to righteousness; and with [the] mouth confession

¹¹ made to salvation. For the scripture says, No one believing on ¹² him shall be ashamed. For there is no difference of Jew and Greek; for the same Lord of all [is] rich towards all that call upon him. ¹³ For every one whosoever, who shall call on the name of the Lord, ¹⁴ shall be saved. How then shall they call upon him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe on him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without one who ¹⁵ preaches? and how shall they preach unless they have been sent? according as it is written, How beautiful the feet of them that announce glad tidings of peace, of them that announce glad ¹⁶ tidings of good things! But they have not all obeyed the glad tidings. For Esaias says, Lord, ¹⁷ who has believed our report? So faith then [is] by a report, but the ¹⁸ report by God's word. But I say, Have they not heard? Yea, surely, Their voice has gone out into all the earth, and their words to the extremities of the habitable world. ¹⁹ But I say, Has not Israel known? First, Moses says, I will provoke you to jealousy through^x [them that are] not a nation; through a nation without understanding I ²⁰ will anger you. But Esaias is very connection of the beginning of the phrase with 'for salvation' is not very grammatical; but this abruptness of style is usual with Paul.

^v T. R. reads 'for Israel': 'for them' is the more correct reading: 'for Israel' is a gloss to explain. 'For them,' occupied as the apostle is with his subject, is far more beautiful. 'For salvation' is perhaps a little obscure; but what he says is, what would satisfy his heart was that;

and his prayers tended that way, not to their judgment, evil as they were, and rejecters of Christ. But the judgment was not yet revealed.

^v Or '[the] Lord Jesus.'

^w Or 'man believes.' 'Is believed' is literal, and sufficiently intelligible.

^x ἐπί signifies the occasion or condition under which a thing happens, not the means of, as an instrument: 'through' expresses this more nearly than 'by.'

bold, and says, I have been found by those not seeking me; I have become manifest to those not inquiring after me. But unto Israel he says, All the day long I have stretched out my hands unto a people disobeying and opposing.

XI. I say then, Has God cast away his people? Far be the thought.

For I also am an Israelite, of [the] seed of Abraham, of [the] tribe of Benjamin. God has not cast away his people whom he foreknew. Know ye not what the scripture says in [the history of] Elias, how he pleads with God against Israel?²

³ Lord, they have killed thy prophets, ^athey have dug down thine altars; and I have been left alone, ⁴and they seek my life. But what says the divine answer to him? I have left to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed knee to

⁷ What [is it] then? What Israel seeks for, that he has not obtained; but the election has obtained, and the rest have been ⁸blinded,^d according as it is written, God has given to them a spirit of slumber, eyes not to see, and ears not to hear, unto this

¹¹ I say then, Have they stumbled in order that they might fall? Far be the thought: but by their fall [there is] salvation to the nations ¹²to provoke them to jealousy. But if their fall [be the] world's wealth, and their loss [the] wealth of [the] nations, how much rather ¹³their fulness? For I speak to you, the nations, inasmuch as I am apostle of nations, I glorify ¹⁴my ministry; if by any means I shall provoke to jealousy [them which are] my flesh, and shall ¹⁵save some from among them. For if their casting away [be the] world's reconciliation, what the reception of them but life from the dead?

¹⁶ Now if the first-fruit [be] holy, the lump also; and if the root ¹⁷[be] holy, the branches also. Now if some of the branches have been broken out, and thou, being a wild olive tree, hast been grafted in amongst them, and hast become a fellow-partaker of the root and of the fatness of the olive tree, ¹⁸boast not against the branches; but if thou boastest, [it is] not thou bearest the root, but the root

³ T. B. adds 'saying.'

^a T. B. adds 'and.'

^b 'Baal' has here the article in the feminine; and hence the Authorized Version has put in 'image.' The feminine article is doubtless borrowed from the LXX. The Chaldees insert 'image.' Some learned men, as Selden, attribute it to the masculine and feminine characters in which Baal was adored in Syria. I notice the gender therefore merely in this note.

^c T. B. adds 'but if of works, it is no longer grace: otherwise work is no more work.' I add 'otherwise;' ἐπεὶ is constantly thus used in Greek. The ellipse when filled up is 'since [if it were], grace is no more grace;' or 'since [then].'

19 thee. Thou wilt say then, The branches* have been broken out in order that I might be grafted in.

20 Right: they have been broken out through unbelief, and thou standest through faith. Be not high-minded, but fear: if God indeed has not spared the natural branches; lest it might be he spare not thee either.^f

23 Behold then [the] goodness and severity of God: upon them who have fallen, severity; upon thee goodness of God,^g if thou shalt abide^h in goodness, since [otherwise] thou also wilt be cut away.

23 And they too, if they abide not in unbelief, shall be grafted in; for God is able again to graff them in.

24 For if thou hast been cut out of the olive tree wild by nature, and, contrary to nature, hast been grafted into the good olive tree, how much rather shall they, who are according to nature, be grafted

25 into their own olive tree? For I do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, of this mystery, that ye may not be wise in your own conceits, that blindness¹ in part is happened to Israel, until the fullness of the nations be come in; and so all Israel shall be saved. According as it is written, The deliverer shall come out of Sion; he² shall turn away ungodlinesses from Jacob. And this is the covenant from me, to them, when I shall have taken away their sins.

28 As regards the glad tidings, [they are] enemies on your account; but as regards election, beloved on account of the fathers. For the gifts and calling of God [are] not subject to repentance.¹ For as indeed ye also once have not believed in God, but now have been objects of mercy through the unbelief of these; so these also have now not believed in your mercy, in order that they also may be objects of mercy.^m For

* Many read 'branches,' not 'the branches.'

^f This is another case where the grammatical structure is not complete. It may well be taken, 'fear lest he spare not thee:' the beginning of ver. 21 adding a supplementary thought, of which the apostle's mind was full: still it is a broken phrase. γάρ may well be translated sometimes 'indeed;' otherwise we must say, 'for if God has not,' &c., and add 'take heed,' or something like it, as in the Authorized Version.

^g T. R. omits 'of God.'

^h 'If thou shouldst abide,' or 'abidest.' There are three degrees of condition in Greek: indicative, if the fact arrives; subjunctive, doubtful if it will; and conditional, of uncertain probability. This is the subjunctive. The English hardly gives the three with 'if,' in the second person; in the third I can say, 'If he comes,' 'If he should come.' Habit has, in conversation, preserved the subjunctive, or what answers to it: 'If he come,' implying more doubt than 'If he comes,'

and less than 'If he should come:' but in the second person this is hardly bearable in English: 'If thou abide.' The reader may use it if he pleases: see ver. 23. I have there said, 'If they abide.' There is no difference here in English between indicative and subjunctive: the conditional would be ill placed.

¹ ἀμεταμέλητα.

^m Here the English translation has lost the force of the phrase through habits of doctrine. The Jews would not believe in the mercy shewn to the Gentiles, and thus lost the glad tidings of the grace of God for themselves; and thus, their right to the promises being gone, they come in at the end as objects of mere mercy, as any poor Gentile might be; though, by that mercy, God accomplishes his promises, which, as to their now responsibility, they had lost all title to. It is this which gives rise to the apostle's expressions of admiration as to the wisdom of God.

ROMANS XI, XII.

God hath shut up together all in unbelief, in order that he might shew mercy to all. O depth of riches both of [the] wisdom and knowledge of God! ¹ how unsearchable his judgments, and untraceable his ways! For who has known [the] mind of [the] Lord, or who has been his counsellor? ² or who has first given to him, and it shall be rendered to him? For of him, and through him, and for him, [are] all things: to him be glory for ever. Amen.

XII. I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the compassions of God, to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, [which is] your intelligent service. And be not conformed to this world, ³ but be transformed by the renewing of your ⁴ mind, that ye may prove ⁵ what [is] the good and acceptable and perfect will of ⁶ God. For I say, through the grace which has been given to me, to every one that is among you, not to have high thoughts above what he should think; but to think so as to be wise, ⁷ as God has dealt to each a measure of ⁸ faith. For, as in one body, we have many members, but all the members have not the same office; ⁹ thus we, [being] many, are one body in Christ, and each one member ¹⁰ one of the other. But having different gifts, according to the

Let love be unfeigned; abhorring evil; cleaving to good: as to brotherly love, kindly affectioned towards one another: as to honour, each taking the lead in paying it ¹¹ to the other: ¹² as to diligent zealousness, not slothful; in spirit fervent; serving the Lord. As regards hope, rejoicing: as regards tribulation, enduring: as regards prayer, persevering: distributing to the necessities of the saints; given to ¹⁴ hospitality. Bless them that persecute you; bless, and curse not. ¹⁵ Rejoice with those that rejoice, and weep with those that weep. ¹⁶ Have the same respect one for another, not minding high things, but going along with the lowly: ¹⁷ be not wise in your own eyes: ¹⁸ recompensing to no one evil for evil: providing things honest before all men: if possible, as far as depends on you, living in peace ¹⁹ with all men; not avenging yourselves, beloved, but give place to wrath; for it is written, Vengeance [belongs] to me, I will re-

XIII. Let every soul be subject^v to the authorities that are above [him]. For there is no authority except from God; and those^w that exist are set up by God. So that he that sets himself in opposition to the authority resists the ordinance of God; and they who [thus] resist shall bring^x sentence of guilt⁸ on themselves. For rulers are not a terror to a good work, but to an evil [one].^y Do ye desire then not to be afraid of the authority? practise [what is] good, and thou⁴ shalt have praise from it; for it is God's minister to thee for good. But if thou practisest evil, fear; for it bears not the sword in vain; for it is God's minister, an avenger for wrath to him that⁵ does evil. Wherefore it is necessary to be subject, not only on account of wrath, but also on account of conscience. him that eats: for God has received him. Who art thou who judgest the servant of another? to his own master he stands or falls. And he shall be made to stand; for the Lord is able to make him stand. One man esteems day more than day; another esteems every day [alike]. Let each be fully persuaded in his own mind. He that regards the day, regards it to [the] Lord; [and he that regards not the day, to [the] Lord he does not regard it.]^h Andⁱ he that eats, eats to the Lord, for he gives God thanks; [and he that does not eat, [it is] to [the] Lord he does not eat,]^j and gives God thanks. For none of us lives to himself, and none dies to himself. For both if we should live, [it is] to the Lord we live; and if we should die, [it is] to the Lord we die: both if we should live then, and if we should die, we are the Lord's. For to this [end] Christ has^k died and lived again,^l that he might rule over both dead and living. But thou, why judgest thou thy brother? or again, thou, why dost thou make little of thy brother? for we shall all be placed before the judgment-seat of God.^m For it is written, I live, saith the Lord, that to me shall bow every knee, and every tongue shall confess to God. So then each of us shall give an account concerning himself to God. Let us no longer therefore judge one another; but judge ye this rather, not to put a stumblingblock or a fall-trap before his brother. I know, and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean of itself; except to him who reckons anything to be unclean, to that man [it is] unclean. Forⁿ if on account of meat thy brother is grieved, thou walkest no longer according to love. Destroy not him^o with thy meat for whom Christ has died. Let not then your good be evil spoken of; for the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in [the] Holy Spirit. For he that in this^p serves the Christ^q [is] acceptable to God and approved of men. So then let us pursue the things which tend to^r peace, and things whereby one shall build up another.^s For the sake of meat do not destroy the work of God. All things indeed [are] pure; but [it is] evil to that man who eats while stumbling [in doing so]. [It is] right not to eat meat, nor drink wine, nor [do anything] in^t which thy brother stumbles, or is offended, or is weak. Hast thou

^h The bracketed clause is, to say the least, very doubtful, and I am disposed to think added, not genuine. It may have been omitted by homœoteleuton. The old versions are divided.

^j Many leave out this last clause.

^k T. R. adds 'both.'

faith? have [it] to thyself before God. Blessed [is] he who does not judge himself in what he allows.

²³ But he that doubts, if he eat, is condemned; because [it is] not of faith; but whatever [is] not of faith is sin.

XV. But we ought, we that are strong, to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let^v each one of us please his neighbour with a view to what² is good to edification. For the Christ also did not please himself; but according as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproach thee have fallen upon³ me. For as many things as have been written⁴ before have been written^w for our instruction, that through endurance and through^x encouragement of the scriptures⁵ we might have hope. Now the God of endurance and of encouragement give to you to be like-minded one toward another, according to⁶ Christ Jesus; that ye may with one accord, with one mouth, glorify the God and Father of our Lord⁷ Jesus Christ. Wherefore receive ye one another, according as the Christ also has received you⁷ to [the] glory of God.

⁸ For^z I say that Jesus^a Christ became a minister of [the] circumcision for [the] truth of God, to confirm the promises of the fathers; and that the nations should glorify God for mercy; according ¹⁰ And again he says, Rejoice, nations, with his people. And again,¹¹ Praise the Lord, all [ye] nations, and praise him, all [ye] peoples.

¹² And again, Esaias says, There shall be the root of Jesse, and one that arises to rule over [the] nations: in him shall [the] nations hope.

¹³ Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that ye should abound in hope by [the] power of [the] Holy Spirit.

¹⁴ But I am persuaded, my brethren, I myself also, concerning you, that yourselves also are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one

¹⁵ another. But I have written to you the more boldly, brethren, in part, as putting you in mind, because of the grace given to me by

¹⁶ God, for me to be^b minister^c of Christ Jesus to the nations, carrying on as a sacrificial service the message of glad tidings of God, in order that the offering up of the nations might be acceptable,

¹⁸ For I will not dare to speak anything of the things which Christ has not wrought by me, for [the] obedience of [the] nations, of signs and wonders, in [the] power of [the] Spirit of God;* so that I, from Jerusalem, and in a circle round to Illyricum, have fully preached the glad tidings of the Christ; and so aiming to announce the glad tidings, not where Christ has been named, that I might not build upon another's foundation: but according as it is written, To whom there was nothing told concerning him, they shall see; and they that have not heard shall understand. Wherefore also I have been often hindered from coming to you. But now, having no longer place in these regions, and having great desire to come to you these many years, whenever^f I should go to Spain; (for I hope to see you as I go through, and by you to be set forward thither, if first I shall have been in part filled with your company;^g) but now I go to Jerusalem, ministering to the saints; for Macedonia and Achaia have been well pleased to make a certain contribution for the poor of the saints who [are] in Jerusalem. They have been well pleased indeed,^h and they are their debtors; for if the nations have participated in their spiritual things, they ought also in fleshly to minister to them. Having finished this therefore, and having sealed to them this fruit, I will set off by you into Spain. But I know that, coming to you, I shall come in [the] fulness of [the] blessing of¹ Christ. But I beseech you, brethren, by our Lord Jesus Christ, and by the love of the Spirit, that ye strive together with me in prayers for me to God; that I may be saved from those that do not believe in Judea; and that my ministry which [I have] for Jerusalem may be acceptable to the saints; in order that I may come to you in joy by God's will, and that I may be refreshed with you. And the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

FIRST EPISTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

PAUL, [a] called apostle of Jesus Christ, by God's will, and Sosthenes the brother, to the assembly of God which is in Corinth, to [those] sanctified in Christ Jesus, called saints,^w with all that call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place, both theirs and ³ ours. Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and [the] Lord Jesus Christ.

⁴ I thank my God always about you, in respect of^x the grace of God given to you in Christ Jesus; ⁵ that in everything ye have been enriched in him, in all word [of doctrine^y], and all knowledge, ⁶ (according as the testimony of the Christ has been confirmed in you,) ⁷ so that ye come short in no gift, awaiting^z the revelation of our

⁸ Lord Jesus Christ; who shall also confirm you to [the] end, unimpeachable in the day of our Lord ⁹ Jesus Christ. God is faithful, by whom ye have been called into [the] fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

¹⁰ Now I exhort^a you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all say the same thing, and that there be not among you divisions; but that ye be perfectly united^b in the same mind ¹¹ and in the same opinion. For it has been shewn to me concerning you, my brethren, by those of [the house of] Chlœ, that there ¹² are strifes among you. But I speak of this, that each of you says, I am of Paul, and I, of Apollos, and I, of Cephas, and I, of

as the utterance of it. It is a word so large in sense as to be very hard to express. Whatever expresses the mind is λόγος. Νοῦς is the intelligent faculty: whatever expresses the thought formed in it is λόγος. When it is in exercise, there is thinking, and consequently a thought, νόημα. As the Platonists said, There is the intelligent and intelligible; what is νοερός and νοητός. But to be a positive object of another's mind, and so de facto, and not merely abstractedly, νοητός, there must be λόγος, the objective subject matter of thought in another. Thus all that communicates the divine mind (the intelligible) is λόγος, and first of all Christ. But we are said, having the Holy Ghost, to have also the νοῦς of Christ, the intelligent faculty with its thoughts. (Chap. ii. i.)

^a Or 'beseech.'

^b καθηρητισμένοι, where all the members have each its own place, or make a whole; or, if broken, are restored to one complete and perfect whole.

^w Saints by [divine] calling.

^x I am not quite satisfied with 'in respect of.' It is not quite ὕπερ, with a genitive, signifying 'for;' nor διά, with an accusative, signifying 'on account of;' but ἐπί, with a dative, which has the force of the occasion of, or condition under which anything happens, not its cause. 'By occasion of' is hardly English. We use 'to occasion' and 'occasion' in a somewhat similar way. If any prefer 'by reason of,' I know of no objection.

^y Λόγος, whatever is the expression of a thought formed in the mind, and otherwise unknown; hence used for the thing expressed, or the expression of it; hence 'word.' Here it is the communication of the mind of God in the gospel of Christ. (See ii. 1.) I retain therefore 'word' in the expression 'all word, and all knowledge,' adding 'of doctrine' in brackets, because 'in all word' is scarcely English, and the 'word of doctrine' is, I believe, here the sense. 'Utterance' gives the sense imperfectly. It is the matter and form of thought and expression, as well

13 Christ. Is the Christ divided? has Paul been crucified for you? or have ye been baptized unto the name of Paul? I thank God that I have baptized none of you, unless Crispus and Gaius, that no one may say that I have baptized unto my own name. Yes, I baptized also the house of Stephanas; for the rest I know not if I have baptized any other. For Christ has not sent me to baptize, but to preach glad tidings; not in wisdom of word, that the cross of the Christ may not be made vain. For the word² of the cross is to them that perish foolishness, but to us that are saved it is God's power. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and set aside the understanding of the understanding ones. Where [is the] wise? where scribe? where disputer of this world?^a has not God made foolish the wisdom of the^b world?^c For since, in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom has not known God, God has been pleased, by the foolishness of the preaching^d to save those that believe. Since Jews indeed demand signs,^e and Greeks seek wisdom; but we preach Christ crucified, to Jews an offence,^f and to nations^g foolishness; but to those that [are] called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ

God's power and God's wisdom. Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men. For consider your calling, brethren, that [there are] not many wise according to flesh, not many powerful, not many high-born. But God has chosen the foolish things of the world, that he may put to shame the wise;^h and God has chosen the weak things of the world, that he may put to shame the strong things; and the ignoble things of the world, and the despised, has God chosen, and things that are not, that he may annul the things that are; so that no flesh should boast before God.ⁱ But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who has been made to us wisdom from God, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption; that according as it is written, He that boasts, let him boast in [the]^k Lord.

II. And I, when I came to you, brethren, came not in excellency of word, or wisdom, announcing to you the testimony of God. For I did not judge [it well] to know anything among you save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And I was with you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling, and my word and my preaching, not in persuasive words of^l wis-

 men's wisdom, but in God's power.
⁶ But we speak wisdom among the perfect; but wisdom, not of ⁷ world,ⁿ who come to nought. But we speak God's wisdom in [a] which God had predetermined be-which have not come into man's revealed to us by [his]^q Spirit;

 for the Spirit searches all things, ¹¹ even the depths of God. For who of men hath known the things of a man^r except the spirit of the man which is in him? thus also the things of God knows no one ¹² except the Spirit of God. But we have received, not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit^s which [is] of God, that we may know the things which have been freely given to us of God:

¹³ which also we speak, not in words^t

^q 'His' is a doubtful reading. If rejected it should be 'the Spirit.'

^r 'Man' here has the article, but the sense is this: what is in man's mind is not known of any but the spirit of the man himself, who has the thoughts: a fortiori it is so with God.

^s Note here again the difficulty arising from 'spirit' used for cause and state, as to putting a large S to signify the person of the Holy Ghost.

^t It may perhaps be translated, 'taught words of human wisdom.'

^u T. B. adds 'Holy.'

^v Or 'expounding:': the word means literally 'mixing or putting together;': but the use of it, as interpreting or expounding, is common in the LXX: Numb. xv. 34; Gen. xl. 8; xli. 12, 16. σύγκριμα and σύγκρισις are the words constantly used in Daniel for 'interpretation' and 'interpreting.' It means also 'to decide or decree:': the communication of the judge's mind, as well as of God's, before unknown. To this Numb. xv. 34 may be referred. The opposition of ἀπακρίτως left no doubt in my mind before I found its use in the LXX.

^b T. R. reads 'Who then is Paul and who Apollos, but, &c. See also note to iv. 1, here διδάκοντες.

^c 'Workers, or labourers together with God,' goes too far. I have no doubt that συνεργός has the sense of journeyman, but as they are fellows doing the chief's work, as Geselle in German, and even compagnon in French.

^d T. R. reads 'Jesus the Christ.'

^e That is, the day. Compare 2 Thess ii. 8 The word used for revealing the character of the work is another here, δηλώσει. I doubt much that ἀποκαλύπτω has ever that sense.

^f T. R. reads 'abide.' The change is only that of an accent, but justified by the who's phrase.

^g Here the addition of the article wholly changes the sense: 'saved by fire' is as if the fire was a means of safety, whereas 'through the fire' is in spite of it, or going through the danger and difficulty of it. διὰ has the same double sense as 'through' in English. Compare 1 Peter iii. 20.

^h ναός.

ⁱ φθείρει, φθερεί. The word for 'destroy' and 'corrupt' is the same in Greek; the force of this, as to terms, is necessarily lost in English.

^j τούτου, 'this [man],' is in many of the best copies; but 'him' gives the sense, only τούτου is more emphatic: I have therefore put 'him' in italics.

I CORINTHIANS III, IV.

²² and ye [are] Christ's, and Christ [is] God's.

IV. Let a man so account of us as servants^k of Christ, and stewards^l of [the] mysteries of God. Here, further, it is sought^l in stewards that a man be found³ faithful. But for me it is the very smallest matter that I be examined^m of you or of man's day. Nor do I even examine myself. For I am conscious of nothing⁴ in myself; but I am not justified by this: but he that examines me is the Lord. So that do not judge anything before [the] time, until the Lord shall come, who shall also both bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and shall make manifest the counsels of hearts; and then shall each have [his] praise from God.ⁿ

thou hast not received? but if thou hast received, why boastest⁸ thou as not receiving? Already ye are filled; already ye have been enriched; ye have reigned without us; and I would that ye reigned, that we also might reign with you.

⁹ For I think that God has set us the apostles for the last, as appointed to death. For we have become a spectacle to the world, both to angels and men. We [are] fools for Christ's sake, but ye prudent in Christ: we weak, but ye strong: ye glorious, but we in dishonour. To the present hour we both hunger and thirst, and are in nakedness, and buffeted,¹² and wander without a home, and labour, working with our own hands. Railed at, we bless; persecuted, we suffer [it]; insulted,^p we entreat: we are become as [the] offscouring of the world, [the] refuse of all, until now. Not [as] chiding do I write these things to you, but as my beloved children

¹⁵ I admonish [you]. For if ye should have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet not many fathers; for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the glad tidings. I

^k The appointed ὑπηρέτας. Three words are translated 'servant' in Auth. Ver.: δοῦλος, a slave; διάκονος, a person who acts or waits in service; and ὑπηρέτης. This last is always used in the New Testament as an official servant, or messenger, or apparitor.

^m ἀνακρίνω: the word does not signify 'judgment,' but the preliminary examination, at which the accused has to answer and give an account of himself.

ⁿ Literally 'then shall the praise be to you from God.'

^o The word is used for a metaphor no doubt, because a metaphor transfers the thoughts as to one object, to another which is an image of it. Amos says 'The lion has roared,' speaking of God's threatening ways with Israel, as if he were his prey: in thought it is to be transferred to Israel. So here Paul is really speaking of those who came with great pretensions amongst the Corinthians, and he transferred it to himself and Apollos, that he might establish the principle universally, without naming these persons. By saying he 'transferred' it, the application was easy: but one can hardly say that is a figure.

^p Or spoken to 'injuriously.'

I CORINTHIANS IV, V.

entreat: you therefore be my imitators.

17 For this reason I have sent to you Timotheus, who is my beloved and faithful child in [the] Lord, who shall put you in mind of my ways [as] they [are] in Christ, according as I teach everywhere in every assembly. But some have been puffed up, as if I were not coming to you; but I will come quickly to you, if the Lord will; and I will know, not the word of those that are puffed up but the power. For the kingdom of God [is] not in word but in power. What will ye? that I come to you with a rod; or in love, and in a spirit of meekness?

V. It is universally reported* [that there is] fornication among you, and such fornication as [is] not even¹ among the nations, so that one should have his father's wife.² And ye are puffed up, and ye have not rather mourned, in order that he that has done this deed might be taken away out of the³ midst of you. For I, as absent in body but present in spirit, have already judged as present, [to⁴ deliver], in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ^v (ye and my spirit being gathered together, with the power of our Lord Jesus Christ),

5 him that has so wrought this: to deliver him, [I say], [being] such, to Satan for destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved⁶ in the day of the Lord Jesus. Your boasting [is] not good. Do ye not know that a little leaven leavens⁷ the whole lump? Purge^w out the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, according as ye are unleavened. For also our passover,⁸ Christ, has been sacrificed;^x so that let us celebrate the feast, not with old leaven, nor with leaven of malice and wickedness, but with unleavened [bread] of sincerity and truth.

9 I have written to you in the epistle not to mix with fornicators; ^y not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the avaricious, and^z rapacious, or idolaters, since [then] ye should go out of the world. But now I have written to you, if any one called brother be fornicator, or avaricious, or idolater, or abusive, or a drunkard, or rapacious, not to mix with [him]; with such a one¹² not even to eat. For what [have] I [to do] with judging those outside also?^a ye, do not ye judge them¹³ that are within? But those without God judges.^b Remove the wicked person from amongst yourselves.

* Or 'exhort,' παράκλησις: a word which has to be rendered very differently in English in different places, and hard to render, though simple and easy to understand. It means 'calling upon a person so as to stimulate him to anything:' hence 'to exhort, and to comfort, encourage:' it has a fuller force here than a mere apostolic or pastoral exhortation.

^a 'It is universally reported' does not quite give the sense of ἀκούεσθαι. It was the reputation they had got by common report.

^b T. B. reads 'named.'

^c Some omit 'Christ' here both times. ^d has it the first time, but not the ἑμῶν.

^e T. B. adds 'therefore.'

^f T. B. adds 'for us.'

^g T. B. adds 'and.'

^h T. B. reads 'or.'

ⁱ Many authorities omit 'also.'

^j On the whole I prefer 'judges,' though Fathers and Vulgate read 'will judge;' Ital. 'judges.' The older MSS afford no help, as it is the difference merely of an accent, κρίνει and κρίνειν.

I CORINTHIANS VI.

VI. Dare any one of you, having a matter against another, prosecute his suit before the unjust, and not ³ before the saints? 'Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world? and if the world is judged by you, are ye unworthy of ⁴ [the] smallest judgments? ^d Do ye not know that we shall judge angels? and not then matters of ⁴ this life? If then ye have judgments as to things of this life, set those [to judge] who are little ⁵ esteemed in the assembly. I speak to you [to put you] to shame. Thus there is not a wise person among you, not even one, who shall be able to decide between ⁶ his brethren! ^e But brother prosecutes his suit with brother, and ⁷ that before unbelievers. Already indeed then it is altogether a fault in you^f that ye have suits between yourselves. Why do ye not rather suffer wrong? why are ye not ⁸ rather defrauded? But ye do wrong, and defraud, and this ⁹ [your] brethren. Do ye not know that unrighteous [persons] shall not inherit [the] kingdom of God? Do not err; neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor those who make women of themselves, nor who abuse themselves ¹⁰ with men, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor abusive persons, nor [the] rapacious, shall ¹¹ inherit [the] kingdom of God. And these things were some of you; but ye have been washed, but ye have been sanctified, but ye have been justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

¹² All things are lawful to me, but all things do not profit; all things are lawful to me, but I will not be brought under the power of any. ¹³ Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats; but God will bring to nothing it and them: but the body [is] not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. ¹⁴ And God has both raised up the Lord, and will raise us up from among [the dead] by his power. ¹⁵ Do ye not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then, taking the members of the Christ, make [them] members of a harlot? Far be the thought. Do ye not know that he [that is] joined to the harlot is one body? for the two, he says, shall be one flesh.^h

^e ἢ is added here which is not in T. R.; but it has the force of a question, but with some expression of surprise suggested, as 'is it so that you do not?' previous circumstances leading to suppose they could not know, or the like: so that something of the original sense of 'or' is in its use. The 'or' may be used here. Compare the same use of ἢ in Romans xi. 2, vii. 1, vi. 3. In ii. 4 the force of 'or' is more sensible. Compare Matt. vii. 9, xx. 15, Rom. iii. 29, in which last it is a simple question.

^d 'To judge the smallest matters.'
^e Literally 'between his brother [and brother]'. The word is in the singular in Greek.

^h εἰς μίαν σάρκα. It is impossible to translate εἰς here in English: 'shall,' or 'shall become,' is the nearest in sense. The word is left out in Greek when he says 'one Spirit.' We are really 'one Spirit,' not two, with the Lord. But we cannot say 'to' or 'for one flesh.' The two become so practically by their union; they are created individually. The union induces unity in the flesh; 'shall,' or 'shall become' partly, though imperfectly, implies this. It is not therefore said 'shall be one Spirit:' but 'he is.' The Spirit which is in the Lord himself dwells in us, and is the living power of the new life. I

I CORINTHIANS VI, VII.

¹⁷ But he that [is] joined to the Lord
¹⁸ is one Spirit. Flee fornication.
 Every sin which a man may practise is without the body, but he that commits fornication sins ¹⁹ against his own body. Do ye not know that your body is [the] temple of the Holy Spirit which [is] in you, which ye have of God ;
²⁰ and ye are not your own? for ye have been bought with a price : glorify now then God in your body.^a

VII. But concerning the things of which ye have written to me : [It is] good for a man not to touch a
² woman ; but on account of fornications, let each have his own wife, and each [woman] have her own
³ husband. Let the husband render her due¹ to the wife, and in like manner the wife to the husband.
⁴ The wife has not authority over her own body, but the husband : in like manner also the husband has not authority over his own
⁵ body, but the wife. Defraud^k not one another, unless, it may be, by consent for a time, that ye may devote yourselves to prayer,^l and again be^m together, that Satan tempt you not because of your ⁶ incontinency. But this I say, as consentingⁿ [to], not as commanding [it]. Now^o I wish all men to be even as myself : but every one has his own gift of God ; one man

⁸ thus, and another thus. But I say to the unmarried and to the widows, It is good for them that ⁹ they remain even as I. But if they have not control over themselves, let them marry ; for it is better to marry than to burn.
¹⁰ But to the married I enjoin, not I, but the Lord, Let not wife be ¹¹ separated from husband ; (but if also she shall have been separated, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband ;) and ¹² let not husband leave wife. But as to the rest I say, not the Lord, If any brother have an unbelieving wife, and she consent to dwell with ¹³ him, let him not leave her. And a woman which has an unbelieving husband, and he consents to dwell with her, let her not leave him.
¹⁴ For the unbelieving husband is sanctified in the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified in the husband ; since [otherwise] indeed your children are unclean, ¹⁵ but now they are holy. But if the unbeliever go away, let them go away ; a brother or a sister is not bound in such [cases], but God ¹⁶ has called us in peace. For what knowest thou, O wife, if thou shalt save thy husband? or what knowest thou, O husband, if thou ¹⁷ shalt save thy wife? However, as the Lord has divided to each, as know not how to express it better in English ; but this note was needed to explain the difference.

^a T. R. adds 'and in your spirit, which are God's.'

ⁱ T. R. adds 'benevolence,' reading ὀφειλομένη εὐνοίαν instead of ὀφειλήν.

^k ἀποστερείτε means to 'deprive another of anything wrongfully;' so that it has the sense of 'rob,' 'defraud;' but with the sense of taking away, or depriving of, what another had a right to. Such is the sense. I have said 'defraud,' as it is the same word as in vi. 7, 8. The sense is just the same ; only here it is of one another.

ⁿ Or 'allowing,' 'permitting' it. I do not say 'by permission,' because that implies that he says it by the Lord's permission. He said it in the way of permission, not as a command.

^o T. R. reads 'for.'

I CORINTHIANS VII.

God^p has called each, so let him walk; and thus I ordain in all the assemblies. Has any one been called circumcised? let him not become uncircumcised: has any one been called in uncircumcision? let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but keeping God's commandments. Let each abide in that calling in which he has been called. Hast thou been called [being] bondsman, let it not concern thee; but and if thou canst become free, use [it] rather. For the bondsman that is called in the Lord is the Lord's freeman; in like manner also the freeman being called is Christ's bondsman. Ye have been bought with a price; do not be the bondsmen of men. Let each wherein he is called, brethren, therein abide with God.

But concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord; but I give my opinion, as having received mercy of [the] Lord to be faithful.

I think then that this is good, on account of the present necessity, that [it is] good for a man to remain so as he is. Art thou bound to a wife? seek not to be loosed; art thou free from a wife? do not seek a wife. But if thou shouldest also marry, thou hast not sinned; and if the virgin marry, they have^q not sinned: but such shall have tribulation in the flesh; but I spare you.

But this I say, brethren, the time [is] straitened. For the rest,^r that even they who have wives, be as not having [any]; and they that weep, as not weeping; and they that rejoice, as not rejoicing; and they that buy, as not possessing; and they that use the^s world, as not disposing of it as their own;^t for the fashion of this world passes. But I wish you to be without care. The unmarried cares for the things of the Lord, how he shall please the Lord; but he that has married cares for the things of the world, how he shall please his^v wife. There is a difference between the wife and the virgin. The unmarried cares for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy both in body and spirit; but she that has married cares for the things of the world, how she shall please her husband. But I say this for your own profit; not that I may set a snare before you, but for what [is] seemly, and waiting on the Lord without distraction. But if any one think that he behaves unseemly to his virginity, if he be beyond the flower of his age, and

^q Or 'she has.' I say 'they' to embrace both sexes, which the word τοιοῦτοι, and what follows, seems distinctly to imply. The word is feminine from its primary natural reference.

^r It may be translated 'for the rest [I say it], in order that even they which have wives.' Some have translated 'the time is straitened, or shortened henceforth.' τὸ λοιπόν is so used with a verb. But I can hardly think it to be so used here. T. R. reads 'that the time,' &c.

^t 'Disposing of it as their own.' See note to ix. 18.

^v In Greek it is the article, not the pronoun 'his'; but this latter is almost necessary in English. The same remark applies to 'her,' ver. 34, and vii. 11.

I CORINTHIANS VII, VIII.

so it must be, let him do what he will, he does not sin: let them marry. But he who stands firm in his heart, having no need, but has authority over his own will, and has judged this in his heart to keep his own virginity, he does well. So that he that marries himself does well; and he that does not marry does better. A wife is bound² for whatever time her husband lives; but if the husband be fallen asleep, she is free to be married to whom she will, only in [the] Lord. But she is happier if she so remain, according to my judgment; but I think that I also have God's Spirit.

VIII. But concerning things sacrificed to idols, we know,² (for we all have knowledge: knowledge ² puffs up, but charity edifies. ³ If any one think he knows anything, he knows nothing yet as he ought ³ to know [it]. But if any one love ⁴ God, he is known of him):—concerning then the eating of things sacrificed to idols, we know that an idol [is] nothing in [the] world, and that there [is] no other ^b God ⁵ save one. For and if indeed there are [those] called gods, whether in heaven or on earth,^c (as there are gods many, and lords many,) ⁶ yet to us [there is] one God, the Father, of whom all things, and we for him; and one Lord, Jesus Christ, by whom [are] all things, ⁷ and we by him. But knowledge [is] not in all: but some, with conscience of the idol, until now eat as of a thing sacrificed to idols;

^z The words for 'know' are different here, though the distinction is very faint in Greek. 'We all have knowledge' is of objective knowledge: γνώσις, 'knowledge [the same word] puffs up.' If any man thinks he knows, (εἰδέναι: has the inward conscious knowledge of in his mind.) 'he knows [objectively: ἔγνωκε] nothing as he ought to know it' (the same word). 'But if any man love God, the same is known [objectively] of him.' 'Concerning eating things offered to idols, we know' (have the conscious knowledge in our minds). Verse 10, 'If any one see thee, which hast knowledge' (objectively, what a man has learned, acquired). So verse 11: Hence from the word meaning 'inward conscious knowledge,' a derivative means 'conscience.' So 'I know nothing against myself,' I am conscious of no fault. So 2 Tim. i. 12: 'I know in whom I have believed' I have the inward conscious knowledge; not, I know him. Thus we might say in English, 'I know whom I know, or what I know.' The first is inward conscious knowledge; the other objective, being acquainted with. Objective knowledge however passes into consciousness, but not vice versa. They are expressed by savoir and connaître in French, wissen and kennen in German. Thus, when one has no need to inform a person because he has the knowledge of it already in his own mind, I can say οἶδας, not γινώσκεις: thus in 2 Tim. i. 15. When it was not already known and realized in the mind, but communicated objectively to it—'This know'—it is τοῦτο δὲ γινώσκε. 2 Tim. iii. 1. 2 Tim. iii. 14, 'knowing of whom thou hast learned them': he was conscious of it, εἰδώς. So οἶδας, 'thou hast known the scriptures,' had the knowledge of them in his own mind realized. Though the difference is made in French and German, it must not be supposed that the distinct use of the words corresponds exactly, but it suffices here to have shewn the use in Greek. The German seems to me to answer more fully to the Greek, but different nations think differently. Thus thou 'knowest the household of Stephanas.' It was their inward acquaintance with their qualities, not objective; it is οἶδαι. Of such a process the French is incapable. It must be vous connaissez, or explicitly vous savez ce qui en est de ἐπιγνώσις is used for certain objective knowledge, and consequent recognition of the truth of a thing.

^c T. R. reads 'the earth.'

I CORINTHIANS VIII, IX.

and their conscience, being weak,
⁵ is defiled. But meat does not commend us to God; neither if we should not eat do we come short; nor if we should eat have we an advantage.^d But see lest
⁶ anyway this your right^e [to eat] itself be a fall-trap to the weak.
⁷ For if any one see thee, who hast knowledge, sitting at table in an idol-house, shall not his conscience,^f he being weak, be emboldened^g to eat the things sacrificed to the idol? and the weak
⁸ [one], the brother for whose sake Christ died, will perish through ⁹ thy knowledge. Now, thus sinning against the brethren, and wounding their weak conscience, ¹⁰ ye sin against Christ. Wherefore if meat be a fall-trap to my brother, I will eat no flesh for ever, that I may not be a fall-trap to my brother.

IX. Am I not free?^h am I not an apostle? have I not seen Jesus^k our Lord? are not ye my work in ¹ [the] Lord? If I am not an apostle to others, yet at any rate I am to you; for the seal of mine apostleship are ye in [the] Lord. My defence to those who examine me
² is this: Have we not a right to eat and to drink? have we not a right to take round a sister [as] wife, as also the other apostles, and the brethren of the Lord, and ³ Cephas? Or I alone and Barnabas, have we not a right not to ⁴ work? Who ever carries on war at his own charges? who plants a vineyard and does not eat of its fruit? or who herds a flock and does not eat of the milk of the ⁵ flock? Do I speak these things as a man, or does not the law also ⁶ say these things? For^l in the law of Moses it is written, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that is treading out corn. Is God occupied about the oxen, or does he ⁷ say [it] altogether for our sakes? For^l for our sakes it has been written, that the plougher should plough in^m hope, and he that treads out corn, in hope of par-

⁸ taking [of it].ⁿ If we have sown to you spiritual things, [is it a] great [thing] if we shall reap
⁹ your^o carnal things? If others partake of this right over you, should not rather we? But we have not used this right, but we bear all things, that we may put no hindrance in the way of the ¹⁰ glad tidings of the Christ. Do ye not know that they who labour^p [at] sacred things eat of the ^d T. R. adds 'for,' and puts the affirmation phrase first.

^e Or 'liberty,' ἐλευθερία. Title in a man's own conscience is the sense.

^f Literally 'the conscience of him weak,' 'Embaldened.' literally 'edified,' or 'built up.'

^g T. R. reads ἐν. It is then the condition or occasion, not the cause or means exactly; moyennant in French.

^h T. R. inverts the order of the first two phrases.

^k T. R. adds 'Christ.'

^l I have preserved these two 'fors' as an example of the rapidity of the apostle's style. To make the sense hang together, we should have to add in the first case, 'not as a man merely,' or, 'surely it does;' 'For in the law of Moses,' &c.; and in the second 'not about the oxen, for for our sakes,' &c.

^m Or 'with.' See Rom. iv. 18.

ⁿ T. R. reads 'in hope to be partaker of his hope.'

^o There is a contrast in ἡμῖς ὑμῖν and ἡμῖς ὑμῶν affecting the style, which disappears in English.

^p Or 'perform the sacred rites.'

I CORINTHIANS IX.

[offerings offered in the] temple; ⁹ they that attend at the altar partake with the altar? So also the Lord has ordained to those that announce the glad tidings to live of the glad tidings. But I have used none of these things. Now I have not written these things that it should be thus in my case; for [it were] good for me rather to die than that any one should make vain my boast. For if I announce the glad tidings, I have nothing to boast of; for a necessity is laid upon me; for ² it is woe to me if I should not announce the glad tidings. For if I do this voluntarily, I have a reward; but if not of my own will, I am entrusted with an administration. What is the reward then that I have? That in announcing the glad tidings I make the glad tidings ³ costless [to others], so as not to have made use, ⁴ as belonging to me, of my right in [announcing]

¹⁰ the glad tidings. For being free from all, I have made myself bondsman to all, that I might gain the most [possible].^v And I became to the Jews as a Jew, in order that I might gain the Jews: to those under law, as under law, not being myself under law,^w in order that I might gain those who were under law: to those without law,^x as without law, (not as without law to God, but as legitimately subject to Christ,) in order that I might gain those without law. I became to the weak, [as]^y weak, in order that I might gain the weak. To all I have become all things, in order that at all events ² I might save some. And I do all things^a for the sake of the glad tidings, that I may be fellow-partaker with them. ²⁴ Know ye not that they who run in [the] race-course run all, but one receives the prize? Thus run in order that ye may obtain.

⁹ Or 'of what is sacred.' It is well to distinguish ναός, the house, and ιερόν, the buildings in general of the temple. The English language, not formed on the existence of temple worship, affords no appropriate word to distinguish them. The sanctuary is properly the holy of holies: ναός includes both parts of the house.

⁴ καταχρησάσθαι: it is the same word as that I have translated chap. vii. 31, 'not disposing of it as his own,' instead of 'abusing.' καταχράσθαι, according to a common force of κατά in composition, is to use as one who has possession of a thing; using it as he likes, as his own. The apostle, as sent of the Lord to preach, had a right to be supported; but he did not use this right. It would not have been an abuse; but he did not use it for himself, as a thing he possessed. He weighed the effect as to Christ's glory. 'Made use of it' hardly fully expresses the force of it. The sense is given in result in adding 'as belonging to me.' παραχράσμαι is to misuse or abuse. It is so used by Philo, as to the world, in his treatise on Joseph, ἴδιον τοῦτο χρῶ μὴ παραχρῶμενος. (Vol. ii. p. 61, L. 41. ed. Mangey.)

^v 'The most possible.' I think this gives the sense of τοὺς πλείονας. It is used for the major part of any body, and hence for the mass opposed to leaders. It is not 'the more,' i.e. so much the more, but the greatest number possible, the whole mass that he could reach by these means.

^w T. R. omits 'not being myself under law.'

^x ἄνομος, important, as shewing the true force of the word employed elsewhere: ἡ ἀμαρτία ἐστὶν ἡ ἀνομία, not transgression of law. 'Under law to Christ; not under the law, ἐννομος, rightfully, duly, subject to himself. I have said 'legitimately,' to preserve the connexion with law. ἐννομος is what is lawful and right. (Acts xix. 39.)

^y T. R. has 'as' in text.

^z Or 'by all means.'

^a T. R. reads 'this I do.'

I CORINTHIANS IX, X.

- ²⁵ But every one that contends [for a prize] is temperate in all things : they then indeed that they may receive a corruptible crown, but ²⁶ we an incorruptible. I therefore thus run, as not uncertainly ; so I combat, as not beating the air. ²⁷ But I buffet my body, and lead it captive, lest [after] having preached to others I should be myself rejected.

X. For^b I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that all our fathers were under the cloud, and ³ all passed through the sea ; and all were baptized^c unto Moses in ³ the cloud and in the sea ; and all ⁴ ate the same spiritual food, and all drank the same spiritual drink ; (for they drank of a spiritual rock which followed [them] : now ⁵ the rock was the Christ ;) yet God was not pleased with the most of them, for they were ⁶ strewed in the desert. But these things happened [as] types of us, that we should not be lusters after evil things, as they also lusted. ⁷ Neither be ye idolaters, as some of them ; as it is written, The people sat down to eat and to ⁸ drink, and rose up to play. Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed fornication, and fell in one day three and ⁹ twenty thousand. Neither let us tempt the Christ,^d as also some of them tempted, and perished by ¹⁰ serpents. Neither murmur ye, as some of them^e murmured, and ¹¹ perished by the destroyer. Now all these things happened to them [as] types, and have been written for our admonition, upon whom ¹² the ends of the ages are come. So that let him that thinks that he ¹³ stands take heed lest he fall. No temptation has taken you but such as is according to man's nature ; and God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above what ye are able [to bear], but will with the temptation make the issue also, so that [ye]^f should be able to bear [it.] ¹⁴ Wherefore, my beloved, flee from ¹⁵ idolatry. I speak as to intelligent [persons] : do ye judge what I say. ¹⁶ The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not [the] communion of the blood of the Christ ? The bread which we break, is it not [the] communion of the body of ¹⁷ the Christ ? Because we, [being] many, are one loaf,^g one body ; for we all partake of that one loaf.^h

^c Very many ancient copies have ἑβαπτίσθησαν for ἑβαπτίσθησαν. The middle form of the verb is also used in Acts xxii. The difference is difficult to express in English, as we have no middle voice which has a reflexive force. It is when an act returns back in its effect on oneself. Paul was to act in this case as Acts xxii. 16 ; not to baptizo himself, that would be active ; but 'get baptized ;' 'be baptized' gives this where the command is to the person. Here we must say the same in English.

They passed through the sea and so got baptized. There was no action of course of a baptizer here, hence the middle voice. The many MSS which have the passive, overlooking this, used the habitual passive word, in which the action is that of another : as Acts x. 47, 48.

^d Many read 'the Lord.'

^e T. R. adds 'also.'

^f T. R. has ὑμᾶς, 'ye,' in text.

^g Or 'bread.' I have thought it might be translated 'because the bread (or loaf) is one, we, being many, are one body.' But it would be, I think, ἄπρος εἷς, not εἷς ἄπρος.

¹⁸ See Israel according to flesh : are not they who eat the sacrifices in ¹⁹ communion with the altar ? What then do I say ? that what is sacrificed to an idol is anything, or ²⁰ that an idol is anything ?^a But that what the nations sacrifice they sacrifice to demons, and not to God. But I do not wish you to be in communion with demons.
²¹ Ye cannot drink [the] Lord's cup, and [the] cup of demons : ye cannot partake of [the] Lord's table, and of [the] table of demons.
²² Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy ? are we stronger than he ?
²³ All things are lawful,¹ but all are not profitable ; all things are ²⁴ lawful,¹ but all do not edify. Let no one seek his own [advantage], ²⁵ but^k that of the other. Everything sold in the shambles eat, making no inquiry for conscience
²⁶ sake. For the earth [is] the Lord's and its fulness. But if any one of the unbelievers invite you, and ye are minded to go, all that is set before you eat, making no inquiry ²⁷ for conscience sake. But if any one say to you, This is offered to holy purposes,^l do not eat, for his sake that pointed it out, and ²⁸ conscience sake ;^m but conscience, I mean, not thine own, but that of the other : for why is my liberty

²⁹ judged by another conscience ?ⁿ If I partake with thanksgiving, why am I spoken evil of for what I ³⁰ give thanks for ? Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatever ye do, do all things to God's glory.
³¹ Give no occasion to stumbling, whether to Jews, or Greeks, or the ³² assembly of God.^o Even as I also please all in all things ; not seeking my own profit, but that of the many, that they may be saved.

XI. Be my imitators, even as I also [am] of Christ.

² Now I praise you,^p that in all things ye are mindful of me ; and that as I have directed you, ye
³ keep the directions.^q But I wish you to know that the Christ is the head of every man,^r but woman's head [is] the man, and^s the Christ's
⁴ head God. Every man praying or prophesying, having [anything] on his head, puts his head to shame.
⁵ But every woman praying or prophesying with her head uncovered puts her own head to shame ; for it is one and the same
⁶ as a shaved woman. For if a woman be not covered, let her hair also be cut off. But if [it be] shameful to a woman to have her hair cut off or to be shaved, let

^a T. R. reverses the order of the questions.

¹ T. R. adds 'for me' twice. 'Are lawful' is the verb. of which the word translated (viii. 9) 'right or liberty' is the noun. The word 'liberty' (ver. 29 of this chapter) is another.

^k T. R. reads 'but every one.'

^m T. B. adds 'For the earth is the Lord's and its fulness.'

ⁿ T. B. adds 'but.'

^o I am obliged to put 'or' in English for

'both,' and 'and' in the original. It is there 'be offenceless (no occasion to fall) to both Jews and Greeks and the assembly of God.' The Greek is stronger in style.

^q The word translated 'directed,' 'directions,' is used for any instruction or ordinance delivered by word of mouth or writing, commonly translated 'traditions.' It means anything delivered in any way.

^r ἀνδρός, that is, 'man' in contrast with 'woman' : not ἀνθρώπος.

7 her be covered. For man indeed ought not to have^a his^a head covered, being God's image and glory; but woman is man's^w glory.

8 For man is not of woman, but woman of man. For also man was not created for the sake of the woman, but woman for the sake of the man. Therefore ought the woman to have authority on her head, on account of the angels.

11 However, neither [is] woman^x without man, nor man without woman, in [the] Lord. For as the woman [is] of the man, so also [is] the man by the woman; but all things of God. Judge in yourselves: is it comely that a woman should pray to God uncovered? Does not even nature itself teach you, that man, if^z he have long hair, it is a dishonour to him? But woman, if she have long hair, [it is] glory to her; for the long hair is given to her in lieu of a veil. But if any one think to be contentious, we have no such custom, nor the assemblies of God.

17 But [in] prescribing to^a you [on] this [which I now enter on], I do not praise,^b [namely,] that^c ye come together, not for the better, but for the worse. For first, when ye come together in^d assembly, I hear there exist divisions among you, and I partly give credit [to it]. For there must also be sects^e among you, that the approved may become manifest among you. When ye come therefore together into one place, it is not to eat [the] Lord's supper. For each one in eating takes his own supper before [others], and one is hungry and another drinks to excess.

22 Have ye not then houses for eating and drinking? or do ye despise the assemblies of God, and put to shame them who have not? What shall I say to you? shall I praise you? In this [point] I do not praise. For I received from the Lord, that which I also delivered to you, that the Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was delivered up, took bread, and having given thanks brake [it], and said,^f This is my body, which [is] for you: this do in remembrances of me.

25 In like manner also the cup, after having supped, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood: this do, as often as ye shall drink [it], in remembrance of me.^g For as often as ye shall eat this bread, and drink the^h cup, ye announce the death of the Lord, until he come. So that whosoever shall eat the^h bread, or drink the cup of

^a I have not changed the effect of the rapidity of the apostle's style here, to make a smoother sentence, where the sense is clear.

^b παραγγέλλω is always used in New Testament for 'charging,' or 'commanding.' Many modern interpreters refer this to what goes before. But it seems to do violence to the sense.

the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty in respect of the body and ²⁸ of the blood of the Lord. But let a man prove himself, and thus eat of the bread, and drink of the ²⁹ cup. For [the] eater and drinker¹ eats and drinks judgment^k to himself, not distinguishing the ³⁰ body. On this account many among you [are] weak and infirm, and a good many are fallen asleep.
³¹ But^l if we judged^m ourselves, so ³² were we not judged. But being judged, we are disciplined of [the] Lord, that we may not be ³³ condemned with the world. So that, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, wait for one another.
³⁴ If any one be hungry, let him eat at home, that ye may not come together for judgmentⁿ: but the other things, whenever I come, I will set in order.

XII. But concerning spiritual [manifestations], brethren, I do not wish ¹ you to be ignorant. Ye know that when^p ye were [of the] nations [ye were] led away to dumb idols, in whatever way ye might be led.
² I give you therefore to know, that no one, speaking in [the power of the] Spirit of God, says, Curse [on] Jesus; and no one can say, Lord Jesus, unless in [the

⁴ power of the] Holy Spirit. But there are distinctions of gifts, but ⁵ the same Spirit; and there are distinctions of services, and the ⁶ same Lord; and there are distinctions of operations, but¹ the same God who operates all things in all.
⁷ But to each the manifestation of ⁸ the Spirit is given for profit. For to one, by the Spirit, is given [the] word of wisdom; and to another [the] word of knowledge, according to the same Spirit; and to a
⁹ different one faith, in [the power of] the same Spirit; and to another gifts of healing in [the power
¹⁰ of] the same Spirit; and to another operations of miracles; and to another prophecy; and to another discerning of spirits; and to a different one kinds of tongues; and to another interpretation of tongues. But all these things operates the one and the same Spirit, dividing to each in particular according as he pleases.
¹² For even as the body is one and has many members, but all the members of the^r body, being many, are one body, so also [is] ¹³ the Christ. For in^s [the power of] one Spirit we have all been baptized into one body, whether Jews or Greeks, whether bondsmen or

^m Here the English language fails. 'Judge ourselves' is not the same word in Greek as 'judged of the Lord,' but as 'distinguish the Lord's body.' But in 'distinguish' the active exercise of judgment on our own state is not expressed. The word is not applied to a formal scrutiny. Here the force is, If I scrutinize and judge myself, I shall not come under an actual judgment from the Lord's hand. Judging oneself has this force in English, while the Lord's judgment is felt to be a positive result of judgment affecting us.

free, and have all been given to ¹⁴ drink into one Spirit. For also the body is not one member but many.
¹⁵ If the foot say, Because I am not a hand I am not of the body, is it on account of ' this not indeed of the ¹⁶ body? ¹⁴ And if the ear say, Because I am not an eye I am not of the body, is it on account of ¹⁷ this not indeed of the body? ¹⁴ If the whole body [were] an eye,
 where the hearing? if all hearing,
¹⁸ where the smelling? But now
 God has set the members, each one of them in the body, accord-¹⁹ ing as it has pleased [him]. But if all were one member, where the ²⁰ body? But now the members are ²¹ many, and the body one.' The eye cannot say to the hand, I have no need of thee; or again,
 the head to the feet, I have not ²² need of you. But much rather, the members of the body which seem to be weaker are necessary;
²³ and those [parts] of the body which we esteem to be the more void of honour,² these we clothe with more abundant honour; and our uncomely [parts] have more ²⁴ abundant comeliness; but our comely [parts] have not need.
 But God has tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to [the part] that ²⁵ lacked; that there might be no division in the body, but that the members might have the same con-²⁶ cern one for another. And if one member suffer, all the members suffer with [it]; and if one member be glorified, all the members rejoice ²⁷ with [it]. Now ye are Christ's body, and members in particular.

²⁸ And God has set certain in the assembly: first, apostles; secondly, prophets; thirdly, teachers; then miraculous powers; then gifts of healings; helps; governments;
²⁹ kinds of tongues. [Are] all apostles? [are] all prophets? [are] all teachers? [are] all [in possession ³⁰ of] miraculous powers? have all gifts of healings? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?
³¹ But desire earnestly the greater gifts, and yet shew I unto you a way of more surpassing excellence.

XIII. If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding ² brass or a clanging cymbal. And if I have prophecy, and know² all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but have not love, I ³ am nothing. And if I shall dole^a out all my goods in food, and if I deliver up my body that I may be burned,^b but have not love, I ⁴ profit nothing. Love has long used as parallel with ἀσχήμων, or as contrasted as to degree. Does the apostle mean the same by ἀτιμότερα and ἀσχήμονα;

 or by one the seemly members, which yet have not such a place as the face; by the other, the unseemly?

^γ T. R., with many, reads 'better.'

^δ εἶδω, 'know inwardly in my mind,'
 'am acquainted with.'

^ε T. R. reads 'if I dole.'

^β Some read 'that I may boast,' καυχῆσθαι for καυθήσθαι.

² Or 'it is not, on account of this, not of the body.'

³ Or '[here are] many members, and one body.'

⁴ T. B. adds δέ, 'and' or 'but;' and omits 'the.'

 be less honourable, or dishonourable.'

patience, is kind; love is not emulous [of others]; love is not insolent and rash,^c is not puffed up, does not behave in an unseemly manner, does not seek what is its own, is not quickly provoked, does not impute evil,^d does not rejoice at iniquity but rejoices with the truth, bears^e all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.^f Love never fails; but whether prophecies, they shall be done away; or tongues, they shall cease; or knowledge, it shall be done away. For we know^g in part, and we prophesy in part: but when that which is perfect has come,^h that which is in part shall be done away. When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I felt as a child, I reasoned as a child; when I became a man, I had done with what belonged to the child. For we see now through a dim windowⁱ obscurely, but then face to face; now I know partially, but then I shall know according as I also have been known. And now abides faith, hope, love; these three things; and the greater of these is love.

XIV. Follow after love, and be emulous of spiritual [manifestations], but rather that ye may prophesy. For he that speaks with a tongue does not speak to men but to God: for no one hears; but in spirit he speaks mysteries. But he that prophecies speaks to men [in] edification, and encouragement, and consolation. He that speaks with a tongue edifies himself; but he that prophecies edifies [the] assembly. Now I desire that ye should all speak with tongues, but rather that ye should prophesy. But^k greater is he that prophecies than he that speaks with tongues, unless he interpret, that the assembly may receive edification. And now, brethren, if I come to you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit you, unless I shall speak to you either in revelation, or in knowledge, or in prophecy, or in teaching? Even lifeless things giving a sound, whether pipe or harp, if they give not distinction to the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped? For also, if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself for war? Thus also ye with the tongue,^l unless ye give a distinct speech, how shall it be known what is spoken? for ye will be speaking to the air. There are, it may be, so many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them undistinguishable sound. If therefore I do not know the power of the sound, I shall be to him that speaks a barbarian, and he that through which men looked at objects outside the house, made, not of clear transparent glass, as now, but of only semi-transparent materials.

I CORINTHIANS XIV.

¹² speaks a barbarian for me. Thus ye also, since ye are desirous of spirits,^m seek that ye may abound for the edification of the assembly. Wherefore let him that speaks with a tongue pray that he may interpret. For if I pray with a tongue, my spirit prays, but my understanding is unfruitful. What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray also with the understanding; I will sing with the spirit, but I will sing also with the understanding. Since otherwise, if thou blessest with [the] spirit, how shall he who fills the place of the simple [christian] say Amen, at thy giving of thanks, since he does not know what thou sayest? For thou indeed givest thanks well, but the other is not edified. I thank Godⁿ I speak in a tongue^o more than all of you: but in [the] assembly I desire to speak five words with my understanding, that I may instruct others also, [rather] than ten thousand words in a tongue. Brethren, be not children in [your] minds, but in malice be babes; but in [your] minds be grown men. It is written in the law, By people of other tongues, and by strange lips, will I speak to this people; and neither thus will they hear me, saith the Lord. So that tongues are for a sign, not to those who believe, but to unbelievers; but prophecy, not to unbelievers, but to those who believe. If therefore the whole assembly come together in one place, and all speak with tongues, and simple [persons] enter in, or unbelievers, will not they say ye are mad? But if all prophesy, and some unbeliever or simple [person] come in, he is convicted of all, he is judged of all;^p the secrets of his heart are manifested; and thus, falling upon [his] face, he will do homage to God, reporting that God is indeed amongst you.

²⁶ What is it then, brethren? whenever ye come together, each of you has a psalm, has a teaching, has a tongue, has a revelation, has an interpretation. Let all things be done to edification. If any one speak with a tongue, [let it be] two, or at the most three, and separately, and let one interpret; but if there be no interpreter, let him be silent in [the] assembly, and let him speak to himself and to God. And let two or three prophets speak, and let the others judge. But if there be a revelation to another sitting [there], let the first be silent. For ye can all prophesy one by one, that all may learn and all be encouraged. And spirits of prophets are subject to prophets. For God is not [a

^m 'Spiritual gifts,' though in sum the sense, deprives the phrase of its force here. As Gentiles, they were in danger of confounding demons' action with the Holy Ghost; and they did not adequately hold the unity of the Spirit, but looked for a spirit's power and action to distinguish them. Such is man. Hence the apostle was obliged to point out the difference between demons and the Holy Ghost. But the word further tends to shew the reality of a personal spirit acting, though for the Christian there be but one, the Spirit of God.

³⁴ Let your women be silent in the assemblies, for it is not permitted to them to speak; but to be in subjection, as the law also says.

³⁵ But if they wish to learn anything, let them ask their own husbands at home; for it is a shame for a

³⁶ woman^r to speak in assembly. Did the word of God go out from you,

³⁷ or did it come to you only? If any one thinks himself to be a prophet or spiritual, let him recognize the things that I write to you, that it is the commandment^s of ³⁸ [the]^t Lord. But if any be ignorant, let him be ignorant. So that,

³⁹ brethren, desire to prophesy, and do not forbid the speaking with ⁴⁰ tongues. But^v let all things be done comely and with order.

XV. But I make known to you, brethren, the glad things which I announced to you, which also ye received, in which also ye stand,

² by which also ye are saved, (if ye hold fast the word which I announced to you as the glad tidings,) unless indeed ye have

³ believed in vain. For I delivered to you, in the first place, what also I had received, that Christ died for our sins, according to the

⁴ scriptures: and that he was buried; and that he was raised the third day, according to the scriptures;

⁵ and that he appeared to Cephas; ⁶ then to the twelve. Then he appeared to above five hundred brethren at once, of whom the most remain until now, but some

⁷ also have fallen asleep. Then he appeared to James; then to all

⁸ the apostles; and last of all, as to an abortion, he appeared to me

⁹ also. For I am the least of the apostles, who am not fit to be called apostle, because I have persecuted the assembly of God.

¹⁰ But by God's grace I am what I am; and his grace, which [was] towards me, has not been vain;

but I have laboured more abundantly than they all, but not I, but the grace of God which [was]

¹¹ with me. Whether, therefore, I or they, thus we preach, and thus ¹² ye have believed. Now if Christ is preached that he is raised from among [the] dead, how say some among you that there is not a resurrection of [those that are]

¹³ dead? But if there is not a resurrection of [those that are] dead,

¹⁴ neither is Christ raised: but if Christ is not raised, then, indeed, vain also^w [is] our preaching, and

¹⁵ vain also your faith. And we are found also false witnesses of God; for we have witnessed concerning

God that he raised the Christ, whom he has not raised if indeed [those that are] dead are not

¹⁶ raised. For if [those that are] dead are not raised, neither is

¹⁷ Christ raised: ^x but if Christ be not raised, your faith [is] vain; ye are

^q Some connect this last phrase with what follows. The repetition of 'assemblies' might seem harsh in that case. But verse 36 would tend to the opposite conclusion perhaps. It is a question of interpretation, not of translation, and I have nothing to object to it.

24 and all authority and power. For he must reign until he put all^a enemies under his feet. [The] last enemy [that] is annulled [is] death. For he has put all things in subjection under his feet. But when he says that all things are put in subjection, [it is] evident that [it is] except him who put all things

25 in subjection to him. But when all things shall have been brought 26 'is raised' The first word applies to the abstract fact of being raised whenever it may be ; the second an accomplished but continuing fact. The English tenses do not always secure this distinction. I have not put 'do not rise,' because then the thought of being raised by another, God, is lost, which, if ἐγείρονται be passive, is found in the Greek. ἐγήγηρα is applied to Christ : ἐγείρονται to the doctrinal fact as to dead people.

27 'is raised' The first word applies to the abstract fact of being raised whenever it may be ; the second an accomplished but continuing fact. The English tenses do not always secure this distinction. I have not put 'do not rise,' because then the thought of being raised by another, God, is lost, which, if ἐγείρονται be passive, is found in the Greek. ἐγήγηρα is applied to Christ : ἐγείρονται to the doctrinal fact as to dead people.

28 'Him [who is] God and Father.' This, I acknowledge, is an awkward phrase. It is almost impossible to render the Greek idiom, which unites with one article either two qualities of the same person, or two persons under the same quality. But I prefer this awkward English to 'God, even the Father,' because this phrase is equivocal in doctrine, and might be into subjection to him, then the Son also himself shall be placed in subjection to him who put all things in subjection to him, that God may be all in all.)

29 Since what shall the baptized for^b the dead do if [those that are] dead rise not at all? why also are they baptized for them?^c Why do we also endanger ourselves every

30 hour? Daily I die, by your boasting which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord. If, [to speak] after the manner of man, I have fought with beasts in Ephesus, what is the profit to me if [those that are] dead do not rise? let us eat and drink ; for to-morrow we die. Be not deceived : evil communications

31 corrupt good manners. Awake up righteously, and sin not ; for some are ignorant^d of God : I speak to you as a matter of shame.

32 But some one will say, How are the dead raised? and with what body do they come? Fool ; what thou sowest is not quickened unless it die. And what thou sowest thou sowest not the body that shall be, but a bare grain : it may used as meaning that the Father only is God, which is no way the sense. Some have gone too far with this rule, as to the use of the article, as if it was necessarily one personal object, whereas it can be used with two, as τῷ Παύλῳ καὶ Βαρνάβῃ, if both are apostles together, or found in the same service.

^a τούς, the article, cannot be translated in English : 'his' goes too far. It has the effect of recognizing them as such, objectively manifested as such.

^b Or 'over.'
^c Instead of 'for them,' T. R. reads 'for the dead.'

^d On the whole, 'ignorant of God' gives the sense. 'Have not the knowledge' is weak. 'No knowledge' does not meet the case ; ignorant is not indeed used of a person ; but here it refers to the true character of God.

I CORINTHIANS XV, XVI.

be of wheat, or some one of the ³⁸ rest: and God gives to it a body as he has pleased, and to each of ³⁹ the seeds its own body. Every flesh [is] not the same flesh, but one [is]^e of men, and another flesh of beasts, and another flesh^f of ⁴⁰ birds, and another of fishes.^g And [there are] heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies: but different is the glory of the heavenly, different ⁴¹ that of the earthly: one [the] sun's glory, and another [the] moon's glory, and another [the] stars' glory; for star differs from ⁴² star in glory. Thus also [is] the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in ⁴³ incorruptibility. It is sown in dishonour, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised ⁴⁴ in power. It is sown a natural^h body, it is raised a spiritual body:
 if there is a natural^h body, there ⁴⁵ is alsoⁱ a spiritual [one]. Thus also it is written, The first man Adam became a living soul; the last Adam a quickening^k spirit.
⁴⁶ But that [which is] spiritual [was] not first, but that [which is] natural,^l then that [which is] ⁴⁷ spiritual: the first man out of [the] earth, made of dust; the ⁴⁸ second man,^m out of heaven. Such as he made of dust, such also those made of dust; and such as the heavenly [one], such also the ⁴⁹ heavenly [ones]. And as we have borne the image of the [one] made of dust, we shall bear also the ⁵⁰ image of the heavenly [one]. But this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit God's kingdom, nor does corruption inherit incorruptibility.

⁵¹ Behold, I tell you a mystery:
 We shall not all fall asleep, but ⁵² we shall all be changed, in an instant, in [the] twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and ⁵³ we shall be changed. For this corruptible must needs put on incorruptibility, and this mortal ⁵⁴ put on immortality. But when this corruptible shall have put on incorruptibility, and this mortal
 shall have put on immortality, then shall come to pass the word written: Death has been swal-⁵⁵ lowed up in victory. Where, O death, [is] thy sting? where, grave, ⁵⁶ thy victory? Now the sting of death [is] sin, and the power of sin ⁵⁷ the law; but thanks to God, who gives us the victory by our Lord ⁵⁸ Jesus Christ. So then, my beloved brethren, be firm, immovable, abounding always in the work of the Lord, knowing that your toil is not vain in [the] Lord.

the assemblies of Galatia, so do 2 ye do also. On [the] first of [the] week let each of you put by at home, laying up [in] whatever [degree] he may have prospered, that there may be no collections
 3 when I come. And when I am arrived, whomsoever ye shall approve,^o these I will send with letters to carry your bounty to 4 Jerusalem: and if it be suitable that I also should go, they shall 5 go with me. But I will come to you when I shall have gone through Macedonia; for I do go 6 through Macedonia. But perhaps I shall stay with you, or even winter with you, that ye may set me forward wheresoever I may 7 go. For I will^p not see you now in passing, for^q I hope to remain a certain time with you, if the 8 Lord permit. But I remain in 9 Ephesus until Pentecost. For a great door is opened to me and an effectual [one], and [the] adversaries many.

10 Now if Timotheus come, see that he may be with you without fear;
 for he works the work of the Lord, 11 even as I. Let not therefore any one despise him; but set him forward in peace, that he may come to me; for I expect him with the 12 brethren. Now concerning the brother Apollos, I begged him much^r that^s he would go to you with the brethren; but it was not at all his will^t to go now; but he will come when he shall have good 13 opportunity. Be vigilant; stand fast in the faith; quit yourselves 14 like men; be strong. Let all things^v ye do be done in love.

15 But I beseech you, brethren, (ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is the first-fruits of Achaia, and they have devoted^w themselves to 16 the saints for service,) that ye should also be subject to such, and to every one joined in the work and 17 labouring. But I rejoice in the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus; because they have supplied what was lacking 18 on your part. For they have refreshed my spirit and yours:
 19 own therefore such. The assemblies of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscilla,^w with the assembly in their house, salute you much 20 in [the] Lord. All the brethren salute you. Salute one another with a holy kiss.

21 The salutation of [me] Paul 22 with my own hand. If any one love not the Lord Jesus Christ,
 let him be Anathema Maran-atha.
 23 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ 24 [be] with you. My love [be] with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

^o It may be read 'approve by letters, I will send them to carry,' &c.

^p θέλω. Not exactly 'purpose;' but 'it is not my desire or intention.'

^q T. B. reads 'but.'

^r πολλά may mean 'often,' but in verse 19 of this chapter we have it used as meaning 'much.'

^s ἴνα, in order that.

^t Or 'but it was not, at any rate, his will.'

^v Literally 'all your things.'

^w 'Devoted themselves,' &c. In sum this is the sense; but the force of the apostle's phrase is not wholly given. The word ἐταφάρ is 'appointed to,' as an officer to a regiment. The family of Stephanas had appointed themselves to the saints for service—given themselves up to serve them, or rather given themselves up to them. 'The saints' is governed by the verb, not by ministering. The idea resulting from what I have given in the text is more what the apostle means.

^w Or 'Prisca,' as some.

SECOND EPISTLE TO THE CORINTHIANS.

PAUL, apostle of Jesus Christ by God's will, and the brother Timotheus, to the assembly of God which is in Corinth, with all the saints which are in the whole of² Achaia. Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

³ Blessed [be] the God and Father of⁴ our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of compassions, and God of all encouragement; ⁵ who encourages us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to encourage those who are in any tribulation whatever, through the encouragement with which we ourselves are encouraged of God. ⁶ Because, even as the sufferings of the Christ⁷ abound towards us, so through the⁸ Christ does our encouragement also abound. But whether we are in tribulation, [it is] for your encouragement and salvation, wrought in the endurance of the same sufferings which ⁹ we also suffer, ¹⁰ (and our hope for you [is] sure;) or whether we are encouraged, [it is] for your encouragement and salvation: knowing that as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so also of the¹¹ encouragement. For we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, as to our tribulation which happened to us in Asia, that we were excessively pressed beyond [our] power, so as to despair¹² even of living. But we ourselves had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not have our trust in ourselves, but in God who ¹³ raises the dead; who has delivered us from so great a death, and does deliver; in whom we confide that he will also yet deliver; ¹⁴ ye also labouring together by supplication for us that the gift towards us, through means of many persons, may be the subject of the thanksgiving of many for ¹⁵ us. For our boasting is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity¹⁶ and sincerity¹⁷ be-

⁷ I do not say 'comfort;' that is rather παρομύθημα (1 Thess. ii. 11. and v. 14. John xi. 31). It is only a shade of difference. See Acts xx. 12, Matt. ii. 18. In these, particularly the first, it has somewhat the sense of 'cheered.' Perhaps the latter word might replace 'encouragement' and 'encourage' in the text if there were a noun formed from 'to cheer.'

⁸ I would take this opportunity of drawing attention to the difference between 'Christ' and 'the Christ.' 'The Christ' is the designation of a condition, not a name; 'Christ' is a name. Not only are these not used indifferently, but in the Gospels, where the word is used alone, it is almost invariably 'the Christ,' the Messiah, or anointed; while in the Epistles it is rarely so. It is used as a name. Some cases are doubtful, because the structure of the Greek phrase requires or prefers the article; this is the case here. However, on the whole I believe the article should be inserted here in English.

¹¹ T. R. omits 'the'

¹² T. R. puts the words within the parenthesis after the word 'salvation' in ver. 7.

¹³ There is an ἡμᾶς left out in the translation, as regards the letter, but the sense is more exact, the inferential force of ὡς being preserved. 'So that we despaired' is too historically affirmative.

¹⁴ Many read 'holiness.'

¹⁵ Greek, 'simplicity and sincerity of fore God, (not in fleshly wisdom but in God's grace,) we have had our conversation in the world, and more abundantly towards you.

¹⁵ For we do not write other things to you but what ye well know^c and recognize; and I hope that ye will also recognize to the end,
¹⁴ even as also ye have recognized us in part, that we are your boast, even as ye [are] ours in the day
¹⁵ of the Lord Jesus. And with this confidence I purposed to come to you previously, that ye might have ¹⁶ a second favour; and to pass through to Macedonia by you, and again from Macedonia to come to you, and to be set forward by ¹⁷ you to Judæa. Having therefore this purpose, have I then used lightness? or what I purpose, do I purpose according to flesh, that there should be with me yea yea, and nay nay? Now God [is] ¹⁸ faithful, that our word to you is^f not yea and nay. For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who has been preached by us among you (by me and Silvanus and Timotheus), did not become^e yea and nay, but ²⁰ yea is^h in him. For whatever promises of God [there] are, in him is the yea, and in him the amen, ²¹ for gloryⁱ to God by us. Now he that establishes us with you in^k Christ, and has anointed us, [is]

²² God, who also has sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.
²³ But I call God to witness upon my soul that to spare you I have ²⁴ not yet come to Corinth. Not that we rule over your faith, but are fellow-workmen of your joy: for by faith ye stand.

II. But I have judged this with myself, not to come back to you
² in grief. For if I grieve you, who also [is] it that gladdens me if not he that is grieved through ³ me? and I have written^l this very [letter] to you, that coming I may not have grief from those from whom I ought to have joy; trusting in you all that my joy is ⁴ [that] of you all. For out of much tribulation and distress of heart^m I wrote to you, with many

God.' The force I take to be, such as God would have, and God would produce. As we say, 'That is the stroke of a master,' 'the act of a prince.' 'Godly' seems to me feeble, but not wrong. One cannot say 'of God' in English.

^e Or 'own [personally].' Some would render this 'but what ye read.' The word has this sense also; but it refers here, I think, to what they knew and had learnt of him by his being amongst them.

^g ἔβλεπετο γέγραφο.

^h The apostle here changes from the aorist to the perfect. He is not speaking of the character of his preaching but declaring that the verification of all divine truth is in the person of Christ.

ⁱ Or 'with or before God, for glory by us.' It may be read thus: 'was not yea and nay, but in him is the yea, (for whatsoever promises of God there are, in him is the yea, and in him the amen,) for glory to God by us.'

^k Literally 'unto.' βεβαίων εἰς, 'attaches firmly to, connects firmly with.'

^l Some refer this phrase to his first letter. In this case it must be translated, 'and I wrote the very [letter I did].' But I think αὐτὸ τοῦτο can hardly mean that; and in the following words he refers it to the present time, when he was coming. It is evident that, if ἔγραψα (ver. 4) refers to his first letter, it must be translated 'I wrote;' but ἔκρινα (ver. 1) refers to the general determination of his mind. ἔγραψα clearly often refers to what is written in the letter that contains it, and then we must say in English, 'I have written.'

^m This, I should think, must refer to the

II CORINTHIANS II, III.

tears; not that ye may be grieved, but that ye may know the love which I have very abundantly ⁵ towards you. But if any one has grieved, he has grieved, not me, but in part (that I may not over- ⁶ charge [you]) all of you. Sufficient to such a one [is] this rebuke which [has been inflicted] ⁷ by the many; ^a so that on the contrary ye should rather shew grace ^o and encourage, lest perhaps such a one should be swallowed ⁸ up with excessive grief. Wherefore I exhort you to assure him of ⁹ [your] love. For to this end also I have written that I might know, by putting you to the test, if as to ¹⁰ everything ye are obedient. But to whom ye forgive anything, ^p I also; for I also what I have forgiven, if I have forgiven ^a anything, [it is] for your sakes in [the] ¹¹ person of Christ; that we might not have Satan get an advantage against us, for we are not ignorant of his thoughts.

¹² Now when I came to Troas for the [publication of the] glad tidings of the Christ, a door also being opened to me in [the] Lord, ¹³ I had no rest in my spirit at not finding Titus my brother; but bidding them adieu, I came away ¹⁴ to Macedonia. But thanks [be] first epistle, as he was now much relieved through the news Titus brought.

^a The body at large.

^o Or 'forgive,' as in verse 10; the word is the same.

^p T. R. reads 'to whom ye forgive anything, I also; for also if I forgive anything, to whom I forgive it, it is for your sakes in the person of Christ.'

^a κενάρισμα, the perfect: he had done it, but it continued as a present thing.

^s Or 'adulterate:' the word signifies to God, who always leads us in triumph in the Christ, and makes manifest the odour of his knowledge through us in every place.

¹⁵ For we are a sweet odour of Christ to God in the saved and in those ¹⁶ that perish: to the one an odour from death unto death, but to the others an odour from ^r life unto life; and who [is] sufficient for ¹⁷ these things? For we do not, as the many, make a trade of ^s the word of God; but as of sincerity, but as of God, before God, we speak in Christ.

III. Do we begin again to commend ourselves? or ^t do we need, as some, commendatory letters to you, or commendatory from you? ² Ye are our letter, written in our hearts, known and read ^v of all ³ men, being ^w manifested to be Christ's epistle ministered by us; written, not with ink, but [the] Spirit of [the] living God; not on stone tables, but on fleshy tables of ⁴ [the] heart. And such confidence have we through the Christ to- ⁵ wards God: not that we are competent ^x of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves, but our ⁶ competency [is] of God; who has also made us competent, [as] ministers of [the] new covenant; not of letter, but spirit. For the letter properly 'to retail.'

^t T. R. reads 'unless we need,' εἰ μὴ for ἢ μὴ.

^v The word translated 'read' means also 'well known;' a thing read of all, not private.

^w Literally '[ye] being manifested that ye are.'

^x I do not prefer particularly 'competent' to 'sufficient,' but the connection of the word is lost the third time it is used if we say 'sufficient,' as that word cannot be used there.

II CORINTHIANS III, IV.

kills,⁷ but the Spirit quickens. ⁷ (But if the ministry of death, in letters, graven in stones, began² with glory, so that the children of Israel could not fix their eyes on the face of Moses, on account of the glory of his face, [a glory] ⁸ which is annulled; how shall not rather the ministry of the Spirit ⁹ subsist in glory? For if the ministry of condemnation [be] glory, much rather the ministry of righteousness abounds in glory. ¹⁰ For also that [which was] glorified is not glorified^a in this respect, on account of the surpassing glory. ¹¹ For if that annulled^b [was introduced] with glory, much rather that which abides [subsists] in ¹² glory. Having therefore such ¹³ hope, we use much boldness: and not according as Moses put a veil on his own face, so that the children of Israel should not fix their eyes on the end of that annulled.^b ¹⁴ But their thoughts have been darkened, for unto this day the same veil remains in reading the old covenant unremoved,^c which ¹⁵ in Christ is annulled. But unto this day, when Moses is read the ¹⁶ veil lies upon their heart. But when it shall turn to [the] Lord, ¹⁷ the veil is taken away.)^d Now the Lord is the Spirit, but where the Spirit of [the] Lord [is,^e there ¹⁸ is] liberty. But we all, looking on the glory of the Lord with unveiled face, are transformed according to the same image from glory to glory, even as by [the] Lord [the] Spirit.^f

IV. Therefore, having this ministry, as we have had mercy shewn us, ² we faint not. But we have rejected the hidden things of shame, not walking in deceit, nor falsifying the word of God, but by manifestation of the truth commending ourselves to every conscience of ³ men before God. But if also our gospel is veiled, it is veiled in ⁴ those that are lost; in whom the god of this world has blinded the thoughts of the unbelieving, so that the radiancy^g of the glad

⁷ Or 'for letter kills.'

^a It is not said that the ministry was glorious, but that the system was introduced with glory, ἐγενήθη ἐν δόξῃ. It is in contrast with 'subsisting in glory.'

^b T. R. reads 'for neither also is that glorified, glorified,' &c.

^c 'That annulled,' or 'done away,' is used sometimes a little harshly here. But the apostle uses it as a formula for the old covenant done away in Christ. If this be borne in mind, the harshness will disappear, and the sense be clearer by adhering to the use of it. It is the τὸ καταργούμενον in contrast with the τὸ μένον. 'That which is done away' would be too historical, and too little the abstract character of the old thing which was not to abide.

^d Some would translate 'it not being discovered, (literally, unveiled,) that in Christ it is done away.' Or it may be 'the veil not being taken off that which is done away in Christ; or unremoved, because it is done away in Christ.' In the last case ὄρι is to be read, not ὄρι. But I have no doubt that the text is right, and that Moses covered his face while he talked to the people, and that the Hebrew means nothing else. Ex. xxxiv. 33 means it, and ver. 34 proves it.

^e The parenthesis begins at verse 7.

^f T. R. reads 'there [is],' adding ἐκεῖ.

^g See verses 8, 17.

^h I have doubted as to this passage. ἀνύψαται is found here only in the New Testament. 'For them,' is rejected by the editors. I add it, as those who introduced it in Greek did, to complete the sense; but I do not find that ἀνύψαται is used in classical Greek as a neuter verb. It is found as an active and passive one in, I believe, Nazianzen, and in Euripides in the sense 'brightening, enlightening something else,' but its regular, habitual use is 'to see or discern.' We find, how-

II CORINTHIANS IV, V.

tidings of the glory of the Christ, who is [the] image of God, should ⁵ not shine forth [for them.] For we do not preach ourselves, but Christ Jesus Lord, and ourselves
⁶ your bondsmen for Jesus' sake. Because [it is] the Gods who spake ^b that out of darkness light should shine who has shone in our hearts for the shining forthⁱ of the knowledge of the glory of God in [the]
⁷ face of Jesus Christ. But we have this treasure in earthen vessels that the surpassingness of the power may be of God, and not
⁸ from us: every way afflicted, but not straitened; seeing no apparent issue, but our way not entirely
⁹ shut up;^k persecuted, but not abandoned; cast down, but not
¹⁰ destroyed; always bearing about in the body the dying of Jesus,^l that the life also of Jesus may be ¹¹ manifested in our body; for we who live are always delivered unto death on account of Jesus, that the life also of Jesus may be ¹² manifested in our mortal flesh; so that death works in us, but^m life

¹³ in you. And having the same spirit of faith, according to what is written, I have believed, therefore have I spoken; we also believe, therefore also we speak;
¹⁴ knowing that he who has raised up the Lord Jesus shall raise us up also through Jesus, and shall ¹⁵ present [us] with you. For all things [are] for your sakes, that the grace abounding through the manyⁿ may cause thanksgiving to abound to the glory of God.
¹⁶ Wherefore we faint not; but if indeed our outward man is consumed, yet the inward is renewed
¹⁷ day by day. For our momentary [and] light affliction^o works for us in surpassing measure an eternal weight of glory; while^p we ¹⁸ look not at the things that are seen, but at the things that are not seen; for the things that are seen [are] for a time, but those that are not seen eternal.

V. For we know that if our earthly tabernacle house^q be destroyed, ever, ἀυγάζον, as a neuter participle, used in Lev. xiii. 24, to describe the white appearance of leprosy, which supposes, perhaps, a neuter verb, if it be not a substantive, and in Hebrew בָּרַר from בָּרַר 'to shine.' If we translate it 'discern,' the sense would be 'so that they should not discern the shining forth of the glad tidings of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God.' Ambrose, it seems, so translates it, and Beza approves.

^a Or 'God.'

^b Literally 'who spoke light to shine out of darkness.'

ⁱ 'Shining forth,' or 'radiancy;' the same word as above, verse 4.

^k ἀπορούμενοι, ἅλλ' οὐκ ἐξαπορούμενοι.

^m T. R. reads μέν δέ, equivalent to 'and,' or to be left untranslated; but the editions reject μέν, and thus δέ is better translated 'but.'

ⁿ 'Grace abounding through the many.' The grace of God, perfect in itself, multiplies itself in its objects, so that thanksgiving abounds. Paul was delivered, but everything was for the church. It was not therefore merely a benefit to him, but still more to all, so that the grace or benefit was multiplied, and caused thanksgiving to abound to God's glory. The form of thought is peculiar, but the sense plain and striking. I add the note because, unless it be the Vulgate, I am not aware of its being so translated: some moderns however, I find, have done so.

^o Literally 'the momentary lightness of our.'

^p 'While' has not the sense of time here. I leave it because 'we not looking' has a somewhat causative sense, which is not the force of the passage.

^q There is an article before σκήνους in Greek: but I have no doubt σκήνους is

II CORINTHIANS V.

we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, ² eternal in the heavens. For indeed in this we groan, ardently desiring to have put on our house which ³ [is] from ^r heaven; if indeed being also clothed we shall not be found ⁴ naked. For indeed we who are in the tabernacle groan being burdened; while yet ^a we do not wish to be unclothed, but clothed, that [what is] mortal may be swallowed ⁵ up by life. Now he that has wrought us for this very thing [is] God, who also ^t has given to us the ⁶ earnest of the Spirit. Therefore [we are] always confident, and know ^r that while present in the body we are absent from the Lord, ⁷ (for we walk by faith, not by ⁸ sight;) we are confident, I say, ^w and pleased rather to be absent from the body and present with ⁹ the Lord. Wherefore also we are zealous, whether present or absent, ¹⁰ to be agreeable to him. For we must all be manifested before the judgment-seat of the Christ, that each may receive the things [done] in ^x the body, according to those he has done, whether [it be]

¹¹ good or evil. Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord we persuade men, but have been ^y manifested to God, and I hope also that we have been ^y manifested in your ¹² consciences. For we do not again commend ourselves to you, but [we are] giving to you occasion of boast in our behalf, that ye may have [such] with those boasting in countenance, and not in heart. ¹³ For whether we are beside ourselves, [it is] to God; ^z or are sober, [it is] for you. For the love of the Christ constrains us, having judged this, that if one died for all, then all have ^a died; ¹⁴ and he died for all, that they who live should no longer live to themselves, but to him who has died ¹⁵ for them, and risen again. So that we henceforth know ^b no one according to flesh; but if even we have known ^b Christ according to flesh, yet now we know ^b [him ¹⁷ thus] no longer. So if any one [be] in Christ, [there is] a new creation: the old things have passed away; behold, all things ¹⁸ have become new: and all things [are] of the God, ^c who has re-characteristic, the article being before οικία because of ἡμῶν, and hence regularly before σκήνους: ἡ ο. τοῦ σ. is one idea, ἡμῶν applying to the whole.

^s Or 'though meanwhile,' 'yet in such sort that.' It is a necessary condition of the right understanding of verse 4. 'Clothed' is the same word as to have 'put on' in verse 2.

^t Most authorities omit 'also.'

^w Literally 'knowing.' It was their state. They were θαρροῦντες καὶ εἰδότες.

^x δέ may perhaps be thus expressed

^y τὰ διὰ (used by Plato. See Meyer), 'the things which in their accomplishment have their seat there.'

^z It is the perfect; that is, in Greek, what is done and of which the effect continues.

^a Or 'for God;' that is, he was as a fool for God's glory. But the sense is, I think, 'If he lost the blessed calculations of love which was his path towards men, it was to be out of himself with God, and for him: a blessed alternative. His ecstasy was not excitement or folly, but if out of himself it was with God; if sober, it was the calculation of love for their good.'

^b Or 'had died.' It is the aorist, and refers to the state Christ's death proved them to be in.

^c See note to 1 Cor. viii. 1. Here the first 'know' is οἶδαμεν, the second and third, ἐγνώκαμεν and γινώσκομεν.

^d Or 'of God.'

II CORINTHIANS V, VI.

conciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and given to us the ministry of ^d that reconciliation :
¹⁹ how that God was in Christ, reconciling the world to himself, not reckoning to them their offences ; and putting in us the word

²¹ reconciled to God. 'Him who knew not sin he has made sin for us, that we might become God's righteousness in him.

VI. But, [as] fellow-workmen,^e we also beseech that ye receive not ² the grace of God in vain : (for he says, I have listened to thee in an accepted time, and I have helped thee in a day of salvation : behold, now [is the] well accepted time ; behold, now [the] day of ³ salvation :) giving no manner of offence in anything, that the ⁴ ministry be not blamed ; but in everything commending ourselves as God's ministers, in much endurance,^h in afflictions, in necessities, in straits, in stripes, in prisons, in riots, in labours, in

⁶ watchings, in fastings, in pureness, in knowledge, in long-suffering, in kindness, in [the]
⁷ Holy Ghost, in love unfeigned, in [the] word of truth, in [the] power of God ; through the arms of righteousness on the right hand
⁸ and left, through glory and dishonour, through evil report and good report : as deceivers and true ;
⁹ as unknown, and well known ;ⁱ as dying, and behold, we live ; as disciplined, and not put to

¹⁴ Be not diversely^o yoked with unbelievers ; for what participation [is there] between righteousness and lawlessness ? or^p what fellowship of light with darkness ?
¹⁵ and what consent of Christ with Beliar,^q or what part for a believer

^d Or simply 'of reconciliation.'

^e 'As of God beseeching,' 'as though,' or 'as if,' is too much similarity or comparison. God being in Christ, and they Christ's ambassadors, they besought on God's behalf. He was as beseeching by them. The apostle will not say God was beseeching, but it amounted to that, as done on his behalf. It is very difficult to translate, though the sense be most evident and beautiful. The apostle would not quite say 'God beseeching,' but softens it by ὡς. I am not satisfied with 'as it were,' but know nothing better.

^g See I Corinthians iii. 9. Here literally 'jointly labouring ;' the connection is in the word 'beseeching.'

^h Or 'patience.'

ⁱ Or 'recognized.'

^k Or 'sorrowful.'

^l I do not say 'enlarged,' because it would lead to suppose that his heart had been narrow. He had been driven in, as it were, by their evil, and now opened out and expanded.

^m Greek, 'bowels.'

ⁿ Literally 'be ye also expanded.'

^o 'Unequally' is a consequence, but not stated in the text, which says 'diversely,' ἐτεροζυγοῦντες, referring to the Levitical law, which forbade different animals to be yoked together. (Lev. xix. 19.)

^p T. R. reads 'and' or 'but,' δέ.

^q Beza and Elzevir read 'Belial,' Stephens Βελίαρ, and so later critics.

II CORINTHIANS VI, VII.

¹⁶ along with an unbeliever? and what agreement of God's temple with idols? for ye are [the] living God's temple; according as God has said, I will dwell among them, and walk [among them]; and I will be their God, and they shall ¹⁷ be to me a people. Wherefore come out from the midst of them, and be separated, saith [the]^s Lord, and touch not [what is] unclean, and I will receive you; ¹⁸ and I will be to you for a Father, and ye shall be to me for sons and daughters, saith [the]^s Lord Almighty.

VII. Having therefore these promises, beloved, let us purify ourselves from every pollution of flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in God's fear.

² Receive us: we have injured no one, we have ruined^t no one, we ³ have made gain of no one. I do not speak for condemnation, for I have already said that ye are in our hearts, to die together, and ⁴ live together. Great [is] my boldness towards you, great my exulting in respect of you; I am filled with encouragement; I overabound in joy under all our affliction. ⁵ For indeed, when we came into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but [we were] afflicted in every way; without combats, within ⁶ fears. But he who encourages those that are [brought] low, [even] God, encouraged us by the ⁷ coming of Titus; and not by his coming only, but also through the encouragement with which he was encouraged as to you; relating to us your ardent desire, your mourning, your zeal for me; so that I ⁸ the more rejoiced. For if also^v I have grieved you in the letter, I do not regret [it], if even I have regretted it; for I see that that letter, if even [it were] only for a ⁹ time, grieved you. Now I rejoice, not that ye have been grieved, but that ye have been grieved to repentance; for ye have been grieved according to God, that in nothing ye might be injured by ¹⁰ us. For grief according to God works repentance to salvation, never to be regretted; but the grief of the world works death. ¹¹ For, behold, this same thing, that ye have grieved according to God, how much^w diligence it wrought in you, but [what] excusing [of yourselves], but [what] indignation, but [what] fear, but [what] ardent desire, but [what] zeal, but [what] vengeance: in every way ye have proved yourselves to ¹² be pure in the matter. So then,

* I have no doubt that the article is left out here in Greek because 'Lord' is a proper name, answering to Jehovah. Jehovah Shaddai, (the Old Testament names of Elohim, to Israel, and to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob,) takes the name of Father with us.

^v It seems to me 'if also,' while literal, is more delicate, as expression of feeling, than 'though.' 'If even' would here express an extreme case or doubt; 'also' is admitting an additional fact. Hence

I put 'if even' for the other cases of ei kai in the sentence. He suggests in the way of admission, as the extreme to which he went; he was right and inspired, but felt the distress individually, and would not leave them ignorant of how far his love went; so in the third case with 'only' 'if even:' it is the same limitation of their grief. 'Ye were sorry, if even it were only for a time.'

^w Or 'what.'

II CORINTHIANS VII, VIII.

if also I wrote to you, [it was] not for the sake of him that injured, nor for the sake of him that was injured, but for the sake of our diligent zeal for you being manifested to you² before God. For this reason we have been encouraged. And we the rather rejoiced³ in our encouragement,² more abundantly^a by reason of the joy of Titus, because his spirit has been refreshed by you all.^b

¹⁴ Because if I boasted to him anything about you, I have not been put to shame; but as we have spoken to you all things in truth, so also our boasting to Titus has¹⁵ been [the] truth; and his affections^c are more abundantly towards you,

^a Or perhaps 'for the sake of our diligent zeal for you before God being manifested to you.' The reading is uncertain here. It is very possible that the true reading is 'your zeal for us.' Cod. Sin., Cod. Aug. (Greek), and Clar. have 'your zeal for you;' Cod. Alex. 'our zeal for you;' so Chrysostom. Vulg. has 'your zeal for us;' old Lat. 'our zeal for you;' Matthæi 'your zeal for us.' The 'to you' is a difficulty. Tisch., Meyer, and Alf., adopt 'your zeal for us;' De Wette not, on account of πρὸς ὑμᾶς. Its force, if it be read 'your zeal for us,' would be, that you might discern how truly you loved us, though turned aside by false teachers. Compare verse 7, which possibly led to ὑμῶν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν.

^b Or 'besides.'
^c Or 'have been comforted in our comfort.' T. R. has 'encouraged in your,' &c.

^a The rather.... more abundantly: περισσότερως μᾶλλον. This is a common Greek idiom, even with πολλῶ added (see Wetstein, Phil. i. 23), but impossible to render exactly in English. 'More abundantly,' rather than. With ὅσον, (Mark vii. 36,) it is translated 'so much the more,' which is a little too much in contrast with what precedes. In Phil. with πολλῶ, πολλῶ μᾶλλον κρείττονον, it is translated 'far better.' Here without πολλῶ 'exceedingly the more.' But in English 'the more' supposes more than something, and because of something. 'I calling to mind the obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling ye received him. I rejoice that in everything I am confident as to you.

VIII. But we make known to you, brethren, the grace of God bestowed in the assemblies of² Macedonia; that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty has abounded to the riches of their³ free-hearted liberality. For according to [their] power, I bear witness, and beyond [their] power, [they were] willing of their own⁴ accord, begging of us with much entreaty^d [to give effect to] the grace^e and fellowship of the ser-

did it the more,' that is, because of something done. But while a common Hellenism to strengthen the comparative, though said by Thom. M. to be οὐ λογογράφω τὸ λέγειν, I do not think it always merely emphatic; there is an unexpressed motive which is the cause of 'the rather' in the mind. Hence I have added 'the rather' here, though much inclined to generalize it by 'very.' I have no objection to this generalization, if the reader prefer. But I somewhat suspect that verse 14 gives the clue to the force of it, while quite admitting it is, I may say, a common form in all ages of Greek, from Homer to Euripides, and Aristophanes and Isocrates.

^b It may, perhaps, be translated 'and we the rather rejoiced more abundantly in the joy of Titus, (for his spirit is refreshed by you all,) because if I,' &c. There are often examples of the change of 'I,' and 'we,' in this epistle; it is the case in this very context. But not without a reason in the sense, 'I' being more personal to Paul.

^c Greek, 'bowels.'
^d T. R. adds 'that we would receive.'
^e Or 'as to the gift.' There is no apparent verb in this sentence, and it has amazingly puzzled the commentators. 'Us to receive' has been introduced into the text, rejected by the editors, I may say, by all, and evidently a gloss. But λαρεῖν is not the collection, (hence 'receive' is wrong,) but the grace and favour vice which [was to be rendered] to the saints. And not according as we hoped, but they gave themselves first to the Lord, and to us by God's will. So that^f we begged Titus that, according as he had before begun, so he would also complete as to^g you this grace also; but^h even as ye abound in every way, in faith, and word, and knowledge, and all diligence, and in love from you to us, that ye may abound in this grace also. I do not speak by commandment, but through the zeal of others, and proving the genuineness of your love. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that for your sakes he being rich became poor, in order that ye by hisⁱ poverty might be enriched. And I give [my] opinion in this, for this is profitable for you who began before, not only to do, but also to be willing, a year ago. But now also complete the doing of it; so that as [there was] the readiness to be willing, so also to complete out of what ye have. For if the readiness be there, [a man is] accepted^k according to shewn to the poor in the gift. Instead then of Paul having to press this grace on the Macedonians, they beg of him the grace and fellowship of the administration; that is, to be the instrument (though an apostle) of its manifestation by them. The χαρίν καὶ κοινωνίαν is the active exercise of grace towards the Jewish saints. This they begged of Paul. (See verse 19.)

^f εἰς τὸ, 'so that we were led to beg,' 'leading us to beg.' 'So that' merely states the effect produced, εἰς τὸ the tendency of the grace among the Macedonians he had been speaking of. That led to it.

what he^l may have, not according to what he has not. For [it is not] in order that there may be ease for others, and for you distress, but [on the principle] of equality; in the present time your abundance for their lack, that their abundance may be for your lack, so that there should be equality. According as it is written, He who [gathered] much had no excess, and he who little was nothing short.

But thanks [be] to God, who gives the same diligent zeal for you in the heart of Titus. For he received indeed the entreaty, but, being full of zeal, he went of his own accord to you; but we have sent with him the brother whose praise is in the glad tidings through all the assemblies; and not only [so], but [is] also chosen by the assemblies as our fellow-traveller with this grace, ministered by us to the glory of the Lord himself, and [a witness of] our^m readiness; avoiding this,ⁿ that any one should blame us in this abundance [which is] administered by us; for we provide^o for translation, is not necessary here. The apostle means 'but it is,' or 'my object in doing so is,' 'what I have in my mind in thus sending Titus.' The use of ἀλλά as 'come now' is, it seems to me, out of place here; it always refers to something adversatively.

^l The 'his' is emphatic: ἐκεῖνον, of that one, such a one as he.

^k Or 'it is accepted according to what he may have.'

^m T. R. reads 'your.'

ⁿ στέλλομαι, found nowhere else used in this sense, derived, as it appears, from a nautical use of it. See Erasmus.

things honest, not only before [the]
²² Lord, but also before men. And we have sent with them our brother whom we have often proved to be of diligent zeal in many things, and now more diligently zealous through the great confidence [he has] as to you.
²³ Whether as regards Titus, [he is] my companion and fellow-labourer in your behalf; or our brethren, [they are] deputed messengers of ²⁴ assemblies, Christ's glory. Shew therefore to them, before^p the assemblies, the proof of your love, and of our boasting about you.

IX. For concerning the ministration which [is] for the saints, it is superfluous my writing to you.

² For I know your readiness which I boast of as respects you to Macedonians; that Achaia is prepared since a year ago, and the zeal [reported] of you has stimulated the mass^q [of the brethren].
³ But I have sent the brethren, in order that our boasting about you may not be made void in this respect, in order that, as I have
⁴ said, ye may be prepared; lest haply, if Macedonians come with me and find you unprepared, we, that we say not ye, may be put ⁵ to shame in this confidence.^r I thought it necessary therefore to beg the brethren that they would come to you, and complete beforehand this your fore-announced blessing,^s to be ready thus as blessing, and not as got^t out of ⁶ you. But this [is true], he that sows sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that sows in [the spirit of] blessing shall reap also ⁷ in blessing: each according as he is purposed in his heart; not grievingly,^v or of necessity; for

⁸ God loves a cheerful giver. But God is able to make every gracious gift^w abound towards you, that, having in every way always all-sufficiency, ye may abound to ⁹ every good work: according as it is written, He has scattered abroad, he has given to the poor, his righteousness remains for ¹⁰ ever. Now he that supplies seed to the sower and bread for eating^x shall^y supply and make abundant your sowing, and increase the ¹¹ fruits of your righteousness: enriched in every way unto all free-hearted liberality, which works through us thanksgiving to God.
¹² Because the ministration of this service is not only filling up the measure of what is lacking to the saints, but also abounding by ¹³ many thanksgivings to God; they glorifying God through the proof of this ministration, by reason of your subjection, by profession, to the glad tidings of the Christ, and your free-hearted liberality in

^q τοὺς πλείονας. 'Many' is not the sense, but 'the body,' as οἱ πολλοί.

^r T. R. adds 'of boasting.'

^s 'Blessing.' The sense is plain, though the word is unusual. I note it in view of verse 6. It is the spirit in which a man gives: as God gives, freely to bless, so ought we; and such as so give shall so reap from him.

^t Or as 'covetousness,' from a verb signifying, along with the desire of having, an over-reaching to get.

^v Or 'not as grieving [to do it].' It is in contrast with 'cheerful.'

^w Grace, or benefit.

^y T. R. omits 'shall.'

communicating, towards them and 14 towards all; and in their supplication for you, full of ardent desire for you, on account of the exceeding grace of God [which is] 15 upon you. Thanks [be] to God for his unspeakable free gift.

X. But I myself, Paul, entreat you by the meekness and gentleness of the Christ, who, as to appearance, [when present] [am] mean among you, but absent am
 2 bold towards you; but I beseech that present I may not be bold with the confidence with which I think to be daring towards some who account of us as walking
 3 according to flesh. For walking in flesh, we do not war according 4 to flesh. For the arms of our warfare [are] not fleshly, but powerful^a according to God to [the] overthrow of strong holds;
 5 overthrowing reasonings and every high thing that lifts itself up against the knowledge of God, and leading captive every thought into the obedience of the^a Christ;
 6 and having in readiness to avenge all disobedience when your obedience shall have been fulfilled.
 7 Do ye look at what concerns appearance?^b If any one has confidence in himself that he is of Christ, let him think this again in himself, that even as he [is] of

8 Christ, so also [are] we.^c For and if I should boast even somewhat more abundantly of our authority, which the Lord has given to us for building up and not for your overthrowing, I shall 9 not be put to shame; that I may not seem as if I was frightening
 10 you by letters: because his letters, he says, [are] weighty and strong, but his presence in the body
 11 weak, and his speech naught. Let such a one think this, that such as we are in word by letters [when] absent, such also present 12 in deed. For we dare not class ourselves or compare ourselves with some who commend themselves; but these measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves, are not intelligent.^d Now we will not boast out of measure,^e but according to the measure of the rule which the God of measure^f has apportioned to us,
 14 reach to you also. For we do not, as not reaching to you, overstretch ourselves, (for we have come to you also in the glad tidings of the Christ;) not boasting out of measure in other people's labours, but having hope, your faith increasing, to be enlarged amongst you, according to our rule, yet more abundantly

^a Or 'divinely powerful,' as a Hebraism; or in a divine way, before God, in his view; bringing him in; or through God.

^b Or 'of Christ.'

^c See verse 1.

^d T. R. adds 'of Christ.'

^e 'Wise' is not the sense here, at least it seems to give the sense of 'not being wise in doing so,' which is not the force of συνιέναι, but not to perceive, whether in capacity or fact. See Mark vi. 52, vii.

14, viii. 17, 21, Rom. iii. 11, Mark iv. 12, Matt. xiii. 13, Rom. xv. 21, and a number of passages.

^f There is an amphibology here which is lost in English, the words signifying generally 'out of measure, immoderately,' but alluding also to the false teachers going where God had not sent them. (See ver. 15.)

^g Some translate 'God has apportioned us, a measure to reach.'

II CORINTHIANS X, XI.

¹⁶ to announce the glad tidings to that [which is] beyond you, not to be boasting in another's rule of things made ready to hand.

¹⁷ But he that boasts, let him boast

¹⁸ in the Lord. For not he that commends himself is approved, but whom the Lord commends.

XI. Would that ye would bear with me indeed a little [in] folly ;

² but^s bear with me. For I am jealous as to you with a jealousy [which is] of God ; for I have espoused you unto one man, to present [you] a chaste virgin to

³ Christ. But I fear lest by any means, as the serpent deceived Eve by his craft, so your thoughts should be corrupted from simpli-

⁴ city^h as to the Christ. For if indeed he that comes preaches another Jesus whom we have not preached, or ye get a different Spirit which ye have not got, or a different glad tidings which ye have not received, ye might well

⁵ bear with [it]. For I reckon that in nothing I am behind those who are in a surpassing degree apostles.

⁶ But if [I am] a simpleⁱ person in speech, yet not in knowledge, but in every way made manifest in all

⁷ things to you.^k Have I committed sin, abasing myself in order that ye might be exalted, because I have gratuitously announced to

⁸ you the glad tidings of God ? I spoiled other assemblies, receiving

⁹ hire for ministry towards you. And being present with you and lacking, I did not lazily burden any one, (for the brethren who came from Macedonia supplied what I lacked,) and in everything I kept myself from being a burden to ¹⁰ you, and will keep myself. [The] truth of Christ is in me that this boasting shall not be stopped as to me in the regions of Achaia.

¹¹ Why ? because I do not love you ?

¹² God knows. But what I do, I will also do, that I may cut off the opportunity of those wishing [for] an opportunity, that wherein they boast they may be found even as ¹³ we. For such [are] false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into apostles of ¹⁴ Christ. And [it is] not wonderful, for Satan himself transforms himself into an angel of light. It is no

¹⁵ great thing therefore if his ministers also transform themselves as ministers of righteousness ; whose end shall be according to their works.

¹⁶ Again I say, Let not any one think me to be a fool ; but if otherwise, receive me then even as a fool, that I also may boast

¹⁷ myself some little. What I speak I do not speak according to [the] Lord, but as in folly, in this

¹⁸ confidence of boasting. Since many boast according to flesh, I ¹⁹ also will boast. For ye bear fools

^s I am aware that some translate ' ye do bear ;' but I think wrongly. No doubt the Greek allows it.

^h 'Simplicity' is not a personal trait, but the doctrine as to Christ ; what a faithful heart retained in simplicity as taught in the truth. I had at first translated (explaining it in a note) ' which [is] in the Christ.' But this is too much as if it was in Christ himself, not the doctrine. Some would add ' purity,' ἀγνότητος, after ἀπλότητος, or before it. But it seems to me a gloss. Tisch. has it not, nor Meyer : it is a wrong allusion to verse 2.

ⁱ ἰδιώτης.

^k Or 'before you.'

II CORINTHIANS XI, XII.

²⁰ readily, being wise. For ye bear if any one bring you into bondage, if any one devour [you], if any one get [your money], if any one exalt himself, if any one beat ²¹ you on the face. I speak as to dishonour, as though we had been weak; but wherein any one is daring, (I speak in folly,) I also ²² am daring. Are they Hebrews? I also. Are they Israelites? I also. Are they seed of Abraham? ²³ I also. Are they ministers of Christ? (I speak as being beside myself) I above measure [so]¹; in labours exceedingly abundant, in stripes to excess, in prisons exceedingly abundant, in deaths oft. ²⁴ From the Jews five times have I received forty [stripes], save one. ²⁵ Thrice have I been scourged, once I have been stoned, three times I have suffered shipwreck, a night and day I passed in the deep: in journeyings often, in perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from [my own] race, in perils from [the] nations, in perils in [the] city, in perils in [the] desert, in perils on [the] sea, in perils among false brethren; ²⁷ in labour and toil, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Besides those things that are without, the crowd [of cares] pressing on me daily, the burden²⁸ of all the assemblies. Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is ²⁹ stumbled, and I burn not? If it is needful to boast, I will boast in the things which concern my ³¹ infirmity. The God and Father of our Lord Jesus²⁹ knows—he who is blessed for ever—that ³² I do not lie. In Damascus the ethnarch of Aretas the king kept the city of the Damascenes shut ³³ up, wishing to take me. And through a window in a basket I was let down by^o the wall, and escaped his hands.

XII. Well, it is not of profit to me^p to boast, for I will come to visions and revelations of [the] ³ Lord. I know a man in Christ,

¹ ὑπέρ. The use of ὑπέρ in this way is constant in the apostle, though not indeed separated from the word it refers to. But I do not find that it is used adverbially for 'more than;' and the expression, παραφρονῶν seems to refer to the extraordinariness of what he was saying, for he felt that to say 'minister of Christ' was to say all that was more excellent. Hence he does not repeat ἀφρων, 'without sense;' but παραφρονῶν, wandering quite away from a right mind; his own heart did not allow him to say it without judging the expression, though forced to use it for these foolish Corinthians. The περισσοτέρως is not really a comparison, and the ὑπερβαλλόντως and πολλὰίς shew that no comparison was instituted; he left his miserable competitor far behind, and his soul turned back with true heartfelt satisfaction to all he had undergone for Christ. His folly is given to us for gain by God.

'I more' would mean either more than they, or more than a minister of Christ. Neither I believe to be the sense; the last would be the strict meaning, and cannot be at all allowed; the other fails as to the Greek, it seems to me. However, if anyone prefer 'I more [than they],' or 'I beyond [them],' in result the sense is not altered, though, it seems to me, feebler and more disjointed.

²⁸ I am not satisfied with 'burden.' It is any solicitude or anxiety, but 'care' wholly misleads, because it conveys the idea of taking care of, which is not the sense.

²⁹ Many read simply 'of the Lord Jesus.' T. B., with various authorities, adds 'Christ.'

^o Or 'through.'

^p Some read 'I must (I have to) boast, it is not profitable for me.' δεῖ for δέξ. and others have δε.

II CORINTHIANS XII.

fourteen years ago, (whether in [the] body I know^a not, or out of the body I know not, God knows;) such [a one] caught up to [the] ³ third heaven. And I know^a such a man, (whether in [the] body or out of the body I know^a not, God ⁴ knows;) that he was caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable^r things said which it is not ⁵ allowed to man to utter. Of such [a one] I will boast, but of myself I will not boast, unless in my ⁶ weaknesses. For if I shall desire to boast, I shall not be a fool; for I will say [the] truth; but I forbear, lest any one should think as to me above what he sees me [to be], or whatever he may hear ⁷ of me. And that I might not be exalted by the exceeding greatness of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn for the flesh, a messenger of Satan that he might buffet me, that I might not ⁸ be exalted. For this I thrice besought the Lord that it might ⁹ depart from me. And he said to me, My grace suffices thee; for [my]^s power is perfected in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather boast in my weaknesses, that the power of the Christ^t may ¹⁰ dwell^v upon me. Wherefore I take pleasure in weaknesses, in insults, in necessities, in persecutions, in straits, for Christ: for when I am weak, then I am powerful.

¹¹ I have become a fool^w: ye have compelled me; for I ought to have been commended by you; for I have been nothing behind those that were in surpassing degree ¹² apostles, if also I am nothing. The signs indeed of the apostle were wrought among you in all endurance, ¹³ signs, and wonders, and works of power. For in what is it that ye have been inferior to the other assemblies, unless that I myself have not been in laziness a charge upon you? Forgive me ¹⁴ this injury. Behold, the^y third time I am ready to come to you, and I will not be in laziness a charge;^z for I do not seek yours, but you; for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but ¹⁵ the parents for the children. Now I shall most gladly spend and be utterly spent for your souls, if even in abundantly loving you I should be less loved. ¹⁶ But be it so. I have not burdened you, but being crafty I took ¹⁷ you by guile. Have I made gain of you by any of those whom I ¹⁸ have sent to you? I begged Titus, and sent the brother with [him]: did Titus at all make gain of you? have we not walked in the same spirit? [have we] not in the same steps?

^r ἄρρητα ῥήματα. ῥήμα is the saying, and thence the things said, as he says 'heard' here. It is evidently 'things said,' and it was not merely like heathen mysteries, dreadful forms of speech, but the communications were of things not suited to this lower world and our mortal condition.

^w T. R. has 'my' in text, with many authorities.

^x Or 'of Christ.'

^y ἐπισκηνώση, 'tabernacle,' 'have its dwelling-place on.'

II CORINTHIANS XII, XIII.

10 Ye have long been supposing^a that we excuse ourselves to you : we speak before God in Christ ; and all things, beloved, for your building up. For I fear lest perhaps coming I find you not such as I wish, and that I be found by you such as ye do not wish : lest [there might be] strifes, jealousies, 20 angers, contentions, evil speakings, whisperings, puffings up, disturbances ; lest my God should humble me as^b to you when I come again, and that I shall grieve over many of those who have sinned before, and have not repented as to the uncleanness and fornication and licentiousness which they have practised.

XIII. This third time I am coming to you. In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every matter² be established. I have declared beforehand, and I say beforehand as present the second time, and now absent,^c to those that have sinned before, and to all the rest, that if I come again I will not³ spare. Since ye seek a proof of Christ^d speaking in me, (who is not weak towards you, but is⁴ powerful in you, for if indeed he has been crucified in weakness, yet he lives by God's power ; for indeed we^e are weak in him, but we shall live with him by God's⁵ power towards you,) examine your own selves if ye be in the faith ; prove your own selves : do ye not recognize yourselves,^f that Jesus Christ is in you, unless indeed ye⁶ be reprobates ? Now I hope that ye will know that we are not reprobates. But we⁷ pray to God that ye may do nothing evil ; not that we may appear approved, but that ye may do what is right, and⁸ we be as reprobates. For we can do nothing against the truth, but⁹ for the truth. For we rejoice when we may be weak and ye may be powerful. But this also we pray¹⁰ for, your perfecting. On this account I write these things being absent, that being present I may not use severity according to the authority^h which the Lord has given me for building up, and not for overthrowing.

11 For the rest, brethren, rejoice ;ⁱ be perfected ; be encouraged ; be of one mind ; be at peace ; and the God of love and peace shall be¹² with you. Salute one another¹³ with a holy kiss. All the saints¹⁴ salute you. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Spirit, [be] with you all.^k

^b Or 'amongst you.'

^c T. R. reads 'I write.'

^d I do not put 'the Christ' here, though there be the κύριος, because it is specially connected with καλοῦντος.

^e T. R. adds another also : 'we also.'

^f 'Yourselves' is ambiguous in English ;

but it is the accusative after 'recognize,' not 'yourselves know' but 'know yourselves.'

^g T. R. reads 'I pray.'

^h Or 'power' (but not δύναμις), 'title,' not mere competency.

ⁱ Or 'farewell.'

^k T. R. adds 'Amen.'

EPISTLE TO THE GALATIANS.

PAUL, apostle, not from men nor through man, but through Jesus Christ, and God [the] Father who raised him up from among [the] ² dead, and all the brethren with me, to the assemblies of Galatia. ³ Grace to you, and peace, from God [the] Father, and our Lord Jesus ⁴ Christ, who gave himself for our sins, so that he should deliver us out of the present evil world,^k according to the will of our God ⁵ and Father; to whom [be] glory to the ages of ages. Amen. ⁶ I wonder that ye thus quickly change^l from him that called you in Christ's grace, to a different ⁷ gospel,^m which is not another [one]; butⁿ there are some that trouble you, and desire to pervert ⁸ the glad tidings of the Christ: but if even we or an angel out of heaven announce as glad tidings to you [anything] besides what we have announced as glad tidings to ⁹ you, let him be accursed. As we have said before, now also again I say, If any one announce to you as glad tidings [anything] besides what ye have received, let him be ¹⁰ accursed. For do I now seek to satisfy men or God? or do I seek to please men? ° If I yet pleased men, I were not Christ's bonds-¹¹ man. But I let you know, brethren, [as to] the glad tidings which were announced by me, that they ¹² are not according to man. For neither did I receive them from man, neither was I taught [them], but by revelation of Jesus Christ. ¹³ For ye have heard [what was] my conversation formerly in Judaism, that I excessively persecuted the assembly of God, and ¹⁴ ravaged it; and advanced in Judaism beyond many [my] contemporaries in my nation, being exceedingly zealous of the doctrines^p of my fathers. But when ¹⁵ God,^q who set me apart [even^r] from my mother's womb, and called [me] by his grace, was ¹⁶ pleased to reveal his Son in me, that I may announce him as glad tidings among the nations, immediately I did not take counsel with ¹⁷ flesh and blood, nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those [who were] apostles before me; but I went to Arabia, and again returned to ¹⁸ Damascus. Then after three years

^r I have inserted 'even' here that it may be quite clear that 'from my mother's womb' is a date of time. (See Matt. xix. 12, Luke i. 15, Acts iii. 2, xiv. 8.) Indeed, there can be no doubt of it. The authorized translation, 'separated me from' is ambiguous, to say the least; ἀφορίζω has somewhat the force of 'taking out,' as distinguished or appropriated to something, though doubtless meaning 'to separate.' I have therefore said 'set apart.'

GALATIANS I, II.

I went up to Jerusalem to make acquaintance with Peter,* and I remained with him fifteen days; ¹⁰ but I saw none other of the apostles, unless James the brother of the Lord. Now what I write to you, behold, before God, I do not ²¹ lie. Then I came into the regions ²² of Syria and of Cilicia; but I was unknown personally to the assemblies of Judæa which [are] in ²³ Christ, only they were hearing that he who persecuted us formerly now announces the glad tidings of the faith which formerly he ravaged: and they glorified God in me.

II. Then after a lapse of fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus ² also with [me]; and I went up according to revelation, and I laid before them the glad tidings which I preached among the nations, but privately to those conspicuous [among them], lest in any way I ³ ran or had run in vain; (but neither was Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, compelled to ⁴ be circumcised;) and [it was] on account of the false brethren brought in surreptitiously, who came in surreptitiously to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might[†] bring us

⁵ into bondage; to whom we yielded in subjection not even for an hour, that the truth of the glad tidings might remain with you.

⁶ But from those who were conspicuous as being somewhat,—whatsoever they were, it makes no difference to me: God does not accept man's person; for to me those who were conspicuous communicated nothing;[‡] but, on the contrary, seeing that the glad tidings of the uncircumcision were confided to me,[¶] even as to Peter that of the circumcision, ⁸ (for he that wrought in Peter for [the] apostleship of the circumcision wrought also in me towards ⁹ the Gentiles,) and recognizing the grace given to me, James and Cephas and John, who were conspicuous as being pillars, gave to me and Barnabas [the] right hands of fellowship, that we [should go] to the nations, and they to the circumcision: only that we should ¹⁰ remember the poor, which same thing also I have been diligent to do.

¹¹ But when Peter came to Antioch, I withstood him to [the] face, because he was to be^{*} condemned: ¹² for before that certain came from James, he ate with [those of] the nations; but when they came,

* Some read 'Cephas' here, and at chap. ii. 11, 14.

† iva with a future indicative. See chap. ii. 19, also John xvii. 2, and Rev. xxii. 14. It seems to be a joining of the certain fact as a consequence, with the purpose or object of what precedes the iva.

‡ The grammatical structure is interrupted and broken. It may be translated 'But from those who were conspicuous as being somewhat; (whatsoever they were it makes no difference to me; God does not accept man's person;) to me indeed

(or, for to me) those who were conspicuous communicated nothing' I have thought that ἀπό might be 'of those.' But I do not find that ἀπό is so used: it is always ἐκ.

* Or rather 'convicted of evil.' See Winer 46, 8, who says however that the sense 'to be condemned' does not suit here. It seems to me to suit perfectly. Others take it in the strict passive participle sense: 'condemned.' See Wolf in Cur. Philol. in loco.

he drew back and separated himself, fearing those of [the] circumcision; and the rest of the Jews also played the same dissembling part with him; so that even Barnabas was carried away too by their dissimulation. But when I saw that they do not walk straightforwardly, according to the truth of the glad tidings, I said to Peter before all, If thou, being a Jew, livest as the nations and not as the Jews, why dost thou compel the nations to judaize? We, Jews by nature, and not sinners of [the] nations, but knowing that a man is not justified on the principle of works of law [nor^a] but by the faith of Jesus Christ, we also have believed on Christ Jesus, that we might be justified on the principle of [the] faith of Christ, and not of works of law; because on the principle of works of law no flesh shall be justified. Now if in seeking to be justified in Christ we also have been found sinners, then [is] Christ minister of sin? Far be the thought. For if the things I have thrown down these I build again, I constitute myself a transgressor. For I, through law, have died to law, that I may^b live to God. I am crucified with Christ, and^c no longer live, I, but Christ lives in me; but [in] that I now live in flesh, I live by faith, [the faith] of the Son of God, who has loved me and given himself for me. I do not set aside the grace of God; for if righteousness [is] by law, then Christ has died for nothing.

III. O senseless Galatians, who has bewitched you;^d to whom, as before your very eyes, Jesus Christ has been portrayed, crucified [among you^e]? This only I wish to learn of you, Have ye received the Spirit on the principle of works of law, or of [the] report of faith? Are ye so senseless? having begun in Spirit, are ye going to be made perfect in flesh? Have ye suffered so many things in vain, if indeed also in vain? He therefore who ministers to you the Spirit, and works miracles among you, [is it] on the principle of works of law, or of [the] report of faith? Even as Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness. Know then that they that are on the principle of faith, these are Abraham's sons; and the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the nations on the principle of faith, announced beforehand the glad tidings to Abraham: In thee all the nations shall be blessed. So that they who are on the principle of faith are blessed with believing Abraham. For as many as are on the principle of works

^v The present here is characteristic, not of time; as Acts xxv. 11 ἀδικῶ, and John viii. 14 ἐρχομαι. Perhaps we might say 'them not walking:' but it is too free.

^a T. R. omits 'but.'

^b εἰ μὴ or ἐὰν μὴ, though it has the sense of 'but,' has an exclusive force, which I have endeavoured to render by 'nor,' putting it however in brackets.

The reader may consult Rom. vii. 7, xiv. 14, 1 Cor. vii. 17, Gal. i. 7.

^b See note ii. 4.

^c Or 'but I live, no longer I,' &c.

^d T. R. adds 'that ye should not obey the truth.'

^e Doubtful reading: many authorities leave it out.

GALATIANS III.

of law are under curse. For it is written, Cursed is every one who does not continue in all things which [are] written in the book of the law to do them; but that by^e law no one is justified with God [is] evident, because The just shall live on the principle of faith; ¹² but the law is not on the principle of faith; but, He^f that shall have done these things shall live by^g them. Christ has redeemed us out of the curse of the law, having become a curse for us, (for it is written, Cursed [is] every one ¹⁴ hung upon a tree,) that the blessing of Abraham might come to^h the nations in Christ Jesus, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

¹⁵ Brethren, (I speak according to man,) even man's confirmed covenant no one sets aside, or adds ¹⁶ other dispositions to. But to Abraham were the promises addressed, and to his seed: he does not say, And to seeds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy seed; ¹⁷ which is Christ. Now I say this, A covenant confirmed beforehand by God,ⁱ the law, which took place four hundred and thirty years after, does not annul, so as to make the promise of no effect.

¹⁸ For if the inheritance [be] on the principle of law, [it is] no longer

on the principle of promise; but God gave it in grace to Abraham ¹⁹ by promise. Why then the law? It was added for the sake of transgressions, until the seed came to whom the promise was made, ordained through angels in [the] ²⁰ hand of a mediator. But a^k mediator is not of one, but God is one.

²¹ [Is] then the law against the promises of God? Far be the thought. For if a law had been given able^l to quicken, then indeed righteousness were on the principle of law; but the scripture has shut up all things under sin, that the promise, on the principle of faith of Jesus Christ, should be ²³ given to those that believe. But before faith came, we were guarded under law, shut up to faith^m [which was] about to be revealed.

²⁴ So that the law has been our tutor up toⁿ Christ, that we might be justified on the principle of ²⁵ faith. But, faith having come, we ²⁶ are no longer under a tutor; for ye are all God's sons by faith in ²⁷ Christ Jesus. For ye,^o as many as have been baptized unto Christ, ²⁸ have put on Christ. There is no Jew nor Greek; there is no bondsman nor freeman; there is no male and female; for ye all are ²⁹ one in Christ Jesus: but if ye [are] of Christ, then ye are Abraham's

^e ἐν, 'in the power of,' 'in virtue of,' 'according to the principle and nature of;' not δία.

^f T. R. reads 'the man.'

^g ἐν, 'in virtue of them.'

^h γένηται εἰς, 'arrive at that point, be there.' 'Be on' would state too much, it would involve application.

ⁱ Many add with T. R. 'to Christ.'

^k Or 'the.' It is abstract—'that kind of person.'

^l ὁ δυνάμενος, peculiar form of phrase, giving it an emphatical force difficult to render in English: 'the one able to quicken,' [which had been] the [one] able to quicken.

^m Or 'the faith.'

ⁿ See Eph. i. 14.

^o 'Ye' is not emphatic; but 'as many of you' implies that some might not have been, which is no way the sense; but that was the bearing of the ordinance.

GALATIANS III, IV.

seed,^p heirs according to promise.

IV. Now I say, As long as the heir is a child, he differs nothing from a bondsman, though he be lord of all; but he is under guardians and stewards until the period fixed by the father. So we also, when we were children, were held in bondage under the principles of the world; but when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, come^q of woman, come^r under law, that he might redeem those under law, that we might receive sonship.^r But because ye are sons, God has sent out the Spirit of his Son into our^s hearts, crying, Abba, Father. So thou art no longer bondsman, but son; but if son, heir also through God.^t But then indeed, not knowing God, ye were in bondage to those who by nature are not^v gods; but now, knowing God, but rather being known by God, how do ye turn again to the weak and beggarly principles to which ye desire to be again anew in bondage? Ye observe days and months and times and years. I am afraid of you, lest indeed I have laboured in vain as to you.

Be as I [am], for I also [am] as

^q Or 'born'; but born is a secondary sense: it is anything that begins its existence, (hence used for born,) or becomes anything, or happens.

^r Or 'adoption'; but receiving adoption is scarcely sense. 'Adoption' is receiving the position of sonship as a gift. 'Receive' has a peculiar force here. It is ἀπολάβωμεν. They, Jew or Gentile, received it as a gift (for the Jew was in bondage under law: the Gentile had right to nothing) from another, even freely from God.

^t Some read 'heir also of God through Christ.' There are different readings, but ye, brethren, I beseech you: ye have not at all wronged me. But ye know that in weakness^w of the flesh I announced the glad tidings to you at the first; and my temptation, which [was] in my flesh, ye did not slight nor reject with^x contempt; but ye received me as an angel of God, as Christ Jesus. What then [was] your blessedness^y? for I bear you witness that, if possible, plucking out your own eyes ye would have given [them] to me. So I have become your enemy in speaking the truth to you? They are not rightly zealous after you, but desire to shut you out [from us], that ye may be zealous after them. But [it is] right to be zealous in what is right at all times, and not only when I am present with you—my children, of whom I again travail in birth until Christ shall have been formed in you: and I should wish to be present with you now, and change my voice, for I am perplexed as to you. Tell me, ye who are desirous of being under law, do ye not listen to the law? For it is written that Abraham had two sons; one of the maid^z servant, and one of the free διὰ Θεοῦ is the most accredited. It is God himself who has made us heirs.

^w It answers to 2 Chron. xiii. 9 שָׁמַר אֶבֶן.

^x I take δι' ἀσθένειαν as διὰ ῥύκτα. So διὰ γλυκὺν ὕπνον. It is a state, as has been said, where it is not going through and out, but staying within the time or space or limits, as βῆ διὰ δώμα. διὰ δώματος would have quite another sense. I have no doubt of the sense here: it is the state he was in; it characterized the manner of his coming to them.

^z Or 'what blessedness was then yours!'

^z Or 'bondmaid,' παιδίσκη. I do not deny that in practice παιδίσκη amounted

GALATIANS IV, V.

²³ woman. But he [that was] of the maid servant was born according to flesh, and he [that was] of the free woman through the promise.

²⁴ Which things have an allegorical sense; for these are two covenants: ^a one from mount Sina, gendering to bondage, which is

²⁵ Hagar. For Hagar is mount Sina in Arabia, and corresponds to Jerusalem which [is] now, for ^b she is in bondage with her children; but the Jerusalem above is free, which is our ^c mother.

²⁷ For it is written, Rejoice, thou barren that bearest not; break out and cry, thou that travailest not; because the children of the desolate are more numerous than [those] of her that has a husband.

²⁸ But we, brethren, after the pattern of Isaac, are children of ²⁹ promise. But as then he that was born according to flesh persecuted him [that was born] according to

³⁰ Spirit, so also [it is] now. But what says the scripture? Cast out the maid servant ^d and her son; for the son of the maid servant ^d shall not ^e inherit with ³¹ the son of the free woman. So then, brethren, we are not maid servant's ^f children, but [children] of the free woman.

V. Stand fast therefore in the freedom wherewith Christ has freed us, and be not held again in

² a yoke of bondage. Behold, I, Paul, say to you, that if ye are circumcised, Christ shall profit you

³ nothing. And I witness again to every man [who is] circumcised, that he is debtor to do the whole

⁴ law. Ye are deprived of ^g all profit from the Christ as separated [from him], as many as are justified by law; ye have fallen from

⁵ grace. For we, by [the] Spirit, on the principle of faith, await

⁶ the hope of righteousness. For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision has any force, nor uncircumcision; but faith working through

⁷ love. Ye ran well: who has stopped ^h you that ye should not

⁸ obey the truth? The persuasibleness ⁱ [is] not of him that

⁹ calls you. A little leaven leavens

¹⁰ the whole lump. I have confidence as to you in [the] Lord, that ye will have no other mind; and he that is troubling you shall bear to the same as a bondsmaid; but the root is essentially different from that of bondsman, δούλος.

^a T. R. reads 'the two covenants.'

^b T. R. reads 'and.'

^c T. R. reads 'of us all.'

^d Or 'bondsmaid.'

^e οὐ μὴ, 'not at all,' 'in no wise:' stronger than οὐ.

^f Or 'bondsmaid's.'

^g καταργήθητε, a word very hard to translate. The active means to render anything useless and unprofitable, or miss an opportunity. Here it is passive and with ἀπό. It is, hence, to be deprived of the profit or effect of anything. It is used in Rom. vii. in the same form as here, for our deliverance from under the law, καταρ-

γήθητε ἀπό: only there it was not profit, but the action of the law; it no longer attained them—had for them become void of effect. So here Christ. The English Authorized Version only gives the 'effect': 'profit' is a little too weak, but the 'Christ is become' is objectionable. Some translate 'separated,' but what the word speaks of is, not separation from the thing, but from its efficacy.

^h T. R. reads 'hindered,' ἀνέκοθεν. But ἐγκόπτω is used in pretty much the same sense in Rom. xv. 22, 1 Thess. ii. 18, 1 Peter iii. 7. As they had run well, the proper sense of ἐγκόπτω (to stop by cutting off the way) which others take as the sense, may as well be used.

ⁱ Or 'the persuasion.'

GALATIANS V, VI.

the guilt [of it], whosoever^j he may be.

¹¹ But I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why am I yet persecuted? Then the scandal of ¹² the cross has been done away. I would that they would even cut^k themselves off who throw you ¹³ into confusion. For ye have been called to^l liberty, brethren; only [do] not [turn] liberty into an opportunity to the flesh, but by ¹⁴ love serve one another. For the whole law is fulfilled in one word, in Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself; but if ye bite and devour one another, see that ye are not consumed one of another.

¹⁶ But I say, Walk in^m [the] Spirit, and ye shall no wayⁿ fulfil flesh's lust. For the flesh lusts against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; and these things are opposed one to the other, that ye should not do those things ¹⁸ which ye desire; but if ye are led by^o the Spirit, ye are not under ¹⁹ law. Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are^p fornication, uncleanness, licentiousness, ²⁰ idolatry, sorcery, hatred, strifes, jealousies, angers, contentions, ²¹ disputes, schools of opinion, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revels, and things like these; as to which I tell you beforehand, even as I also have said before, that they who do such things shall not ²² inherit God's kingdom. But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, ²³ goodness, fidelity, meekness, self-control: against such things there ²⁴ is no law. But they that are of the Christ have crucified the flesh with the passions and the lusts. ²⁵ If we live by^q the Spirit, let us ²⁶ walk also by the Spirit. Let us not become vain glorious, provoking one another, envying one another.

VI. Brethren, if even a man be taken in some fault, ye who are spiritual restore such a one in a spirit of meekness, considering thyself lest thou also be tempted.

² Bear one another's burdens, and thus fulfil the law of the^r Christ. ³ For if any man reputes himself to be something, being nothing, he ⁴ deceives himself; but let each prove his own work, and then he will have his boast in what belongs to^s himself alone, and not in ⁵ what belongs to^s another. For each shall bear his own burden.

⁶ Let him that is taught in the word communicate to him that teaches in all good things.

⁷ Be not deceived: God is not mocked; for whatever a man shall ⁸ sow, that also shall he reap. For ^j ὅστις, including his character.

^k Or 'mutilate.'

^l ἐπὶ, the condition into which they are called, what characterizes their calling as a condition of its existence.

^m Or 'by.' See note to verse 25.

ⁿ οὐ μὴ, stronger than simply 'not.'

^o See note to verse 25.

^q πνεύματι, as in ver. 16 and 18; but in 16 it is περιπατεῖτε, more the general conversation; here, the rule or line followed, so that I have left 'in' there as in the Authorized English Version, and put 'by' here. It is characteristic of the walk, leading, and life, the Spirit being the instrument and power.

^r Or 'of Christ.' The form of the phrase requires the article, or at least prefers it. But I apprehend it is better in English also. It alludes to their fondness for law.

^s Or 'in respect to.'

GALATIANS VI.

he that sows to his own flesh shall reap corruption from the flesh; but he that sows to the Spirit, from the Spirit shall reap eternal life: but let us not lose heart in doing good; for in due time, if we do not faint, we shall reap. So then, as we have occasion let us do good towards all, and specially toward those of the household of faith.

See how long a letter^a I have written to you with my own hand.

As many as desire to have a fair appearance in [the] flesh, these compel you to be circumcised, only that they may not be persecuted because^v of the cross of Christ. For neither do they that are circumcised themselves keep the law; but they wish you to be circumcised, that they may boast in your flesh. But far be it from me to boast save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom^w [the] world is crucified to me, and I to the world. For in Christ Jesus neither is^x circumcision anything, nor uncircumcision; but new creation. And as many as shall^y walk by this rule, peace upon them and mercy, and upon the Israel of God.

For the rest let no one trouble me, for I bear in my body the brands of the Lord^z Jesus. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ [be] with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

^t ἐργαζώμεθα τὸ ἀγαθὸν πρὸς. Herodotus, viii. 79, has ἀγαθὰ τὴν πατρίδα ἐργάσεται in a speech of Aristides to Themistocles, without any πρὸς, 'render most service to his country.' ἐργαζώμεθα supposes more positive activity of service: ποιεῖν τὸ ἀγαθὸν is the character of conduct; ἐργάζομαι the service and labour in which it is shewn.

^u Or perhaps 'in what large letters.' γράμματα is used for letters, epistles, in Acts xxviii. 21, and in the classics, and in the plural; πηλίκος is used for any mathematical extent, as πηλίκη γραμμὴ, 'how long a line.' It was long for the apostle to write with his own hand, as he generally dictated to an amanuensis.

^v Or 'through.'

^w Or 'through which.'

^x T. B. reads 'avails,' ἰσχύει.

^y Some read simply 'walk.'

^z Many omit 'the Lord,' possibly rightly.

EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

PAUL, apostle of Jesus Christ by God's will, to the saints and faithful in Christ Jesus, who are at Ephesus.^a Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and [the] Lord Jesus Christ.

^a It may be interesting to the reader to mention that though ἐν Ἐφέσῳ be found in almost all copies, many would leave it out. ^κ and B have nothing; and Basil, in the beginning of the fourth century,

Blessed [be] the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with^b every spiritual blessing in the heavenlies in Christ; according as he has chosen us in him before [the] world's states that in the ancient copies it was not there. Paley, not knowing this, had suggested that it was a kind of circular. Compare Col. iv. 16.

^b 'With' does not quite give the force;

⁵ love; having marked us out beforehand^c for adoption through Jesus Christ to himself, according ⁶ to the good pleasure of his will, to [the] praise of [the] glory of his grace, wherein he has taken us
⁷ into favour^d in the Beloved: in whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of offences, according to the riches of
⁸ his grace; which he has caused to abound towards us in all wisdom and intelligence, having made known to us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure which he purposed in himself
¹⁰ for [the] administration of the fulness of times; to head up all things in the Christ, the things^e in the heavens and the things ¹¹ upon the earth; in him, in whom we have also obtained an inheritance, being marked out beforehand according to the purpose of him who works all things according to the counsel of his own will,
¹² that we should be to [the] praise of his glory who have pre-trusted ¹³ in the Christ: in whom ye also [have trusted], having heard the

it expresses the simple fact. ἐν gives something of the power and value of what is enjoyed; gives the blessing characteristically. A man does a thing ἐν πνεύματι, ἐν σαρκί. But with the word 'bless,' 'in' is used in English in a different way.

^c 'Predestinated' refers only to the intention as to the person; but here that to which they are foreordained is still more in view: hence I have said 'marked out.'

^d ἐχαρίτωσεν, 'taken us into his favour,' 'put us into a position of grace and favour,' 'Accepted us' is too formal a doctrine here, not so general as χαρίτωσ. But 'shewn us grace or favour' does not give the force of the word. 'In the Beloved' is then merely in an instrument; whereas word of the truth, the gospel of your salvation; in whom also, having believed, ye have been sealed with the Holy Spirit of ¹⁴ promise, who is [the] earnest of our inheritance to^f the redemption of the acquired possession to [the] praise of his glory.

¹⁵ Wherefore I also, having heard of the faith in the Lord Jesus which [is] in you, and the love which [ye have] towards all the ¹⁶ saints, do not cease giving thanks for you, making mention of you
¹⁷ in my prayers, that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, would give you [the] spirit of wisdom and revelation in ¹⁸ the full knowledge of him, being enlightened in the eyes of your heart,^g so that ye should know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, ¹⁹ and what the surpassing greatness of his power towards us who believe, according to the working ²⁰ of the might of his strength, [in] which he wrought in the Christ [in] raising him up from among [the] dead; and set him down at his right hand in the heavenlies, it is in the Beloved that we enter into favour. If we accept ἡς, which seems to be the best attested reading, we should say 'the favour or acceptance in grace, which he has freely bestowed upon us.' χάριτος ἡς (by attraction for ἡν) ἐχαρίτωσεν ἡμᾶς. T. R. and Tisch. read ἐν ἡ.

^f Or 'up to.' But it is more than 'till,' because it has the inheritance in view. Compare Gal. iii. 26. It may be translated 'for the redemption, connecting it with 'sealed,' instead of with 'earnest:' thus, 'Ye have been sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, (who is the earnest of our inheritance,) for' &c.

^g T. R. reads 'mind.'

21 above every principality, and authority, and power, and dominion, and every name named, not only in this age, but also in that 22 to come; and has put all things under his feet, and gave him [to be] head over all things to the 23 assembly, which is his body, the fulness of him who fills all in all: (II.) and you, being dead in your^h
 2 offences and sins—in which ye once walked according to the age of this world, according to the ruler of the authority of the air, the spirit who now works in the sons
 3 of disobedience: among whom we also all once had our conversation in the lusts of our flesh, doing what the flesh and the thoughts willed to do,ⁱ and were children, by nature, of wrath, even as the 4 rest: but, God, being rich in mercy, because of his great love
 5 wherewith he loved us, (we too being dead in offences,) has quickened us with the Christ, (ye are 6 saved by grace,) and has raised [us] up together, and has made [us] sit down together in the 7 heavenlies in Christ Jesus, that he might display in the coming ages the surpassing riches of his grace in kindness^k towards us in 8 Christ Jesus. For ye are saved by grace, through faith; and this not 9 of yourselves; it is God's gift: not on the principle of works, that 10 no one might boast. For we are his workmanship, having been created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God has before prepared that we should walk in them.

11 Wherefore remember that ye, once nations in [the] flesh, who [are] called uncircumcision by that called circumcision in [the] flesh
 12 done with the hand; that ye were at that time without Christ, aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God^l in the world: but now in Christ Jesus ye who once were afar off are become nigh by the 13 blood of the Christ. For he is our peace, who has made both one, and has broken down the middle 14 wall of enclosure, having annulled the enmity in his flesh, the law of commandments in ordinances, that he might form the two in himself into one new man, making
 15 peace; and might reconcile both in one body to God by the cross, having by it slain the enmity; and, coming, he has preached the glad tidings of peace to you who [were] afar off, and [the glad tidings of] peace^m to those [who were] nigh. For through him we have both access by one Spirit to 16 the Father. So then ye are no longer strangers and foreigners, but ye areⁿ fellow-citizens of the saints, and of the household of 17 God, being built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets,

^h T. R. omits 'your.'

ⁱ The wills of the flesh and the thoughts; but θελήματα, the things willed.

^k ἐφ' ἡμᾶς: actually bestowed, not merely in the heart of God. I had thought of 'to,' but it reads more feebly in English. 'Bestowed on' is also very feeble.

^m T. R. omits 'peace' the second time: 'the glad tidings of' is repeated merely to complete the phrase. It reads εὐηγγελίσατο εἰρήνην . . . καὶ εἰρήνην.

ⁿ T. R. omits 'ye are.'

^p Or 'of Christ Jesus.'

^q T. B. reads 'he made known to me the mystery.'

^r T. B. reads ἐν in the text.

^s Many read 'the Christ,' leaving out Jesus.

^t T. R. reads 'all the saints.'

^v T. R. reads 'fellowship.'

^w Or 'from eternity': literally 'from the ages,' but in the sense of 'the period elapsed,' not 'hidden from them.'

^x T. R. adds 'by Jesus Christ.'

^y Or 'eternal purpose.'

^z Greek, 'made.'

^a Many reject the words 'of our Lord Jesus Christ.' But as they are well supported by MSS and the most ancient versions and fathers, I have not struck them out, though disposed to think them an addition. De Wette retains them, and Griesbach; Alford, Ellicott, Meyer, and others reject. Jerome expressly says, they are not to be added as in the Latin copies. There is a connection between Father and family somewhat lost in English, πατήρ πατριά.

¹ height; and to know the love of the Christ, which surpasses knowledge; that ye may be filled [even] ² to all the fulness of God. But to him that is able to do far exceedingly above all which we ask or think, according to the power ³ which works in us, to him be glory in the assembly in Christ Jesus unto all generations of the age of ages. Amen.) (IV.) I, the prisoner in [the] Lord,^b exhort you therefore to walk worthy of the calling wherewith^c ye have been called, ⁴ with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, bearing with ⁵ one another in love; using diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the uniting^d bond of ⁶ peace. [There is] one body^e and one Spirit, as ye have been also called in one hope of your calling; ⁷ one Lord, one faith, one baptism; ⁸ one God and Father of all, who is over all, and through all, and in^f ⁹ us all. But to each one of us has been given grace according to the measure of the gift of the ⁸ Christ. Wherefore he says, Having ascended up on high, he has led captivity captive, and has given ⁹ gifts to men. But that he ascended, what is it but that he also descended^g into the lower parts of ¹⁰ the earth? He that descended is the same who has also ascended up above all the heavens, that he ¹¹ might fill all things; and he has given some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some shepherds and teachers, ¹² for the perfecting of the saints; with a view to [the] work of [the] ministry, with a view to the edifying of the body of Christ;^h ¹³ until we all arrive at the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, at [the] full-grown man, at [the] measure of the stature of the fulness of the Christ; ¹⁴ in order that we may be no longer babes, tossed and carried about by every wind of that teaching [which is] inⁱ the sleight of men,

^b The whole of chapter iii. except verse 2 is a parenthesis.

^c Or 'according to which.'

^d It is not only δεσμῶ, but συνδέσμῶ. I know not how better to represent σύν than by 'uniting.' It is not the power of union—that is the Holy Ghost; but practically uniting in fact, as amongst men on earth.

^e It may be translated '[the] body is one,' and so on. If the English mind could leave out 'there is' or 'is,' the force would be only so much the greater.

^f The reading is uncertain: T. B. reads 'in you;' D, E, F, G, It., Vul., 'in us all;' κ, B, C, Porph., A, read 'in all.' It is as likely that ἡμῖν was left out to make it uniform and as not understood, as that it was added to apply it to Christians; and in this the false reasonings of critical editors who read 'in all' confirm me. However the most ancient MSS have 'in all;' but earliest versions 'in us.'

^h Or 'of the Christ.'

ⁱ The form of the Greek phrase makes it somewhat difficult to translate—παντὶ ἀνέμῳ τῆς διδασκαλίας—where the introduction of the article is peculiar. Nor is it τῆς διδασκαλίας τῆς ἐν, &c., so as to distinctly connect διδασκαλίας with what follows. Still, I do not think that ἐν τῇ κνβείᾳ, &c., is in connection with κλυδωνιζόμενοι and περιφερόμενοι, but, in sense, with διδασκαλίας. The cheating, as of dice players, and still more methodic craft, characterized the teaching. The ἐν marks the power and character of the teaching, as in similar cases elsewhere. 'Every wind of doctrine' seems to stand by itself in the Authorized Version; and 'by the sleight of men' may be connected with 'tossed to and fro.' I had thought of saying, 'of the teaching [which comes] through the sleight, or in the sleight, of men,' &c. But what I have given is more literal, and 'that teaching [which is] in the sleight of in unprincipled cunning with a 15 view to systematized error; but, holding the truth in love, we may grow up to him in all things, who 16 is the head, the Christ: from whom the whole body, fitted together, and connected by every joint of supply, according to [the] working in [its] measure of each one part, works for itself the increase of the body to its self-building up in love.

17 This I say therefore, and testify in [the] Lord, that ye should no longer walk as^k the rest of the nations walk in [the] vanity of 18 their mind, being darkened in understanding, estranged from the life of God on account of the ignorance which is in them, on account of the hardness^l of their 19 hearts, who, having cast off all feeling, have given themselves up to lasciviousness, to work all un-cleanness with greedy unsatisfied
 20 lust. But ye have not thus learnt 21 the Christ, if ye have heard him and been instructed in him according as [the] truth is in Jesus; 22 [namely] your having put off according to the former conversation the old man corrupt according 23 to the deceitful lusts; and being renewed in the spirit of your mind; 24 and having put on the new man, which according to God is created in ^mtruthful righteousness and 25 holiness. Wherefore, putting off falsehood,ⁿ speak truth every one with his neighbour, because we 26 are members one of another. Be angry, and do not sin; let not the 27 sun set upon your wrath, neither 28 give room for the devil. Let the stealer steal no more, but rather let him toil, working what is honest with [his] hands, that he may have to distribute to him 29 that has need. Let no corrupt^o word go out of your mouth, but if [there be] any good one for needful edification, that it may give grace to those that hear [it].

 30 And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by which ye have been sealed for [the] day of redemption.
 31 Let all bitterness, and heat of passion, and wrath, and clamour, and injurious language, be removed from you, with all malice; 32 and be to one another kind, compassionate, forgiving^p one another, so as God also in Christ has forgiven^p you.

V. Be ye therefore imitators of 2 God, as beloved children, and walk men,' &c., is sufficiently clear. The τῆς before διδασκαλίας has practically the force of 'that' teaching. It would regularly require τῆς after it. I have nothing to object to 'every wind of teaching [which is] by,' only the emphatic force of the article is somewhat lost. This use of the article is perhaps occasioned by παντί. Compare chap. iv. 16. Hence, also, perhaps, we may translate verse 16 'from whom the whole body fitted together, and connected by every joint of [that] supply, [which is] according to [the] working, in its measure, of each one part, makes,' &c. At any rate, the article before χορηγίας denotes a known supply from Christ, a supply sufficiently known to be referred to, to which also the ἐξ οὗ, 'from whom,' gives occasion.

^k Literally 'as also,' or 'even as.'

^m Literally 'righteousness and holiness of truth.' See verse 22.

ⁿ Everything that has the character and nature of falsehood. It is abstract, what has this quality, not merely the act of lying.

^o 'Corrupt or filthy;' a figure drawn from what is evil and bad, as fruit.

^p Or 'showing grace to,' 'shewn grace to.'

EPHESIANS V.

in love, even as the Christ loved us, and delivered himself up for us, an offering and sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour. But fornication and all uncleanness or unbridled^a lust, let it not be even named among you, as it becomes saints; and filthiness and foolish^r talking, or jesting,^s which are not convenient;^t but rather thanksgiving. For this ye are [well] informed^v of, knowing that no fornicator, or unclean person, or person of unbridled^w lust, who is an idolater, has inheritance in the kingdom of the Christ and God. Let no one deceive you with vain words, for on account of these things the wrath of God comes upon the sons of disobedience. Be not ye therefore fellow-partakers with them; for ye were once darkness, but now light in [the] Lord; walk as children of light, (for the fruit of the light^x [is] in all goodness and righteousness and truth,) proving what is agreeable to the Lord; and do not have fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather also reprove^y [them],¹² for the things that are done by them in secret it is shameful even to say. But all things^z having their true character exposed^a by the light are made manifest; for that which makes everything¹⁴ manifest^b is light. Wherefore he says, Wake up, [thou] that sleepest, and arise up from among the dead, and the Christ shall shine upon thee. See therefore how ye walk carefully, not as¹⁶ unwise but as wise, redeeming the time,^c because the days are evil. For this reason be not foolish, but understanding what [is] the¹⁸ will of the Lord. And be not drunk with wine, in which is debauchery; but be filled with the Spirit, speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and chanting with your heart to the Lord; giving thanks at all times for all things to him^d [who is] God and [the] Father in the name of our²¹ Lord Jesus Christ, submitting yourselves to one another in [the] fear of Christ.^e

^a Some translate 'covetousness.' See chap. iv. 19. It means the lust of having, but is not, I believe, confined to gain.

^r Perhaps 'indecent talking.'

^s Used for buffoonery.

^t 'Convenient' has the French sense of convenir, somewhat obsolete in English; (see Col. iii. 18, Philemon 8;) but there is no other word which exactly answers to it which suits.

^v The first 'love,' is internal conscious knowledge; the second, y., what they are acquainted with objectively. T. R. has merely 'ye know,' εστε for love.

^w Or 'covetous person.'

^y Or 'expose them'—that is, expose (as by light) their true character.

^z Or 'but all of them, having their true

character exposed by the light, are made manifest,' or 'are made manifest by the light.'

^a See ver. 12.

^b Some translate it 'everything that is manifested is light.' But I prefer the other, both for sense and Greek. It would not be πᾶν τὸ if it were as translated in this note; τὸ would be left out.

^c Not 'redeeming time,' as usually understood, but seizing every good and favourable opportunity. (See Dan. ii. 8.)

^d 'To him who is.' This is not pleasant English, but alone gives the sense. 'God, even the Father,' is too ambiguous. It might be taken as meaning that the Father only is God, and it is far from exact as a translation.

^e T. R. reads 'God.'

EPHESIANS V, VI.

23 Wives, [submit yourselves]^f to 23 your own husbands, as to the Lord, for a husband^g is head of the wife,^h as also the Christ [is] head of the assembly.ⁱ He [is] 24 Saviour of the body. But even as the assembly is subjected to the Christ, so also wives to their own 25 husbands in everything. Husbands, love your own^j wives, even as the Christ also has loved the assembly, and delivered himself 26 up for it, in order that he might sanctify it, purifying^k [it] by the washing of water by the word, 27 that he might present^l the assembly to himself glorious, having no spot, or wrinkle, or any of such things; but that it might be holy 28 and blameless. So ought men to love their own wives as their own bodies: he that loves his own wife 29 loves himself. For no one has ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, even as also the Christ^m the assembly:
 30 for we are members of his body,
 [we are] of his flesh, and of his 31 bones. Because of this a man shall leave hisⁿ father and mother, and shall be united to his wife,
 and the two shall be^o one flesh.
 32 This mystery is great, but I speak

as to Christ and as to the assembly.
 23 But ye also, every one of you, let each so love his own wife as himself; but as to the wife [I speak] that she may fear the husband.

VI. Children, obey your parents in [the] Lord, for this is just.

² Honour thy father and thy mother, which is the first commandment

³ with a promise, that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest be long-lived on the earth.

⁴ And [ye] fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in [the] discipline and admonition of [the] Lord.

⁵ Bondsmen, obey masters according to flesh, with fear and trembling, in simplicity of your heart as

⁶ to the Christ; not with eye service as men pleasers; but as bondsmen of Christ, doing the will of God

⁷ from [the] soul, serving with good will as^p to the Lord, and not to ⁸ men; knowing that whatever good each shall do, this he shall receive of [the] Lord, whether

⁹ bond or free. And, masters, do the same things towards them, giving up threatening, knowing that both their and your^q Master is in heaven, and there is no acceptance of persons with him.

^f The copies vary here as to inserting 'submit yourselves,' or its form. If not inserted, it refers with the same sense to the previous verse.

^g Man, when not the race, and husband are expressed by the same word in Greek;
 but, the article being left out here, it may be translated 'man,' because it is in his character of man as contrasted with the woman that this headship belongs to him. It is the same word as husband in what follows: only there it has the article. The T. R. reads δ , 'the man, or husband.'

^h Or 'woman.'

ⁱ T. R. adds 'and,' and 'is.'

^j 'Own' is omitted by many.

^k It may be translated 'having purified.' The aorists may be coincident or consequent one on another.

^l Or, as T. R. reads, 'that he might present it ($\alpha\upsilon\tau\eta\eta$, not $\alpha\upsilon\tau\acute{o}\varsigma$) to himself glorious, even the assembly, having, &c.

^m T. R. reads 'the Lord.'

ⁿ Some omit 'his.'

^o Literally 'to one flesh,' that is, shall become so, and be so accounted.

^p T. R. reads 'serving the Lord,' without 'as;' but the Authorized Version has the 'as.'

^q T. R. omits 'both their and,' and adds 'own' after your.

EPHESIANS VI.

10 For the rest, my brethren, be strong in [the] Lord, and in the 11 might of his strength. Put on the panoply of God, that ye may be able to stand against the artifices
 12 of the devil: because our struggle is not against blood and flesh, but against principalities, against authorities, against the universal lords of this darkness,^r against spiritual [power^s] of wickedness
 13 in the heavenlies. For this reason take^t [to you] the panoply of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and, having^u accomplished all things, to stand.
 14 Stand therefore, having girt about your loins with truth, and having put on the breastplate of righteousness, and shod your feet with [the] preparation of the glad tidings of 15 peace: besides^v all [these] having taken the shield of faith with which ye will be able to quench all the inflamed^w darts of the wicked 17 one. Have^x also the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the ^r T. R. reads 'the darkness of this world.'

^s Or 'powers.'

^t ἀναλάβετε, ἀναλαμβάνετε. The sense is 'taking up;' so used for arms or clothes to put them on; hence also used for taking a person with you.

^u It may be translated 'having overcome all things' in the same sense. 'Carry through, and put in execution all purposed and called for, in spite of opposition.'

ing at all seasons, with all prayer and supplication in [the] Spirit, and watching unto this very thing with all perseverance and supplication for all saints; and for me 19 in order that utterance may be given to me in [the] opening of my mouth to make known with boldness the mystery of the 20 glad tidings, for which I am an ambassador [bound] with a chain, that I may be bold in it as I ought to speak.

21 But in order that ye also may know what concerns me, how I am getting on,^y Tychicus, the beloved brother and faithful minister^z in [the] Lord, shall make 22 all things known to you; whom I have sent to you for this very thing, that ye may know of our affairs and that he may encourage your hearts.

23 Peace to the brethren, and love with faith, from God [the] Father 24 and Lord Jesus Christ. Grace with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ in incorruption.*

^y Some read 'in all things.'

^z Or 'burning:' such darts with burning stuff at the end were in use.

^x δέξασθε, 'receive.' It is not as active an assumption of the helmet of salvation. Perhaps there is instruction in this.

^y πράσσω seems to express doing and state. See Kypke.

^z Or servant, διάκονος, one that ministered to Paul as to the Lord.

* T. R. adds 'Amen.'

EPISTLE TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

PAUL and Timotheus, bondsmen of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, with [the] overseers and ministers;^a grace to you, and peace from God our Father and [the] Lord Jesus Christ.

³ I thank my God for my whole remembrance of you, constantly in my every supplication,^b making the supplication for you all with joy, because of your fellowship with the gospel, from the first day until now; having confidence of this very thing, that he who has begun in you a good work will complete it unto Jesus Christ's day: as it is righteous^c for me to think this as to you all, because ye have me in your hearts, and that both in my bonds and in the defence and confirmation of the glad tidings ye are all participators in my grace. For God is my witness how I long after you all in [the] bowels of Christ Jesus.^d

gence, that ye may judge of and approve the things that are more excellent, in order that ye may be pure and without offence for Christ's day, being complete as regards the fruit^f of righteousness, which [is] by Jesus Christ, to God's glory and praise.

¹² But I would have you know, brethren, that the circumstances in which I am have turned out rather to the furtherance of the glad tidings, so that my bonds have become manifest [as being] in Christ^g in all the prætorium and^h to all others; and that the most of the brethren, trusting in [the] Lord through my bonds, dare more abundantly to speak the word^k fearlessly. Some indeed also for envy and strife, but some also for good will, preach the Christ. These indeed out of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the glad tidings; but those out of contention, announce the Christ, not purely, supposing to arouse^l tribulation for my bonds.^m What is it then? at any

^a Or deacons. See note on Romans xvi. 1.

^b It may be read 'every supplication for you all;' so some; but I think not so rightly.

^c Or perhaps 'I feel it righteous.' It may be said 'it is right.' See Eph. vi. 1.

^d T. R. reads 'Jesus Christ.'

^e It is a question how far the abounding applies to the love itself; or, supposing the love, that it should grow in these qualities. This, I think, is determined to be the latter by Eph. i. 8. It means 'grow in these,' yet love would grow in them. Hence, I put 'may abound' after love; if the former, it would be better before 'in.'

^f T. R. reads 'fruits...[are].'

^g I apprehend 'manifested to be because of Christ,' not to be those of a malefactor.

^h Or 'in all other [places].'

ⁱ Or 'trusting through [the] Lord in my bonds.'

^k Some add 'of God.'

rate, in every way, whether in pretext or in truth, Christ is announced; and in this I rejoice, ¹⁹ yea, also I will rejoice: for I know that this shall turn out for me to salvation, through your supplication and [the] supply of the ²⁰ Spirit of Jesus Christ: according to my earnest^a expectation and hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but in all boldness, as always, now also Christ shall be magnified in my body whether by ²¹ life or by death. For for me to live [is] Christ, and to die gain; ²² but if to live in flesh [is my lot], this is for me worth^o the while: and what I shall choose I cannot ²³ tell. But^p I am, pressed by both, having the desire for departure and being with Christ, for [it is] ²⁴ very much better, but remaining in the flesh [is] more necessary ²⁵ for your sakes; and having confidence of this, I know that I shall remain and abide along with you all, for your progress and joy in^q ²⁶ faith; that your boasting may abound in Christ Jesus through me by my presence again with ²⁷ you. Only conduct yourselves worthily of the glad tidings of the Christ, in order that whether coming and seeing you, or absent, I may hear of what concerns you, that ye stand firm in one spirit, with one soul, labouring together in^r the same conflict with the ²⁸ faith of the glad tidings; and not frightened in anything by the opposers, which is to them a demonstration of destruction, but of your^s salvation, and that from ²⁹ God; because to you has been given,^t as regards Christ, not only the believing on him but the ³⁰ suffering for him also, having the same conflict which ye have seen in me, and now hear of in me.

II. If then [there be] any comfort^v in Christ, if any consolation of love, if any fellowship of [the] Spirit, if any bowels and compassions, fulfil my joy, that^w ye may think the same thing, having the same love, joined in soul, thinking ³ one thing; [let] nothing^x [be] in the spirit of strife or vain glory, but, in lowliness of mind, each esteeming the other as more ⁴ excellent than themselves; regarding not each his own [qualities],^y but each those of others ⁵ also. For let this mind be in ^a Or 'constant.' See Rom. viii. 19 and Fritsche: but 'earnest' gives this idea here: 'the constant looking out that it should be so.'

^o Or 'fruit of labour.'

^q Literally 'of.' 'Progress and joy' go together, not progress, and joy in faith.

^r That is, the faith of the gospel being in conflict, they identified themselves with it, and entered into the struggle, striving in favour of it.

^s On the whole this seems the best reading, but T. R. is supported by many authorities. Some read 'to us.' The text is ὑμῶν. T. R. ὑμῖν. Others ἡμῖν.

^t Or 'in behalf of Christ,' the sentence being broken in upon and resumed.

^v I do not think παράκλησις is exhortation here. That misses the whole mind of the apostle: παράκλησις is encouragement, by word or any way, and so comfort. Here the apostle beautifully alludes to what he felt by their sending supply to him from so far; and adds, if you want me to be fully happy, be at one among yourselves.

^w 'That' depends on an understood exhortation.

^x Or 'nothing' may be in sense joined with 'thinking,' which precedes, leaving out 'let,' 'be.'

^y Or 'advantages.'

III. For the rest, my brethren, rejoice in [the] Lord: to write the same things to you, to me [is] not irksome, and for you safe. See to dogs, see to evil workmen, see to the concision. For we are the circumcision, who worship by [the] Spirit of God,^o and boast in Christ Jesus, and do not trust in flesh.⁴ Though I have [my] trust even in flesh; if any other think to trust in flesh, I rather: as to circumcision, [I received it] the eighth day; of [the] race of Israel, of [the] tribe of Benjamin, Hebrew of Hebrews; ⁶ as to [the] law, a Pharisee; as to zeal, persecuting the assem-

But surely I count also all things to be loss on account of the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, on account of whom I have suffered the loss of all and count them to be filth, that I may gain Christ; ⁹ and that I may be found in him, not having my righteousness, which [would be] on the principle of law, but that which is by faith of Christ, the righteousness [which is] of God through faith, to know him and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being conformed to his death, if any way I arrive at the resurrection ¹¹ from among [the] dead. ⁿ T. R. reads 'not consulting.' ^o T. R. reads 'God in Spirit.' The reading was in question as early as Ambrose and Augustine. Augustine reads both. Ambrose, till the Benedictine edition, was given as reading Θεῶ, 'serving God the Spirit.' They give Θεοῦ, 'serving the Spirit of God.' The diplomatic evidence is in favour of Θεοῦ, 'who worship by the Spirit of God;' but I do not feel assured of its correctness. Cod. Sin. has Θεοῦ; but after all Cod. Sin. is only an Alexandrian witness of the complete kind. But it is anything but a correct MS. In Rev. it is very incorrect indeed. D. and Porph. (in Tisch. M. I.) read Θεῶ.

^p Or 'have Christ for my gain.'

^o Used for annulling a decree or law.

^q This word has raised questions, being generally applied to things, garments on oneself, &c., not on other persons; but there is ample proof, it seems, of the latter use. See Kypke in loco. See also Schleusn. sub voce as to middle voice. Hence I have retained it in spite of many objections made to it. It has been suggested that it should be translated 'having stripped himself [for combat] he made a show of,' &c.; but I am not aware of a case where the word is used without any objective word after it. So read, it would apply to Christ's glory and even life. Otherwise it is taken as getting rid of the principalities and powers. Meyer takes it as here. The old Latin has exuens se, and connects 'principalities' with what follows: 'having despoiled [unclothed] himself, exposed principalities,' &c. See Wolfii Curæ Phil. in loco.

^s Or 'him.' In all the preceding passage the reader must remark that the natural antecedent is God. If this be so, the force of ἀπεκδυσάμενος is evident. Ellicott seeks to make it Christ as God; which, though scriptural, seems to me very forced. Something might be said for God in Christ as to its sense, for the passage speaks of the fulness of the Godhead in him. Alford takes it in verse 13 as God, yet ἀπεκδυσάμενος as 'having divested himself of.' They do not seem justified in denying the active sense to ἀπεκδυσάμενος. Besides others, also in Schleusner, Wolff quotes Hesiod for it.

^t Some translate 'wilfully deprive you,' others 'desiring [to do so] by humility.' I prefer 'doing his will or pleasure in,' &c.

^u Many omit 'not' here, translating ἐμβατεῶν 'walking in, treading on:' that is, taking his stand on professed visions of angels. ^v omits; Porph. has μή. The sense is not affected really. If μή be left out, the passage speaks of what the visionaries allege; if in, it is the apostle's own denial of their having really seen the angelic choirs.

^x I apprehend this is a term of Roman law: a class of objects, as to the possession of which there were peculiar rules. Inst. ii. Tit. 4. s. 2. See Ulp. Reg. Tur. xxiv. 27: l. 5. s. 1, 2.

^y See Demosth. in Kypke. Both senses there are really the same. There was something to allege, something to say for it.

PAUL, and Sylvanus, and Timothy, to the assembly of Thessalonians in God [the] Father and [the] Lord Jesus Christ. Grace to you and peace.*

² We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you at our prayers, remembering unceasingly your work of faith, and labour of love, and enduring constancy of hope of our Lord Jesus Christ, before our God and Father; knowing, brethren beloved by God, your election. For our glad tidings were not with you in word only, but also in power, and in [the] Holy Ghost, and in much assurance; even as ye know what we were among you for your sakes: and ye became our imitators and of the Lord, having accepted the word in much tribulation with joy of [the] Holy Ghost, so that ye became models to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia: for the word of the Lord sounded out from you, not only in Macedonia and in Achaia, but in every place your faith which [is] towards God has gone abroad, so that we have no need to say anything; for they themselves relate concerning us what entering in we had to you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve a living and true God, and to await his Son from the heavens, whom he raised from among the^b dead, Jesus, our deliverer from the coming wrath.

II. For ye know yourselves, brethren, our entering in which [we had] to you, that it has not been² in vain; but, having^c suffered before and been insulted, even as ye know, in Philippi, we were bold in our God to speak unto you the glad tidings of God with much earnest striving. For our exhortation [was] not of deceit, nor of uncleanness, nor in guile; but even as we have been approved of God to have the glad tidings entrusted to us, so we speak; not as pleasing men, but God, who⁵ proves our hearts. For we have not at any time been [among you] with flattering discourse, even as ye know, nor with a pretext for covetousness, God [is] witness; nor seeking glory from men, neither from you nor from others, when we might have been a charge as Christ's apostles; but have been gentle in the midst of you, as a nurse would cherish her own children. the glad tidings of God, but our own lives also, because ye had⁹ become beloved of us. For ye remember, brethren, our labour and toil,^d working night and day, not to be chargeable to any one of you, we have preached to you¹⁰ the glad tidings of God. Ye [are] witnesses, and God, how piously and righteously and blamelessly we have conducted ourselves with you¹¹ that believe: as ye know how, as a father his own children, we used to exhort each one of you, and comfort¹² and testify, that ye should walk worthy of^e God, who calls us to his¹³ own kingdom and glory. And^f for this cause we also give thanks to God unceasingly that, having received [the] word of [the] report of God by us, ye accepted, not men's word, but, even as it is truly, God's word, which also works in you who¹⁴ believe. For ye, brethren, have become imitators of the assemblies of God which are in Judea in Christ Jesus; for ye also have suffered the same things of your own countrymen as also they of the¹⁵ Jews, who have both slain the Lord Jesus and the^g prophets, and have driven us out by persecution, and do not please God, and¹⁶ [are] against all men, forbidding us to speak to the nations that they may be saved, that they may fill up their sins always: but wrath has come upon them to the uttermost.¹⁷ But we, brethren, having been bereaved of you and separated^h for a little moment in person, not in heart, have used more abundant diligence to see your face¹⁸ with much desire; wherefore we have desired to come to you, even I, Paul, both once and twice, and¹⁹ Satan has hindered us; for what [is] our hope, or joy, or crown of boasting? [are] not ye alsoⁱ before our Lord Jesus^k at his coming?²⁰ for ye are our glory and joy.

III. Wherefore, being no longer able to refrain ourselves, we thought good to be left alone in Athens,² and sent Timotheus, our brother and fellow-workman under God¹ in the glad tidings of Christ, to confirm you and encourage [you]^m concerning your faith, that no one might be moved by these afflictions. (For yourselves know⁴ that we are set for this; for also, when we were with you, we told you beforehand weⁿ are about to

^e Or 'the God who calls us,' τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ καλοῦντος; but neither gives exactly the Greek, because 'of God who calls' makes God stand by himself as such; and 'the God who calls' makes the calling too distinctive, so that, but for other reasons, one might think there was another God. The Greek preserves the absoluteness of God, and adds the calling quality.

^f T. R. omits 'and.'

^h I have added 'separated,' to express the somewhat emphatic reiterations of ἀπό in the Greek.

ⁱ Or 'is it not even ye?'

^k T. R. adds 'Christ.'

^l The reading is perplexed. But I suppose it is either 'our brother, and fellow-workman under God,' συνεργὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ, or 'our brother and minister of God.' Some simply leave out καὶ συνεργὸν ἡμῶν. κ, A, Porph. (Tisch.) have διάκονον τοῦ Θεοῦ. κ omits τὸν συνεργὸν ἡμῶν. Vat., καὶ συνεργὸν ἐν τῷ εὐαγγελίῳ τοῦ Χριστοῦ, leaving out τοῦ Θεοῦ. C falls us here; so that we have for συνεργὸν, B, and D Gr. and Lat., Vul.: for διάκονον, κ, A, P, T, and It. I have given it as in B, D. If any prefer κ, A, P, T, and It., the choice and authorities are there: Alf., Lun., Ell., Gries., Tisch., De Wette have as in text.

^m T. B. adds a second 'you' in text.

ⁿ Very competent critics, beginning with Bengel, would read here 'we are to be,' that is, such is the lot of Christians; but

I THESSALONIANS III, IV.

be in tribulation, even as also it 5 came to pass, and ye know.) For this reason I also, no longer able to refrain myself, sent to know your faith, lest perhaps the tempter had tempted you and our labour 6 should be come to nothing. But, ° Timothy having just come to us from you, and brought to us the glad tidings of your faith and love, and that ye have always good remembrance of us,^p desiring much to see us, even as we also 7 you; for this reason we have been comforted in you,^q brethren, in all our distress and tribulation^r 8 through your faith, because now we live if ye stand firm in [the] 9 Lord. For what thanksgiving can we render to God for you, for all the joy wherewith we rejoice on account of you before our God, 10 night and day beseeching exceedingly to the end that we may see your face, and perfect what is 11 lacking in your faith? But our God^s and Father himself and our Lord Jesus^t direct^v our way to you.

 12 But you^w may the Lord make to exceed and abound in love toward one another, and toward all, even 13 as we also towards you, in order to the confirming of your hearts unblamable in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus^t with all his saints.

IV. For the rest, then, brethren, we beg you and exhort in [the] Lord Jesus, even as ye have received from us how ye ought to walk and please^y God, even as ye also do walk,^z that ye would 2 abound still more. For ye know what charges we gave you through 3 the Lord Jesus. For this is [the] will^a of God, [even] your sanctification, that ye should abstain 4 from fornication; that each of you προελέγομεν, 'told you beforehand,' seems to make it applicable to the Thessalonians. Both may be joined, and I suspect were in the apostle's mind; but it is added to verse 3, and not the repetition of it.

° Or 'But now, Timothy having come,' &c. But I doubt that ἀρτι has ever the semi-inferential force of νῦν or νυνί.

^p Or 'have good remembrance of us, always desiring much to see.'

^q ἐφ' ὑμῖν I believe here, and in 2 Cor. vii. 7, is the occasion. The ἐπί with a dative, with the force of a condition, or circumstance which gives an occasion, not the cause; moyennant. It is the same structure as ἐπί πάσῃ τῇ θλίψει, not here strictly a condition, nor in spite of, nor merely in reference to; but still with the sense of occasion. We say 'it was the occasion of his doing so,' 'the occasion failed,' 'he had no occasion,' but also 'on this occasion,' and that is the force, with the same difference, of ἐπί here. So ἐπί πάσῃ τῇ χαρῇ, verse 9. We can say 'for' perhaps there, but it is the occasion of his thanksgiving; his thanksgiving was conditional; that was necessary to it as a condition precedent.

* Or 'but may God himself and our Father;' but this, closely examined, is unsatisfactory; 'they' might be two, whereas the one article in Greek refers 'God and Father' to one person, without necessarily referring 'our' to more than Father. 'Now may himself [who is] God and our Father.'

^t T. R. adds 'Christ.'

^v The English reader will remark here that 'direct' in Greek is in the singular. God the Father and Christ the Lord forming, so to speak, one in the thought of the apostle's mind, though, personally, clearly distinguished.

^w 'You' is in contrast with 'our to you.'

^y I do not say 'to please,' because then pleasing God would be a distinct object. Here it is 'rather to walk so as to please.' The point is, what is the way τὸ πῶς, to please him, not that it ought to be an object, however true that may be. Here it is assumed.

^z T. R. omits 'even as ye also do walk.'

^a The article is not before θέλημα in Greek, and the force much increased thereby. It is before Θεοῦ. It is not merely the fact that God wills so, but it is a matter of God's will. God is looked

I THESSALONIANS IV.

know how to possess^b his own vessel in sanctification and honour,
⁵ (not in passionate desire even as the nations who know not God,)
⁶ not overstepping the rights of and wronging his brother in the^c matter, because the Lord [is] the avenger of all these things, even as we also told you before, and have fully
⁷ testified. For God has not called us to^d uncleanness, but in sanctification. He therefore that [in this] disregards [his brother], disregards, not man, but God, who has given also his Holy Spirit to you.^e
⁹ Now concerning brotherly love ye have no need that we should write to you, for ye yourselves are taught of God to love one ¹⁰ another. For also ye do this towards all the brethren in the whole of Macedonia; but we exhort you, ¹¹ brethren, to abound still more, and to seek earnestly to be quiet and mind your own affairs, and work with your own hands, even as we ¹² charged you, that ye may walk

at as a person in authority (not merely a divine being), but the will is looked at characteristically, not merely as a fact that he so wills. This is of such a character that God himself wills it.

^b 'Possess.' It is alleged that κτᾶσθαι means 'acquire,' not 'possess.' No doubt it is its force, the perfect tense giving it the force of possession. What I possess myself of, I possess when the action is complete and permanent. But it is not, I think, exactly 'acquire,' but 'to get into possession,' or 'come into possession of,' the difference being great in moral things. Thus Luke xxi. 19, and xviii. 12, so Sirach li. 20. You cannot say 'acquire his soul by patience.' We do say 'self-possession,' yet it is an active state. But 'keep,' 'preserve,' is a kindred sense undoubtedly used in the LXX, Sirach xxii. 23, πίστιν κτῆσαι. So Lysias, quoted by Kypke. Sirach vi. 7 does not apply, nor a passage quoted by Stephanus, sub voce, from Xenophon; but Demosthenes seems so to use it. This is not the place to discuss the reputably towards those without, and may have need of no one.^f

¹³ But we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them that are fallen asleep, to the end that ye be not grieved even as also the rest who have no hope.
¹⁴ For if we believe that Jesus has died and has risen again, so also God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep through Jesus.
¹⁵ (For this we say to you ἰνᾷ [the] word of [the] Lord, that we, the living, who remain to the coming of the Lord, are in no way to^h anticipate those who have fallen asleep; for the Lord himself, with an assembling shout, with archangel's voice and with trump of God, shall descend from heaven; and the dead in Christ shall rise
¹⁷ first; then we, the living who remain, shall be caught up together with them in [the] clouds, to meet the Lord in [the] air; and thus we ¹⁸ shall be always with [the] Lord. So encourage one another with these use of σκεῦος, but certainly verse 5 and τό, before μη̄ υπερβαίνειν, seems to exclude the taking it to mean wife. I reject the sense of acquiring, and take that of possessing or preserving. His remark, λαβῶν, ἔχων, may refer to the force of the aorist, which is used for possessing, like the perfect. Another use of κτᾶσμαι is to take or have a wife, and, I apprehend, to be conversant with places and things. See Schleus. 'His own' may well be taken in reference to his brother.

^c A euphemism for intercourse with a female, as his wife or another's.

^d ἐπί, the characterizing condition.

^f Or 'of nothing.'

^g T. R. reads 'I do not.'

^h φθάσωμεν, aorist conj., habitually used with οὐ μή in New Test., little differing from 'shall in no wise;' but I think there is a shade of difference from the meaning of the present. Compare chap. v. 3, λέγωσιν . . . ἐκφύγωσιν.

I THESSALONIANS V.

words.) (V.) But concerning the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that ye should be 2 written to, for ye know perfectly well yourselves, that the day of [the] Lord so comes as a thief by 3 night. ⁱWhen they may say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction comes upon them, as travail upon her that is with child; and 4 they shall in no wise escape.^k But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that the day should overtake you as 5 a thief: for^l all ye are sons of light and sons of day; we are not of night 6 nor of darkness. So then do not let us sleep as the rest do, but let 7 us watch and be sober; for they that sleep sleep by night, and they 8 that drink drink by night; but we being of [the] day, let us be sober, putting on [the] breastplate of faith and love, and as helmet [the]
 9 hope^m of salvation; because God has not set us for wrath, but for obtaining salvation through our 10 Lord Jesus Christ, who has died for us, that whether we may be watching or sleep, we may live together
 11 with him. Wherefore encourage one another, and build up each one the other, even as also ye do.
 12 But we beg you, brethren, to know those who labour among you, and take the lead among you in [the] 13 Lord, and admonish you, and to regard them exceedingly in love on account of their work. Be in 14 peace among yourselves. But we exhort you, brethren, admonish the disorderly, comfort the faint-hearted, sustain the weak, be patient towards all. See that no one render to any evil for evil, but pursue always what is good towards 15 one another and towards all; rejoice always; pray unceasingly;

 16 in everything give thanks, for this is, [the] will of God in Christ
 17 Jesus towards you; quench not the Spirit; do not lightly esteem
 18 prophecies; butⁿ prove all things, hold fast the right; hold aloof from every form of wickedness.^o
 19 Now the God of peace himself sanctify you wholly; and your whole spirit, and soul, and body be preserved blameless at the coming 20 of our Lord Jesus Christ. He [is] faithful who calls you, who will also 21 perform [it]. Brethren, pray for us. Greet all the brethren with a 22 holy kiss. I adjure you by the Lord that the letter be read to all the 23 holy brethren. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ [be] with you.^p ⁱ T. B. reads 'for.'

^k See note to chap. iv. 15.

^l T. B. omits 'for.'

^m 'Faith, hope, love,' these three.

ⁿ T. B. omits 'but.'

^o Even if πονηροῦ be an adjective, what is in the text gives the sense: 'every wicked form' would have a wholly different sense in English. I do not think that πονηροῦ could have the article here. εἶδος, as often remarked, is kind, species; but if the article be put before πονηροῦ, it is either the wicked one, and εἶδος has no sense; or it is the abstract idea of τὸ πονηρὸν; and an abstract idea is one absolute and single whole; you cannot have kinds of it. Hence πονηροῦ is looked at as a general thing, a genus, and has kinds or species of it. They were to hold fast the τὸ καλόν, the thing in itself. But you cannot speak of evil in itself as an abstract existence. Its most absolute form is Satan, though we may practically speak of 'evil'; but I cannot say 'evilness' as I can 'goodness.' I must suppose an existence of what is good to have an idea of evil. τὸ καλόν and πονηρὸν are therefore profoundly beautiful. If I say 'wickedness,' I think of an act or of evil will in some one, malice.

^p T. B. adds 'Amen.'

SECOND EPISTLE TO THE THESSALONIANS.

PAUL and Sylvanus and Timotheus to the assembly of Thessalonians in God our Father and ² Lord Jesus Christ. Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ.

³ We ought to thank God always for you, brethren, even as it is meet, because your faith increases exceedingly, and the love of each one of you all towards one another

⁴ abounds; so that we ourselves make our boast in you in the assemblies of God for your endurance and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations, which ye are sustaining; a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, to the end that ye should be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for the sake of which ye also

⁵ suffer; if at least^a [it is a] righteous thing with God to render tribulation to those that trouble

⁶ you, and to you that are troubled repose with us, at the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven,

⁷ with [the] angels of his power in flaming fire, taking vengeance on those who know not God, and those who do not obey the glad tidings of our Lord Jesus Christ,

⁸ who shall pay the penalty [of] everlasting destruction from [the] presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his might, when he shall have come to be glorified in his saints, and wondered at in all that have believed,^r (for our testimony to you has been believed,) in that day. To which end we also pray always for you, that our God may count you worthy of the calling, and fulfil all [the] good pleasure of [his] goodness and [the] work of faith with power, so that the name of our Lord Jesus [Christ]^s may be glorified in you and ye in him, according to the grace of our God and of [the] Lord Jesus Christ.¹

II. Now we beg you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our gathering together to him, that ye be not soon shaken in mind, nor troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as [if it were] by us, as that the day of the Lord^v is present. Let not any one deceive you in any manner, because [it will not be] unless the apostasy have first come, and the man of sin have been revealed, the son of perdition; who opposes and exalts himself on high^w

^a This looks back in thought to verse 5. This shews that the alleged difference of εἶπε and εἶπερ is unfounded. There is, I think, a difference: εἶπερ puts the case that a thing is; εἶπε the possibility that it is not.

^r T. R. reads 'that believe.'

^s Many copies omit 'Christ' here. I am disposed to think rightly; but many of the best have it.

^v It might be translated 'of our God and Lord Jesus Christ,' but I doubt its correctness here.

^w T. R. reads 'Christ.'

^x 'Before,' or 'exceedingly.' There is some question as to the force of ἐπί here. Ellicott gives 'above' and 'against,' but I suppose by יתרוּל is 'magnify against,' as against^z all called God, or object of veneration: so that he himself^y sits down in the temple of God, shewing⁵ himself that he is God. Do ye not remember that, being yet with you,⁶ I said these things to you? And now ye know that which restrains, that he should be revealed in his⁷ own time. For the mystery of lawlessness already works; only [there is] he who restrains now⁸ until he be gone, and then the lawless one shall be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus^z shall consume^a with the breath^b of his mouth, and shall annul by the⁹ appearing of his coming; whose coming is according to the working^c of Satan in all^d power and signs and wonders of falsehood,¹⁰ and in all^d deceit of unrighteousness to^e them that perish, because they have not received the love of the truth that they might be¹¹ saved. And for this reason God sends^f to them a working^c of error, that they should believe what is¹² false, that all might be judged who have not believed the truth, but have found pleasure in un-¹³righteousness. But we ought to give thanks to God always for you, brethren beloved of [the] Lord, that God has chosen you from [the] beginning to salvation in sanctification of [the] Spirit¹⁴ and belief of [the] truth; whereto he has called you by our glad tidings, to [the] obtaining of [the] glory^g of our Lord Jesus Christ.¹⁵ So then, brethren, stand firm, and hold fast the instructions which ye have been taught, whether by¹⁶ word or by our letter. But our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and our God and Father, who has loved us, and given [us] eternal consolation and good hope by¹⁷ grace, encourage your hearts, and establish you in every good work and word.^h

II THESSALONIANS II, III.

III. For the rest, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified, even as³ also with you; and that we may be delivered from bad and evil men, for faith [is] not [the portion]³ of all. But the Lord is faithful, who shall establish you and keep⁴ [you] from evil.¹ But we trust in the Lord as to you, that the things which we enjoy,^k ye both do and

Is. x. 15 as well as Dan. xi. 86; but in Dan. xi. 37 the idea of 'above' seems to come in, and this ὑπέρ implies. There is opposition, but in the way of arrogant self-exaltation. See following note; but there the verb also has ἐπί.

^y T. R. reads 'as God.'

^z T. R. omits 'Jesus.'

^a Or 'destroy.'

^b Or 'spirit.'

^c ἐνέργεια, a working in the power of anything.

^d Every kind or form of: πάση without article.

^f T. B. reads 'shall send,' πέμψει for πέμψει. The sense is the same. It is when the lawless one is revealed. πέμψει is historic, πέμπει the moral fact. The making it present as to time, referring to verse 7, is a mere blunder. It is in contrast with that time.

^g 'The obtaining of the glory' is anathous in Greek, which gives a shade of meaning which one cannot express in English. With the article it is the fact of obtaining the glory; without it, it is the character of the calling: to obtaining glory. What that glory is is then stated: that of our Lord Jesus Christ. 'We are called to obtention of glory [that] of our Lord Jesus Christ.'

^h T. R. reads 'word and work.'

ⁱ Or perhaps 'the evil one.'

^k T. B. adds 'you,' with many authorities.

⁵ will do. But the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patience of the Christ.
⁶ Now we enjoin you, brethren, in the name of our¹ Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw^m from every brother walking disorderly and not according to the instruction which heⁿ received from us.
⁷ For ye know yourselves how ye ought to imitate us, because we have not walked disorderly among ⁸ you; nor have we eaten bread from any one without cost; but in toil and hardship working night and day not to be chargeable to any ⁹ one of you. Not that we have not the right, but that we might give ourselves as an example to you, ¹⁰ in order to your imitating us. For also when we were with you we enjoined you this, that if any man does not like to work, neither let

¹¹ him eat. For we hear that [there are] some walking among you disorderly, not working at all, ¹² but busybodies.^o Now such we enjoin and exhort in the^p Lord Jesus Christ, that working quietly
¹³ they eat their own bread. But ye, brethren, do not faint in well ¹⁴ doing. But if any one obey not our word by the letter, mark that man, and do not keep company with him, that he may be ashamed
¹⁵ of himself; and do not esteem him as an enemy, but admonish [him]
¹⁶ as a brother. But the Lord of peace himself give you peace continually in every way. The Lord

ⁿ Some read 'ye;' some 'they.' It is very probable 'they' is right.

^o Meddling in others' affairs.

^q T. R. adds 'Amen.'

FIRST EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY.

PAUL, apostle of Jesus Christ according to [the] command of God our Saviour, and of Christ
² Jesus^r our hope, to Timotheus, [my] true child in faith; grace, mercy, peace, from God our^s Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.
³ Even as I begged thee to remain in Ephesus, [when I was] going to Macedonia, that thou mightest

enjoin some not to teach other
⁴ doctrines, nor to turn their minds to fables and interminable genealogies, which^t bring questionings rather than [further] God's dispensation,^v which [is] in faith.
⁵ But the end of what is enjoined is love out of a pure heart and a good conscience and unfeigned ⁶ faith; which [things] some having missed, have turned aside to vain 7 discourse, desiring to be law-teachers, not understanding either what they say, or concerning what 8 they [so] strenuously affirm. Now we know that the law [is] good if 9 any one uses it lawfully, knowing this, that law has not its application^w to a righteous person, but to [the] lawless and insubordinate, to [the] impious and sinful, to [the] unholy and profane, to smiters of fathers and smiters of 10 mothers;^x to murderers, fornica-tors, sodomites, kidnappers, liars, perjurers; and if any other thing is opposed to sound teaching, 11 according to the glad tidings of the glory of the blessed God, with which I have been entrusted.

 12 [And]^y I thank^z Christ Jesus our Lord, who has given me power,
 that he has counted me faithful, 13 appointing to ministry him^a who before was a blasphemer and persecutor, and an insolent overbearing [man]: but mercy was shewn me because I did it igno-14 rantly, in unbelief. But the grace of our Lord surpassingly over-abounded with faith and love, 15 which [is] in Christ Jesus. Faithful [is] the word, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am [the] first.

 16 But for this reason mercy was shewn me, that in me, [the] first,
 Jesus Christ might display the whole long-suffering, for a delineation of^b those about to believe on 17 him to life eternal. Now to the King of the ages, [the] incorruptible, invisible, only^c God, honour and glory to the ages of ages.
 18 Amen. This charge,^d [my] child Timotheus, I commit to thee, according to the prophecies as to thee preceding in order that^e thou mightest war by them the good

^w κεῖται: a technical word for the enactment of a law, its being in force.

^x Plato Phaed. contrasts these and ἀνδροφόνους; but ἀλοάω is to smite or beat, not to kill.

^y 'And' is doubtful.

^z Or 'I thank him who has given me power, Christ Jesus our Lord.'

^a Or 'appointing me to ministry who.'

^b I think it a mistake to apply the delineation simply to the long-suffering, and so make 'of' mean 'for' for those.
 Paul was a delineation of Christ's ways in their case, even, I doubt not, in the case of the rebellious Jews hereafter. The whole long-suffering was thenceforth in his case, so as to picture every case. In those who accompanied with him when alive
 this was not the case, though the grace was really the same; but there was not the same ἐνδειξις of it.

^c T. B. adds 'wise.'

^d Same word as 'enjoin,' verses 3, 5.

^e The connection of the words here is much discussed. I have left the same ambiguity as in Greek. It may be 'I commit to thee (in this way) in order that,'

or 'going before in order that;' it may be prophecies as to thee,' or 'going before, as to thee.' I apprehend the series of ideas in the apostle's mind is: he commits—in order that; but he refers to the prophecies—that by them. As to the second point, the whole is one idea; but the 'as to thee' is more closely connected with prophecies. There is a more serious difficulty as to the word 'faith'; because it embraces two ideas: doctrine, as taught of God and received; and subjectively the state of soul. If I have cast off the faith, the doctrine and the state of soul are both gone. In verse 19 it is the inward energy of grace which holds fast the truth. The two are not separated, but the state of the soul is first in the apostle's mind. In the second, having lost a good conscience, they did not hold fast the faith, but they lost it in some way thus objectively. In the second case, there is the article in Greek,
 which does not exclude faith in the soul, but leads the mind to the faith. This comes out in the following verse; but in English 'the faith' would be too absolute or merely doctrinal. I think it is clear as

I TIMOTHY I, II, III.

¹⁹ warfare, maintaining^f faith and a good conscience; which [last] some, having put away, have made ²⁰ shipwreck as to faith; of whom is Hymenæus and Alexander, whom I have delivered to Satan, that they may be taught by discipline not to blaspheme.

II. I exhort therefore, first of all, that supplications, prayers, intercessions,^g thanksgivings be made ² for all men; for kings and all that are in dignity, that we may lead a quiet and tranquil life in all piety ³ and gravity; for this is good and acceptable before our Saviour God, ⁴ who desires that all men should be saved and come to [the] know- ⁵ ledge^b of [the] truth. For God is one,ⁱ and [the] mediator of God and men one, [the] man Christ Jesus, ⁶ who gave himself a ransom for all, the testimony [to be rendered] in ⁷ its own times, to which I have been appointed a herald and apostle, (I speak [the] truth,^j I do not lie,) a teacher of [the] nations in faith and truth.

⁸ I will therefore that the men pray in every place, lifting up pious hands, without wrath or

⁹ reasoning. In like manner also that the women in decent deportment and dress^k adorn themselves with modesty and discretion, not with plaited [hair] and^l gold, or ¹⁰ pearls, or costly clothing, but, what becomes women making profession of the fear of God, by good ¹¹ works. Let a woman learn in ¹² quietness in all subjection; but I do not suffer a woman to teach nor to exercise authority over^m ¹³ man, but to be in quietness; for Adam was formed first, then Eve: ¹⁴ and Adam was not deceived; but the woman, having been deceived,ⁿ ¹⁵ was in transgression. But she shall be preserved in childbearing, if they continue in faith and love and holiness with discretion.

III. The word [is] faithful: if any one aspires to exercise oversight, ² he desires a good work. The overseer then must be irreproachable, husband of one wife, sober, discreet, decorous, hospitable, apt to ³ teach; not given to excesses from wine, not a striker,^o but mild, not addicted to contention, not fond of ⁴ money, conducting his own house well, having [his] children in sub-

I have put it. I should say 'keeping;' but 'keeping faith,' in English, has another sense; but it is more than 'having.'

^f Or 'holding.'

^g ἐντευξείς, personal and confiding intercourse with God as one able to approach him.

^h ἐπίγνωσις, 'full knowledge,' which acknowledges the truth of a thing; but I have said 'knowledge,' not full or certain knowledge, as more just in English. If I said, in English, 'acquainted with the truth,' it would imply not possessed; but knowledge is ἐπίγνωσις. If we say 'full,' it is contrasted with partial; certain with doubtful. To know the truth suggests possession of it.

ⁱ Or 'there is one God and one mediator,' &c.

^j T. R. adds 'in Christ.'

^k καταστολή is more than στολή, and includes the whole deportment; the way in which the woman presents herself, though dress be a great sign of this.

^l T. R. reads 'or.' The MSS vary, but on the whole 'and' is the best supported.

^m Or 'a man.' It is in contrast with 'woman.'

ⁿ ἐξαπαθηθεῖσα, a stronger word than ἀπαθηθεῖσα, which T. R. reads. But scriptural Greek often adds strengthening prepositions with the force little changed. See Rom. vii. 11, xvi. 18, 1 Cor. iii. 18, 2 Cor. ii. 3, 2 Thess. ii. 3.

^o T. R. adds 'not seeking gain by base means.'

5 jection with all gravity; (but if one does not know how to conduct his own house, how shall he take care
 6 of the assembly of God?) not a novice, that he may not, being inflated, fall into [the] fault^r of the 7 devil. But it is necessary that he should have also a good testimony from those without, that he may not fall into reproach and [the]
 8 snare of the devil. Ministers,^q in like manner, grave, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not seeking gain by base means, 9 holding the mystery of the faith in 10 a pure conscience. And let these be first proved, then let them minister,^r being without charge 11 [against them]. [The] women in like manner grave, not slanderers, 12 sober, faithful in all things. Let [the] ministers^r be husbands of one wife, conducting their children
 13 and their own houses well: for those who shall have ministered well obtain for themselves a good degree, and much boldness in faith 14 which [is] in Christ Jesus. These things I write to thee, hoping to 15 come to thee more quickly; ^s but

^p κρίμα is the subject matter of which a person had to be accused. They set up the κρίμα of the Lord on the cross; that for which he came into accusation—the charge. So it is used here. The devil was puffed up with his own excellency, and abode not in the truth. Hence, in a strongly taken sense, our word ‘crime.’

^q διάκονοι, servants or deacons.

^r Serve; servants or deacons.

^s More quickly than the writing of the letter supposed; but in case he delayed, he wrote. The verse refers to his fears of being delayed.

^t I do not enter on the criticism of this text. It very likely should be read ὅς. Cod. Sin. has ὅς, but has been meddled with. P (Porph. Tisch. Mon. Sa. In.) has ΘΣ: it generally, in Paul's epistles, has the readings of κ, but occasionally is more like

if I delay, in order that thou mayest know how one ought to conduct oneself in God's house, which is [the] assembly of [the] living God, [the] pillar and base of 16 the truth. And confessedly the mystery of piety is great. God^t has been manifested in flesh, has been justified in [the] Spirit, has appeared to^v angels, has been preached among [the] nations, has been believed on in [the] world, has been received up in glory.

IV. But the Spirit speaks expressly, that in latter times some shall apostatize from the faith, giving their mind to deceiving spirits and 2 teachings of demons speaking^w lies in hypocrisy, cauterized as to 3 their own conscience, forbidding to marry, [bidding] to abstain from meats which God has created for receiving with thanksgiving for them who are faithful and

 5 received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified by God's word and 6 freely addressing^y [him]. Laying

T. R. According to Scrivener, A, so long contested, would have ΘΣ; B we have not; D has δ; C has ὅς.

^v So often in New Testament, may be translated ‘has been seen of.’

^w Or, perhaps, ‘through those who speak lies,’ &c. Otherwise, as translated in text, the Spirit identifies the speaker and the evil spirit which speaks by him, as commonly in New Test., and passes from one to the other.

^x Or ‘acknowledge.’ See note to chap. ii. 4.

^y This I believe to be the sense here: ἐντευξίς means ‘intercourse with a person,’ then ‘petitions and intercession.’ One person speaking personally to another. I believe the creature, fallen through Adam, belongs to the faithful, and those who know the truth, by God's speaking to us, and

I TIMOTHY IV, V.

these things before the brethren, thou wilt be a good minister² of Christ Jesus,^a nourished with the words of the faith and of the good teaching which thou hast fully followed up and learned; but profane and old wives' fables avoid, but exercise thyself unto piety; for bodily exercise is profitable for a little,^b but piety is profitable for everything, having promise of life, of the present one, and of that to come. The word [is] faithful and worthy of all acceptance; for, for this we^c labour and suffer reproach,^d because we hope in a living God, who is preserver of all men, specially of those that believe. Enjoin and teach these things. Let no one despise thy youth, but be a model of the believers, in word, in conduct,^e in love,^f in faith, in purity. Till I come, give thyself to reading, to exhortation, to teaching. Be not negligent of the gift [that is] in thee, which has been given to thee through prophecy, with imposition of the hands of the elderhood. Occupy thyself with these things; be wholly in them, that thy progress may be manifest amongst all. Give heed to thyself and to the teaching; continue in them; for, doing this, thou shalt save both thyself and those that hear thee.

V. Rebuke not an elder sharply, our freely speaking to him. This has set all on a new footing, because we have met God again, the word of God having put us into communication by grace. And the faithful, and those who know the truth, have availed themselves of it, and come and enter into intercourse. It is no longer by nature, but by the word of God.

^a Or 'servant.'

but exhort [him] as a father, younger [men] as brethren, elder women as mothers, younger as sisters, with all purity. Honour widows who are really widows; but if any widow have children or descendants, let them learn first to be pious as regards their own house, and to render in return to [their] parents; for this is acceptable in the sight of God. Now she who [is] a widow indeed, and is left alone, has put [her] hope in God, and continues in supplications and prayers night and day. But she that lives in habits of self-indulgence is dead [while] living. And these things enjoin, that they may be irreproachable. But if any one does not provide for his own, and specially for those of [his] house, he has denied the faith, and is worse than the unbeliever. Let a widow be put upon the list, being of not less than sixty years, [having been] wife of one man, borne witness to in good works, if she have brought up children, if she have exercised hospitality, if she have washed saints' feet, if she have imparted relief to the distressed, if she have diligently followed every good work. But younger widows decline; for when they grow wanton against Christ, they desire to marry, being guilty, because they have cast off their ¹³ first faith. And, at the same time, they learn also [to be] idle, going about to people's houses;^a and, not only idle, but also gossipers and meddlers, speaking things not becoming. I will therefore that the younger marry, bear children, rule the house, give no occasion to the adversary in respect¹ of reproach. For already some have¹⁵ turned aside after Satan. If any believing man or woman have widows, let them impart relief to them, and let not the assembly be charged, that it may impart relief to those [that are] widows indeed.

¹⁷ Let the elders who take the lead [among the saints] well be esteemed worthy of double honour, specially those labouring in word and teaching; for the scripture says, Thou shalt not muzzle an ox that treadeth out corn, and The workman [is] worthy of his¹⁹ hire. Against an elder receive not an accusation unless where there

²⁰ are two or three witnesses. Those that sin convict^k before all, that²¹ the rest also may have fear. I testify before God and¹ Christ Jesus^m and the elect angels, that thou keep these things without prejudice, doing nothing by favour.

VI. Let as many bondsmen as are under yoke count their own masters worthy of all honour, that the name of God and the teaching² be not blasphemed. And they that have believing masters, let them not despise [them] because ^a I have said 'people's houses,' to represent the article, τὰς οἰκίας of the saints or people. They knew different houses represented to the mind as known.

¹ Or 'by reason of,' χάρις. χάρις and ἕνεκα approach each other in use very nearly, but are not the same. χάρις refers always to a productive power, as regards the noun governed by it, or a motive which has governed the mind as drawn favourably to it. It is the motive before the mind, or act, attractively; not behind it as a mere cause. Approbation or object is in χάρις, simply why in ἕνεκα. But in this case the application is very fine. The adversary found in the reproach that which produced an occasion to exercise his hostility. So χάρις is a motive by reason of something accepted, viewed favourably, approved. To use the example given by Eustathius, 'I could not arm myself χάρις an enemy.' I could χάρις a friend, or χάρις a victory. I apprehend it would be ἕνεκα an enemy. See Wetstein, Luke vii. 47, and the passages in a Greek Concordance.

As to adversary, discussed here, the habit of Paul is to speak of Satan directly when acting through men, because he knew the activity of the adversary, and the part he takes in such matters. To such an adversary reproach is a favoured, accepted motive. The sense of χάρις remains essentially the same—the favour borne to anything; only sometimes it is an object, sometimes a pleasing motive.

^k Or 'reprove.' But it is bringing home demonstratively to a man's conscience. It means 'to put to shame,' 'prove,' 'conquer,' 'rebuke,' but with conviction.

¹ God and the Lord Jesus Christ are looked at as one object in respect of the apostle's testifying, τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ Κυρίου Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. But the reading is perhaps doubtful. Note, G. Sharpe's rule, that it is one person, is far from always true. One office or position of two is sufficient. See Acts xiii. 1, Eph. ii. 20, iii. 5, Col. iv. 11. Here as a name it hardly applies at all if Κυρίου be left out.

^m T. R. reads '[the] Lord Jesus Christ.'

they are brethren; but let them the rather serve them with subjection, because they are faithful^a and beloved, who profit by the good and ready service [rendered.] These things teach and exhort.
³ If any one teach differently, and do not accede to sound words, those of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the teaching which [is] according to piety, he is puffed up, knowing nothing, but sick about questions and disputes of words, out of which arise envy, strife, injurious words, evil suspicions, constant quarrellings^o of men corrupted in mind and destitute of the truth, holding gain to be [the end of] piety.^p But piety with contentment is great gain. For we have brought nothing into the world: [it is] [manifest]^q that neither can we carry anything out. But having sustenance and covering, we will^r be content with these.^r But those who desire^s to be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and many unwise and hurtful lusts, which plunge men into destruction and ruin. For the love of money is [the] root^t of every evil; which some having aspired after, have wandered from the faith, and pierced themselves with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God, flee these things, and pursue

¹² Strive earnestly [in] the good conflict^w of^x faith. Lay hold of eternal life, to which^y thou hast been called, and hast confessed the good confession before many witnesses. I enjoin thee before God who preserves all things in life,^z and Christ Jesus who witnessed before Pontius Pilate the good confession, that thou keep the commandment spotless, irreprouchable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ; which in its own time^a the blessed and only Ruler shall shew, the King of those that reign, and Lord of those that exercise lordship; who only has immortality, dwelling in unapproachable light; whom no man has seen, nor is able to see; to whom [be] honour and eternal might. Amen.
¹⁷ Enjoin on those rich in the present age not to be highminded, nor trust on the uncertainty of riches; but in the God,^b who affords us all things richly for [our] enjoyment; to do good, to be rich in good works, to be liberal in distributing, disposed to communicate [of their substance], laying by for themselves a good foundation for the future, that they may lay hold of [what is] really life.^c

^a Or 'believing,' the same as in the beginning of the verse.
^o T. R. reads 'vain argumentations.'
^q Many copies omit 'manifest.' It then, I think, must be read 'for neither can we.'
^r Or 'let us be satisfied.'
^s 'Desire' includes the idea of purpose here.
^t Not that there is no other root, but the love of money is characterized by being that.

^v T. R. reads 'meekness.'
^w Or 'combat.'
^x Or 'the faith.'
^y T. R. reads 'also.'
^z ζωογονούστος. T. R. reads 'quickens or makes alive,' ζωοποιούστος.
^a Literally 'times.'
^b Or 'in God who.' T. R. reads 'the living God.'
^c T. R. reads 'of eternal life.'

II TIMOTHY I.

²⁰ O Timotheus, keep the deposit entrusted [to thee], avoiding profane, vain babblings, and oppositions of false-named knowledge, ²¹ of which some having made profession, have missed the faith. Grace [be] with thee.^d

^d T. R. adds 'Amen.'

SECOND EPISTLE TO TIMOTHY.

PAUL, apostle of Jesus Christ^c by God's will, according to promise of life, the [life] which [is] in Christ Jesus, to Timotheus, [my] beloved child. Grace, mercy, peace, from God [the] Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord.

³ I am thankful to God, whom I serve from [my] forefathers with pure conscience, how^f unceasingly I have the remembrance of thee in my supplications night and day, ⁴ earnestly desiring to see thee, remembering thy tears, that I may ⁵ be filled with joy; calling to mind the unfeigned faith which [has been]^g in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice, and I am persuaded that in thee also. For which cause I put thee in mind to rekindle the gift of God which is in thee by the putting on of my ⁷ hands. For God has not given us a spirit of cowardice, but of power, and of love, and of wise discretion.^h

⁸ Be not therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me his prisoner; but suffer evil along with the glad tidings,ⁱ according ⁹ to [the] power of God; who has saved us, and has called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to [his] own purpose and grace, which [was] given to us in Christ Jesus before [the] ages of time, but has been made manifest now by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who has annulled death, and brought to light life and incorruptibility by the glad tidings; ¹¹ to which I have been appointed a herald and apostle and teacher of ¹² [the] nations. For which cause also I suffer these things; but I am not ashamed; for I know whom I have believed,^k and am

^f Or (as I have unceasingly.... with joy) 'calling to mind.' That is 'I am thankful, calling to mind.'

^g As some verb must be inserted, I have said 'which has been,' warranted by the apostle's 'calling it to mind.' 'Is' affirms it is now, whereas it might seem there was discouragement. 'Was' implies it was gone. In Greek there is nothing; but the proper sense of ἀναζωπυρέω is 'to revive, rekindle, what is drooping.' So Gen. xlv. 27, and 1 Macc. xiii. 7. The whole subject of the epistle is energy in the darkening state of the church.

^h Some would take σωφρονισμός in the active sense of warning, setting right. Zurechtweisen, strafen. But it is clearly used with the passive or subjective meaning also, 'of a sober right mind.' See in the passages from Josephus quoted by De Wette, Ant. xvii. 9, 2, and B. I. ii. 3, both referring to the same history, where σωφρονισμός is evidently a quiet, sound, or sober mind.

ⁱ This personification of the gospel is very common with Paul.

^k 'I know whom I have believed.' The Authorized Version is, I think, right:

persuaded that he is able to keep for that day the deposit I have entrusted to him. Have¹ an outline of sound words, which [words] thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which [are] in Christ Jesus. Keep, by the Holy Ghost which dwells in us, the good deposit entrusted [to thee]. Thou knowest this, that all who [are] in Asia, of whom is Phygellus and Hermogenes, have turned away from me. The Lord grant mercy to the house of Onesiphorus, for he has often refreshed me, and has not been ashamed of my chain; but being in Rome sought me out very diligently, and found [me]—the Lord grant to him to find mercy from [the] Lord in that day—and how much service he rendered in Ephesus thou knowest best.

II. Thou therefore, my child, be strong in the grace which [is] in Christ Jesus. And the things thou hast heard of me in the presence of^m many witnesses, these entrust to faithful men, such as shall be competent to instruct others also. Take thy share therefore in sufferingⁿ as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. No one going^o as a soldier entangles himself with the affairs of life, that he may please him who has enlisted him as a soldier. And if also any one contend [in the games], he is not crowned unless he contend lawfully. The husbandman must labour^p before partaking of the fruits.

πιστεύω, with the dative is always in the New Testament to believe a person. The only case that might raise a doubt is John v. 24: but there, I apprehend, the passage must be governed by universal usage. εἰς τινα is the object of belief, used very often in John, who employs the word πιστεύω far more than any, (next to his Gospel is the Acts,) the person who is the object of my faith, on whom I believe, ich glaube an ihn. ἐπι τὸν goes on to the idea of confidence. I rest my faith on him, yet with a more general idea of looking to any one with this confidence. It is only used however six times, that I am aware of: Acts xi. 17, xvi. 31, xxii. 19; Rom. iv. 5, 24. ἐπι τινα is yet rarer, and besides Luke xxiv. 25, only used the three times that Isaiah xxviii. 16 is quoted, Rom. ix. 33, x. 11, 1 Peter ii. 6. Here it is confidence in, reliance upon. ἐν τινα is used still more seldom. Mark i. 15, where it refers to the truth of the substance of a thing, as in English, 'I believe in the gospel,' the good news, a story. The LXX use it thrice: Ps. lxxvii. 26, 36, (22, 32,) and Jer. xii. 6. It is once used in the Apocrypha. The habitual use therefore is with a dative, to believe a person: εἰς τινα, to believe on or in a person as object of faith, as John xiv. 1: 'Ye believe in God:' do not see him. So, now they were losing Christ on earth, they were to believe in him. ἐπι τινα adds the thought of the mind looking to any one with trust: ἐπι τινα, trusting in: ἐν τινα, receiving a statement as true.

¹ Or 'hold fast.' There is no article to ὑποτίθειν. Accusatives after a verb often have not. They explain the nature of the action of the verb. But Timothy had heard no form from Paul, but words or doctrines. Hence, he had not to keep the form, but to have a summary or outline, so as to state clearly and definitely what he did hold. Hence, the article is far better away. I have added 'words' in [], because in English, 'which' might be thought to refer to outline. ὑποτίθειν is a systematic exposé, in outline, of any system of doctrine or philosophy. It is the name given to the sketch of Pyrrhonic doctrine given by Sextus Empiricus, for example. See 1 Tim. i. 16.

^m διά. But διά means here, as it does elsewhere, the state or circumstances in which a thing happened, as Rom. ii. 27.

ⁿ See chap. i. 8.

^o Or 'serving.'

^p The structure of the phrase is somewhat obscure, and might be rendered, 'The labouring husbandman ought first to partake of the fruits.' But the sense is that he must work first in order to partake.

II TIMOTHY II.

7 Think of the things which I say, for the Lord shall give^a thee
 8 understanding in all things. Remember Jesus Christ raised from among [the] dead, of [the] seed of David, according to my glad 9 tidings, in which I suffer even unto bonds as an evildoer: but the word of God is not bound.
 10 For this cause I endure all things for the sake of the elect, that they also may obtain^r the salvation which [is] in Christ Jesus with 11 eternal glory. The word [is] faithful; for if we have died together with [him,] we shall also live
 12 together; if we endure,^s we shall also reign together; if we deny,^t
 13 he also will deny us; if we are unfaithful, he abides faithful, for^v he cannot deny himself.
 14 Of these things put in remembrance, testifying earnestly before the Lord not to have disputes of words, profitable for nothing, to the subversion of the hearers.
 15 Strive diligently to present thyself approved to God, a workman that has not to be ashamed, cutting in a straight line the

16 word of truth; but profane vain babblings shun, for they will advance to greater impiety, and their word will spread as a gangrene; of whom is Hymenæus and Philetus; [men] who as to the truth have gone astray,^w saying that the resurrection has taken place already; and overthrow the faith
 19 of some. Yet^x the firm foundation of God stands, having this seal, [The] Lord knows those that are his; and, Let everyone who names the name of [the] Lord^y withdraw 20 from iniquity. But in a great house there are not only gold and silver vessels but also wooden and earthen; and some to honour, 21 and some to dishonour. If therefore one shall have purified himself from these, in separating himself from them^z he shall be a vessel to honour, sanctified,^a serviceable to the Master, prepared for every 22 good work. But youthful lusts flee, and pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace, with those that call upon the Lord out of a pure 23 heart. But foolish and senseless^b questionings avoid, knowing that

^a T. R. reads 'may the Lord give.'

^r 'Obtain' has not an active sense, but means simply get it, not miss it.

^s See verse 10. 'Endure' has a double sense in English: 'to last,' and 'to go through suffering patiently.' Here it is the latter.

^t Many copies read 'shall deny.'

^v T. R. omits 'for.'

^w Or 'missed the mark.' But this, though exact, is too familiar; and 'missed the truth' has another sense.

^x μὲντοι affirms with certainty where doubt may have been raised: 'surely you do not; 'why you do not.' Hence 'yet, still.' As here, this overthrowing might seem to call in question God's foundation. Yet that remains firm. All the speculation as to what the foundation is is futile, particularly Huther's, followed (and Wiesinger's still more closely) by Ellicott and Alford and many others, who say the invisible church. The church is founded, a building; not a foundation. It is simply God's foundation abstractedly.

^z ἐκκαθάρη ἀπό. ἐκκ. is only found 1 Cor. v. 7, 'Purge out the old leaven.' There it was getting rid of it out of the lump; here he has to purge himself from among them (the vessels). Hence we have ἀπό, which, with ἐκ, is rendered by 'separating from.'

^a T. B. adds 'and,' with many authorities

^b Literally 'foolish and undisciplined questionings.' ἀπαιδευτος, used for many different words by LXX, but in general a mind not subject to God, a man follow-

²⁴ they beget contentions. And a bondsman of [the] Lord ought not to contend, but be gentle towards ²⁵ all; apt^c to teach; forbearing; in meekness setting right those who oppose, if God perhaps may some-time give them repentance to acknowledgment of [the] truth, ²⁶ and that they may awake up out of the snare of the devil, [who are] taken by him, for his^d will.

III. But this know, that in [the] last days difficult times shall be ² there; for men shall be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, arrogant, evil speakers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful,^e profane,
³ without natural affection, implacable, slanderers, of unsubdued passions, savage, having no love
⁴ for what is good, traitors, headlong, of vain pretensions, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of ⁵ God; having a form of piety, but denying the power of it: and ⁶ from these turn away. For of these are they who are getting into houses, and leading captive silly women, laden with sins, led ⁷ by various lusts, always learning, and never able to come to [the]^f
⁸ knowledge of [the] truth. Now ing his own mind and will. It is used by Aeschines with μαρτυρία, an unskilful, ill-ordered testimony. See Eur. in Orest. 410, Kypke on iii. 5. It is used for כח and כול.

^c Some take διδασκτικός here as 'teachable;' but it seems to be more the spirit of the servant of the Lord.

^d It is here a question whether it be God's will or Satan's; whether εἰς refers to 'awake up' or 'taken captive:' 'awake up for his (God's) will out of the snare,' &c.; that those who have been taken as prey by the devil may, God having given them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth, awake up to follow his will. It is ἐκεῖνον, not αὐτοῦ; and therefore properly refers to God. However, ἐκεῖνον in the same manner in which Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, thus these also withstand the truth; men corrupted in mind, found worthless as regards the^g ⁹ faith. But they shall not advance farther; for their folly shall be completely manifest to all, as that ¹⁰ of those also became. But thou hast been thoroughly acquainted with^h my teaching, conduct, purpose, faith, patience, love, en-¹¹ durance, persecutions, sufferings: what [sufferings] happened to me in Antioch, in Iconium, in Lystra; what persecutions I endured; and the Lord delivered me out of all.

¹² And all indeed who desire to live piously in Christ Jesus will be ¹³ persecuted. But wicked men and juggling impostors shall advance in evil,ⁱ leading and being led ¹⁴ astray. But thou abide in those things which thou hast learnt, and [of which] thou hast been fully persuaded, knowing of whom ¹⁵ thou hast learned [them]; and that from a child thou hast known the sacred letters, which are able to make thee wise unto salva-¹⁶ tion, through faith which [is] in Christ Jesus. Every scripture may designate emphatically Satan as saying, that being's will. I have a little doubt whether the apostle would use ἐκεῖνον in this way of God. It is somewhat familiar. As to Christ however, see ii. 13, 2 Pet. i. 16, Tit. iii. 7. I have not myself difficulty in this emphatic use of ἐκεῖνον, and none in the employment of ἐξωργημένοι. I rather prefer however its application to God. I am not quite sure if ἀνανήθω εἰς be right Greek.

^e Or 'ungracious.' See Luke vi. 35.

^f ἐπίγνωσις is clear, full knowledge or acknowledgment.

^g Or 'as regards faith.'

^h Or 'followed up.'

ⁱ Literally 'to worse.'

II TIMOTHY III, IV.

[is] divinely inspired, and profitable for teaching, for conviction, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be complete, fully fitted to every good work.

IV. I testify^k before God and Christ Jesus, who is about to judge living and dead, and^l by his appearing and his kingdom, ² proclaim the word; be urgent in season and out of season, convict,^m rebuke, encourage, with all patience ³ and doctrine. For the time shall be when they will not bear sound teaching; but according to their own lusts will heap up to themselves teachers, having an itching ⁴ ear; and they will turn away their ear from the truth, and will ⁵ have turnedⁿ aside to fables. But thou, be sober^o in all things, bear evils, do [the] work of an evangelist, fill up the full measure of ⁶ thy ministry. For I am already being poured out,^p and the time ⁷ of my release is come. I have combated the good combat, I have finished the race, I have kept the ⁸ faith. Henceforth^q the crown of righteousness is laid up for me, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will render to me in that day; but not only to me, but also to all who love his appearing. ⁹ Use diligence to come to me ¹⁰ quickly; for Demas has forsaken me, having loved the present age, and is gone to Thessalonica; Cresces to Galatia, Titus to Dal- ¹¹ matia. Luke alone is with me. Take Mark, and bring [him] with thyself, for he is serviceable to me ¹² for ministry. But Tychicus I have ¹³ sent to Ephesus. The cloak which I left behind [me] in Troas at Carpus's, bring when thou comest, and the books, especially the ¹⁴ parchments. Alexander the smith did^r many evil things against me.

^l That is 'I testify or charge you before God, and by the appearing.' Some read 'at.' It may be taken as 'according to,' that is, the judgment is according to the power and glory of his appearing and his kingdom. There are two readings, καί, the editions; and κατά, T. R. With καί it must be taken 'and by.' So it is by Vulgate; whereas, P. Syr. reads 'at,' according to Leusden and Etheridge. It may be connected with διαμαρτύρομαι if κατά be read. So Matthæi takes it, who reads κατά. For the construction, see Deut iv. 26.

^m Or 'reprove.' See 1 Tim. v. 20.

ⁿ Or 'will be turned aside.' The thing will have taken place. Or, something medial, 'will have turned themselves.' ἐκτρέπω has commonly a causative force. Hence the middle or passive, a neuter or reflexive. In the New Testament, the passive for reflexive middle is not uncommon. Here their being already turned aside leads them to turn away their ear from the truth.

^o νήφω implies not watching actively, nor being awake; but that sober clearness of mind resulting from exemption from false influences—not muddled with the influence of what intoxicates. So we think of one when we say, He has a sober judgment.

^p I had conceived this long as 'I have had the libation poured on me, ready to sacrifice.' But, though Wetstein so takes it with Parkhurst, I cannot find any example of σπένδομαι as passive: 'I have had the libation poured on me.' And ἀναλύω does not speak of being sacrificed. The reference to the departure of guests after libations is questionable, though the words correspond. It is as Phil. ii. 17.

^r See Genesis x. 15, 17, and Apocrypha, prayer of Azarias 19; but the sense of shewing is lost. We say 'shewing kindness,' referring to acts, because they shew what was in the heart; but we do not say 'shew evil.' 'Did me evil' I do

TITUS I, II.

wine, not a striker, not seeking ⁸ gain by base means; but hospitable, a lover of goodness, discreet,
⁹ just, pious, temperate, clinging to the faithful word according to the doctrine taught, that he may be able both to encourage with sound teaching and refute gainsayers.
¹⁰ For there are many and disorderly vain speakers and deceivers of people's minds, specially those of ¹¹ [the] circumcision, who must have their mouths stopped, who subvert whole houses, teaching things which ought not [to be taught]
¹² for the sake of base gain. One of themselves, a prophet of their own, has said, Cretans are always liars, evil wild beasts, lazy gluttons.
¹³ This testimony is true; for which cause rebuke them severely, that they may be sound in the faith, ¹⁴ not turning [their] minds to Jewish fables and commandments of men turning away from the ¹⁵ truth. All things [are] pure to the pure; but to the defiled and unbelieving nothing [is] pure; but both their mind and their ¹⁶ conscience are defiled. They profess to know God, but in works deny [him], being abominable, and disobedient, and found worthless as to every good work. (II.)
 But do thou speak the things that

² become sound teaching; that the elder men be sober, grave, discreet, sound in faith, in love, in
³ patience; that the elder women in like manner be in deportment as becoming those who have to say to sacred things, not slanderers, not enslaved to much wine, teachers
⁴ of what is right; that they may admonish^b the young women to be attached to [their] husbands, to be attached to [their] children,
⁵ discreet, chaste, diligent in home work,^c good, subject to their own husbands, that the word of God
⁶ may not be evil spoken of. The younger men in like manner exhort
⁷ to be discreet: in all things affording thyself as a pattern of good works; in teaching uncorrupted-
⁸ ness, gravity,^d a sound word, not to be condemned; that he who is opposed may be ashamed, having ⁹ no evil thing to say about us: ^e
⁹ bondsmen to be subject to their own masters, to^f make themselves acceptable in everything; not ¹⁰ gainsaying; ^g not robbing [their masters], but shewing all good fidelity, that they may adorn the ^c T. R. reads 'keepers at home,' οικουρῶσι for οικουροῦσι. The reading is not quite certain.

^d T. R. has not 'sincerity,' nor Erasmus nor Beza. It is in Stephanus, 1550.

^f Though I have put 'to make themselves,' instead of 'to be,' I judge I have given the true sense. It is elsewhere used of the christian towards God or Christ;

but to be acceptable is a fact. I cannot exhort a person to be it; to make himself so I can; and that is the sense here.

^g Or 'contradictory;' that is, opposing their masters when they speak to them.

^h It may be translated 'has appeared to all men,' but I prefer the text.

ⁱ μαρτυρῶ has certainly the sense of discipline, and always perhaps carries with it something of the thought of setting right, zurichtweisen; but it is used unquestionably for instructing, as in Acts vii. 22; and elsewhere. So Cyropædia.

impiety and worldly lusts, we should live soberly,^k and justly, and piously in the present course^l of things, awaiting the blessed hope and appearing of the glory of our great God and Saviour Jesus Christ;^m who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all lawlessness, and purify to himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no one despise thee.

III. Put them in mind to be subject to rulers, to authorities, to be obedient to rule, to be ready to every good work, to speak evil of no one, not to be contentious, [to be] mild, shewing all meekness towards all men. For we were once ourselves also without intelligence, disobedient, wandering in error, serving various lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, [and] hating one another.ⁿ But when the kindness and love^o to man of our Saviour God appeared, not on the principle of works which [were done] in righteousness which we had done, but according to his own mercy he saved us through [the] washing^p of regeneration and renewal of [the] Holy Spirit, which he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that, having been justified by ^qhis grace, we should become heirs according to ^r[the] hope of eternal life. The word [is] faithful, and I desire that thou insist on these things, that they who have believed God may take care to pay diligent attention to good works. These things are good and profitable to men; but foolish questions, and genealogies, and strifes, and contentions about the law, shun; for they are unprofitable and vain.^s An heretical man after a first and second admonition have done with, knowing that such a one is perverted, and sins, being self-condemned.

When I shall send Artemas to thee, or Tychicus, use diligence to come to me to Nicopolis; for I have decided to winter there.^t Zenas the lawyer and Apollos set forward diligently on their way, that nothing may be lacking to them; and let ours also learn to apply themselves to good works for necessary wants, that they may not be unfruitful. All with me salute thee. Salute those who love us in [the] faith. Grace [be] with you all.^u ^k Elsewhere translated 'discreet;' that is, with self-restraint and consideration.

^l Often translated 'age,' but that hardly gives the sense. 'World' gives the false idea of this world as one, and heaven another. The $\delta\ \nu\upsilon\ \alpha\iota\omega\ \nu$ was, for the Jews, the present state of things in contrast with that to be introduced by Messiah.

^m This may possibly be translated as in Auth. Ver. Why Ellicott should say the Vul. does, I cannot tell. It is so punctuated in printed editions. The best argument for the translation of Auth. Ver. is the use of $\kappa\upsilon\pi\iota\omega\ \nu$ in a similar position; but then note that $\eta\mu\omega\ \nu$ is placed before, so that it is really an argument the other way.

ⁿ Literally 'philanthropy.'

^o 'Washing' is right here. It is a bath, or the water for it. The proper word for the bath as a vessel is $\lambda\epsilon\upsilon\eta\tau\eta\rho$. 'Regeneration' is not the same word as 'being born again,' nor used for it in scripture. Besides this verse, it is only used in Matt. xix. 28, for the Saviour's coming kingdom.

^p $\epsilon\kappa\epsilon\iota\omega\ \nu$, referring, I apprehend, to God our Saviour.

^q T. R. adds 'Amen.'

EPISTLE TO PHILEMON.

PAUL, prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timotheus the brother, to Philemon the beloved and our fellow-workman,² and to the sister³ Apphia and to Archippus our fellowsoldier, and to the assembly which [is] in thine house. Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and [the] Lord Jesus Christ.

I thank my God, always making mention of thee at my prayers, hearing of thy love and the faith which thou hast towards the Lord Jesus, and towards all saints, in such sort⁴ that thy participation in the faith should become operative in the acknowledgment of every good thing which is in us⁵ towards Christ Jesus. For we have great thankfulness⁶ and encouragement through⁷ thy love, because the bowels of the saints are refreshed by thee, brother.

Wherefore, having much boldness in Christ to enjoin thee what is fitting, for love's sake I rather exhort, being such a one as Paul the aged, and now also prisoner of 10 Jesus Christ. I exhort thee for my⁸ child, whom I have begotten in [my]⁹ bonds, Onesimus, once unserviceable to thee, but now serviceable to thee and to me: whom I have sent back to thee: but do thou [receive]¹⁰ him, that is, my bowels: whom I was desirous of keeping with myself, that for thee¹¹ he might minister to me in the bonds of the glad tidings; but I have wished to do nothing without thy mind, that thy good might not be as of necessity but of willingness: for perhaps for this reason he has been separated [from thee] for a time, that thou mightest possess him fully for ever; not any longer as a bondsman, but above a bondsman, a beloved brother, specially to me, and how much rather to thee, both in [the] flesh and in [the] Lord? If therefore thou holdest me to be a partner [with thee], receive him as me; but if he have wronged thee anything or owe anything [to thee], put this to my account. I Paul have written [it]

² Or 'our beloved and fellow-workman.'

³ T. B., with several odd., reads 'beloved' for 'sister.'

⁴ ὥτως, 'so that;' not ἵνα.

⁵ T. B. reads 'you.'

⁶ Many copies read χαράν 'joy,' for χάριν 'thankfulness.' The reading is doubtful. See 1 Tim. i. 12, 2 Tim. i. 3. Some read also 'I had.'

⁷ ἐρί, 'by occasion of.' It was the condition of his joy.

⁸ 'My' is put first as emphatic.

¹⁰ I have put this in brackets, as it is doubtful whether it be not added to make the sense clearer, the apostle having interrupted his sentence, and the προσλαβού being in verse 17. But it is very probable that the reading is σοι instead of σὺ δέ, as in A, C by first hand, D both. In that case the translation would be 'whom I have sent unto thee, him that is my bowels.' The connection with προσλαβού remains the same.

¹¹ That is, 'instead of thee,' a not unimportant testimony to the sense of ὑπέρ.

with mine own hand ; I will repay [it] : that I say not to thee that thou owest even thine own self

 21 Being confident of thine obedience, I have written to thee, knowing that thou wilt do even more than

^c Or 'profit of thee.'

^d T. R. reads 'in [the] Lord.'

^e Or 'prepare hospitality for me;' that

²² I say. But withal prepare me also a lodging ;^e for I hope that I shall be granted to you through 23 your prayers. Epaphras salutes thee, my fellow-prisoner in Christ 24 Jesus ; Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, is, 'to receive me as a guest.'

EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

GOD having spoken in many parts and in many ways formerly^s to 2 the fathers in the prophets, at the end^h of these days has spoken to us in [the person of the]ⁱ Son,

^s Or 'of old.'

^h T. R. reads ἐσχάτων, not ἐσχάτου, that is, is plural and refers to 'days' last noticed. It is a Hebrew expression, as several here, for the end of the period of the law, when Messiah was to be introduced. Kimchi, ad Isa. ii. 2, 'wherever these words, בְּאַחֲרֵי יָמַי, are read, there the discourse is of the days of Messiah.' So Moses Nachmanides, Ies. xlix. 1, says it is so understood by consent of all. Cf. Bleek and Schœtgen in loco.

ⁱ The absence of the article here is important, though difficult to render in English; the result is, that God, speaking in the prophets, is clearly distinct, and using them as his mouth. ἐν ὠφί literally 'in Son,' is not exactly 'as Son,' because that would be the character of the speaking, yet is perhaps the nearest to an adequate expression. On the whole, I have paraphrased it, 'in [the person of the] Son.' It is God himself who speaks; not by another; not as the Father nor in the person of the Father; not merely by the Holy Ghost using a person not divine, but as himself a divine person, and that person the Son.

^k There cannot, I think, be a doubt, from the Jewish use of this expression, whom he has established heir of all things, by whom also he made 3 the worlds :^k who being [the] effulgence^l of his glory and [the] exact expression of his substance,^m and (see Schœtgen and many others), that this means the universe.

^l ἀπαύγασμα, what fully presents the glory which is in something else. Thus light makes us know what the sun is; the tabernacle, what the pattern in the mount was. So Wisdom of Jesus, son of Sirach, calls wisdom ἀπαύγασμα of eternal light; and Philo, i. 327, has τὸ δὲ ἀγίασμα οἶον ἀγίων ἀπαύγασμα μίμημα ἀρχετύπου, speaking of the created world, εἴπειτα αἰσθῆσει καλὰ καὶ νοήσει καλῶν εἰκόνας.

^m Clearly 'substance,' 'essential being,' not 'person.' It is of God, not of the Father; and no one can see the use of ὑπόστασις in LXX and not see its force; and even its early ecclesiastical use confirms this. It went so far as to condemn three hypostases, and it afterwards was agreed to say one hypostasis for the substance, and three for the person. I add, as it is called in question, that Delitsch maintains δὲ ἐαυτοῦ. Bleek is not decided. Cod. Sin. has not the words. P. Syr., and Ital., have them. It is a question of criticism, not changing the sense. The form of ποιησάμενος involves it.

HEBREWS I, II.

upholding all things by the word of his^a power, having made^o by himself the purification of^p sins, set himself down on the right hand of the greatness on high,
⁴ taking a place by so much better than the angels, as he inherits a name more excellent than they.
⁵ For to which of the angels said he ever, Thou art my Son: I have to-day begotten thee? and again, I will be to him for father, and
⁶ he shall be to me for son? and again, when^a he brings in the firstborn into the world, he says, And let all God's angels worship
⁷ him. And as to the angels he says, Who makes his angels spirits and his ministers a flame of fire;
⁸ but as to the Son, Thy throne, O God, [is] to the age of the age, and^r a sceptre of uprightness [is]
⁹ the sceptre of thy kingdom. Thou hast loved righteousness and hast hated lawlessness; therefore God, thy God, has anointed thee with oil of gladness above thy companions.

¹⁰ And, Thou in the beginning, Lord, hast founded the earth, and works of thy hands are the heavens.
¹¹ They shall perish, but thou continuest still; and they all shall ¹² grow old as a garment, and as a covering shalt thou roll them up, and they shall be changed; but thou art the same,^s and thy years
¹³ shall not fail. But as to which of the angels said he ever, Sit at my right hand until I set^t thine enemies [as] footstool of thy feet?
¹⁴ Are they not all ministering spirits, sent out for service on account of those who shall inherit salvation?
II. For this reason we should give heed more abundantly to the things [we have] heard, lest in ^a That is, his own, the Son's.

^o 'Made' has a peculiar reflective force here, having done it for himself. Though we, as alone the sinners, have the profit, yet the work was done within his own person and work, without us, as when a man journeys, and so when he makes a person his friend, his wife, his son by adoption. Note also the difference of tenses.

^a I have said 'brings' for εἰσαγάγει, because the present in English has the sense of the aorist as to the fact, not the time. The Greek present is more 'is bringing.' Compare 1 Cor. xv. 27, ὅταν δὲ εἰσπῆ. Only the aorist thus used speaks of one definite act, not a prolonged one. It is a fact antecedent to the reasoning of the writer, and in this respect has a past sense. This may seem to require the future perfect. But when it is merely an antecedent in reasoning, this is too exact a time, expresses what is past (at a future time) too much. The reference here is to Ps. xcvi. where he is just coming in; but, in a certain sense, he must be there to be worshipped. His introduction is antecedent to his worship as first-born, but it is on introducing that this follows

(hence the aorist), not when his whole introducing is a past thing and gone. It will be found that, in English, with a distinct shade of meaning, present, future future-perfect may be used: 'when he pays the debt he shall come out:' here it is antecedent as causal. 'When he has paid the debt:' the payment must come first. 'When he shall have paid:' the same sense, but noting that it is not yet done, but that it must be before he comes out. I have referred to all this because critics have much contested here the place of 'again;' what coming into this world is alluded to, and the force to be given to the tense employed. Here the glory of the person of Christ is before the writer's thought, not the time of introducing. I have myself no doubt whatever as to the translation, and that, as to this last point, what I give is the only right one.

^s הוּא הוּא, the existing one who does not change. Every creature is changeable.

^t See note to verse 6: 'set,' 'have set,' 'shall have set,' have fundamentally the same sense; but as the causal sense of antecedence I prefer the present in English.

HEBREWS II.

² any way we should slip away.' For if the word which was spoken by angels was ^v firm, and every transgression and disobedience received ³ just retribution, how shall we escape if we have been negligent of ² so great salvation, which, having had its commencement in being spoken [of] by the Lord, has been confirmed to us by those ⁴ who have heard; God bearing, besides, witness with [them] to [it], both by signs and wonders, and various acts of power, and distributions of [the] Holy Ghost, according to his will? ⁵ For he has not subjected to angels the habitable world which is to come,⁷ of which we speak;

^v παραρρῶμεν. What decides me in giving π. this sense, adopted as it is by a vast number of critics, is Prov. iii. 21, and Origen con. Cels. viii. (De la Rue, i. 759); in both which the word is so used. Proverbs is a free translation, for the Hebrew is plural: 'Let them not slip away from thine eyes;' that is, what is spoken of in the end of the verse; but it shews the sense of the word. νίε μου μή παραρρῶς. Origen argues that, though spiritual christians have no need of festivals—every day is a Lord's day—the mass of those who profess christianity do. δεῖται αἰσθητῶν παραδειγμάτων ἵνα μή τέλειον παραρρῶς, that it may not wholly slip away; so here, παραρρῶμεν, that we may not slip away.

^ε ἐγένετο. that is, was so when given; all is in the aorist here, or a truth as to the past.

² ἀμελήσαντες. Not merely neglected when presented, but not cared for when, as here, they were nominally inside, making profession. It is found in Matt. xxii. 5. They did not care for the invitation to the supper. 1 Tim. iv. 14: negligent of the gift in him: he had it. Heb. viii. 9: Israel was disobedient, and Jehovah did not care for them. 2 Peter i. 12: 'I will not be negligent, and will be careful to put you always in remembrance.'

^a An active recollection, because the object is cared for; so Heb. xiii. 3.

^a Some copies omit 'and thou hast set him over the works of thy hands,' perhaps rightly. But κ, A, D, Porph. (Tisch.) It., Vul. have it. Hebrews is not in C. B has it not. It is in the Psalms, and may have been added as supposed to be left out.

^c 'On account of,' may be read 'made lower on account of,' or 'crowned on account of;' both are true. All the ancient commentators take the first meaning. The modern reasonings, as of Lunemann, Alford, have no force to my mind. My impression is that, were it joined to the latter, it would be δὲ τὸ παθεῖν, and that πάθημα is merely the subjective state or fact which required it. See on this point Delitsch. Thus the sense would run 'But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than angels on account of the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour;' or 'But we see him who, on account of the suffering of death, was made a little lower than angels, [even] Jesus, crowned with glory and honour.' The 'so that' is an appended sentence; 'he was made lower,' &c. 'So that.' Verse 10 justifies his being made lower for suffering death. So does verse 11. The crowning is the accomplishment of the Psalm. Hence I have so punctuated it, though for a time hesitating.

God he should taste death for 10 every thing.^d For it became him, for whom [are] all things, and by whom [are] all things, in bringing many sons to glory, to make^e perfect the leader of their salvation through sufferings.

11 For both he that sanctifies and those sanctified^f [are] all of one;
 for which cause he is not ashamed 12 to call them brethren, saying, I will declare thy name to my brethren; in [the] midst of [the] assembly will I sing^g to thee.
 13 And again, I will trust in him.
 And again, Behold, I and the children which God has given me.
 14 Since therefore the children partake^h of blood and flesh,ⁱ he also,

^d Or 'every one.'

^e 'Make perfect,' (τελειώω, not τέλειον always) is used in the Hebrews in the sense of doing all required to initiate into an office, whatever was needed to make him fit to be installed in the office. Hence the word employed is sometimes, when speaking of religious offices, translated 'consecrate.'

^f ἀγιαζόμενοι: not 'who have been,' nor does it mean 'who are being;' but simply the character, without reference to done or doing; the ἀγιαζόμενοι and the ἀγιαζόμενοι, the agent and patients.

^g Or 'sing praise,' ὑμνήσω.

^h κεκοινωνήκε, have been introduced into, and are in, that condition, as their common lot.

ⁱ T. R. reads 'flesh and blood.'

^k I cannot doubt that there is an intended difference in κεκοινωνήκε and μετέσχε, which is in the force of the words indeed themselves. κεκ. is a common equal sharing; they were κοινωνοί of the nature. He took a part in it; got a share or took a share. μετέχω, is always something which is supposed, or might be, outside myself, but which I take, or take a part in. κοινωνός is a joint participation in that which belongs to me or to known fellowship. So μετέχων γάλακτος, taking or using milk. Heb. v. 13, 1 Cor. ix. 10. The reaper is to get a share in the sower's hope; so verse 17—the fact—not κοινωνός. 1 Cor. x. 17, 21, 30, the taking part, was to prove in like manner, took part in^k the same, that through death he might annul him who has the might of 15 death, that is, the devil; and might set free all those who through fear of death through the whole of their life were subject to bondage.

16 For he does not indeed take hold of angels [by the hand],^l but he takes hold of the seed of Abraham. Wherefore it behoved him^m
 17 in all things to be made like to [his] brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things relating to God, to make propitiation for the sins of the 18 people; for, in that himself has suffered, being tempted, he is able to help those that are being tempted.

them κοινωνούς, which exactly makes the difference; we were κοινωνούς in flesh and blood, Christ μετέσχε. The passage quoted by Bleek from Lycurgus proves the same; they took part in the dangers, but did not have their joint share in the fortune. The word does not say how far the taking share went. παραπλησίως is strictly 'near to.' Phil. ii. 27, 'all as one as dead;' but it is used as we use 'like,' and even 'similar.' It is a 'similar' book to the other; one army is 'like' the other. It is not strictly ἴσος or ὁμοίος. κεκοινωνήκε is more accurate than κοινωνοί, because it is not their joint participation amongst themselves, but that they have all received (shared) this common nature.

^l Compare Sirach iv. 11. It means 'to take hold of,' but is constantly used for 'taking up a person to help him,' though in other senses as well. We say, 'he took him by the hand.' But this would be too free and too familiar. It is used in the sense of taking hold of, literally deliver. See Jer. xxxi. (xxxiv.) 32, but there with χειρός.

^m He speaks, I apprehend, historically; it was necessary for him to do this by the alleged reason, not his present judgment of divine necessity or purpose. 'Has behoved' would speak more of continuance. It behoved him when he became a man. It is what he became as man, not what he took on him.

HEBREWS III.

III. Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers^a of [the] heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our confession,^o Jesus,² who is faithful to him that has constituted him, as Moses also³ in all his house. For he has been counted worthy of greater glory than Moses, by how much he that has built it has more honour than⁴ the house. For every house is built by some one; but he who has⁵ built all things [is] God. And Moses indeed [was] faithful in all his house, as a ministering servant, for a testimony of the things to⁶ be spoken after; but Christ, as Son over his^p house, whose house are we, if indeed we hold fast the boldness and the boast of hope firm to the end.

7 Wherefore, even as says the Holy Spirit, To-day if ye will hear his⁸ voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderness; where your^q fathers tempted [me],^r by proving [me],^s and saw

¹⁰ my works forty years. Wherefore I was wroth with this^t generation, and said, They always err in heart; and they^v have not known¹¹ my ways; so I swore in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest.

¹² See, brethren, lest there be in any one of you a wicked heart of unbelief, in turning away from¹³ [the] living God. But encourage yourselves^w each day, as long as it is called To-day, that none of you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. For we are become companions^x of the Christ if indeed we hold the beginning of¹⁴ the assurance firm to the end; in that it is said, To-day if ye will hear his voice, do not harden your hearts, as in the provocation;^y

¹⁵ (for who was it, who,^z having heard, provoked? but [was it] not all who came out of Egypt by¹⁶ Moses? And with whom was he wroth forty years? [Was it] not with those who had sinned, whose carcasses^a fell in the wilderness?¹⁷ And to whom sware he that they

^a Here μέτοχοι, who have been made, called to be, partakers of it. They had been κοινωνοί of Israel's rights.

^o T. R. adds 'Christ.'

^p What is to be remarked here is, that the house is not referred to Moses at all; he was faithful in all God's house as a ministering servant. The 'own' is more than questionable. The contrast is 'Moses a servant in,' 'Christ as a Son over.' But the house is, I apprehend, God's house. The Father is not brought in as such at all, but the Son is over the house as Son. The connexion with its being God's house is evident, because he (Christ) has built the house, verse 3, and he who built all things is God; but he is over it as Son.

^q Some translate 'wherewith' (that is, with which temptation), making οὐ agree with πειρασμού.

^r T. R. has 'me' in text.

^s ἐν δοκιμασίᾳ. Thus all the old MSS and Clem. Al., -read. The LXX has ἐδοκιμασάν [με.]

^t T. R. reads 'that.'

^v αὐτοί, emphatic, 'these same.'

^w Or 'exhort one another.'

^x I use the word 'companions' as being the same one as in chap. i. 9, to which, I doubt not, it alludes; that is, to the passage quoted Ps. xlv. 'Partakers of Christ' has indeed quite a different sense.

^y I have no doubt, in spite of objections, that 16-19 is a parenthesis; if not, 14 may be thought to be one, but the connexion is very hard then.

^z Some take τινές instead of τίνες. Then it is 'for some,' but not all. Rom. xi. 17 may justify this.

^a κῶλα means 'limbs;' but as it is always used for ἄρ, a carcass, by LXX, I so translate it here. Some suppose κῶλα is used with the idea of the body falling to pieces.

should not enter into his rest, but to those who had not hearkened 10 to the word?^b And we see that they could not enter in on account of unbelief;) (IV.) Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left^c of entering into his rest, any one of you might seem to have
 2 failed [of it]. For indeed we have had glad tidings presented to us, even as they also; but the word of the report did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in
 3 those who heard. For we enter into the rest who have believed; as he said, As I have sworn in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest; although the works had been completed from [the] foundation
 4 of [the] world. For he has said somewhere of the seventh [day] thus, And God rested on the seventh day from all his works:
 5 and in this again, If they shall 6 enter into my rest. Seeing therefore it remains that some enter into it, and those who first received the glad tidings did not enter in on account of not hearkening to 7 the word,^d again he determines a certain day, saying, in David, 'To-day,' after so long a time; (according as it has been said before),^e To-day, if ye will hear his voice, do not harden your hearts.

 8 For if Jesus^f had brought them interest, he would not have spoken afterwards about another day.
 9 There remains then a sabbatism
 10 to the people of God. For he that has entered into his rest, he also has rested from his works, as 11 God did from his own. Let us therefore use diligence to enter into that rest, that no one may fall after the same example of not^d 12 hearkening to the word. For the word of God [is] living and operative, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and penetrating to [the] division^g of soul and spirit, both of joints and marrow, and a discerner of the thoughts and 13 intents of [the] heart. And there is not a creature unapparent before him; but all things [are] naked and laid bare to his eyes, with whom we have to do.
 14 Having therefore a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast the confession.
 15 For we have not a high priest not able to sympathize with our infirmities, but tempted in all things 16 in like manner,^h sin apart. Let

^b This, I apprehend, is the true force of ἀνεθάρσασι. It is taken from Deut. i. 26 and Numb. xiv. 43, which refer to the occasion on which God declared their carcases should fall in the wilderness.

^c I think the translation, 'the promise of entering into his rest being left or forsaken,' is untenable. The κατά and present tense give the force of 'now remaining behind after these events,' &c.; some add 'still,' as Delitsch, Diodati, Bleek, Alford; but it seems to me implied in 'left,' and needless, and not quite exact.

^d See note to chap. iii. 13.

^g T. R. ad. is 'both' here; at any rate τε is often used in the epistle when it seems superfluous, and its use leads me to judge, contrary to the thought of many, that the passage has the sense of dividing between—not each of the things by itself. See chap. v. 14. τε... καί also is greatly used in this epistle, even where τε has no special force.

^h Or 'according to [our] likeness,' which has substantially the same sense, 'according to the likeness of the way in which we are tempted.' 'Like' [us], but it is not τῆν, as vii. 15, but more general.

us approach therefore with boldness to the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, and find grace for seasonable help.

V. For every high priest taken from amongst men is established for men in things relating to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins; being able to exercise forbearance towards the ignorant and erring, since he himself also is clothed with infirmity; and, on account of this [infirmity], he ought, even as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sins. And no one takes the honour to himself but [as] called¹ by God, even as Aaron also. Thus the Christ also has not glorified himself to be made a high priest; but he who had said to him, Thou art my Son, I have to-day begotten thee. Even as also in another [place] he says, Thou [art] a priest for ever^k according to the order of Melchisedec. Who in the days of his flesh, having offered up both supplications and entreaties¹ to him who was able to save him out of^m death, with strong crying and tears; (and having been heard⁸ because of his piety);ⁿ though he were Son,^o he learned obedience from the things which he suffered; ^p and having been perfected, became to all them that obey him, author of eternal salvation; addressed by^q God [as] high priest according to the order of Melchisedec. Concerning whom we have much to say, and hard to be interpreted in speaking [of it], since ye are become dull in hearing. For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have again need that one should teach you what [are] the elements of the beginning of the oracles of God, and are become such as have need of milk, and not of solid food; for every one that partakes of milk [is] unskilled in the word of righteousness, for he is a babe; but solid food belongs to grown men, who, on account of habit, have their senses exercised for distinguishing both good and evil.

VI. Wherefore, leaving the word^r of the beginning of the Christ, let us go on [to what belongs] to full growth,^s not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works and faith in^t God, of [the] doctrine of washings, and^v of imposition of hands, and^v of re-

^k εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα, not εἰς τὸ διηνεκές. This last is continuing uninterruptedness, more than there being no end, though it may so continue.

^o Alluding to the citation of Ps. ii. just above.

^p ἔμαθεν ἀφ' ὧν ἔπαθεν. This is a known association of thought and words. Philo has ἔμαθον ὃ ἔπαθον. See Wetstein or Bleek.

^q Or 'saluted of.'

^r Or 'discourse,' λόγος, which includes the thoughts as well as the utterance of them. I do not say 'doctrine,' because of verse 2, where the word is different.

^s 'Full growth,' τελειότητα. 'Perfection' is used in Greek for a full grown man; so here, we have solid food is that of a full grown man; to this the apostle makes allusion here.

^t ἐπι Θεόν, 'believes on God,' as Acts xl. 17, xvi. 31, xxii. 19, Rom. iv. 5, iv. 24—the actual personal object of faith trusted in as such. ἐπι τῷ is more 'resting on.'

^v Here both these 'ands' are τε in the original.

surrection of [the] dead, and of 8 eternal judgment; and this will we 4 do if God permit. For it is impossible to renew again to repentance those once enlightened, and who have tasted of the heavenly gift, and have been made partakers of 5 [the] Holy Spirit, and have tasted the good word of God, and [the] works of power of [the] age to 6 come, and have fallen away, cru-cifying for themselves [as they do] the Son of God, and making a 7 show of [him.] For ground which drinks the rain which comes often upon it, and produces useful herbs for those for^w whose sakes also it is tilled, partakes of blessing 8 from God; but bringing forth thorns and briars it is found worthless and nigh to a curse, 9 whose end [is] to be burned. But we are persuaded concerning you, beloved, better things, and such as are connected with salvation, 10 even if we speak thus. For God [is] not unrighteous to forget your work, and^x the love which ye have shewn to his name, having ministered to the saints, and [still] 11 ministering. But we desire earnestly^y that each one of you shew the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end; 12 that ye be not sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and long patience have been inheritors of^z the promises.

13 For God, having promised to Abraham, since he had no greater to swear by, swore by himself, 14 saying, Surely blessing I will bless thee, and multiplying I will mul-15 tiple thee; and thus having had long patience he got the promise.
 16 For men indeed swear by a greater,
 and with them the oath is a term to all dispute, as making matters 17 sure. *Wherein God, willing to shew more abundantly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeableness of his purpose, intervened by 18 an oath, that by two unchangeable things, in which [it was] impossible that God should lie, we might have a strong encouragement who have fled for refuge to lay hold on 19 the hope set before us, which we have as anchor of the soul, both secure and firm, and entering into 20 that within the veil; where Jesus is entered as forerunner for us, sedec.

^w It is a question whether εὐθερον is to be connected with τίκτουσα or έκεινοis, that is, absolutely 'useful herbs for those,' or 'herbs useful for those.' The principle of dat. com. is applicable I suppose; but I find no case of εὐθερον so used; there are of άθερον. The sense is nearly the same. εὐθερος πρός τι, or εις τι or τῷ, is said of things.

^x T. R. adds 'labour of.'

^y ἐπιθυμοῦμεν. Chrys. and Oec. both insist on its being a fatherly affectionate desire, not merely θέλω or βούλομαι. So Theophylact, ἡ ψυχὴ καίεται ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν. It is an earnest desire after, a longing for anything. Comp. Luke xxii. 15. In contrast with that, see Luke xv. 16. So it is used for lust, or earnest desire of nature, in many passages.

^z κληρονομοῦντων is simply the character. 'Who inherit,' in English, is either who have got, κληρονομησάντων, or who are now in a state of heirship. The word here refers to the past, but only speaks of the character of the persons, but as an actuality.

^a Many translate 'wherefore,' 'on which account.' I do not see the need of forcing the sense of 'in,' 'in which respect.'

^b εις τὸν αἰῶνα.

HEBREWS VII.

Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from smiting the kings, and blessed him ;
² to whom Abraham gave also [the] tenth portion of all ; first being interpreted King of righteousness, and then also King of Salem, which ³ is King of peace ; without father, without mother, without genealogy ; having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but assimilated^c to the Son of God, abides a ⁴ priest continually. Now consider how great this [personage] was, to whom even the patriarch Abraham gave a tenth out of the ⁵ spoils. And they indeed from among the sons of Levi, who receive the priesthood, have commandment to take tithes from the people according to the law, that is from their brethren, though these are come out of the loins of ⁶ Abraham ; but he who has no genealogy^d from them has tithed Abraham, and blessed him who ⁷ had the promises. But beyond all gainsaying, the inferior is ⁸ blessed by the better. And here dying men receive tithes ; but there [one] of whom the witness ⁹ is that he lives ; and, so to speak, through Abraham, Levi also, who received tithes, has been made ¹⁰ to pay tithes. For he was yet in the loins of his father when ¹¹ Melchisedec met him. If indeed then perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, for the people had their law given to them in connexion with it,^e what need [was there] still that a different priest should arise according to the order of Melchisedec, and not be named after the order of Aaron ?

¹² For, the priesthood being changed, there takes place of necessity a ¹³ change of law also. For he, of whom these things are said, belongs^f to a different tribe, of which no one has [ever] been^g attached to the service of the altar. For it is clear that our Lord has sprung^h out of Juda, as to which tribe Moses spake nothing
¹⁴ as to priests.ⁱ And it is yet more abundantly evident, since a different priest arises according to ¹⁵ the similitude of Melchisedec, who has been constituted not according to law of fleshly commandment, but according to power of indis-¹⁶ soluble life. For it is borne witness,^k Thou art a priest for ever^l [according to the order of ¹⁷ Melchisedec].^m For there is a

^c 'Made like,' does not, I think, suit here, nor am I content with 'assimilated.' It is used by Plato of truth and error, 'men make error appear like truth ;' by Aristotle of men, 'making the forms of the gods like men.' So Melchisedec was in his characteristics assimilated to the Son of God. The 'but' is in contrast with what immediately precedes. μένει, 'abides,' is in direct connexion with this Melchisedec. The rest is description. 'Continually,' εἰς τὸ διηνεκές, not εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

^d The negative used is μή, not οὐ. That is, is not the mere denial of the fact, but that he was not in a position to have one. Hence I have said 'has no genealogy.'

^e Or 'based upon it.'

^f μετέσχηκεν, 'has taken part in.' But it is the perfect, intimating an abiding character.

^g Or 'been occupied with.'

^h Or 'arisen.' The question is whether there may be allusion to arising, as the sun, or springing up, as a plant: the branch. For the branch was translated 'dayspring' by the LXX, and the verb is used for both in Greek.

ⁱ T. R. reads 'priesthood.'

^k Or 'he is testified of.'

^l εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

^m The repetition of these last words is rather doubtful.

HEBREWS VII, VIII.

setting aside of the commandment going before for its weakness and unprofitableness, (for the law perfected nothing,) and the introduction of a better hope by which we draw nigh to God. And by how much [it was] not without the swearing of an oath; (for they are become priests without the swearing of an oath, but he with the swearing of an oath, by him who said, as to him,^a 'The Lord has sworn, and will not repent [of it], Thou [art] priest for ever according to the order of Melchisedec;) by so much Jesus became surety of a better covenant. And they have been many priests, on account of being hindered from continuing by death; but he, because of his continuing for ever, has the priesthood unchangeable.^o Whence also he is able to save completely those who approach by him to God, always living to intercede for them. For such a high priest^p became us, holy,¹ harmless, undefiled, separated from sinners, and become higher than the heavens: who has not day by day need, as the high priests, first to offer up sacrifices for his own sins, then [for] those of the people; for this^r he did once for all [in] having offered up himself. For the law constitutes men high priests, having infirmity; but the word of the swearing of the oath which [is] after the law, a Son perfected for ever.

VIII. Now a summary^u of the things of which we are speaking [is], We have such a one high priest^t who has sat down on [the] right hand of the throne of the greatness in the heavens; minister of the holy places and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord has pitched,^v not man.

³ For every high priest is constituted for the offering both of gifts and sacrifices; whence it is needful that this one also should have something which he may offer. If then^w indeed he were upon earth, he would not even be

^a Or 'to him.'

^o Or 'intransmissible.' Greek fathers give it as 'unsuccessional.' But such use is, it seems, hardly to be justified. Bleek and Delitzsch have fully gone into it.

^p Many good copies insert 'also,' possibly rightly; but κ , C, K, L, Porph. (Tisch.), agree with T. R.

¹ Or 'pious.' $\delta\sigma\iota\omicron\varsigma$ is used for holy in New Test., but not the same as $\alpha\gamma\iota\omicron\varsigma$. It is $\delta\sigma\iota$, not $\delta\sigma\eta$. Chesed is used for mercy and grace, and applied to God's ways, centred in Christ, the one who is chesed; God is kodesh: Israel was not chesed. God is holy, knowing good and evil perfectly: wills absolutely good and no evil: so we are separated, set apart from evil or common use to him; that is $\alpha\gamma\iota\omicron\varsigma$. $\delta\sigma\iota\omicron\varsigma$, on the contrary, is the exercise of gracious suitable affections in the relationship in which we are to God, to parents; God in mercy to us, Christ in whom they are displayed. Hence however, as suitable affections towards God practically constitute holiness, it is used in this sense for holiness.

^r Chrys. Oec. Theoph. and a host of modern critics refer 'this' to the offering for the people: 'this last.' It may be so. The sense is evident. Otherwise, as I had long taken it, the sense is 'this offering he made.' Of course for others; but the emphasis is on 'once for all.'

^t Or 'the chief point.' The difference is small; it expresses what it results in in the writer's mind, as the substance of the things of which we are speaking. $\tau\omicron\iota\varsigma$ $\lambda\epsilon\gamma\omicron\mu\epsilon\acute{\nu}\omicron\iota\varsigma$ is the present subject which occupied him: it heads up in this.

^u Or 'such a high priest.'

^v T. R., with good authorities, adds 'and.'

^w T. R. has $\gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho$: $\gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho$ seems clearer, but the sense of $\epsilon\acute{\upsilon}\nu$ is much better.

HEBREWS VIII, IX.

a priest, there being those^x who offer the gifts according to the⁵ law, (who^y serve the representation and shadow of heavenly things, according as Moses was oracularly told [when] about to make the tabernacle; for See, says he, that thou make all things according to the pattern which has been shewn to thee in the mountain.) But now he has got⁶ a more excellent ministry, by so much as he is mediator of a better covenant, which is established^z on the footing of better promises.
⁷ For if that first was faultless, place had not been sought for a second.
⁸ For finding fault, he says to them,^a Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, and I will consummate a new covenant as regards the house of Israel, and as regards the house⁹ of Judah; not according to the covenant which I made to their fathers in [the] day of my taking their hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they did not continue in my covenant, and I did not regard them, saith¹⁰ the Lord. Because this [is] the covenant that I will covenant to the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord, Giving my laws into their minds, I will write them also upon their hearts; and I will be to them for God, and they shall be to me for people.

¹¹ And they shall not teach each his fellow-citizen,^b and each his brother, saying, Know the Lord; because all shall know me in themselves,^c from [the] little one among them unto [the] great among¹² them. Because I will be merciful to their unrighteousnesses, and their sins and their lawlessnesses^d I will never remember any^e more.
¹³ In that he says New, he has made the first old; but that which grows old and aged [is] near disappearing.

IX. The first^f therefore also indeed had ordinances of service, and the² sanctuary, a worldly one.^g For a ^x T. R. adds 'priests.'

^y 'Who are such as do so,' οἵτινες.

^z νενομωθένται, formally established as by a law.

^a It may be translated 'for finding fault with them he says.' α, A. D, (cor. αυτοῖς) Porph. (Tisch. M. I. S.), K, &c., have αὐτοῖς. But the dative is used with μέμφομαι, and it seems to me a gloss, they thinking the dative connected it with λέγει.

^b T. R. reads 'neighbour.' The LXX translate πληρ, his companion or fellow, by πολίτης, the word here used, in three places of Proverbs and two of Jeremiah.

^c I add 'in themselves,' to distinguish γνώθι from εἰδήσουσι; one being knowledge in general, the other consciousness in oneself, internal knowledge of a thing.

^d Many omit 'and their lawlessnesses.'

^e Or 'in no wise remember any more;' οὐ μή, a double negative, augmenting its force.

^g The form of words here is greatly disputed. The grammatical order would require it to be translated 'the holy universal order;' but the word, it is contended, does not exist with this sense: I have not ventured so to translate it. I doubt it to be the same as κόσμιον, 'ornament.' κόσμος is the world, from the order which is in it. The tabernacle represented all this order, the pattern of heavenly things. Hence, if κοσμικόν be used, a neuter adjective for a substantive, or coined in this use, it would mean, 'the holy order of the tabernacle, which represented the vast scene in which God's glory is displayed in Christ.' If not, we must say, 'and the sanctuary, a worldly one.' A worldly sanctuary is not the sense. 'A worldly sanctuary' it is not, according to regular grammar and the constant usage of the Greek language. There are, it is true, examples; (Gal. i. 4 is not, because of ἐνεστώτος, α, π. is one word, so Winer) as in John's epistle, ὁ κόσμος ὅλος. There I should connect ὅλος in sense with what

HEBREWS IX.

tabernacle was set up; the first, in which [were] both the candlestick and the table and the exposition of the loaves, which is called Holy; ³ but after the second veil a tabernacle, which is called Holy of ⁴ holies, having a golden censer, and the ark of the covenant, covered round in every part with gold, in which [were] the golden pot that had the manna, and the rod of Aaron that had sprouted, and the tables of the covenant; ⁵ and above over it the cherubim of glory shadowing the mercy seat, concerning which it is not now [the time] to speak in detail. ⁶ Now these things being thus ordered, into the first tabernacle the priests enter at all times, ⁷ accomplishing the services; but into the second, the high priest only, once a year, not without blood, which he offers for himself and for the errors^a of the people: ⁸ the Holy Spirit shewing this, that the way of the [holy of] holies has not yet been made manifest while as yet the first tabernacle has ⁹ [its] standing; the which¹ [is] an image for the present time, according to which² both gifts and sacrifices, unable to perfect as to conscience him that worshipped,¹ ¹⁰ are offered, [consisting] only of meats and drinks and divers washings,^m ordinances of flesh, imposed until [the] time of setting ¹¹ things right. But Christ being come high priest of the good things to come,ⁿ by^o the better and more perfect tabernacle not made with hand, (that is, not of this creation,) nor by blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood, has entered in once for all into the [holy of] holies, having ¹² found an eternal redemption. For if the blood of bulls and goats, and a heifer's ashes sprinkling the defiled, sanctifies for the purity ¹³ of the flesh, how much rather ¹⁴

follows: the world . . . lies all of it. If 1 John v. 20, be correct, it is one word. I should be disposed so to take it, and the various readings to have arisen from its being felt not to be strictly Greek. 1 Cor. x. 3, 4, is as Gal. i. 4, τὸ αὐτό: β. π. . . π. π. It is descriptive of the object, τὸ αὐτό.

² The chief ancient MSS refer 'to which' to παραβολή, 'image,' reading καθ' ἣν for καθ' ὅν. So Vul. But I think the old Latin, though corrupt, must have read ὅν. The Fathers differ: Chrys., Theoph., Theoph. read ὅν; Oec and others ἥν. C fails us here; κ has ἥν; Porph. (Tisch.) ὅν. The present time is opposed to the time of setting things right. The tabernacle alone is in view in Hebrews; not the temple, but the fact that offerings were then still made is recognized in what follows. He could not call it the $\pi\alpha\tau\epsilon\rho$, because Messiah was come and he had been crucified; but the carnal ordinances were still offered, so that for the Hebrews it was not $\kappa\alpha\tau\alpha$.

It was a present time in contrast with a time of setting right. The παραβολή could be only for a present time on earth. The patterns were in the heavens.

¹ 'Worship' is perhaps too strong a word, but 'service' is equivocal. λατρεύω is to approach a god with any prayers, or in any way of offering up a religious service.

^m T. R. adds 'and.'

ⁿ The 'good things to come' are the promised blessings to come in with Christ. The Epistle to the Hebrews, though addressed to Christians on most precious subjects, does not enter into the proper church standing: it once refers to the church as in heaven in chap. xii.

^o διὰ here is, I doubt not at all, characteristic of his coming. He came in that way, his coming being in the power of and characterized by these things; not the place through nor the means by which. See this use of διὰ, Rom. ii. 27. In Rom. iv. 13 we see the transition to this use of it.

shall the blood of the Christ, who by the eternal Spirit offered himself spotless to God, purify your conscience from dead works to 15 worship^p [the] living God? And for this reason he is mediator of a new covenant,^q so that, death having taken place for redemption of the transgressions under the first covenant, the called might receive the promise of the eternal 16 inheritance. (For where [there is] a testament,^r the death of the 17 testator must needs come in. For a testament [is] of force when men are dead, since it is in no way of force while the testator is alive.)
 18 Whence neither the first was 19 inaugurated without blood. For every commandment having been spoken according to [the] law by Moses to all the people; having taken the blood of calves and goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, he sprinkled both the book itself and all the 20 people, saying, This [is] the blood of the covenant which God has 21 enjoined to you. And the tabernacle too and all the vessels of service he sprinkled in like manner 22 with blood; and almost^s all things are purified with blood according to the law, and without blood-

shedding there is no remission.
 23 [It was] necessary then that the figurative representations of the things in the heavens should be purified with these; but the heavenly things themselves with 24 sacrifices better than these. For the Christ is not entered into holy places made with hand, figures^t of the true, but into heaven itself, now to appear before^v the face of 25 God for us: nor, in order that he should offer himself often, as the high priest enters into the holy places every year with blood 26 not his own; since he had [then] been obliged often to suffer from the foundation of the world. But now once in the consummation of the ages he has been manifested for [the] putting away of sin by 27 his sacrifice. And forasmuch as it is the portion of men once to die, 28 and after this judgment; thus the Christ also,^w having been once offered to bear the sins of many, shall appear to those that look for him the second time without^x sin for salvation.

X. For the law, having a shadow of the coming good things, not the image itself of the things, can never, by the same sacrifices which they offer continually yearly, per-

^q Or 'the new covenant.' The absence of the article merely makes it characteristic of him: he is 'new covenant mediator.' But better as in text.

^r The word translated 'covenant' and 'testament' is the same, διαθήκη, a disposition; for 'covenant,' in connection with God, is a disposition which he has made, on the ground of which man is to be in relationship with him. But verses 16, 17, are a parenthesis, alluding by the bye to another kind of διαθήκη.

^s Some apply σχεδόν to both parts of the sentence.

^t The heavenly things were the original copied, and so it was, as said to Moses. Hence they were the τύπος; the tabernacle ἀντίτυπος, what answered to it.

^v Literally 'to the face.'

^w T. R. omits 'also.'

^x 'Apart from,' having nothing more to do with it. The first time he bare it and was made sin, (being sinless;) but now, having put it wholly away for them who look for him, he appears to them without having to say, or need to have anything to say, to it. It is gone, as regards them, by his first coming.

²fect those who approach. Since would they not^v indeed have ceased being offered, on account of the worshippers once purged having no longer any conscience ³of sins? But in these [there is] a calling to mind of sins yearly. ⁴For blood of bulls and goats [is] incapable of taking away sins. ⁵Wherefore coming into the world he says, Sacrifice and offering thou willedst not; but thou hast ⁶prepared me a body. Thou tookest no pleasure in burnt offerings and ⁷sacrifices for sin. Then I said, Lo, I come (in [the] roll² of the book it is written of me) to do, ⁸O God, thy will. Above, saying Sacrifice and offering and burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou willedst not, neither tookest pleasure in (which^a are offered ⁹according to the law); then he said, Lo, I come to do^b thy will. He takes away the first that he ¹⁰may establish the second; by which will we have been sanctified through the offering of the body ¹¹of Jesus Christ once for all. And every priest stands daily ministering, and offering often the same sacrifices, which can never take ¹²away sins. But he, having offered one sacrifice for sins, sat down in perpetuity^c at [the] right hand of ¹³God, waiting from henceforth until his enemies be set [for the] foot- ¹⁴stool of his feet. For by one offering he has perfected in perpetuity ¹⁵the sanctified.^d And the Holy Spirit also bears us witness [of it]; for after what was said: ¹⁶This [is] the covenant which I will establish towards^f them after those days, saith [the] Lord: Giving my laws into their hearts, I will write them also in their ¹⁷understandings; and their sins and their lawlessnesses I will never ¹⁸remember any more. But where there [is] remission of these, [there is] no longer a sacrifice for sin. ¹⁹Having therefore, brethren, boldness for entering into the [holy of] holies by the blood of Jesus, ²⁰the new and living way which he has dedicated for us through ²¹the veil, that is, his flesh; and [having] a great priest over the ²²house of God, let us approach with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, sprinkled as to our hearts from a wicked conscience, and washed as to our body with pure ²³water. Let us hold fast the confession of the hope unwavering, (for he [is] faithful who has ²⁴promised;) and let us consider one

^v T. R. has no 'not,' and it ceases to be a question. Steph. 1560 has it, but in margin a reading is given without. Beza 1582 has not it. But the reading is not doubtful.

^a Or perhaps 'chapter,' to which a heading or summary was. Some take it as the summary or contents of the chapter or volume, written on the head, κεφαλῆς, of the roll.

^a αἵτινες, 'which are of that kind that are.'

^c εἰς τὸ διηνεκές differs from εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. Having perfectly completed the work, he had not to get up again to complete it; he could sit down, and abide so, having done all. It is in contrast with the priests standing. They stood daily; he is set down for a continuance. The connecting εἰς τὸ διηνεκές with sacrifice spoils the whole force of the passage.

^d τοὺς ἁγιαζομένους is not 'being,' nor 'having been,' but the objects of this operation, those about whom God was doing this: die geheiligt werden. As to date, ἡγιασμένοι ἐσμέν, verse 10.

^f πρὸς is constantly so employed in LXX.

another for provoking to love and ²⁵ good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the custom [is] with some;
 but encouraging [one another],
 and by so much the more as ye ²⁶ see the day drawing near. For where we sin wilfully after receiving the knowledge^b of the truth, there no longer remains any ²⁷ sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful expectation of judgment, and heat of fire about to devour ²⁸ the adversaries. Any one that has disregarded Moses' law dies without mercy on [the testimony ²⁹ of] two or three witnesses: of how much worse punishment, think ye, shall he be judged worthy who has trodden under foot the Son of God, and esteemed the blood of the covenant, whereby he has been sanctified, common,ⁱ and has ³⁰ insulted the Spirit of grace? For we know him that has said, To me [belongs] vengeance; I will recompense, says the Lord: and again, The Lord shall judge his ³¹ people. [It is] a fearful thing falling into [the] hands of [the] living God.

³² But call to mind the earlier days
 in which, having been enlightened, ye endured much conflict of suffer-³³ ings; on the one hand, when ye were made a spectacle both in reproaches and afflictions; and on the other, when ye became partakers with those who were ³⁴ passing through them. For ye both sympathized with prisoners^k and accepted with joy the plunder of your goods, knowing that ye have for^l yourselves a better sub-³⁵ stance^m and an abiding one. Cast not away therefore your confidence, which has great recompense.
³⁶ For ye have need of endurance in order that, having done the will of God, ye may receive the ³⁷ promise. For yet a very little while he that comes will come, ³⁸ and will not delay. But the justⁿ shall live by faith; and if he^o

^b ἐπίγνωσις, clear and certain knowledge personally.

ⁱ Or 'unclean,' having no holy character.

^k T. R. reads 'my bonds.'

^m T. R. adds 'in the heavens.' The reading is somewhat uncertain.

ⁿ Some add μοῦ here: 'my just [man].'
 It is in LXX, but in the Vatican after πύρρος, hence 'the just shall live by faith in me;' and so some authorities here. I have left the T. R. However there is good authority for introducing μοῦ. The sense runs well and is the same: God's just one, the one he owns as such.

^o Or 'any one.' I have not introduced 'any one' into the text. But I do not apply the 'he' to a just man who lives. The apostle is contrasting two characters; the one who perishes, and the one who saves, preserves, his life (spiritually, of course). It must be remembered that in the LXX, the phrases are not placed in this order, nor in the Hebrew. The professing Hebrews were in danger of drawing back. In the LXX it runs 'If a man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him; but the just shall live by faith.' In the Hebrew the phrase is 'His soul which is lifted up is not upright in him;' that is, the proud enemy. It is certain that in what the apostle quotes there is no reference in the word 'he' to the just who lives by faith. The only thing that can be said is, that the writer of the epistle put it after, to change the sense. This I do not believe. It is a separate phrase by itself. All through this epistle, the Hebrews who acknowledged Jesus as Messiah are treated as a people; that is, the whole people accepted on condition of believing. So Peter: 'but are now the people of God.' And here: 'Jesus, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood.' And in the Hebrews you have nothing of the sanctification of the Spirit; but he urges as a practical truth 'the just shall live by faith:' and then, recurring to the draw back, my soul does not take pleasure in him. But we are not drawers back to perdition, but of faith to saving [the] soul.

XI. Now faith is [the] substantiating^p of things hoped for, [the] conviction of things not seen.

² For in [the power of] this the elders have obtained testimony.

³ By faith we apprehend that the worlds were framed by [the] word of God, so that that^q which is seen should not take its origin from

⁴ things which appear. By faith Abel offered to God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained testimony of being righteous, God bearing testimony to his gifts, and by it, having died,

⁵ he yet^r speaks. By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him; for before [his]^s translation he has the testimony that he had pleased

⁶ God. But without faith [it is] impossible to please [him]. For he that draws near to God must believe that he is, and [that] he is a rewarder of them who seek him

⁷ out. By faith Noe, oracularly warned concerning things not yet seen, moved with fear, prepared an ark for the saving of his house; by which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteous-previous phrase, which he would not quote as part of the passage, he says καὶ ἐὰν ὄνομασται ἄγγραι; that is, any one holding this position of a professed believer; but not if he was living by faith in him, he was not drawing back. In a word, drawing back is one character, living by faith another.

^p Or 'assurance,' 'firm conviction:' see chap. iii. 14

^q T. R. reads 'those things,' for 'that.'

^r He alludes, I judge, to the voice which

ness which [is] according to faith.

⁸ By faith Abraham, being called, obeyed to go out into the place which he was to receive for an inheritance, and went out, not

⁹ knowing where he was^t going. By faith he sojourned as a stranger on the land of the promise as a foreign country, having dwelt in tents with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with [him] of the same

¹⁰ promise; for he waited for the city which has foundations, of which God is [the] artificer and constructor. By faith also Sarah

¹¹ herself received strength for [the] conception of seed, and [that]^v beyond a seasonable age; since she counted him faithful who

¹² promised. Wherefore also there have been born of one, and that of one become dead, even as the stars of heaven in multitude, and as the countless sand which [is] by the sea shore.

¹³ All these died in faith,^w not having received the promises, but having seen them from afar off^x and embraced [them], and confessed that they were strangers

¹⁴ and sojourners on the earth.^y For they who say such things shew clearly that they seek [their] ¹⁵ country. And if they had called to mind that from whence they went^z out, they had had oppor-

called to God from the ground, but supposes this voice yet heard as witnessing to his faith

^u Literally 'is.'

^v T. R. adds 'gave birth to a child.'

^w Or 'according to faith;' that is, having only the promise and not the fulfilment.

^x T. R. adds 'and been persuaded of them.'

^y Or 'land.'

^z T. R. reads 'came.'

¹⁶ tunity to have returned; but now they seek a better, that is, a heavenly; wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be called their God; for he has prepared for them a city.

¹⁷ By faith Abraham, [when] tried, offered up Isaac, and he who had received to himself^a the promises offered up his only begotten [son],

¹⁸ as to whom it had been said, In Isaac shall thy seed be called:

¹⁹ counting that God [was] able to raise [him] even from among [the] dead, whence also he received^b

²⁰ him in a figure. By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concern-

²¹ ing things to come. By faith

Jacob [when] dying blessed each of the sons of Joseph, and wor-

²² shipped on the top of his staff. By

²³ faith Joseph [when] dying called to mind the going forth of the sons of Israel, and gave commandment concerning his bones.

²³ By faith Moses, being born, was hid three months by his parents, because they saw the child beautiful; and they did not fear the injunction

²⁴ of the king. By faith Moses, when he had become great, refused to be called son of Pharaoh's daughter;

²⁵ choosing^c rather to suffer affliction along with the people of God than to have [the] temporary pleasure

²⁶ of sin; esteeming^c the reproach of the Christ greater riches than the treasures of^d Egypt, for he had

²⁷ respect to the recompense. By faith he left Egypt, not fearing^c the wrath of the king; for he per-

²⁸ severed, as seeing him who is invisible. By faith he celebrated^e the passover and the sprinkling of the blood, that the destroyer of the firstborn might not touch them.

^a It is not here λαβών but ἀναδεξάμενος λαμβάνω is to receive passively, sometimes actively, or 'to take'; but in δέχομαι there is more of the will or action of the person receiving. ἀναδέχομαι is in New Test. only used here and in Acts xxviii. Publius received, took, Paul and his company into his house. It has the sense of taking on oneself physically, or as a debt or responsibility. Polybius, it seems, gives it the sense of expecting, awaiting; and Dion. Hal. waiting till one gets. Aufnehmen, auf sich nehmen, erwarten, abwarten. I might have thought it might mean to await, but the aorist participle makes this, I think, impossible. The thought, I apprehend, is, that Abraham's own mind had taken up and appropriated the promises, and yet he gave up Isaac. It was not merely they were given and taken away, with which he had nothing to do; but he had adopted them by faith in his heart, and trusted God enough to give them up according to flesh. I would have said 'taken on himself'; but there would be too much of his own will.

^b ἐκομίσαστο. I think the force of κομίζω, thus applied, is to get back what one had, or belonged to one, when it might have seemed lost for ever. So it is used by Polybius, Josephus, and others. The sense I think quite certain in its application to Isaac's sacrifice. The aorist is constantly used in all this chapter historically. I do not add 'back,' because it is sufficiently expressed in 'whence,' and 'back' is too strong.

^c These are aorists, but in English the present participle is joined to the present tense as characterizing the action. 'He refused ... choosing;' 'he refused ... having chosen' would make a different time of it, not the same. In Greek all is referred to the time of speaking; in English there is no time for the accessories, they are characteristic motives.

^e Here and in verse 17, as to the offering Isaac, the verbs are in the perfect; this is remarkable. The other facts were generally passing facts, part of the whole history. These are of standing significance, either setting figuratively the believer on a new ground, or were continued till the time of the epistle. 'By faith Abraham has offered ... by faith he has kept the passover;' only this is not possible in English. It was not external continuance, for the blood sprinkling was only once.

HEBREWS XI, XII.

²⁹ By faith they passed through the Red sea as through dry [land]; of which the Egyptians having made trial were swallowed up.

³⁰ By faith the walls of Jericho fell, having been encircled for seven days.

³¹ By faith Rahab the harlot did not perish along with the unbelieving, having received the spies in^f peace.

³² And what more do I say? For the time would fail me telling of Gedeon, and Barak, and Sampson, and Jephthæ, and David and Samuel, and of the prophets:

³³ who by faith overcame kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped lions' mouths,

³⁴ quenched [the] power of fire, escaped [the] edge of the sword, became strong out of weakness, became mighty in war, made [the] armies of strangers give way.

³⁵ Women received their dead again by resurrection; and others were tortured,^g not having accepted deliverance, that they might get a

³⁶ better resurrection; and others underwent trial of mockings and scourgings, yea, and of bonds

³⁷ and imprisonment. They were stoned, were sawn asunder, were tempted, died by the death of the sword; they went about in sheepskins, in goatskins, destitute,³⁸ afflicted, evil treated, (of whom the world was not worthy,) wandering in deserts and mountains, and [in] dens and caverns of the earth.

³⁹ And these all, having obtained witness through faith, did not receive the promise, God having foreseen some better thing for^h us, that they should not be made perfect without us.

XII. Let us also therefore, having so great a cloud of witnesses¹ surrounding us, laying aside every weight, and sin^k which so easily entangles¹ us, run with endurance

² the race that lies before us, looking^m stedfastly on Jesus the leaderⁿ and completer of faith: who, in view of the joy lying before him, has endured [the] cross, having despised [the] shame, and is set down at the right hand of

³ the throne of God. For consider well^o him who endured so great contradiction from sinners against himself, that ye be not weary,

⁴ fainting in your minds. Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, wrest-

⁵ ling against sin. And ye^p have quite forgotten the exhortation which speaks to you as to sons: My son, despise not [the] chasten-

^g Some understand it as 'beaten [to death].' But see 2 Macc. vi. 19: comp. vii. 9.

^h περί, but περί is practically so used, as chap. xiii. 18.

¹ Witness, in English, has two senses: 'seeing, so as to be able to bear witness,' and 'giving testimony to.' The last only, I apprehend, in Greek. I do not believe it has the sense of spectator, θεατής, here or anywhere; the νέφος περικεκλιμένων may run on this thought, but the apostle seems to say 'a cloud of spectators, who are witnesses to this truth of living by faith.'

^k Or 'the sin.'

^m ἀφορῶντες has the force of looking away from other things and fixing the eye exclusively on one.

ⁿ See Acts iii. 15, note.

^o ἀναλογίζω, 'to weigh so as to judge its value,' and sometimes in comparison with other things.

^p Some read this as a question: 'and have ye?' The 'quite,' ἐκτέλεισθε, would dispose me to do so.

 God conducts himself towards you as towards sons; for who is the son that the father chastens not?
⁸ But if ye are without chastening, of which all have been partakers,
 then are ye bastards, and not ⁹ sons. Moreover we have had the fathers of our flesh as chasteners, and we revered [them]; shall we not much rather be in subjection to the Father of spirits, and for a few days, as seemed good to them; but he for profit, in order

^s 'The blessing.' It is matter of fact that what he sought in Genesis was a blessing.

^t παρητήσαντο. Compare Luke xiv. 18 for the word.

^v T. R. adds 'or shot through with a dart.'

^w The words 'and,' καί, give the division very distinctly here.

^x 'New' (νέας) is not the usual word for new covenant here, which is καινῆς. This last is in contrast with the former one. νέας is 'new' in the sense of fresh, new in character, youthful. καινὸν ἄνθρωπον, it is not the old; νέον, it is not grown old.

²⁵ ing better⁷ than Abel. See that ye refuse² not him that speaks. For if those did not escape who had refused him who uttered the oracles on earth, much more we who turn away from him [who ²⁶ does so] from heaven: whose voice then shook the earth; but now he has promised, saying, Yet once will^a I shake not only the earth, ²⁷ but also the heaven. But this Yet once, signifies the removing of what is shaken, as being made, that what is not shaken may remain. Wherefore let us, receiving a kingdom not to be shaken, have grace,^b by which let us serve God acceptably with reverence and ²⁸ godly fear. For also our God [is] a consuming fire.

XIII. Let brotherly love abide.

² Be not forgetful of hospitality; for by it some have unawares ³ entertained angels. Remember prisoners, as bound with [them]; those that are evil-treated, as being yourselves also in [the] body. ⁴ [Let] marriage^c [be held] every way in honour, and the bed [be] undefiled; but^d fornicators and ⁵ adulterers will God judge. [Let your] conversation [be] without love of money, satisfied with [your] present circumstances; for he has said, I will not leave thee, ⁶ neither will I forsake thee. So that, taking courage, we may say, The Lord [is] my helper, and I will not be afraid: what will man do unto me?

⁷ Remember your leaders who have spoken to you the word of God; and considering^e the issue of their conversation, imitate their ⁸ faith. Jesus Christ [is] the same yesterday, and to-day, and to the ⁹ ages [to come]. Be not carried away^f with various and strange doctrines; for [it is] good that the heart be confirmed with grace, not meats; those who have walked in which have not been profited ¹⁰ by [them]. We have an altar of which they have no right to eat ¹¹ who serve the tabernacle; for of those beasts whose blood is carried [as sacrifices] for sin into the [holy of] holies by the high priest, of these the bodies are burnt out- ¹² side the camp. Wherefore also Jesus, that he might sanctify the people by his own blood, suffered ¹³ without the gate: therefore let us go forth to him without the camp, ¹⁴ bearing his reproach: for we have not here an abiding city, but we ¹⁵ seek the coming one. By him therefore let us offer [the] sacrifice of praise continually to God, that is, [the] fruit of [the] lips confess- ¹⁶ ing his name. But of doing good and communicating [of your sub-dicative, and not a characteristic adjective. On the other hand, τῆμος is not simply that the marriage tie is to be respected when in it, and kept pure, but that the tie itself was to be held in honour. In purity of walk that was done by the married no doubt, but not in every case.

^d Many read 'for.'

^e Literally 'considering the issue of the conversation of whom, imitate the faith.'

^f T. R. reads 'carried about.'

17 Obey your leaders, and be submissive; for they watch over your souls as those that shall give account; that they may do this with joy, and not groaning, for this [would be] unprofitable for you. Pray for us: for we persuade ourselves that we have a good conscience, in all things desirous to walk rightly. But I much more beseech [you] to do this, that I may the more quickly be restored to you. But the God of peace, who brought^h again from among [the] dead our Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep, in [the powerⁱ] of [the] blood of [the] eternal covenant, perfect you in every good work to the doing of his will, doing in you what is pleasing before him through Jesus Christ; to whom [be] glory for the ages of ages.

22 Amen. But I beseech you, brethren, bear the word of exhortation, for it is but in few words that I have written to you.

23 Know that the brother Timotheus is set at liberty; with whom, if he should come soon,^k I will see you. Salute all your leaders, and all the saints. They from Italy salute you. Grace [be] with you all. Amen.

^g T. R. reads 'are persuaded' or 'trust.'

to time, as often: 'the bringer again.'

ⁱ Or 'in virtue of.'

JAMES, bondsman of God and of [the] Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes which [are] in the dispersion, greeting. Count it all joy, my brethren, when ye fall into various temptations, knowing that the proving of your faith works endurance. But let endurance have [its] perfect work, that ye may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing. But if any one of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all freely¹ and reproaches not, and it shall be given to him: but let him ask in faith, nothing doubting. For he that doubts is like a wave of the sea driven by the wind and tossed about; for let not that man think that he shall receive any thing from the Lord; [he is] a double minded man,^m unstable in all his ways.

¹ ἀπλῶς. Of men we might say 'unaffectedly,' 'with a readiness of heart which does not make a great matter of it, or a case of great consideration:' the want is there, and the heart answers without a second thought. It is attempted to be distinguished from Rom. xii. 8, but why I know not. I had thought of 'readily,' but it does not give the thought of simplicity, without a thought behind, as much as 'freely.'

^m I take here ἀνὴρ δίπλοχος in apposi-

¹⁰ glory in his elevation, and the rich in his humiliation, because as [the] grass's flower he will pass
¹¹ away. For the sun has risen with its burning heat, and has withered the grass, and its flower has fallen, and the comeliness of its look has perished: thus the rich also shall wither in his goings.
¹² Blessed [is the] man who endures temptation; for, having been proved, he shall receive the crown of life, which heⁿ has promised to them that love him.
¹³ Let no man, being tempted, say, I am tempted of God. For God cannot be tempted by evil things, ¹⁴ and himself tempts no one. But every one is tempted, drawn away, ¹⁵ and enticed by his own lust; then lust, having conceived, gives birth to sin; but sin fully completed brings forth death.
¹⁶ Do not err, my beloved brethren.
¹⁷ Every good gift^o and every perfect gift comes down^p from above, from the Father of lights, with whom is no variation nor shadow ¹⁸ of turning. According to his own will^q begat^r he us by the word of truth, that we should be a certain first-fruits of his creatures.

¹⁹ So that,^s my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear,
²⁰ slow to speak, slow to wrath; for man's wrath does not work 'God's ²¹ righteousness.' Wherefore, laying aside all filthiness and abounding of wickedness, accept with meekness the implanted word, which ²² is able to save your souls. But be ye doers of [the] word and not hearers only, beguiling yourselves.
²³ For if any man be a hearer of [the] word and not a doer, he is like to a man considering his natural face
²⁴ in a mirror: for he has considered himself and is gone away, and straightway he has forgotten what ²⁵ he was like. But he that fixes his view on [the] perfect law, that of liberty, and abides in [it], he not being a forgetful hearer but a doer of [the] work, he shall be ²⁶ blessed in his doing. If any one^w think^x himself to be religious, not bridling his tongue, but deceiving his heart, this man's religion is ²⁷ vain. Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this:

tion, not with ἄνθρωπος ἐκεῖνος, but with ὁ διαρπύζόμενος (ver. 6); and verse 7 as practically a parenthesis. (See chap. iii. 8 for an analogous form.) I do not think the sense bears a direct connection with verse 7; whereas verse 8 is a moral explanation of the figure of verse 6. The style of James is characterized by these aphoristic and therefore anarthrous sentences.

^b Here δόσις, then δῶρημα, very nearly the same: strictly δόσις is the giving, δῶρημα the thing freely given. But in English 'gift' is both the giving, and the thing given, the character of the act.

^c That is its true character, ὅτι καταβαίνον, but expressed in English by

'comes down.' See chap. iii. 15.

^d Having so purposed or willed it. It was the fruit of his own mind, and so a free gift.

^f In the uncertainty of the text here I have left it as it is. A, B, κ, C, Vul., It., read ἴστε for ὄστε, 'ye know,' or 'know ye.' If δέ be added after ἴστε we must say 'ye know.' It. reads 'know ye;' Vul. 'ye know;' A has καὶ ἴστε instead of ἴστε δέ. De Wette and Tisch. 7th have ὄστε. It. and Vul. both add αὐτὴν (δέ). It is very likely 'ye know' or 'know ye' is the right reading.

^g 'Work out as an effect,' κατεργάζεσθαι.

^h Verse 20 is an instance of the anarthrous, aphoristic style of James.

ⁱ T. R. adds 'among you.'

^j Or 'seem.'

JAMES I, II.

to visit orphans and widows in their affliction, to keep oneself unspotted from the world.

II. My brethren, do not have the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, [Lord] of glory, with respect of persons: for if there come unto your synagogue a man with a gold ring in splendid apparel, and a poor man also come in in vile apparel, and ye look upon him who wears the splendid apparel, and say, Do thou sit here well, and say to the poor, Do thou stand there, or sit here under my footstool: have ye not also made a difference among yourselves, and become judges, having evil thoughts? Hear, my beloved brethren: Has not God chosen the poor as to the world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom, which he has promised to them that love him? But ye have despised the poor [man.] Do not the rich oppress you, and [do not] they drag you before [the] tribunals? And [do not] they blaspheme the excellent name which has been called upon you? If indeed ye keep [the] royal law according to the scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, ye do well. But if ye have respect of persons, ye commit sin, being convicted by the law as transgressors. For whoever shall keep the whole law and shall offend in one [point], he has come under the guilt of [breaking] all. For he who said,

Thou shalt not commit adultery, said also, Thou shalt not kill. Now if thou dost^b not commit adultery, but killest,^c thou art become transgressor of [the] law.

¹² So speak ye, and so act, as those that are to be judged by [the] law of liberty; for judgment [will be] without mercy to him that has shewn no mercy. ¹³ Mercy glories over judgment.

¹⁴ What [is] the profit, my brethren, if any one say he have faith, but have not works? can faith save him? Now if a brother or a sister is naked and destitute of daily food, and one from amongst you say to them, Go in peace; be warmed and filled; but give not to them the needful things for the body, what [is] the profit? So also faith, if it have not works, is dead by itself. But some one will say, Thou hast faith and I have works. Shew me thy faith without^e works, and I from my works will shew thee my faith. Thou believest that God is one. Thou doest well. The demons even believe, and tremble. But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? Was not Abraham our father justified by works when he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar? Thou seest that faith wrought with his works, and that by^f works faith was perfected. And the scripture was fulfilled which says, Abraham believed God, and it was

⁷ T. R. adds 'to him.'

⁸ Literally 'of evil thoughts,' as we say, 'a man of corrupt habits.'

^d T. R. adds 'and.'

reckoned to him as righteousness, and he was called Friend of God.

- ²⁴ Ye see^s that a man is justified on the principle of works, and not on the principle of ^b faith only. But ²⁵ was not in like manner also Rahab the harlot justified on the principle of ^b works, when she had received the messengers and put [them] forth by another way? ²⁶ For as the body without a spirit is dead, so also faith without works is dead.

III. Be not many teachers, my brethren, knowing that we shall ² receive greater judgment. For we all often offend. If any one offend not in word, he [is] a perfect man, able to bridle the whole body too. ³ Behold,¹ we put the bits in the mouths of the horses, that they may obey us, and we turn round ⁴ their whole bodies. Behold also the ships, which are so great, and driven by violent winds, are turned about by a very small rudder, wherever the pleasure of the ⁵ helmsman will. Thus also the tongue is a little member, and boasts great things. See, a little fire, how large^k a wood it kindles, ⁶ and the tongue [is] fire, the world of unrighteousness. Thus is the tongue set in our members, the defiler of the whole body, and which sets fire to the course of nature, and is set on fire of hell.

- ⁷ For every species both of beasts and of birds, both of creeping things and of sea animals, is tamed and has been tamed by the human ⁸ species; but the tongue can no one among men tame; [it is] an unsettled^l evil, full of death-⁹ bringing poison. Therewith bless we the Lord and Father,^m and therewith curse we men made ¹⁰ after [the] likeness of God. Out of the same mouth goes forth blessing and cursing. It is not right, my brethren, that these things should be thus.

- ¹¹ Does the fountain, out of the same opening, pour forth sweet ¹² and bitter? Can, my brethren, a fig produce olives, or a vine figs? Neither can salt [water] makeⁿ sweet water.

- ¹³ Who [is] wise and understanding among you; let him shew out of a good conversation his works ¹⁴ in meekness of wisdom; but if ye have bitter emulation and strife in your hearts, do not boast^o and ¹⁵ lie against the truth. This is not the wisdom which comes down

^s T. R. reads 'see ye then.' If τοῖνυν be left out, it is better to read it as an indicative.

^b Or 'by,' ἐκ.
^k κ, A, B, read εἰ δέ, and It. Vul. si autem, C and T. R. ἰδοὺ. I see no proof that it is not an itacism however. If we read εἰ δέ we must translate 'but if we put the bits in the mouths of the horses . . . we turn round also.' De Wette however says there is no apodosis. The sense is the same.

^l I have translated 'a wood' (the same English idiom as ῥῆμα). It may otherwise, with Jerome and many, be taken for 'materials;' the connection of ἀνάπτω decides me, (see Wetstein in loco;) otherwise the use of ῥῆμα in LXX, particularly Apocrypha, would lead me to say 'matter,' or 'materials,' according to the ecclesiastical, and specially gnostic use of it.

^m Or perhaps 'the Lord and [the] Father.' T. R. reads 'God and Father,' τὸν Θεὸν καὶ πατέρα.

ⁿ T. R. reads 'thus no fountain [can] produce salt and sweet water.'

^o 'Against truth' is connected with 'boast,' as with 'lie.'

from above, but earthly, natural, ¹⁶ devilish. For where emulation and strife [are], there [is] disorder ¹⁷ and every evil thing. But the wisdom from above first is pure,
 then peaceful, gentle, yielding,
 full of mercy and good fruits, un-¹⁸ questioning^p and unfeigned. But [the] fruit of righteousness in peace^q is sown for them that make peace. (IV.) Whence [come] wars and whence^r fightings among you? [Is it] not thence,—from your pleasures,^s which war in your ² members? Ye lust and have not:
 ye kill and are full of envy, and cannot obtain; ye fight and war;
 ye have not because ye ask not.
³ Ye ask and receive not, because ye ask evilly, that ye may consume ⁴ [it] in your pleasures. 'Adulteresses, know ye not that^v friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore is minded to be [the] friend of the world is constituted the enemy of ⁵ God. Think ye that the scripture speaks in vain? Does the Spirit which has taken his abode in us de-⁶ sire enviously?^w But he gives more grace. Wherefore he says, God sets himself against [the] proud,

⁷ but gives grace to [the] lowly.
 Subject yourselves therefore to God. ^x Resist the devil, and he will ⁸ flee from you. Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you.
 Cleanse^y [your] hands, sinners,
 and purify^y [your] hearts, ye ⁹ double minded. Be wretched, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and ¹⁰ [your] joy to heaviness. Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he shall exalt you.
¹¹ Speak not against one another, brethren. He that speaks against [his] brother, or^z judges his brother, speaks against [the] law and judges [the] law. But if thou judgest [the] law, thou art not ¹² doer of [the] law, but judge. One is the lawgiver and judge,^a who is able to save and to destroy:
 but^b who art thou who judgest thy^c neighbour?
¹³ Go to now, ye who say, To-day or to-morrow will we go into such a city and spend a year there, and ¹⁴ traffic and make gain, ye who^d do not know what will be on the morrow, (for what [is] your life?)

^p Or 'uncontentious,' that is, in contrast with contentious pretension to wisdom: practical righteousness bears the fruit of peace for those who make peace.

^q Or 'the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace, for.' But I prefer the text.

^r T. R. omits the second 'whence.'

^s I see no reason to change 'pleasures' into 'lusts'; there is an additional idea,
 the satisfaction the heart feels in satisfying, or rather gratifying, lust.

^t T. R. adds 'adulterers and.'

^v Literally 'the friendship of the world is enmity of God;' but it is the state as between the parties, in English 'with.'
 In what follows, it is taken up as 'our state towards,' but this is warning to conscience.

^w I have with some hesitation translated this passage as above. I cannot find that φθόνος is used in a good or holy sense of jealousy. The application to what precedes is evident. If not thus translated, we must say 'Or think ye that the scripture says in vain; the Spirit which has taken his abode in us desires ardently with envy?'

^x Many add 'but' here.

^y 'Have it done,' not 'be doing it';
 aorist, not present.

^z T. R. reads 'and.'

^a T. R. omits 'and judge.'

^b T. R. omits 'but.'

^c Literally 'the neighbour.' T. R. reads
 'another.'

^d οἷσιν, who are such as do not.

It is^f even a vapour, appearing for a little while, and then disappearing,) instead of your saying, If the Lord should [so] will and we should live, we will also do this or that. But now ye glory in your vauntings: all such glorying is evil. To him therefore who knows how to do good, and does it not, to him it is sin.

V. Go to now, ye rich, weep, howling over your miseries that [are] coming upon [you]. Your wealth is become rotten, and your garments are become moth-eaten. Your gold and silver is eaten away, and their canker shall be for a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as fire. Ye have heaped up treasure in [the] last days. Behold, the wages of your labourers, who have harvested your fields, wrongfully kept back by you, cry, and the cries of those that have reaped are entered into the ears of [the] Lord of sabaoth. Ye have lived luxuriously on the earth and indulged yourselves; ye have nourished your hearts [as] in a day of slaughter; ye have condemned, ye have killed the just; he does not resist you. Have patience, therefore, brethren, till the coming of the Lord. Behold, the labourer awaits the precious fruit of the earth, having patience for it until it receive [the] early and [the] latter rain. Ye also have patience: stablish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is drawn nigh. Complain^h not one against another, brethren, that ye be not judged.ⁱ Behold, the judge stands before the door. Take [as] an example of suffering and having patience, my brethren, the prophets, who have spoken in the name of [the] Lord. Behold, we call them blessed who endure.^k Ye have heard of the endurance of Job, and seen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is full of tender compassion and pitiful. But before all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, nor by the earth, nor by any other oath; but let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay, that ye do not fall under judgment. Does any one among you suffer evil? let him pray: is any happy? let him sing psalms: is any one sick among you? let him call to [him] the elders of the assembly, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of [the] Lord; and the prayer of faith shall heal the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he be one who have committed sins, it shall be forgiven him. Confess therefore^l your offences to one another, and pray for one another, that ye may be healed. [The] fervent^m supplication of the righteous [man] has much power. Elias ^f Or perhaps 'ye are' The copies vary between ἔστι, ἔστε, ἔσται. * omits.

^g T. R. has ὡς in text.

^h Literally 'groan.'

ⁱ T. R. reads 'condemned.'

^k Many read 'who have endured,' ὑπομεινάντας for ὑπομένοντας, perhaps rightly.

^m Or 'operative.' This word puzzles all the critics. If not equivalent to ἐνεργός, it is a participle with the active sense constantly found in the New Testament. The English Version has combined the two, 'effectual' and 'fervent'; but it is hardly both. I do not think it is inwrought by spiritual power. It is rather the person who is ἐνεργούμενος, an energu-was a man of like passions to us, and he prayed with prayer that it should not rain; and it did not rain upon the earth three years and six months; and again he prayed, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth caused its fruit to spring forth.

FIRST EPISTLE OF PETER.

PETER, apostle of Jesus Christ, to [the] sojourners of [the] dispersion of Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, elect according to [the] foreknowledge of God [the] Father, by sanctification of [the] Spirit, unto [the] obedience and sprinkling of [the] blood^o of Jesus Christ: Grace to you and peace be multiplied.

³ Blessed [be] the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who, according to his great mercy, has begotten us again to a living hope through [the] resurrection of Jesus ⁴ Christ from among [the] dead, to an incorruptible and undefiled and unfading inheritance, reserved in ⁵ [the] heavens for you, who are kept guarded by the power of God through faith for salvation ready to be revealed in [the] last ⁶ time.^p Wherein^q ye exult, for a little while at present, if needed, ⁷ put to grief by various trials,^r that the proving of your faith, much more precious than of gold which perishes, though it be proved by fire, be found to praise and glory and honour^s in [the] revelation of ⁸ Jesus Christ, whom, having not seen, ye love; on^t whom [though] not now looking but believing ye exult with joy unspeakable and ⁹ filled with the glory,^v receiving the end of your faith, [the] salvation of ¹⁰ [your] souls;^w concerning which salvation prophets, who have prophesied of the grace towards you, sought out and searched out;

^o I have no doubt whatever that 'Jesus Christ' is in connexion with 'obedience,' as well as with the 'sprinkling of the blood.'

^p The reader will remark how the article is everywhere left out in the original Greek here, making it all characteristic and descriptive.

^q Or 'in which [time],'^r ἐν φ, either in general, or agrees with time.

^s T. R. reads 'honour and glory.' Goo

^t εις ὧν does not, I think, refer to ἀγαλλιάσθε; it would be ἐν φ. It may to both the participles, which, I think, is the natural construction. If not, it is connected with the first, ὁπῶντες; the participles are then, as often, causatives.

^v 'Filled with the glory,' literally 'glorified.'

^w Literally 'salvation of souls,' in contrast with temporal deliverances, to which, as Jews, they were accustomed to look.

I PETER I, II.

11 searching what, or what manner of time, the Spirit of Christ which [was] in them pointed out, testifying before of the sufferings which [belonged] to Christ, and the 12 glories after these; to whom it was revealed, that not to themselves but to you^x they ministered those things, which have now been announced to you by those who have declared to you the glad tidings by^y [the] Holy Ghost sent from heaven, which 13 angels desire to look into. Wherefore,^z girding up the loins of your mind, [be] sober [and] hope with perfect steadfastness in the grace [which will be] brought to you at [the] revelation of Jesus Christ;
 14 as children of obedience, not conformed^a to [your] former lusts in 15 your ignorance; but as he who has called you is holy, be ye also holy in all [your] conversation;
 16 because it is written, Be ye holy,
 17 for I am holy. And if ye invoke as Father him who, without regard of persons, judges according to the work of each, pass your time 18 of sojourn in fear, knowing that ye have been redeemed, not by corruptible [things, as] silver or gold, from your vain conversation handed down from [your] fathers, 19 but by precious blood,^b as of a lamb without blemish and without 20 spot: [the blood] of Christ, fore-known indeed before [the] foundation of [the] world, but who has been manifested at the end^c of the times for your sakes, who by 21 him do believe on God, who has raised him up from among [the] dead and given him glory, that your faith and hope should be in 22 God.^d Having purified your souls by obedience to the truth^e to unfeigned brotherly love, love one another out of a pure heart fervently. Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by [the] living and abiding 23 word of God.^f Because all flesh [is] as grass, and^g all its glory as [the] flower of grass. The grass has withered and [its]^h flower has 24 fallen; but the word of [the] Lord abides for ever. But this is the word which in the glad tidings [is] preached to you.

II. Laying aside therefore all malice and all guile and hypocrisies and envyings and all evil speakings, 25 as newborn babes desire earnestly the pure mental milk of the word,ⁱ that by it ye may grow up to salva-

^x T. R. reads 'us.'

^y ἐν, 'in the power of.'

^z Or 'having girded up.' But the present expresses here in English better what is morally antecedent, 'to be sober,' which is a present participle: 'being in that state, hope:' 'having girded, being sober, hope.'

^a I say 'conformed,' because conformed is not passive in English, and expresses a state. The path in which they walked is the sense here. 'Conforming yourselves' is too active and intentional.

^b Or 'by precious blood, as of Christ, a lamb without blemish and without spot;' or 'by [the] precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot.'

^c T. R. has ἐσχάτων for ἐσχάτου.

^d Or 'so that your faith and hope are in God.'

^e T. R. adds 'through [the] Spirit.'

^f T. R. reads 'abiding for ever,' εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

^g T. R. reads 'all the glory of man.'

^h 'Its' is doubtful. If not genuine we must read 'the.'

ⁱ No word is satisfactory here for λογικόν; for though it doubtless has the sense of 'suited to the rational faculties'—the mind in contrast with the body—yet I believe there is allusion to the word

I PETER II.

3 tion,^k if indeed ye have tasted that 4 the Lord [is] good. To whom coming, a living stone, cast away indeed as worthless by men, but with God 5 chosen, precious, yourselves also,
 as living stones,^l are being built up a spiritual house,^m a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.
 6 Becauseⁿ it is contained in the scripture: Behold, I lay in Zion a corner stone, elect, precious: and he that believes^o on him shall not 7 be put to shame. To you therefore who believe [is] the preciousness; but to the disobedient, the stone which the builders cast away
 as worthless, this is become head 8 of [the] corner, and a stone of stumbling and rock of offence; [who] stumble at the word, being disobedient,^p to which also they 9 have been appointed. But ye [are] a chosen race, a kingly priesthood, a holy nation, a people for a possession, that ye might set forth the excellencies of him who has called you out of darkness to 10 his wonderful light; who once [were] not a people, but now God's people; who were not enjoying mercy, but now have found mercy.^q

11 Beloved, I exhort [you] as strangers and sojourners, to abstain from fleshly lusts, which^r 12 war against the soul; having your conversation honest among the Gentiles, that [as to that] in which^s they speak against you as evildoers, they may through [your] good works, [themselves] witnessing [them], glorify God in [the] day of visitation.

13 Be in subjection therefore to every human institution for the 14 Lord's sake; whether to [the] king as supreme, or to rulers as sent by him, for vengeance on evildoers, and praise to them 15 that do well. Because so is the will of God, that by well doing ye put to silence the ignorance of 16 senseless^t men; as free, and not λόγος. I have added 'of the word' to mark this allusion.

^k T. R. omits 'up to salvation.'

^l Or, with some, 'be ye built up' or 'build yourselves up.' But the text is,
 I doubt not, right.

^m Many good authorities read 'for' a holy priesthood, but I rather take it for a gloss.

ⁿ T. R. reads 'Wherefore.'

^o Or 'trusts in it'

^p On the whole I prefer 'stumble at the word, being disobedient,' to 'stumble, being disobedient to the word.' It takes up ἀπειθεῖντες, absolutely, used in the same manner (ver. 7).

^q I have endeavoured to express the perfect and aorist: ἡλαλημένοι and ἔλαθηθεν ες.

^r αἰτινες, which have this character, not simply αἱ, 'which.'

^s ἐν φ. It is used for time (Mark ii. 19, John v. 7): still with the idea 'in the state of things in which.' (Rom. viii. 3.) It has practically the sense of 'inasmuch as, considered in that view' (Rom. ii. 1, xiv.

 22) it is 'wherein,' but not strictly, I judge, in the latter case, nor here. In both it is more than 'wherein'—'viewed in that light in which,' 'considered in that view,'
 'in that respect in which.' 'Whereas' is mere contrast, without reference to the object of φ. That does not do exactly;
 it is too vague; 'wherein' a little too precise. He does not mean in that particular thing exactly, but in respect of that very walk and course of conduct.

^t ἀφρόνων ἀνθρώπων has the article here, as showing that it is not 'some men who are foolish,' but that men (not christians) are so, are known in that character. τῶν stands for all—ἀφρόνων for the character of all who are pointed out by the name of ἀνθρώπων. It is wider than verse 12 somewhat: there Gentiles, here men.
 The English is necessarily ambiguous.
 It is the real defect of English, otherwise the richest (and most flexible of

as having liberty as a cloak of malice,^v but as God's bondsmen.
 17 Shew honour to all,^w love the brotherhood, fear God, honour the 18 king. Servants,^x [be] subject with all fear to your masters, not only to the good and gentle, but also 19 to the ill-tempered. For this [is] acceptable, if one, for conscience sake towards God, endure griefs, 20 suffering unjustly. For what glory [is it], if sinning and being buffeted ye shall bear it? but if, doing good^y and suffering, ye shall bear [it],
 21 this is acceptable with God. For to this have ye been called; for Christ also has suffered for you,^z leaving you a model^a that ye 22 should follow in his steps; who did no sin, neither was guile found 23 in his mouth; who, [when] reviled, reviled not again; [when] suffering, threatened not; but gave^b [himself] over into the hands of 24 him who judges righteously; who himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, in order that, being dead^c to sins, we may live to righteousness; by whose stripes^d

 25 ye have been healed. For ye were as straying sheep, but have now returned to the shepherd and overseer of your souls.

III. Likewise, wives, [be] subject^e to your own husbands, that, even if any are disobedient to the word, they may^f be gained without [the] word by the conversation of the 2 wives, having witnessed your pure conversation [carried out] in fear;
 3 whose adorning let it not be that outward one of tressing of hair, and wearing gold, or putting on 4 apparel; but the hidden man of languages. 'Senseless men' may mean men who are so, or say of men, that they are so. The article makes it the latter.

^v Here the article is contrastive: that thing liberty as cloak of that thing malice.

^w τιμῆσατε, aorist; the rest present. Hence, here, more the act when occasion arises; the others, the constant habit of mind.

^x οἰκέται, 'household servants,' not necessarily 'slaves,' δούλοι.

^y Not τὸ καλόν, or καλῶς ποιοῦντες, but ἀγαθοποιῦντες. I think his mind goes beyond the servants to doing good generally as christians.

^z Authorized Version in both cases has 'us' for 'you' in margin. The sense is not really different, and the reading very difficult to determine. But 'ye should follow' seems to decide for 'you' before 'a model:' while 'suffered for us' is the natural expression of the apostle's heart. The critics differ. The majority of moderns read 'suffered for you, leaving you.' So does Cod. Sin., but has by mistake ἀπέθανε for ἔπαθε. Tisch. 'for us, leaving you.' Alford, as T. R., 'you, you,' so s, B, C, A. Syr. I suppose 'us, us,' with Vul. and It.

^a A copy, as we say, to write after.

^b παραδίωμι is to deliver up into the hands of another, give over into. I think therefore the sense must be 'gave himself up to, suffered all, as accepting all from his hand:' gave himself up to take whatever he sent who would in the end righteously judge. I do not see that παραδίωμι has ever the sense of 'committing a wrong to another to vindicate,' as some would translate here. But it has of committing anyone to the care of another. See Acts xv. 40, xiv. 26. Compare John xix. 30; and I doubt not this is the sense, though some would read '[them]' instead of '[himself].'

^c Or 'having done with;' but better as in text.

^d Or 'bruise.' Though μῶλωπι be singular, I say 'stripes.' It is literally the marks left by scourging. 'Stripe' does not convey this. Other words are too familiar.

^e Not the same as chap. ii 13. There a-rist, a particular act: here present participle, an habitual state; following on chap. ii 18.

^f Many read 'they shall be,' but o is so often put for ω in the old copies that I have changed nothing. B has o, not ω. The change may have been made to render the structure of the phrase easier. The weight of MS testimony is clearly in favour of 'shall.'

I PETER III.

the heart, in the incorruptible [ornament] of a meek and quiet spirit, which in the sight of God ⁵ is of great price. For thus also heretofore the holy women who have hoped in God adorned themselves, being subject to their own ⁶ husbands; as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him Lord; whose children ye have become, & doing good, and not fearing with any ⁷ kind of consternation. [Ye] husbands likewise, dwell with [them] according to knowledge, as with a weaker, [even] the female, vessel, giving [them] honour, as also fellow-heirs of [the] grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered. ⁸ Finally, [be] all of one mind, sympathizing, full of brotherly love, tender hearted, humble minded; ⁹ not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing; but on the contrary, blessing [others], because ¹ ye have been called to this, that ye should inherit blessing. ¹⁰ For he that will love life and see good days, let him cause his tongue to cease from evil, and his ¹¹ lips that they speak no guile. Let him avoid evil, and do good. Let him seek peace and pursue it: ¹² because the eyes of [the] Lord [are] on [the] righteous, and his ears towards their supplications. But [the] face of [the] Lord [is] against ¹³ them that do evil. And who shall injure you if ye have become imitators of that which [is] ^k good? ¹⁴ But if also ye should suffer for righteousness sake, blessed [are ye]; but be not afraid of their ¹⁵ fear, neither be troubled; but sanctify the Lord Christ ¹ in your hearts, and [be] always prepared to [give] an answer [to] every one that asks you to give an account ^m of the hope that [is] in you, but ¹⁶ with meekness and fear; having a good conscience, that [as to that] in which ^o they speak against you as evildoers, they may be ashamed who calumniate your good conversation in Christ. For [it is] ¹⁷ better, if the will of God wills it, to suffer [as] well doers than [as] ¹⁸ evildoers; for Christ indeed has once suffered for sins, [the] just for [the] unjust, ^p that he might bring us to God; being put to death in flesh, but made alive in ¹⁹ [the] ^q Spirit, in which also going

^s That is, supposing, assuming they did.

^h T. R. reads for 'humble-minded,' 'friendly' or 'courteous.'

ⁱ T. R. reads 'knowing that ye,' that is, adds εἰδότες.

^k Or 'of the good one,' 'him that is good.'

^m Or 'a reason for;' it includes both ideas. In Matt. xii. 38, Acts xix. 40 it is 'account,' but in the latter 'a reason for,' also so elsewhere. So chap. iv. 5.

ⁿ T. R. omits 'but.'

^o See note to chap. ii. 12.

^p 'The just for the unjust' is more the abstract idea than 'a just one for the unjust.' The reader must only remember the first is singular, the second plural. It is not the just par excellence—δικαίος, not ὁ δίκαιος: not as in Acts iii. τὸν ἄγιον καὶ δίκαιον.

^q T. R. has τῷ πνεύματι, 'by the Spirit.' The article being left out, it is characteristic, in contrast with σαρκί. Both flesh and spirit, are the manner and character of what is predicated of Christ. But we can hardly in English say 'in spirit.' We could say 'present in spirit,' 'servent in spirit,' because it is characteristic: but 'made alive' cannot, to the English mind, fall of a reality—cannot be simply characteristic. In Greek the word retains its own reality, and, as such, characterizes. Hence ἐν ᾧ can follow. English is more logical: a character or manner is truly a character or manner, but not always so convenient. The sense as I have given it is right. 'In spirit, in which' is clearly not English.

he preached to the spirits [which 20 are] in prison, heretofore^r disobedient,^s when the long-suffering of God waited in [the] days of Noe while [the] ark was preparing, into which few, that is, eight souls, were saved^t through water, 21 which figure^v also now saves you,^w [even] baptism, not a putting away of [the] filth of flesh, but [the] demand^x as before^y God of a good conscience, by [the] resur-
 22 rection of Jesus Christ, who is at [the] right hand of God, gone into heaven, angels and authorities and powers being subjected to him,

IV. Christ, then, having suffered for us^z in [the] flesh, do ye also arm yourselves with the same mind; for he that has suffered in 2 [the] flesh has done with sin,^a no longer to live the rest of [his] time in [the] flesh to men's lusts,

 3 but to God's will. For the time past^b [is] sufficient for us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, walking in lasciviousness, lusts,
 4 and unhallowed idolatries. Wherein they think it strange that ye run not with [them] to the same sink of corruption,^c speaking in-
 5 juriously [of you]; who shall render account to him who is ready to judge [the] living and [the]
 6 dead. For to this [end] were the glad tidings preached to [the] dead also, that they might be judged,

^s Or 'disbelieving.'

^t εἰς ἣν διασώζομαι means in Greek 'arrive safe into a place of security through difficulty or danger.' Thus Thuc. καὶ ὀλίγοι πορευόμενοι διὰ τῆς Λιβύης ἐς Κυρήνην διεσώθησαν. Again, χαλεπῶς, διεσώζοντο ἐς τὰς ὄλας. And again, διεσώζοντο εἰς τὴν πόλιν. I do not say that 'they went through the water to get in,' is meant by δι' ὕδατος; I do not think so. If anyone likes to say 'into which [entering], few, &c., were saved through water,' I have no objection. Had it been through the course of the flood, it would have been, I think, τοῦ ὕδατος. But the apostle's mind does not turn to the flood, but to water as an instrument. Water was ruin and death, and they were saved through it.

^v T. R. has 'the figure of which,' reads φ not δ. Steph. 1550 has δ, Beza φ. ^w has neither.

^z Or 'engagement,' or 'testimony.' The word ἐπερώτημα is a very difficult one, and has puzzled all critics and commentators. It means 'a question.' All the commentators speak of its use as a legal term with the sense of contract, or rather stipulations or obligations of a contract. Schleusner says, citing another, it is never so used, but ἐπερώτησις: (Bloomfield after Dindorf denies this:) and in Latin it is interro-

gatio. Tertullian, describing the sponso of a catechumen at baptism, refers evidently to this passage of Peter. But this was a much later form. Both Herodotus and Thucydides use the word, and Herodotus (Erato. 87) both ἐπερώτημα and ἐπειρώτησις in the same place. I judge (as usual in these forms) ἐπερώτησις is the asking the question, and ἐπερώτημα the question asked. The legal use arises from a questioning which settled the terms of the contract, hence called the questioning. ἐπερωτῶ is to ask and to ask for. I am disposed to think it is the thing demanded. It requires as before God, and has it in baptism as a figure by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. εἰς would thus be 'as before, in view of.' If not, it would represent the Hebrew shahal le. In Job viii. 8 this has le of the person: otherwise le is 'about,' as 2 Sam. xi. 7, and Gen. xxvi. 7.

^y 'As before;' or 'to.' εἰς, 'towards,' 'going to.' It must be remembered that the genitive, as in English, may be the thing requested, or 'he who requests.' The demand of a good conscience. ἐπερώτημα would rather make it the thing demanded.

^a Some omit 'for us.' ^z reads 'for you.'

^b See in Kypke abundant proofs of this use of πρὸς.

^c T. R. adds 'of life.'

^d Or 'dissolution,' the heart being poured out into it. Or 'excess of profligacy.'

as regards men, after [the] flesh ; but live, as regards God, after 7 [the] Spirit. But the end of all things is drawn nigh : be sober therefore, and be watchful unto 8 prayers ; but before all things having fervent love among yourselves, because love covers^d a multitude of sins ; hospitable one to 9 another, without murmuring ; each according as he has received a gift, ministering it to one another, as good stewards of [the] various 10 grace of God. If any one speak—as oracles of God ; if any one minister—as of strength which God supplies ; that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom is the glory and the might for the ages of ages. Amen.

12 Beloved, take not [as] strange the fire [of persecution] which has taken place amongst you for [your] trial, as if a strange thing was 13 happening to you ; but as ye have share in the sufferings of Christ, rejoice, that in the revelation of his glory also ye may rejoice with 14 exultation. If ye are reproached in [the] name of Christ, blessed [are ye] ; for the [Spirit] of glory and the Spirit of God^e rests upon you :

[on their part he is blasphemed, but on your part he is glorified.]^f
 15 Let none of you suffer indeed as murderer, or thief, or evildoer, or as overseer of other people's 16 matters ; but if as a christian, let him not be ashamed, but glorify
 17 God in this name.^g For the time of having the judgment begin from the house of God [is come] ; but if first from us, what [shall be] the end of those who obey^h not 18 the glad tidings of God ? And if the righteous is difficultly saved,ⁱ where shall the impious and the 19 sinner appear ? Wherefore also let them who suffer according to the will of God commit their souls in well doing^k to a faithful Creator.

V. The elders^l which [are] among you I exhort, who [am their] fellow elder and witness of the sufferings of the Christ, who also [am] partaker of the glory about
 2 to be revealed ; shepherd^m the flock of God which [is] among you, exercising oversight not by necessity, but willingly ; not for base
 3 gain, but readily ; not as lording it over yourⁿ possessions, but being 4 models for the flock. And when the chief shepherd is manifested ye

^e Or 'the Spirit of glory and of God.'
 There is a shade of difference in the force of the expressions. Some add 'and of power' after glory.
^f These words are, to say the least, very doubtful. ^g A, B, have them not, C fails, Syr. Pesch. not, It. and Cyp. have ; so that they were early accepted.
^g T. R. reads 'behalf.'
^h Or 'believe not.'
ⁱ Here on the earth, as through the trials and judgments specially which beset the Jewish christians.
^k T. R. adds 'as,' with several authorities.
^m 'Shepherd' is here the aorist, in the sense, I think, common in a certain class of words, that is, characteristic : the whole conduct in this character being looked at together as constituting it. They are to act in this character, or have it by their acting. It is not simply an exhortation to go on doing it, but to acquire or have that character by doing it ; to be so characterized ; as the wives were to be subject. 'Be shepherders,' if that were possible in English.

ⁿ The $\tau\omicron\nu\varsigma$ seems to me to have the force, which it often has, of appropriation to the subject spoken of, when the word gives the idea of a possession—the possessions, or possessions which belong to you. What they are is wholly beside the mark. No doubt the saints, in fact, shall receive the^o unfading crown of glory.

I PETER V.

- ⁵ Likewise [ye] younger, be subject to [the] elder, and all of you bind on humility^p towards one another; for God sets himself against [the] proud, but to [the] ⁶ humble gives grace. Humble yourselves^q therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt ⁷ you in [the due] time; having cast all your care upon him, for he ⁸ cares about you. Be vigilant, watch.^r ^sYour adversary [the] devil as a roaring lion walks about, seeking whom he may devour. ⁹ Whom resist, stedfast in faith,^t knowing that the selfsame sufferings are accomplished in your

- brotherhood which [is] in [the] ¹⁰ world. But the God of all grace, who has called you^w to his eternal glory in Christ Jesus, when ye have suffered for a little while, himself shall^x make perfect, stablish, strengthen, ground: to him ¹¹ [be] they^y glory and the might, for the ages of the ages. Amen. ¹² By Sylvanus, the faithful brother to you, as I suppose, I have written to you briefly, exhorting and testifying that this is [the] true grace of God in which ye stand.^z ¹³ She^a that is elected with [you] in Babylon salutes you, and Marcus ¹⁴ my son. Salute one another with a kiss of love. Peace be with you all who [are] in Christ.^b were in his thoughts; but the character of their conduct is what is in question. If there were no article, it would mean 'not like persons who lord it over possessions:' here it is more applied. Do not ye be as persons lording it over your possessions, viewing the saints as something belonging to you. οι κληροι is not the name of the flock, but the flock was not to be treated as the οι κληροι of the elders.

^o Or 'amaranthine.' The plant an image of what does not fade (immortelles), amaranths. The sense is the same.

^q Or 'be humbled.' See Winer iii. 4, 40, 2. (5 ed. 303.)

^r Here also the verb refers to characters to be won, aorists. Be those who have done so.

^s T. R. reads 'because your.'

^t Or 'in the faith.' It might be 'through faith.'

^u T. R. reads 'us.'

^v T. R. leaves out 'shall,' reading the imperative.

^w Many omit 'the glory and the;' possibly they are right. ^x has it.

^y Many read 'stand.'

^z It may be brotherhood, as at verse 9, as that is feminine; or his wife, as it is simply co-elect in the feminine.

^a T. R. adds 'Amen,' and 'Jesus' after Christ.

SECOND EPISTLE OF PETER.

SIMON PETER, bondsman and apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have received like precious faith with us through [the] righteousness of our God and Saviour ² Jesus Christ: grace and peace be multiplied to you in [the] knowledge^c of God and of Jesus our ³ Lord. As his divine power has given to us all things which relate to life and godliness, through the knowledge^c of him that has called us by^d glory and virtue, ⁴ through which he has given to ^c ἐπίγνωσις.

^d Many read 'by [his] own glory,' &c.

II PETER I.

us the greatest and precious promises, that through these ye may become partakers of [the] divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in [the] world through lust.

- ⁵ But for this very reason also, using therewith^e all diligence, in your faith have also^f virtue, in ⁶ virtue knowledge, in knowledge temperance, in temperance endurance, in endurance godliness, in godliness brotherly love, in ⁷ brotherly love love: for these things existing and abounding in you make [you] to be neither idle nor unfruitful as regards the knowledge^g of our Lord Jesus ⁸ Christ; for he with whom these things are not present is blind, shortsighted, and has forgotten the purging of his former sins. ⁹ Wherefore the rather, brethren, use diligence to make your calling and election sure, for doing these ¹⁰ things ye will never fall. For thus shall the entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ be richly furnished unto you. ¹¹ Wherefore I will be careful^h to put you always in mind of these things, although knowing [them] and established in the present ¹² truth. But I account it right, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting [you] in ¹³ remembrance, knowing that the putting off of my tabernacle is speedily [to take place], as also our Lord Jesus Christ has mani- ¹⁴ fested to me; but I will use diligence, that after my departure ye¹ should have also, at every time, [in your power] to call to mind ¹⁵ these things. For we have not made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, following cleverly imagined fables, but having been ¹⁶ eye-witnesses of his majesty. For he received¹ from God [the] Father honour and glory, such a voice being uttered^m to him by the excellent glory: This is my beloved Son, in whom I have found my delight; ¹⁷ and this voice we heard uttered^m from heaven, being with him on ¹⁸ the holy mountain. And we have the prophetic word [made] surer, to which ye do well taking heed (as to a lamp shining in an ob- ¹⁹ scure place) until [the] day dawn and [the] morning star arise in

^f Literally 'supply,' 'furnish besides.' There is a δέ between these words, but it answers more to the sense in English to leave it out altogether than say 'and.' 'But' does not do. It is 'not only that but.'

^g ἐπίγνωσις, 'full knowledge,' or 'personal recognition of.'

^h Or 'use diligence,' 'take care it shall be so.' T. R. reads 'I will not neglect.'

¹ Or, perhaps, 'I will endeavour that after my decease ye should also at every time.'

^k ἐπόπτης, not αὐτόπτης, 'admitted into immediate vision of the glory,' a word used for full initiation into the mysteries.

¹ Literally 'for having received.' This may in sense be connected with verse 19, but hardly grammatically; or taken abstractedly with verse 16, as I suppose the English did, 'eye-witnesses of his majesty, for he is one who has received.' On the whole, I have given it the latter sense, putting the literal translation here in the note. Compare chap. ii. 1, where with καί we have a participle similarly used.

^m Or 'brought, or borne to him.'

²⁰ your hearts; knowing this first, that [the scope of] no prophecy of scripture is had from its own
²¹ particular interpretation,^a for prophecy was not ever^o uttered by [the] will of man, but^p holy men of God spake under the influence^q of [the] Holy Ghost.

II. But there were false prophets also among the people, as there shall be also among you false teachers, who^r shall bring in by the bye destructive heresies, and deny^s the master that bought them, bringing upon themselves swift ² destruction; and many shall follow their dissolute^t ways, through whom the way of the truth shall
³ be blasphemed. And through covetousness, with well-turned^v words, will they make merchandize of you: for whom judgment of old is not idle, and their destruction slumbers not. For if God
⁴ spared not [the] angels who had sinned, but having cast them down to the deepest pit of gloom has delivered them to chains^w of darkness [to be] kept for judgment;
⁵ and spared not [the] old world, but preserved Noe, [the] eighth,^x a preacher of righteousness, having brought in [the] flood upon [the] ⁶ world of [the] ungodly; and having reduced [the] cities of Sodom and Gomorrha to ashes, condemned [them] with an overthrow, setting [them as] an example to those that should [afterwards] live an

⁷ ungodly life; and saved righteous Lot, distressed with the abandoned
⁸ conversation of the godless, (for the righteous man, through seeing and hearing, dwelling among them, tormented [his] righteous soul day after day with [their] lawless
⁹ works,) [the] Lord knows [how] to deliver the godly out of trial, and to keep [the] unjust to [the] day
¹⁰ of judgment [to be] punished; and specially those who walk after the flesh in [the] lust of uncleanness, and despise lordship. Bold [are they], self-willed; they do not fear speaking injuriously of digni-
¹¹ ties:^y when^z angels, who are greater in might and power, do not bring against them, before the ¹² Lord, an injurious charge. But these, as natural animals without reason, made to be caught and destroyed, speaking injuriously in

^a ἰδίᾳ ἐπιλύσεως γίνεται is explained by its own meaning as a human sentence. It must be understood by and according to the Spirit that uttered it. The prophecy is, I take it, the sense of the prophecy, the thing meant by it. Now this is not gathered by a human interpretation of an isolated passage which has its own meaning, its own solution, and has its own meaning as if a man uttered it; for it is a part of God's mind, uttered as holy men were moved by the Holy Ghost to utter it. In the prophecy of scripture the apostle has in mind the thing prophesied, without losing the idea of the passage. Hence I have ventured to say 'scope of no prophecy.' One might almost say 'no prophecy explains itself.'

^o Or 'heretofore.'
^p T. R. reads 'the holy men.'
^q φερόμενοι 'borne by.'
^r οἷτινες, 'being such as.'
^s Literally 'and denying.' It refers to the false teachers, not the heresies.
^t T. R. reads 'destructive.'
^v Or 'false.'
^w Some read 'caves or dens of darkness,' σειραῖς for σείραις.
^x That is, one of eight.
^y Literally 'glories.'
^z Though ὅπου signifies 'where,' it is represented by 'when' in English. 'Whereas' is more ground of inference or expression of contrast inferentially used. 'When' gives the sense more nearly than 'where' or 'whereas.' 'When' means 'in the case in which.'

things they are ignorant of, shall also perish in their own corruption, receiving [the] reward of unrighteousness; accounting ephemeral^a indulgence pleasure; spots, and blemishes, rioting in their own deceits, feasting with you; having eyes full of adultery, and that cease not from sin, alluring unestablished souls; having a heart practised in covetousness,^b children of curse; having left the straight way they have gone astray, having followed^c in the path of Balaam, [the son] of Bosor, who loved [the] reward of unrighteousness; but had^d reproof of his own wickedness, [the] dumb ass speaking with man's voice forbad the folly of the prophet. These are springs without water, and mists^d driven by storm, to whom the gloom of darkness is reserved for ever.^e For [while] speaking great highflown words of vanity, they allure with [the] lusts of [the] flesh, by dissoluteness, those who had just^f fled those who walk in error, promising them liberty, while they themselves are slaves of corruption; for by whom a man is subdued, by him is he also brought into slavery. For if after having escaped the pollutions of the world through [the] knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, again entangled, they are subdued by these, their last state is worse²¹ than the first. For it were better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than having known [it] to turn back from the holy commandment delivered²² to them. But^h that [word] of the true proverb has happened to them: [The] dog [has] turned back to his own vomit; and, [The] washed sow to [her] rolling in mud.

III. This, a second letter, beloved, I already write to you, in [both] which I stir up, in the way of putting you in remembrance, your² pure mind, to be mindful of the words spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of the Lord and Saviour by³ your¹ apostles; knowing this first, that there shall come at [the] close^k of the days mockers with mocking,¹ walking according⁴ to their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for from the time the fathers fell asleep all things remain thus^m

^a Or 'by day,' in contrast with 'they that be drunk are drunk in the night.' But see Weststein in loco, where it is - εν ημερα: it is here. But the use of τουφην makes the sense of this pretty clear.

^b Or 'carnal desire and seeking to seduce,' 'practised in seduction.' And this I really believe to be the sense. T. R. has the word in the plural.

^c ετακολουθησαντες seems to have the simple force of ακολουθησαντες. (See chap. i. 16, ii 2.)

^e Some omit 'for ever.'

^f T. R. for 'just,' reads 'really.'

^g επιγνωσει, as always in this epistle;

so επιγνωσει, επιγνωσει in verse 21. In chap. iii. 3 it is γνωσκοντες.

^h Some omit 'but.'

ⁱ T. R. reads 'of us the apostles,' της των αποστολων ημων. The construction is difficult with a double genitive. The simplest way seems to consider the υπο before α. προφητων as understood before αποστολων, if not it must be read τ. κ. κ. s. and these words must be joined with αποστολων. But with ημων that is impossible.

^k εσχάτων here, not εσχάτων, as T. R.

^m Or 'as they were.' For this rendering as the practical sense, see John iv. 6. The force of ούτω is the present state:

II PETER III.

from [the] beginning of [the] ⁵ creation. For this is hidden from them through their own wilfulness, that heavens were of old, and an earth, having its subsistence out of water and in water, by ⁶ the word of God, through which [waters] the then world, deluged ⁷ with water, perished. But the present^a heavens and the earth by his^b word are laid up in store, kept for fire unto a day of judgment and destruction of ungodly men. But let not this one thing be hidden from you, beloved, that one day with [the] Lord [is] as a thousand years, and a thousand ⁹ years as one day. The Lord does not delay his promise, as some account of delay, but is longsuffering towards you,^c not willing^d that any should perish, but that all ¹⁰ should come^e to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief,^f in which the heavens will pass away with a rushing noise, and [the] elements, burning with heat, shall be dissolved, and [the] earth and the works in it shall be burnt up.

¹¹ All these things then being to be dissolved, what ought ye to be in holy conversation and godli-¹²ness, waiting for and hastening

the coming of the day of God, by reason of which [the] heavens, being on fire, shall be dissolved, and [the]^g elements, burning with ¹³ heat, shall melt? But, according to his promise, we wait for new heavens and a new earth, where-¹⁴in dwells righteousness. Wherefore, beloved, as ye wait for these things, be diligent to be found of him in peace, without spot and ¹⁵ blameless; and account the long-suffering of our Lord [to be] salvation; according as our beloved brother Paul also has written to you according to the wisdom given ¹⁶ to him, as also in all [his] epistles, speaking in them of these things, among which some things are hard to be understood, which the untaught and ill-established wrest, as also the other scriptures, to their own destruction.

¹⁷ Ye therefore, beloved, knowing [these] things before, take care lest, being led away along with the error of the wicked, ye should fall from your own steadfastness: ¹⁸ but grow in grace, and in [the] knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him [be] glory both now and to [the] day of eternity. Amen.

as that they have continued, but with 'continue' in English we must say 'as they were.' See Acts xx. 11, xxvii. 17. See Winer, p. 702. Comp. καίς οὐτως, II 21, 134, 'the state in which you already are,' quoted by Liddell and Scott. The sense is perfectly plain.

^a Literally 'now heavens.'

^c T. R. reads 'us.'

^d βυλόμηνος

^e Some would translate χωρέω by 'go on to.' But I doubt this. χωρέω has also the sense of the issue of a thing, 'turning out,' as we say. Nor do I think that εἰς is a difficulty. It is commonly used with an adverb, but absolutely also. Hence 'come' is the word. It means, 'to turn out so.' Some would say 'receive.' See Kypke in loco. Josephus (in De Wette) has also εἰς πόλιν ἐχωρῆν.

^f T. R. adds ἐν νυκτί, 'in [the] night.'

^g The absence of the article is poetic here, because of which inflamed heavens shall be dissolved, and burning elements shall melt.' The participle takes the place of the article so to speak.

FIRST EPISTLE OF JOHN.

THAT which was from [the] beginning, that which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes; that which we contemplated, and our hands handled, concerning the word of life; (and the life has been manifested, and we have seen, and bear witness, and report to you the eternal life, which^v was with the Father, and has been manifested to us :) that which we have seen and heard we report^w to you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; but our fellowship [is] indeed with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. And these things write we to you that your joy may be full. And this is the message which we have heard from him, and declare to you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we^x say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not practise the truth. But if we^x walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus Christ^y his Son cleanses us from all^z sin.

^w ἀπαγγέλλω, 'bring back the report of,' from something we have learnt.

^x In all these cases the verb is in the subjunctive, and puts the case of so doing. I should have translated them 'if we should say,' &c., but that it is the case in verse 9 also, where it cannot be done.

^y Some omit 'Christ' here.

^z Or 'every.'

^a παράκλητος, the same word translated

8 If we^x say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

9 If we^x confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us [our] sins, and purify us from all^z unrighteousness.

10 If we^x say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

II. My children, these things I write to you in order that ye may not sin; and if any one sin, we have a patron^a with the Father, Jesus Christ [the] righteous; and he is the propitiation for our sins; but not for ours alone, but also for the whole world.

3 And hereby we know that we know^b him, if we keep his commandments. He that says, I know^b him, and does not keep his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him; but whoever keeps^c his word, in him verily the love of God is perfected. Hereby we know that we are in⁶ him. He that says he abides in him ought, even as he walked, himself also so to walk.

'comforter' John xiv. &c. Christ manages all our affairs for us above; the Holy Spirit below. There is no word satisfactory to embrace both passages in English. I use 'patron' in the sense rather of the Roman patron, who maintained the interests of his clients in every way. So Christ on high; the Spirit here for saints.

^b ἐγνώκαμεν, perfect: have 'come to know him, and continue to do.'

^c Again a subjunctive; see chap. i. 6. In English we might say 'shall' here.

I JOHN II.

7 Beloved,^d I write no new commandment to you, but an old commandment, which ye have had^e from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye^f heard.^f Again, I write a new commandment to you, which thing is true in him^g and in you, because the darkness is passing and the^g true light already shines. He who says he is in the light, and hates his brother, is in the^g darkness until now. He that loves his brother abides in the light, and there is no occasion of stumbling^h in him. But he that hates his brother is in the darkness, and walks in the darkness, and knows not where he goes, because the darkness has blinded his eyes.

12 I write to you, children, because [your] sins are forgiven you for his name's sake.

13 I write to you, fathers, because ye haveⁱ known him [that is] from the beginning. I write to you, young men, because ye haveⁱ overcome the wicked [one]. I write^k to you, little children, because ye haveⁱ known the Father.

14 I have written to you, fathers, because ye haveⁱ known him [that is] from the beginning.

I have written to you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abides in you, and ye haveⁱ overcome the wicked

15 [one]. Love not the world, nor the things in the world. If any one love the world, the love of 16 the Father is not in him; because all that [is] in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world;

17 and the world is passing, and its lust, but he that does the will of God abides for eternity.

18 Little children, it is [the] last hour,^l and, according as ye have heard that^m antichrist comes, even now there have comeⁿ many

^d T. R. reads 'brethren,' instead of 'beloved.'

^e Or 'had.'

^g 'The darkness.' Though a little harsh in these cases in English, 'the' ought to be retained, because it is not simply a state—a man being in darkness, but a specific darkness—the ignorance and non-revelation of God is spoken of: only it is abstract, and so, absolute. Though it is true that darkness is more negative than light. The darkness is the natural condition of sinful man without God, who is light; the creature without God. Hence in the gospel 'the light shineth in darkness, and the darkness comprehended it not.' παράγεται is abstract. 'The true light shines:' that is absolute, seen or not. But though some had received the light, he could not say the darkness was all gone, for it was not, but only with some who 'were some time darkness, but now light in the Lord.' Thus it was not as in the gospel, when Christ was upon earth; for then the darkness comprehended not the light shining in darkness. It was putting the light out. As long as he was in the world, he was the light of the world. Now it was not so: there was a passing away of the darkness.

ⁱ ἐγνώκατε, γενικήκατε, &c., perfect: the state produced continues.

^k Very many ancient MSS read 'I have written' here, but I am satisfied it is meddling with the text, not seeing that little children comes in verse 18. ἡλιθία and τεκνία are not the same. My reader is made aware of the fact. But I do not change the received text.

^l John uses ᾠρα continually in the sense of 'time,' as John v., and elsewhere. But I would not change the word, and thus any peculiarity of style. ᾠρα is properly a given point of time. With John it is constantly a period characterized by one thing, and hence looked at as only one time. As we say 'the hour of Napoleon's greatness.'

^m T. R. reads 'the'

ⁿ 'There have come,' γενόμεσθιν: not the same word as 'comes.' But 'have been'

antichrists, whence we know that 19 it is [the] last hour. They went out from among us, but they were not of us; for if they had been of us, they would have surely remained with us, but that they might be made manifest that none 20 are of us.^o And ye have [the] unction from the holy [one], and 21 ye know all things. I have not written to you because ye do not know the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the 22 truth. Who is the liar but he who denies that Jesus is the Christ? He is the antichrist who denies the Father and the Son.
 23 Whoever^p denies the Son has not the Father either; he who confesses the Son has the Father

24 also.^q As for you^r let that which ye heard from the beginning abide in you: if what ye heard from the beginning abides in you, ye also shall abide in the Son and in the 25 Father. And this is the promise which he has promised us, life 26 eternal. These things have I written to you concerning those 27 who lead you astray: and yourselves,^s the unction which ye have received from him abides in you, and ye have not need that any one should teach you; but as the same unction teaches you as to all things, and is true and is not a lie, and even as it has taught you, ye shall^t abide in him.
 28 And now, children, abide in him, that if^v he be manifested we may would rather imply that they were passed, which γίνονται does not. 'There are' does not give the idea of their coming on the stage. γίνονται is what did not exist before, but begins or becomes; werden, not sein. 'There have come' I believe nearest the sense. I add the note on account of 'comes,' before. The sense of γίνονται hinders the necessity of holding the perfect here to express necessarily continued action; but the perfect excludes the idea that they are supposed to be passed away.

^o I have, with some hesitation, so translated it, though I know of no one who agrees with this but the unpleasant associate Socinus. But I think, though, in general, with πᾶς in the singular,
 the distinguishing form of the sentence,
 where 'none' is the sense, is, that οὐκ is used with the verb: πᾶσα σὰρξ οὐκ ἐστὶ. οὐ πᾶσα σὰρξ would be 'not all flesh.' But in π. σ. ο. ἐστὶ, πᾶσα σὰρξ has its own force. All flesh is in view, and the fact is denied of a l flesh actually and absolutely, of all comprised in the term. Hence no flesh is to be the thing or in the state spoken of. It is said of all flesh, that 'it would not be saved,' that is, none would. The negative with the noun contradicts the universality; with the verb contradicts about the universality the thing stated in the sentence. This last is the case here. The negative is joined to the verb. Further,

if we do not so translate it, it should be, not 'they are not all of us,' (that would imply that some of the antichrists were,) but that 'all are not of us,' that is, of those who might be with them. See, too, verse 21, and chap. iii. 8.

^p πᾶς, but 'every one' would give a false sense in English, and 'no one' does not do with 'either.'

^q T. R. omits 'he who confesses the Son has the Father also.'

^r T. R. adds 'therefore.'

^s The use of personal pronouns, which is usually emphatic in Greek, is so universal in John that I have hesitated to say 'yourselves.' However, there is some distinctive emphasis, it seems to me. her-, so I put it. The ὑμεῖς however appears also in ver. 24; and I have given it an emphatic place there, because it seems in contrast with 'those that denied the Son.'

^t It is somewhat doubtful if the reading be not μὲντε, that is, the imperative
 'abide.' So A, B, C, Vul. and old Latin, but I judge they are not to be trusted here.
 s omits from 'you' to second 'abide' by homocoteleuton. Tisch., De Wette, have 'ye shall abide;' Griesbach makes it equal; Alford 'abide'; so Lachmann.

^v 'If' (so 3 John 10) sets out what depends on the fact, not referring to time, but supposes the fact. Here, that any moment it might happen, we should be so and so: if that, this might be too.

I JOHN II, III.

have boldness, and not be put to shame from before him at his coming.

²⁹ If ye know ^w that he is righteous, know ^x that every one ^y who practises righteousness is begotten of him. (III.) See what love the Father has given to us, that we should be called the children of God.^z For this reason the world knows us not, because it knew ³ him not. Beloved, now are we children of God, and, what we shall be, it has not yet been^a manifested; ^b we know that if he is manifested we shall be like him, ³ for we shall see him as he is. And every one that has this hope in him ^c purifies himself, even as he is pure.

⁴ Every one that practises sin practises also lawlessness; and ⁵ sin is lawlessness. And ye know that he has been manifested, that he might take away our sins; and ⁶ in him sin is not. Whoever ^d abides in him does not sin: whoever ^d sins has not seen him or known him.^e sin is of the devil; for from [the] beginning the devil sins. To this end the Son of God has been manifested that he might undo ⁹ the works of the devil. Whoever ^f has been begotten of God does not practise sin, because his seed abides in him, and he cannot sin because he has been begotten of ¹⁰ God. In this are manifest the children of God and the children of the devil. Whoever ^f does not practise righteousness is not of God, and he who does not love his ¹¹ brother. For this is the message which ye have heard from the beginning, that we should love one ¹² another: not as Cain was of the wicked one, and slew his brother; and on account of what slew he him? because his works were wicked, and those of his brother righteous.

⁷ Children, let no man lead you astray; he that practises righteousness is righteous, even as he ⁸ is righteous. He that practises

¹³ Do not wonder,^g brethren, if the ¹⁴ world hate you. We know that we have passed from death to life, because we love the brethren. He who does not love [his] brother ^h ¹⁵ abides in death. Every one that hates his brother is a murderer, and ye know that no murderer has eternal life abiding in him.

^w Here ειδῆτε, conscious knowledge; then γινώσκετε, knowledge of something from without, from witness to us.

^x Or 'ye know.'

^y Many add 'also' here.

^z Many add 'and we are;' but it seems a gloss.

^a It is actual manifestation which is here meant; which I note, because in English 'it has not yet been manifested' might lead to think of a revelation for faith.

^b T. R. adds 'but.'

^c Him who is to be manifested.

^d Literally 'every one that,' but with 'does not' this is more than ambiguous. It may be translated 'no one who....

sins.' πᾶς.....οὐκ. See chap. ii. 19.

^e Perfect; but 'has not seen nor known him' implies the continuously present state of not seeing nor knowing: so that with these words the English gives the sense of the Greek perfect.

^f Or 'no one that has been begotten of God practises.' See verse 6 and chap. ii. 19. We lose a little in English by not having the positive affirmative πᾶς 'every one.' But in English 'every one does not' means rather 'some do.'

^g T. R. adds, with several authorities, 'my.'

^h Many omit '[his] brother.' In that case we should read '[him],' or '[his brother].'

I JOHN III, IV.

16 Hereby we have knownⁱ love, because he has laid down his life for us; and we ought for the brethren to lay down [our] lives.
 17 But whoso may have the world's substance, and see his brother having need, and shut up his bowels from him, how abides the love of God in him?
 18 ^kChildren, let us not love with word, nor with tongue, but in deed and in truth. And hereby we^l shall know that we are of the truth, and shall persuade our hearts before him—that if our heart condemn us,^m God is greater than our heart and knows all things. Beloved, if our heart should not condemn us, we have boldness towards God, and whatsoever we ask we receive from him, because we keep his commandments, and practise the things which are pleasing in his sight.
 23 And this is his commandment, that we believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and that we love one another, even as he gave us commandment. And he that keeps his commandment abides in him, and he in him: and hereby we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit which he has given to us.
 IV. Beloved, believe not every spirit, but prove the spirits, if they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby ye know the Spirit of God: every spirit which confesses Jesus Christ come in flesh is of God; and every spirit which does not confess Jesus Christⁿ come in flesh is not of God: and this is that [power] of the antichrist, [of] which ye have heard that it comes, and now is it already in the world.

 4 Ye are of God, children, and have overcome them, because greater is he that [is] in you than he that [is] in the world. They are of the world; for this reason they speak [as] of the world, and the world hears them. We are of God; he that knows God hears us; he who is not of God does not hear us. From this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.
 7 Beloved, let us love one another; because love is of God, and every one that loves has been begotten of God, and knows God. He that loves not has not known God; for God is love. Herein as to us^o has been manifested the love of God, that God has sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his ⁱ It is the perfect tense; that is, an abiding effect.

^k T. R. adds 'my.'

^m This text has perplexed commentators enormously. It seems to me without reason. $\delta\tau\iota$ refers to $\acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \tau\omicron\upsilon\tau\omega$. It is shewing what tests 'in truth.' The repetition of $\delta\tau\iota$ is nothing uncommon. It is found in Eph. ii 11, 12. What $\tau\omicron\upsilon\tau\omega$ refers to very commonly follows in John, as below 24, iv. 17, and elsewhere, frequently with $\delta\tau\iota$ indeed. 'God being greater' is evidently a testing, searching thing.

ⁿ Some omit 'Christ,' and 'come in the flesh;' and put an article before 'Jesus,' that is, speak of Jesus as one known and owned by the writer, and so presented. ⁿ has 'Christ,' and 'come in the flesh.' C is mutilated.

^o $\acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \eta\mu\acute{\iota}\nu$, in our case, in respect of us. The idea of the love of God remains absolute: only it has been shewn 'as respects us in this,' &c.

I JOHN IV, V.

Son a propitiation for our sins.

¹¹ Beloved, if God has so loved us, we also ought to love one another.

¹² No one has seen God at any time: if we love one another, God abides in us, and his love is perfected in

¹³ us. Hereby we know that we abide in him and he in us, that he

¹⁴ has given to us of his Spirit. And we have seen, and testify, that the Father has sent the Son [as] saviour of the world.

¹⁵ Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God.

¹⁶ And we have known and have believed the love which God has to^p us. God is love, and he that abides in love abides in God,

¹⁷ and God in him. Herein has love been perfected with us that we may have boldness in the day of judgment, that even as he is, we

¹⁸ also are in this world. There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear; for fear has torment, and he that fears has not

¹⁹ been made perfect in love. We love him because he has first loved us.

²⁰ If any one say, I love God, and hate his brother, he is a liar. For he that loves not his brother whom he has seen, how can he love God whom he has not seen?

²¹ And this commandment have we from him, That he that loves God love also his brother. (V.) Every one that believes that Jesus is the Christ is begotten of God; and every one that loves him that has begotten loves also him that is

² begotten of him. Hereby know we that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his

³ commandments. For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments; and his command-

⁴ ments are not grievous. For all that has been begotten of God gets the victory over the world; and this is the victory which has gotten the victory over the ⁵ world, our faith. Who is he that gets the victory over the world, but he that believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

⁶ This is he that came by water and blood, Jesus the Christ; not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that bears witness, for the Spirit is

⁷ the⁹ truth. For they that bear

⁸ witness are three: the Spirit, and the water, and the blood; and the

⁹ three agree^a in one. If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater. For this is the witness of God which he has wit-

¹⁰ nessed concerning his Son. He that believes on the Son of God has the witness in himself; he that does not believe God has made him a liar, because he has not believed in the witness which God has wit-

¹¹ nessed concerning his Son. And

^p ἐν ἡμῖν, of which we are the objects; but it is more than 'towards.'

⁹ Or 'truth:' but the proposition is reciprocal. And 'truth' amounts only to true; whereas 'the truth' is the whole thing itself.

^r To avoid any mistake, I add, in a note, what I have omitted in the text as having, as is well known, no real manuscript authority, [in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one. And there are three that bear witness in earth,] and inserted by some here without adequate warrant.

^a εἰς τὸ ἓν εἶσι, 'are to one point or purpose'—to one thing in their testimony. It is more than agree.

I JOHN V.

this is the witness, that God has given to us eternal life; and this ¹² life is in his Son. He that has the Son has life: he that has not the Son of God has not life.

¹³ These things have I written to you^t that ye may know^v that ye have eternal life^w who believe on ¹⁴ the name of the Son of God. And this is the boldness which we have towards him, that if we ask him anything according to his will, he ¹⁵ hears us. And if we know that he hears us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions which we have asked of him.

¹⁶ If any one see his brother sinning a sin not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for those that do not sin unto death. There is a sin to death: I do not say of that that he should make a request. ¹⁷ Every unrighteousness is sin; and ¹⁸ there is a sin not to death. We know that every one^x begotten of God does not sin, but he that has been begotten of God keeps himself, and the wicked one does not touch ¹⁹ him. We know that we are of God, and the whole world lies in ²⁰ the wicked^y [one]. And we know that the Son of God has come, and has given us an understanding that we should know him that [is] true; and we are in him that [is] true, in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life.

²¹ Children, keep yourselves from idols.^z

^t T. R. adds, after 'you,' 'who believe on the name of the Son of God.'

^v εἰδῆτε, 'have the consciousness.'

^w T. R. reads 'and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.' The reading is somewhat in confusion. ^x, B, connect 'who believe' with the first 'you' in the dative. So that 'that ye may know that ye have eternal life' is a parenthesis: 'I have written to you, (...) who.'

^z See note to iii. 6.

^y Or 'in wickedness.' But elsewhere in this epistle the word, which may mean both, is used for the wicked one.

^x T. R. adds 'Amen.'

SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN.

THE elder to [the] elect lady | and her children, whom I love in ^a truth, and not I only but also all ² who have known the truth, for the truth's sake which abides in us and shall be with us to eternity. ³ Grace shall be with you,^b mercy,

^a I have not added 'the,' as in the Authorized Version, because it is not in the Greek, and I do not think the force of it was meant to be there. It is not 'truly love,' though, as the apostle teaches us here, there can be no truly loving but in the truth. It is the character of the love: it was love in truth. (See ver. 4.)

^b Many read 'with us.'

^c Many omit 'the Lord;' but ^x and Porph. (Tisch. M. In.) have it.

⁵ mandment from the Father. And now I beseech thee, lady, not as writing to thee a new commandment, but that which we have had from [the] beginning, that^d
⁶ we should love one another. And this is love, that we should walk according to his commandments. This is the commandment, according as ye have heard from the beginning, that ye might walk in it.
⁷ For many deceivers have gone out^e into the world, they who do not confess Jesus Christ coming in flesh—this is the deceiver and ⁸ the antichrist. See to yourselves, that we^f may not lose^g what we^f have wrought, but may receive ⁹ full^h wages. Whosoeverⁱ goes^j forward and abides not in the doctrine of the Christ has not God. He that abides in the doctrine,^k he has both the Father and ¹⁰ the Son. If any one come to you and bring not this doctrine, do not receive him into [the] house, and ¹¹ greet him not; for he who greets him partakes in his wicked works.

¹² Having many things to write to you, I would not with paper and ink; but hope to come to you, and to speak mouth to mouth, that ¹³ our^l joy may be full. The children of thine elect sister greet thee.^m

^d In spite of commentators, from the constant use of ἵνα in John and its connexion with ἐπιτολή, I think that the apostle passes insensibly from his own personal beseeching into Christ's commandment 'that.'

^f Many read 'ye' in both places. I believe it changed, and T. R. right.

^g The text has been tampered with here from not being understood, and according to false doctrines.

^h μισθόν, in connexion with εἰργασάμεθα, in the sense of recompense or wages of work.

ⁱ πᾶς ὁ. See 1 John ii. 19.

^j T. R. reads 'transgresses.' This is what is called development. He does not abide in what was from the beginning.

^k T. R. adds 'of the Christ.'

^m T. R. adds 'Amen.'

THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN.

THE elder to the beloved Gaius, whom I love in^a truth.

^g Or 'our only Master and Lord Jesus Christ.' T. R. reads Θεόν, God, after δεσπότην.

brance, ye who once knew all things,^b that the Lord, having saved a people out of [the] land of Egypt, in the second place destroyed those who had not believed. And angels who had not kept their own original state, but had abandoned their own dwelling, he keeps¹ in eternal chains under gloomy darkness, to [the] judgment of [the] great day; as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities around them, committing greedily fornication, in like manner with them, and going after other flesh, lie there as an example, undergoing the judgment of eternal fire. Yet in like manner these dreamers also defile [the] flesh, and despise lordship, and speak railingly against dignities.⁸ But Michael the archangel, when disputing with the devil he reasoned about the body of Moses, did not dare to bring a railing judgment against [him], but said,⁹ [The] Lord rebuke thee. But these, whatever things they know not, they speak railingly against; but what even, as the irrational animals, they understand by mere nature, in these things they corrupt themselves.^k Woe to them! because they have gone in the way of Cain, and given themselves up to the error of Balaam for reward, and perished in the gainsaying of¹² Core. These are spots¹ in your lovefeasts, feasting together [with you] without fear, pasturing themselves: clouds without water, carried along^m by [the] winds; autumnalⁿ trees, without fruit, twice dead, rooted up; raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shames;^o wandering stars, to whom has been reserved the gloom of darkness for eternity.¹⁴ And Enoch, [the] seventh from Adam, prophesied also as to these, saying, Behold, [the] Lord has come amidst^p his holy myriads, to execute judgment against all, and to convict all the ungodly of them of all their works of ungodliness, which they have wrought ungodlily, and of all the hard [things] which ungodly sinners have spoken against him. These are murderers, complainers, walking after their lusts; and their mouth speaks swelling words, admiring persons¹⁷ for the sake of profit. But ye, beloved, remember the words spoken before by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, that they said to you, that at [the] end of the time^q there should be mockers, walking after their own lusts of¹⁹ ungodlinesses. These are they who ⁱ τετήρηκεν is the perfect; but 'has kept till or to,' is not English; 'kept till' supposes it over. I have therefore put the present, the perfect signifying the continuance of what had begun in the past.

^k Or 'destroy themselves, perish.'
^l See Palm and Bost. Schleusner also quotes Hesychius, as explaining it with μεμιασμένοι. Its ordinary use is 'a rock,' especially 'a rock by the sea,' as one where the sea broke. But Hesychius gives it also and Schleusner as a sunken rock with the sea over it. So Schleusner takes it, and it may be used here. He quotes Polybius and Plutarch.

^m T. R. reads 'about.'

ⁿ Some take it for trees, whose fruit withers as in autumn.

^o 'Shames,' not the shame they feel, but the things that are a shame to them. They do not feel it is so.

^p Or 'with.'

^q T. R. reads 'in the last time.'

set [themselves]^r apart, natural [men], not having [the] Spirit.
²⁰ But ye, beloved, building yourselves up on your most holy faith,
²¹ praying in the Holy Spirit, keep yourselves^s in the love of God, awaiting the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.
²² And of some have compassion,
²³ making a difference,^t but others save with fear, snatching [them]

^r T. R. has 'themselves' in text.

^s τηρήσατε, aorist; be in that state.

^t This is also read thus: 'And some who dispute [see ver. 9] correct: and some save, snatching them out of the fire; and some pity with fear.' A and C have ἠλέγχετε; κ, B, ἐλεᾶτε, 'pity.' T. R. (with K, L, M,) reads διακρινόμενοι. But κ, B, A, C, and we may judge it. and Vul. read διακρινόμενος. The reading of κ and B I confess I can make no sense of, unless we say, 'some who doubt, pity;' but then we have 'some save snatching them out of the fire; some pity with fear,' no very satisfactory sentence. I suppose we must read ἐλέγχετε, rejecting κ and B. But ἐλέγχετε is hardly 'convince the doubters.' I question if ἐλέγχω has this sense in New Test. C omits 'some pity' altogether, reading 'some who dispute, correct; some save with fear, snatching [them] out of the fire, hating,' &c., perhaps the best reading of all. ἐλεᾶτε or ἐλεείτε being a gloss. I confess I should out of the fire; hating even the garment spotted by the flesh.

²⁴ But to him that is able to keep you without stumbling, and to set [you] with exultation blameless before his glory, to the only^v God our Saviour, through Jesus Christ our Lord,^w [be] glory,^x majesty, might, and authority, from before the whole age,^y and now, and to all the ages. Amen.

be disposed to think so. In the perplexity of the readings I have given it as in T. R. and stated the facts. It has miseremini in the second place after 'save with fear;' but has judicatos (διακρινόμενος) with it. While leaving it as the original reading, I leave it undecided for others. The sense is clear. He tells them in fact to make a difference, and copyists have put διακρινόμενοι for -vous. But the reading of C puts his horror of turning the grace of God into lasciviousness in greater relief. If men contested, he put them to silence; if not, he saved them with fear, snatching them out of the fire, hating every trace of the evil.

^w T. R. omits 'through Jesus Christ our Lord.'

^x T. R. adds 'and.'

^y Or 'course [of time], παντός του αἰῶνος, a large expression and of wide use. T. R. omits 'from before the whole age.'

THE REVELATION.

REVELATION of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, to shew to his bondsmen what must shortly take place:^a and he signified it, sending by his angel, to his bondsmen John, who testified the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ, all things that he saw.
³ Blessed [is] he that reads, and

^a Aorist, 'have taken place,' but this is somewhat harsh in English; perhaps 'be they that hear the words of the prophecy, and keep the things written in it; for the time [is] near.

⁴ John to the seven assemblies which [are] in Asia. Grace to you and peace from [him] who is, and who was, and who is to come;^b and from the seven Spirits which ⁵ [are] before his throne; and from accomplished.'

^b I have put 'is to come,' as giving most

REVELATION I.

Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the firstborn from among the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. To him who loves us, and has washed^c us from our sins in his blood, and made^d us a kingdom, priests to his God and Father: to him [be] the glory and the strength to the ages of ages. Amen.

⁷ Behold, he comes with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they which^e have pierced him, and all the tribes of the land^f shall wail because of him. Yea, amen.

⁸ I am the α and the ω , saith the Lord God, who is, and who was, and who is to come,^g the Almighty.

⁹ I John, your brother and fellow-partaker in the tribulation and kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was^h in the island called Patmos, for the word of God, and ¹⁰ for the testimony of Jesus. I became in [the] Spirit on the Lord's day, and I heard behind me a ¹¹ great voice as of a trumpet, saying, What thou seest writeⁱ in a book, and send to the seven assemblies: to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamos, and to Thyatira, and to Sardis, and to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea. ¹² And I turned back to see the voice^k which^k spake with me; and having turned, I saw seven golden ¹³ lamps,^l and in the midst of the seven lamps [one] like [the]^m Son of man, clothed with a garment reaching to the feet, and girt about at the breasts with a golden ¹⁴ girdle:ⁿ his head and hair white nearly the sense. It is not $\delta \mu \acute{\epsilon} \lambda \lambda \epsilon \iota \epsilon \rho \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta \alpha \iota$, 'about to come;' but $\delta \epsilon \rho \chi \acute{o} \mu \epsilon \nu \circ \varsigma$. If the act of the Lord's coming were immediately before the mind, it would not be $\delta \epsilon \rho \chi \acute{o} \mu \epsilon \nu \circ \varsigma$, 'who is now coming, or the coming one;' I will not say there is no allusion to the future, awaited exercise of divine power; for in Daniel, not only is the Son of man brought before the Ancient of days, but the Ancient of days comes. But in the words 'who is, and was, and is to come,' there is surely reference to the abiding nature of his being. 'Who is to come' seems to me thus to render more truly the $\delta \epsilon \rho \chi \acute{o} \mu \epsilon \nu \circ \varsigma$ than any other form of the words. $\delta \epsilon \rho \chi \acute{o} \mu \epsilon \nu \circ \varsigma$ has the sense of future in New Testament Greek. See Mark x. 30, Luke xviii. 30, and Mark xi. 10 partly runs into this sense. $\delta \epsilon \rho \chi \acute{o} \mu \epsilon \nu \circ \varsigma$ became a name of the expected Messiah, as in John Baptist's question, and Heb. x. 37. But note, 'essential being' is put first, $\delta \acute{\omega} \nu$; and then 'time past, and to come.'

^c Some read 'freed,' $\lambda \acute{\upsilon} \sigma \alpha \nu \tau \iota$, for $\lambda \acute{\upsilon} \sigma \alpha \nu \tau \iota$.

^d Literally 'he has made,' $\kappa \alpha \iota \epsilon \pi \acute{o \iota \eta \sigma \epsilon \nu$; I suppose a Hebraism.

^e $\sigma \acute{\iota} \tau \iota \nu \epsilon \varsigma$, that class of persons; 'such as.'

^f Of 'earth.'

^g See note to verse 4.

^h $\epsilon \gamma \gamma \epsilon \nu \acute{o} \mu \eta \nu$. He had come there on account of the word of God. His being there was an event which happened. So verse 10, where 'in the Spirit' is a state into which he entered.

ⁱ Aorist, 'have it written:' that is, it is commanded to be a complete thing done.

^k $\eta \tau \iota \varsigma$.

^l Or 'lamp-stands;' simply here, I think, lamps, as compared with Heb. ix. 2. If the $\lambda \acute{\upsilon} \chi \nu \circ \varsigma$ and $\lambda \upsilon \chi \nu \acute{\iota} \alpha$ are separate, $\lambda \upsilon \chi \nu \acute{\iota} \alpha$ is the stand. See Matt. v. 15, Luke viii. 16, xi. 33, 36.

^m Or 'a Son of man.' Compare Daniel vii., where it is also used without the article. It is not likeness to a person John knew, but to the character known by this title in scripture. To have seen angels in heaven would have been no wonder, but to see one as $\nu \iota \delta \acute{\iota} \varsigma \alpha \nu \theta \rho \acute{\omega} \pi \circ \upsilon$ was. All this chapter corresponds to Daniel vii.: only now he was seen on earth. It was the title the Lord habitually took. This made it personal; but in Daniel, though surely the same person, it was characteristic. Here, too, it is characteristic. Still, the person designated is now known, and it is difficult to say 'a Son of man' as excluding this. 'Son of manlike' is feeble, and does not sufficiently present a person at all; it might mean a manner. I have put therefore 'the' in brackets, and added this note.

ⁿ $\delta \acute{\epsilon}$ here is mere connection, resuming shall in no wise^t be injured of the second death.

12 And to the angel of the assembly in Pergamos write: These things says he that has the sharp
13 two-edged sword. I know where thou dwellest, where the throne of Satan [is]; and thou holdest fast my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in the days in which Antipas my faithful witness [was],
14 who was slain among you, where Satan dwells. But I have a few things against thee; that thou hast there those who hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to cast a snare before the sons of Israel, to eat [of] idols sacrifices and 15 commit fornication. So thou also hast those who hold the doctrine of Nicolaitanes in like manner.
16 Repent therefore: but if not, I will make war with them with the sword of my mouth.

17 He that has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies. To him that overcomes, to him will I give of the hidden manna; and I will give to him a white stone, and on the stone a new name written, which no one knows but he that receives [it].

18 And to the angel of the assembly in Thyatira write: These things says the Son of God, he that has his eyes as a flame of fire, and his feet [are] like fine brass.
19 I know thy works, and love, and service, and faith, and thine endurance, and thy last works [to 20 be] more than the first. But I have against thee that thou permittest the woman^v Jezebel, she who calls herself prophetess, and she teaches and leads astray my servants to commit fornication 21 and eat of idol sacrifices. And I gave her time that she should repent, and she will not repent of 22 her fornication. Behold, I cast her into a bed, and those that commit adultery with her into great tribulation, unless they re-

23 pent of her works, and her children will I kill with death; and all the assemblies shall know that I am he that searches [the] reins and [the] hearts; and I will give to you each according to your 24 works. But to you I say, the rest who [are] in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine, who^w have not known the depths of Satan, as they say, I do not cast upon 25 you any other burden; but what ye have, hold fast till I shall come.
26 And he that overcomes, and he that keeps unto the end my works, to him will I give authority over 27 the nations, and he shall shepherd them with an iron rod; as vessels of pottery are they broken in pieces, as I also have received 28 from my Father; and I will give to him the morning star.

29 He that has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.

^w οἵτινες, 'such as.'

sembly in Sardis write : These things saith he that has the seven Spirits of God and the seven stars. I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art ² dead. Be^x watchful, and strengthen the things that remain, which are^y about to die, for I have not found thy works complete before ³ my God. Remember therefore how thou hast received, and heard, and keep [it] and repent. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come upon thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know at what ⁴ hour I shall come upon thee. But thou hast a few names in Sardis which have not defiled their garments, and they shall walk with me in white, because they are ⁵ worthy. He that overcomes, he shall be clothed in white garments; and I will not blot his name out of the book of life, and will confess his name before my Father and before his angels.

⁶ He that has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.

⁷ And to the angel of the assembly in Philadelphia write : These things saith the holy, the true; he that has the key of David, who opens and no one shall shut, and ⁸ shuts and no one shall open.^z I know thy works. Behold, I have^a set before thee an opened door, which no one can shut, because thou hast a little power, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied ⁹ my name. Behold, I make them of the synagogue of Satan who say that they are Jews, and are not, but lie; behold, I will cause that they shall come and shall do homage before thy feet, and shall ¹⁰ know that I have loved thee. Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee out of the hour of trial which is about to come upon the whole habitable world to try them that ¹¹ dwell upon the earth. I come quickly : hold fast what thou hast, that no one take thy crown.

¹² He that overcomes, him will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more at all out; and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem, which comes down out of heaven from my God, and my new name.

¹³ He that has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.

¹⁴ And to the angel of the assembly in Laodicea write : These things says the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God.

¹⁵ I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot; I would ¹⁶ thou wert cold or hot. Thus because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to spue thee out of my mouth.

^z γίνου, 'become so.'

^y ἔμελλον, the imperfect. I translate 'are,' because 'were' supposes they are no longer, which is contrary to the passage. Perhaps 'have been' may be used. It refers to what they were found when he strengthened them. The point of departure of thought is not the writer's when writing but the strengthener when strengthening.

^a Or 'opens' with A, C, Porph. (Tisch.), Vul. has all in the present; κ' ἀνοίξει.

^a Literally 'give,' or 'have given,' a Hebraism.

REVELATION III, IV.

- 17 Because thou sayest, I am rich, and am grown rich, and have need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art the wretched and the miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked; I counsel thee to buy of me gold purified by fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white garments, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness may not be made manifest;^b and eye-salve to anoint thine eyes, that thou mayest see.
- 18 I rebuke and discipline as many as I love; be zealous therefore and repent. Behold, I stand^c at the door and knock; if any one hear my voice and open the door, I will^d come in unto him and sup with him, and he with me. He that overcomes, to him will I give to sit with me in my throne; as I also have overcome, and have sat down with my Father in his throne.
- 19 He that has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the assemblies.
- IV. After these things I saw, and behold, a door opened in heaven, and the first voice which I heard as of a trumpet speaking with me, saying, Come up here, and I will shew thee the things which must take place after these things. Immediately I became in [the] Spirit; and behold, a throne stood in the heaven, and upon the throne one sitting, and he [that was] sitting like in appearance to a jasper and a sardius, and a rainbow round the throne like in appearance to an emerald. And round^e the throne four and twenty thrones, and on the thrones^f four and twenty elders sitting, clothed with white garments; and on their heads golden crowns. And out of the throne go forth lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and seven lamps of fire,^g burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God; and before the throne, as a glass sea, like crystal. And in the midst of the throne, and around^h the throne, four living creatures, full of eyes, before and behind; and the first living creature like a lion, and the second living creature like a calf, and the third living creature having the face asⁱ of a man, and the fourth living creature like a flying eagle. And the four living crea-

^b All these are aorists, that is, have the force, not of that 'thou mayest become,' but as an accomplished fact, 'mayest have become,' 'have got into that state.' So often; but the English hardly gives this shade of meaning, save that 'be' supposes it existing.

^c ἕστηκα: I have placed myself there and am standing. κρούω, simply I am knocking.

^d Some add 'both.'

^e I use 'round,' κυκλόθεν, for what is connected with anything (I do not say united to) as a centre, as the tire of a wheel; 'around' κύκλω, for what is standing as a circle, outside, around anything. 'Bound' is more generally used, and so for both; but 'around' is used for detached objects encircling.

^f The reading is somewhat uncertain here. Gries. with A, confirmed by Porph. has as in text. Alf. and Tisch. add τοῦς, 'the four and twenty elders:' but then it may be read 'on the four and twenty thrones elders sitting,' or 'on the thrones four and twenty elders.' κ has only 'four and twenty thrones and elders sitting,' very likely by homœoteleuton.

^g λαμπάδες: not the lamp as a utensil, λυχνία, but what furnished the light itself.

^h κύκλω.

ⁱ I insert 'as' as the most likely to be the original reading. T. R. has 'as a man.'

tures, each of them having for itself respectively six wings; round⁵ and within they are full of eyes; and they cease^k not day and night saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, who was,^l and who⁹ is, and who is to come. And when the living creatures shall give glory and honour and thanksgiving to him that sits upon the throne, who¹⁰ lives to the ages of ages, the four and twenty elders shall fall before him that sits upon the throne, and do homage to him that lives to the ages of ages; and shall cast their crowns before the throne,¹¹ saying, Thou art worthy, O our Lord and our God, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy will they were, and they have been created.

V. And I saw on the right hand of him that sat upon the throne a book, written within and on the back, sealed with seven seals.² And I saw a strong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and³ to break its seals? And no one was able in the heaven, or upon the earth, or underneath the earth, to open the book, or to regard it.⁴ And I wept much because no one had been found worthy to open the⁵ book, nor to regard it. And one of the elders says to me, Do not weep. Behold, the lion which [is] of the tribe of Juda, the root of David, has overcome [so as] to open the book, and its seven seals.

⁶ And I saw in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, a Lamb standing, as slain, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God which are sent into⁷ all the earth: and it came and took [it] out of the right hand of him that sat^m upon the throne.

⁸ And when it took the book, the four living creatures and the four and twenty elders fell before the Lamb, havingⁿ each a harp and golden bowls full of incenses, which are the prayers of the⁹ saints. And they sing a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open its seals; because thou hast been slain, and hast redeemed^o to God, by thy blood, out of every tribe, and¹⁰ tongue, and people, and nation, and made them to our God kings^p and priests; and they shall reign¹¹ over the earth. And I saw, and I heard [the] voice of many angels

^l I judge that Ezekiel x. 12 shews that κυκλόθεν belongs to the eyes.

^k I prefer 'cease not' to 'have no rest,' because in English 'having no rest' means constant fatigue. ἀνάπαυσις does mean refreshment after fatigue; but it secondly means intermission of action.

^l On the throne 'was' comes first. It is in time.

^m Or 'that sits.' It is the present, but may follow the time of the passage; a title, 'the siter on the throne.'

ⁿ 'Having' agrees strictly only with elders.

^o Many insert 'us' here. I have ventured to leave it out with Lachmann, Tischendorf, (Griesbach accounting it a questionable reading), Mills (Prol. iii.), Alford, Düsterlick and De Wette; Cod. Sin. has it. The internal evidence is, I judge, against it. B and Porph. (Mon. In. Tisch.) have it; C fails us: Vul. and Prim. both have it. A omits it. My own judgment is that it is better left out. I add that κ is very incorrect in the Apocalypse.

^p Many read 'a kingdom,' but it is indeed a title or name.

¹² of thousands; saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that has been slain to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing. And every creature which is in the heaven and upon the earth and under the earth and [those that] are upon the sea, and all things in them, heard I saying, To him that sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb, blessing, and honour, and glory, and might, to the ages of ages.

¹⁴ And the four living creatures said, Amen; and the elders fell down and did homage.

VI. ³ And when it opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying, Come [and see].^r

⁴ And another red horse went forth; and to him that sat upon it, to him it was given to take peace from the earth, and that they should slay one another; and there was given to him a great sword.

⁵ And when it opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying, Come [and see].^r And I saw: and behold, a black horse, and he that sat upon it having a ⁶balance in his hand. And I heard as a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying, A choenix of wheat for a denarius, and three choenixes of barley for a denarius: and do not injure the oil and the wine.

⁷ And when it opened the fourth seal, I heard [the voice of]^t the fourth living creature saying,

⁸ Come [and see].^r And I saw: and behold, a pale horse, and he that sat upon it, his name [was] Death, and hades followed with him; and authority was given to him over the fourth of the earth to slay with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and by the beasts of the earth.

⁹ And when it opened the fifth seal, I saw underneath the altar the souls of them that had been slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held; ¹⁰and they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, O sovereign ruler, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on

^r The words here and verses 3, 5, 7, 'and see' are very doubtful: κ has καὶ ἰδε, with B, &c.: so I leave it in, with Griesbach. Comp. ἔρχου. καὶ εἶδον. Erasm. (1st ed.) βλέπε (from Latin). One can understand how ἰδε καὶ εἶδον καὶ ἰδου, seemed too much. κ and B generally go together. A, C, omit it, with Porph. (Tisch. Mon. In.), reading ἔρχου. καὶ εἶδον. But the changes ἰδε, βλέπε, look like an addition.

^s Or 'had been given to him;' that is, it is not expressive of a particular time. He had one which was given him. But it is the same tense as 'went forth.' So in verse 4.

^t These words are doubtful. κ, A, have it. B, and Porph. omit it; C too, but is incorrect, τὸ τέταρτον ζῶον λέγοντος.

REVELATION VI, VII.

them that dwell upon the earth ?

¹¹ And there was given to them a white robe; and it was said to them that they should rest yet for a time, until both their fellow bondsmen and their brethren, who were about to be killed as they, should be fulfilled.

¹² And I saw when it opened the sixth seal, and there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as hair sackcloth, and the

¹³ whole moon became as blood, and the stars of heaven fell upon the earth, as a fig tree, shaken by a

¹⁴ great wind, casts^w its unseasonable figs. And the heaven was removed as a book rolled up, and every mountain and island were

¹⁵ removed out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great, and the chiliarchs, and the rich, and the strong, and every bondsman, and^x freeman, hid themselves in the caves and in

¹⁶ the rocks of the mountains; and they say to the mountains and to the rocks, Fall on us, and have us hidden^y from [the] face of him that sits upon the throne, and from

¹⁷ the wrath of the Lamb; because the great day of his wrath is come, and who is able to stand ?

VII. And after this I saw four angels standing upon the four corners of the earth, holding fast the four winds of the earth, that no wind might blow upon the earth, nor upon the sea, nor upon any tree. And I saw another angel ascending from [the] sun-rising, having [the] seal of [the] living God; and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels to whom it had been given to hurt the

³ earth and the sea, saying, Hurt not the earth, nor the sea, nor the trees, until we shall have sealed the bondsmen of our God upon ⁴ their foreheads. And I heard the number of the sealed, a hundred [and] forty-four thousand, sealed out of every tribe of [the] sons of

⁵ Israel; out of [the] tribe of Juda, twelve thousand sealed; out of [the] tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of ⁶ Gad, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Aser, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Nep-thalim, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Manasseh, twelve

⁷ thousand; out of [the] tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Levi, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Issa-

⁸ char, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Zabulon, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of

Joseph, twelve thousand; out of [the] tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand sealed.

⁹ After these things I saw, and lo, a great crowd, which no one could number, out of every nation and tribes and peoples and tongues, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palm branches

¹⁰ in their hands. And they cry with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God who sits upon the throne, and to the Lamb. And all the angels stood around the throne and the elders and the four living creatures, and fell before the throne upon their faces and worshipped^a God, saying, Amen: Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honour, and power, and strength, to our God, to the ages of ages. Amen.

¹⁵ And one of the elders answered, saying to me, These who are clothed with white robes, who are they, and whence came they? And I said to him, My lord, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they who come out of the great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and have made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple, and he that sits upon the throne shall spread his tabernacle over them.

¹⁶ They shall not hunger any more, neither shall they thirst any more, nor shall the sun at all fall on them, nor any burning heat; because the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall shepherd them, and shall lead them to fountains of waters of life, and God shall wipe away every tear from their eyes.

VIII. And when it opened the seventh seal, there was^a silence in the heaven about half an hour.

² And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them.

³ And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and much incense was given to him, that he might give [efficacy] to the prayers of all saints at the golden altar which ⁴ [was] before the throne. And the smoke of the incense went up with^b the prayers of the saints, out of the hand of the angel before ⁵ God. And the angel took the censer, and filled it from the fire of the altar, and cast [it] on^c the earth: and there were voices, and thunders^d and lightnings, and an earthquake.

⁶ And the seven angels who had these seven trumpets prepared themselves that they might sound with [their] trumpets.

⁷ And the first sounded [his] trumpet; and there was hail and fire, mingled with blood, and they^e were cast upon^f the earth: and the third part of the earth was burnt up, and the third part of the trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up.

⁸ And the second angel sounded [his] trumpet; and as a great mountain burning with fire was cast into^f the sea, and the third ⁹ part of the sea became blood; and the third part of the creatures which [were] in the sea which had life died; and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

^a Translated, elsewhere, 'did homage.'
^a ἐγένετο, it took place then.
^b There is no preposition in Greek; the sense is 'associated with and giving its efficacy to,' according to verse 3.
^c Or 'to,' eis.

^d The order of these words varies. Of those not cited in modern critical editions, Porph. has as here; κ 'thunders and voices and lightnings.'
^e Or, 'it was.'

REVELATION VIII, IX.

10 And the third angel sounded [his] trumpet; and there fell out of the heaven a great star, burning as a torch, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters.

11 And the name of the star is called Wormwood; and the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many of the men died of the waters because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth angel sounded [his] trumpet; and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so that the third part of them should be darkened, and that the day should not appear [for] the third part of it, and the night the same.

13 And I saw, and I heard an eagle flying in mid-heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe, to them that dwell upon the earth, for the remaining voices of the trumpet of the three angels who are about to sound.

IX. And the fifth angel sounded [his] trumpet; and I saw a star out of the heaven fallen to^h the earth; and there was given to it the key of the pit of the abyss.

² And it opened the pit of the abyss; and there went up smoke out of the pit as [the] smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened with the smoke of

³ the pit. And out of the smoke came forth locusts on^h the earth, and power was given to them as the scorpions of the earth have⁴ power; and it was said to them, that they should not injure the grass of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree, but the men who¹ have not the seal of God on their foreheads: and it was given to them that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five months; and their torment [was] as [the] torment of a scorpion when it strikes a man.

⁶ And in those days shall men seek death, and shall in no way find it; and shall desire to die, and death⁷ flees^k from them. And the likenesses of the locusts [were] like to horses prepared for war, and upon their heads as crowns like gold, and their faces as faces of

⁸ men; and they had hair as women's hair, and their teeth were as of lions, and they had breastplates as breastplates of iron, and the sound of their wings [was] as the sound of chariots of many horses

¹⁰ running to war; and they have tails like scorpions, and stings; and their power¹ [was] in their tails

¹¹ to hurt men five months. They have a king over them, the angel of the abyss: his name in Hebrew Abaddon, and in Greek he has [for] name Apollyon.

¹² The first woe has past.^m Behold, there come yet two woes after these things.

¹³ And the sixth angel sounded his trumpet: and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden

¹⁴ altar which [is] before God, saying to the sixth angel that had the trumpet, Loose the four angels which are bound at the great river Euphrates. And the four angels were loosed who [were] prepared for the hour and day and month and year, that they might slay the third part of men; and the number of the hosts of horse [was] twice ten thousand times ten thousand. I heard their number. And thus I saw the horses in the vision, and those that sat upon them, having breastplates of fire and jacinth and brimstone; and the heads of the horses [were] as heads of lions, and out of their mouths goes out fire and smoke and brimstone. By these three plagues were the third part of menⁿ killed, by the fire and the smoke and the brimstone which goes out of their mouths. For the power^o of the horses is in their mouth and in their tails: for their tails [are] like serpents, having heads, and with them they injure. And the rest of men who were not killed with these plagues repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship demons, and the golden and silver and brazen and stone and wooden idols, which can neither see nor hear nor walk. And they repented not of their murders, nor of their witchcrafts, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

REVELATION IX, X.

X. And I saw another strong angel coming down out of the heaven, clothed with a cloud, and the rainbow upon his head, and his countenance as the sun, and his feet² as pillars of fire, and having in his hand a little opened book. And he set his right foot on the sea, and the left upon the earth,³ and cried with a loud voice as a lion roars. And when he cried, the seven thunders uttered^p their own voices. And when the seven thunders spoke, I was about to write: and I heard a voice out of the heaven saying, Seal what the seven thunders have spoken, and⁵ write them not. And the angel whom I saw stand on the sea and on the earth lifted up his right⁶ hand to the heaven, and swore by him that lives to the ages of ages, who created the heaven and the things that are in it, and the earth and the things that are in it, and the sea and the things that are in it, that there should be no⁷ longer delay; but in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he is about^q to sound the trumpet, the mystery of God also shall be completed,^r as he has made known the glad tidings to his own bondsmen the prophets.⁸ And the voice which I heard from the heaven [was] again speaking with me, and saying, Go, take the little book which is opened in the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the⁹ earth. And I went to the angel, saying to him to give me the little book. And he says to me, Take and eat it up: and it shall make thy belly bitter, but in thy mouth 10 it shall be sweet as honey. And I took the little book out of the hand of the angel, and ate it up; and it was in my mouth as honey, sweet; and when I had eaten it 11 my belly was made bitter. And [he] says^s to me, Thou must prophesy again as to peoples and nations and tongues and many kings.

XI. And there was given to me a reed like a staff,^t saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that wor-
 2 ship in it. And the court which [is] without the temple cast out, and measure it not; because it has been given [up] to the na-
 3 tions, and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty-two 4 months. And I will give [power]^u to my two witnesses, and, they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred [and] sixty days, clothed 5 in sackcloth. These are the two olive trees and the two lamps which stand before the Lord of 6 the earth; and if any one wills to injure them, fire goes out of their mouth, and devours their enemies. And if any one wills to injure them, thus must he be killed.
 7 These have power^v to shut the heaven that no rain may fall during the days of their prophecy; and they have power^v over the waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth as often as 7 they will with every plague. And when they shall have completed their testimony, the beast who comes up out of the abyss shall make war with them, and shall conquer them, and shall kill them:

 8 and their body [shall be] on the street of the great city, which^v is called spiritually Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord
 9 was crucified. And [men] of the peoples and tribes and tongues and nations see their body three days and a half, and they do not suffer their bodies to be put into
 10 a sepulchre. And they that dwell upon the earth rejoice over them, and are full of delight, and shall send gifts one to another, be-
 11 cause these, the two prophets, tormented them that dwell upon the earth. And after the three days and a half [the] spirit^w of life from God came into them, and they stood upon their feet; and great fear fell upon those behold-
 12 ing them: and I heard a great voice out of the heaven saying to them, Come up here. And they went up to the heaven in the cloud; and their enemies beheld 13 them. And in that hour there was a great earthquake, and the tenth of the city fell, and seven thousand names of men were slain in the earthquake. And the rem-14 nant were^x filled with fear, and gave glory to the God of the heaven.

REVELATION XI, XII.

14 The second woe has past: ^γ behold, the third woe comes quickly.

15 And the seventh angel sounded [his] trumpet; and there were great voices in the heaven, saying, The kingdom of the world of our Lord and of his Christ is come, ^α and he shall reign to the ages of ages. And the four and twenty elders, who sit ^α on their thrones before God, fell upon their faces, 17 and worshipped ^β God, saying, We give thee thanks, Lord God Almighty, [He] who is, and who was, ^γ that thou hast taken thy great 18 power and hast reigned. And the nations have been full of wrath, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead to be judged, and to give the recompense to thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to those who fear thy name, small and great; and to destroy ^δ those that destroy ^δ the earth.

19 And the temple of God in the heaven ^ε was opened, and the ark of his covenant was seen in his temple: and there were lightnings and voices and thunders and an earthquake and great hail.

XII. And a great sign was seen in the heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown ^ζ of twelve stars; and being with child she cried, [being] in travail, and in pain to bring forth.

3 And another sign was seen in the heaven; and behold, a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads seven 4 diadems; and his tail draws the third part of the stars of the heaven; and he cast them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, in order that when she brought forth he might de- 5 vour her child. And she brought forth a male son, who shall shepherd all the nations with an iron rod: and her child was caught up 6 to God and to his throne. And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has there ^ϛ a place prepared of God, that they should nourish her there a thousand two hundred [and] sixty days.

7 And there was ^η war in the heaven: Michael and his angels went to war with the dragon. And the dragon fought, ^θ and his angels; 8 and he prevailed not, nor was their place found any more in the 9 heaven. And the great dragon was cast out, the ancient serpent, who is called Devil and the Satan, who deceives the whole habitable world, he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

^θ ἐπολέμησε, same word (not mood) as 'went to war,' but 'made war' is the attack. Hence I have said 'fought.' They tried to hold their ground, did not flee.

REVELATION XII, XIII.

10 And I heard a great voice in the heaven saying, Now is come¹ the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ; for the accuser of our brethren has been cast out, who accused them before our God day and night: and they have overcome him by reason of the blood of the Lamb, and by reason of the word of their testimony, and have not loved their life even unto death. Therefore be full of delight, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the earth and to the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great rage, knowing he has a short time.

13 And when the dragon saw that he had been cast out into^k the earth, he persecuted the woman which bore the male [child]. And there were given to the woman the^l two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the desert into her place, where she is nourished there^m a time, and times, and half a time, from [the] face of the serpent. And the serpent cast out of his mouth behind the woman water as a river, that he might make her be [as] one carried away by a river. And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened its mouth, and swallowed the river which the dragon cast out of his mouth. And the dragon was angry with the woman, and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, who keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus.

18 And Iⁿ stood upon the sand of the sea; (XIII.) and I saw a beast rising out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads, and upon its horns ten diadems, and upon its heads names of blasphemy.

2 And the beast which I saw was like to a leopardess, and its feet as of a bear, and its mouth as a lion's mouth; and the dragon gave to it his power, and his throne, and great authority, and one of his heads as slain to death; and his wound of death had been healed: and the whole earth wondered after the beast. And they did homage^o to the dragon, because he gave the authority to the beast; and they did homage^o to the beast, saying, Who [is] like to the beast? and who can make war with it? And there was given to it a mouth, speaking great things and blasphemies; and there was given to it authority to pursue its career^p forty-two months. And it opened its mouth for blasphemies^q against God, to blaspheme his name and his tabernacle,^r and those who have their tabernacle in the heaven. And there was given to it to make war with the saints, and to overcome^s them; and there was given to it authority over every tribe, and people,

REVELATION XIII, XIV.

⁸ and tongue, and nation; and all that dwell on the earth shall do it homage, [every one] whose name had not been written from [the] founding of [the] world in the book ⁹ of life of the slain Lamb. If any ¹⁰ one has an ear, let him hear. If any one leads into captivity,[†] he goes into captivity. If any one shall kill with [the] sword, he must with [the] sword be killed.[‡] Here is the endurance and the faith of the saints.

¹¹ And I saw another beast rising out of the earth; and it had two horns like to a lamb, and spake ¹² as a dragon; and it exercises all the authority of the first beast before it, and causes the earth and those that dwell in it to ¹³ do homage to the first beast, whose wound of death[‡] was healed. And it works great signs, that it should cause even fire to come down from heaven to the earth before men. ¹⁴ And it deceives those that dwell upon the earth by reason of the signs which it was given to it to work before the beast, saying to those that dwell upon the earth to make an image to the beast, which has the wound of the sword, and ¹⁵ lived. And it was given to it to give breath to the image of the beast, that the image of the beast should also speak, and should cause that as many as should not do homage to the image of the ¹⁶ beast should be killed. And it causes all, the small and the great,

and the rich and the poor, and the free and the bondsmen, that they should give them a mark upon their right hand, or upon their ¹⁷ forehead; and that no one should be able to buy or sell save he that had the mark, the name of the beast, or the number of its name. ¹⁸ Here is wisdom. He that has understanding let him count the number of the beast: for it is a man's number; and its number [is] six hundred [and] sixty-six.

XIV. And I saw, and behold, the Lamb standing upon mount Zion, and with him a hundred [and] forty-four thousand, having his name and the name of his Father ² written upon their foreheads. And I heard a voice out of the heaven as a voice of many waters, and as a voice of great thunder. And the voice which I heard [was] as of harp-singers playing on their ³ harps. And they sing a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures and the elders. And no one could learn that song save the hundred [and] forty-four thousand who were re- ⁴ deemed from the earth. These are they who have not been defiled with women, for they are virgins: these are they who follow the Lamb wheresoever it goes. These have been redeemed from men [as] first-fruits to God and the Lamb: ⁵ and in their mouths was no lie found;[‡] they are blameless. ⁶ And I saw another angel fly-that it has 'shall kill.' Porph. is as T. B. All confirm the common reading.

REVELATION XIV.

ing in mid-heaven, having [the] everlasting glad tidings to announce to those settled^a on the earth, and to every nation and tribe and tongue and people, ⁷ saying with a loud voice, Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come; and do homage to him who has made the heaven and the earth and the sea and fountains of waters.

⁸ And another second angel followed, saying, Great Babylon has fallen, has fallen, which of the wine of the fury of her fornication has made all nations drink. ⁷

⁹ And another third angel followed them, saying, with a loud voice, If any one do homage^a to the beast and its image, and receive a mark upon his forehead ¹⁰ or upon his hand, he also shall drink of the wine of the fury of God prepared unmixed in the cup of his wrath, and he shall be tormented in fire and brimstone before the holy angels and before ¹¹ the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment goes up to ages of ages, and they have no respite day and night who do homage to the beast and to its image, and if any one receive the mark of its name.

¹² Here is the endurance of the saints, who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus.

¹³ And I heard a voice out of the heaven, saying, Write, Blessed the dead who die in [the] Lord from henceforth. Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; for their works fellow with them.

¹⁴ And I saw, and behold, a white cloud, and on the cloud one sitting like [the] Son of man, having upon his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle.

¹⁵ And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, Send thy sickle and reap; for the hour of reaping is come, for the harvest of the earth is dried.^a

¹⁶ And he that sat on the cloud put^b his sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

¹⁷ And another angel came out of the temple which [is] in the heaven, he also having a sharp sickle.

¹⁸ And another angel came out of the altar, having power over fire, and called with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, Send thy sharp sickle, and gather the bunches of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ¹⁹ ripened. And the angel put his

^b ἔβαλεν. The use of this word in Matthew, Mark, and still more John, shews it is not needed to say 'cast' or 'threw.' The only question is, whether when used for 'put,' as 'put up thy sword into the sheath,' it is not always putting one thing into another, as in the examples referred to: new wine into old bottles; the thirty pieces of silver into the treasury; the money into the bag. But this is met by John xx. 25 and Mark vii. 33; so that I suppose the sense is not 'cast.'

REVELATION XV, XVI.

sickle to the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast [the bunches] into the great winepress of the fury of God; and the winepress was trodden without the city, and blood went out of the winepress to the bits of the horses for a thousand six hundred stadia.

XV. And I saw another sign in the heaven, great and wonderful: seven angels having seven plagues, the last; for in them the fury of God is completed.^c

² And I saw as a glass sea, mingled with fire, and those that had gained the victory over the beast, and its image, and the number of its name, standing upon the glass sea, having harps of God. And they sing the song of Moses bondsman of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and wonderful [are] thy works, Lord God Almighty; righteous and true [are] thy ways, O King of nations. Who shall not fear [thee], O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only [art] holy; ^d for all nations shall come and do homage before thee; for thy righteousnesses^e have been made manifest.

⁵ And after these things I saw, and the temple of the tabernacle of witness in the heaven was⁶ opened; and the seven angels who had the seven plagues came out [of the temple],^f clothed in pure bright linen, and girded about the⁷ breasts with golden girdles. And one of the four living creatures gave to the seven angels seven golden bowls, full of the fury of God, who lives to the ages of ages. ⁸ And the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God, and from his power: and no one could enter into the temple until the seven plagues of the seven angels were completed.

XVI. And I heard a great voice out of the temple, saying to the seven angels, Go, and pour out the seven bowls of the fury of God upon the earth.

² And the first went, and poured out his bowl on the earth; and there came an evil and grievous sore upon the men who had the mark of the beast, and those who worshipped^g its image.

³ And the second poured out his bowl on the sea; and it became blood, as of a dead man; and every living soul^h died in the sea.

⁴ And the third poured out his bowl on the rivers, and on the fountains of waters; and theyⁱ man would understand it. It is however used in this general way for 'holy.'

^h I suspect 'every soul of life' to be the true reading. It would be a Hebraism. But Cod. Sin. has ζωσα. The sense is the same.

ⁱ The strict grammatical construction here and verse 3 is 'and there was,' or 'came' (ἐγένετο, 'came to be so') blood. But I apprehend 'it' and 'they' are the sense, in spite of accuracy of grammar:

In men it means piety and uprightness. חַסֵּד is so translated in the Old Testament. ἁγιος is שֶׁדֶה. It is in general the sum of qualities which suit and form the divine character in man, as opposed to the human will: what God gives as consistent with himself, his character, and promise. The 'sure mercies' of David is expressed by this word in the LXX. God alone possesses the qualities which entitle him to worship, as a pious

REVELATION XVII.

Come here, I will shew thee the sentence of the great harlot who sits upon the many waters; with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication; and they that dwell on the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication. And he carried me away in spirit to a desert; and I saw a woman sitting upon a scarlet beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and had ornaments of gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand full of abominations, and the unclean things of her fornication; and upon her forehead a name written, Mystery, Babylon the Great, the mother of the harlots, and of the abominations of the earth. And I saw the woman drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And I wondered, seeing her, with great wonder. And the angel said to me, Why hast thou wondered? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast which carries her, which has the seven heads and the ten horns. The beast which thou sawest was, and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss and go into destruction: and they who dwell on the earth, whose names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, shall wonder, seeing the beast, that it was, and is not, and shall be present.⁹ Here is the mind that has wisdom: The seven heads are seven mountains, whereon^v the woman sits. And^w there are seven kings: five of them have fallen, one of them is, the other has not yet come: and when he comes he must remain [only] a little while. And the beast that was, and is not, he also is an eighth, and is of the seven, and goes into destruction. And the ten horns which thou sawest are ten kings, which have not yet received a kingdom, but receive authority as kings one hour with the beast. These have one mind, and give their power and authority to the beast. These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them; for he is Lord of lords and King of kings: and they [that are]^x with him called, and chosen, and faithful.

And he says to me, The waters which thou sawest, where the harlot sits, are peoples and multitudes^y and nations and tongues. And the ten horns which thou sawest, and the beast, these shall hate the harlot, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and shall burn her with fire; for God has given to their hearts to do his mind, and to act with^z one mind, and to give

^{*} The reading here is somewhat uncertain: some have 'of the fornication of the earth'; ^α and Syr. have 'of her and of the earth.' Porph. omits the whole of the latter half of verse 4. It is very possible that ρης γης should be put in, as it is very likely it was left out from not being understood.

their kingdom to the beast until the words of God shall be fulfilled.

¹⁸ And the woman which thou sawest is the great city, which has kingship over the kings of the earth.

XVIII. After these things I saw another angel descending out of the heaven, having great authority: and the earth was lightened ³ with his glory. And he cried with strong voice, saying, Babylon the Great has fallen, has fallen, and has become the habitation of demons, and a hold² of every unclean spirit, and a hold² of every unclean and bated bird; because she has made all the nations to drink of the wine of the fury of her fornication; and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have been enriched through the might of her luxury.

⁴ And I heard another voice out of the heaven saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye have not fellowship in her sins, and that ye do not receive of her ⁵ plagues: for her sins have been^a heaped on one another up to the heaven, and God has remembered ⁶ her unrighteousnesses. Recompense her as she has recompensed; and double to her double, according to her works. In the cup which she has mixed, mix to her ⁷ double. So much as she has glorified herself and lived luxuriously, so much torment and grief give to her. Because she says in her heart, I sit a queen, and I am not a widow; and I shall ⁸ in no wise see grief: for this reason in one day shall her plagues come, death and grief and famine, and she shall be burnt with fire; for strong [is] the Lord God ⁹ who judges her. And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived luxuriously with her shall weep and wail over her, when they see the smoke of ¹⁰ her burning, standing afar off, on account of the fear of her torment, saying, Woe, woe, the great city, Babylon the strong city! for in one hour thy judgment is come. And the merchants of the earth weep and grieve over her, because no one buys their ¹¹ b lading any more; lading of gold, and silver, and precious stones, and pearl, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet dye, and all thyine wood, and every article in ivory, and every article in most precious wood, and in brass, and in iron, ¹² and in marble, and cinnamon, and amomum, and incense, and unguent, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and cattle, and sheep, and of horses, and of chariots, and of bodies, and souls of men. ¹³ And the ripe fruits^c which were the lust of thy soul have departed from thee, and all fair and splendid things have perished from thee, and they shall not find ¹⁴ them any more at all. The merchants of these things, who had been enriched through her, shall stand afar off through fear of her torment, weeping and grieving, saying, Woe, woe, the great city, which [was] clothed^d with fine linen and purple and scarlet, and decked with ornaments of gold and precious stones and pearls!¹⁶ for in one hour so great riches has been made desolate. And every steersman, and every one who sailed to any^d place, and sailors, and all who exercise their calling on the sea, stood afar off, and cried, seeing the smoke of her burning, saying, What [city is] like to the great city? and cast dust upon their heads, and cried, weeping and grieving, saying, Woe, woe, the great city, in which all that had ships in the sea were enriched through her costliness! for in one hour she has been made desolate. Rejoice over her, heaven, and ye saints and apostles and prophets; for God has judged your judgment^e upon her.²⁰ And a strong angel took up a stone, as a great millstone, and cast [it] into the sea, saying, Thus with violence shall Babylon the great city be cast down, and shall be found no more at all: and voice of harp-singers and musicians and flute-players and trumpeters shall not be heard any more at all in thee, and no artificer of any art shall be found any more at all in thee, and voice of millstone shall be heard no more at all in thee, and light of lamp shall shine no more at all in thee, and voice of bridegroom and bride shall be heard no more at all in thee; for thy merchants were the great ones of the earth; for by thy sorcery have all the nations²⁴ been deceived. And in her was found [the] blood^f of prophets and saints, and of all the slain upon the earth.

XIX. After these things I heard as a loud voice of a great multitude in the heaven, saying, Hallelujah: the salvation and the glory and the power of our God: for true and righteous [are] his judgments; for he has judged the great harlot which corrupted the earth with her fornication, and has avenged the blood of his servants³ at her hand. And a second time they said, Hallelujah. And her smoke goes up to the ages of ages. And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and did homage to God who sat^h upon the throne, saying, Amen, Hallelujah. And a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his bondsmen, and ye that fear him, small and great.

And I heard as a voice of a great crowd, and as a voice of many waters, and as a voice of strong thunders, saying, Hallelujah, for the Lord our God the Almighty has taken to himself his kingly power. Let us rejoice and exult, and give him glory; for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife has made herself ready.

- ⁸ And it was given to her that she should be clothed in fine linen, bright and pure; for the fine linen is the righteousnesses^k of the
- ⁹ saints. And he says to me, Write, Blessed [are] they who are called to the supper of the marriage of the Lamb. And he says to me, These are the true words of God.
- ¹⁰ And I fell before his feet to do him homage. And he says to me, See [thou do it] not. I am thy fellow-bondsman, and [the fellow-bondsman] of thy brethren who have the testimony of Jesus. Do homage to God. For the spirit of prophecy is the testimony of Jesus.
- ¹¹ And I saw the heaven opened, and behold, a white horse, and one sitting on it, called^l Faithful and True, and he judges and makes
- ¹² war in righteousness. And his eyes [were]^m a flame of fire, and upon his head many diadems, having a nameⁿ written which no one knew
- ¹³ but himself, and clothed with a garment dipped in blood; and his name is called The Word of God.
- ¹⁴ And the armies which [are] in the heaven followed him upon white horses, clad in white, pure, fine
- ¹⁵ linen. And out of his mouth goes a sharp two-edged sword, that with it he might smite the nations; and he shall shepherd them with an iron rod; and he treads the wine-press of the fury of the
- ¹⁶ wrath of God the Almighty. And he has upon his garment, and upon his thigh, the name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords.
- ¹⁷ And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the birds that fly in mid-heaven, Come, gather yourselves to the great supper of
- ¹⁸ God, that ye may eat flesh of kings, and flesh of chiliarchs, and flesh of strong [men], and flesh of horses and of those that sit upon them, and flesh of all, both free and bond, and both small and great.
- ¹⁹ And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered together to make war against him that sat upon the horse, and against his army.
- ²⁰ And the beast was taken, and the false prophet that [was] with him, who wrought the signs before him by which he deceived them that received^o the mark of the beast, and those that worship^p his image. Alive were both cast into the lake of fire which burns with brimstone; and the rest were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which goes out of his mouth; and all the birds were filled with their flesh.
- XX. And I saw an angel descending from the heaven, having the key of the abyss, and a great

² chain in his hand. And he laid hold of the dragon, the ancient serpent who is [the] devil and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, and cast him into the abyss, and shut [it] and sealed [it] over him, that he should not any more deceive the nations until the thousand years were completed; after these things he must be loosed for a little time.

⁴ And I saw thrones; and they sat⁹ upon them, and judgment was given to them; and the souls of those beheaded on account of the testimony of Jesus, and on account of the word of God; and those who had not done homage to the beast, nor to his image, and had not received the mark on their forehead and hand;⁷ and they lived and reigned with the Christ a thousand years: the rest of the dead

⁵ did not live till the thousand years had been completed. This ⁶ [is] the first resurrection. Blessed and holy he who has part in the first resurrection: over these the second death has no power;⁸ but they shall be priests of God and of the Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand ⁷ years. And when the thousand years have been completed, Satan shall be loosed from his prison,

⁸ and shall go out to deceive the nations which [are] on the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to the war¹ whose number^v [is]

⁹ as the sand of the sea. And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city: and fire came down out of the heaven [from God]^w and devoured them: and the devil who deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where [are] both the beast and the false prophet; and they shall be tormented day and night for the ages of ages.

¹¹ And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled, and place was not found ¹² for them. And I saw the dead, small and great, standing before the throne, and books were opened; and another book was opened, which is [that] of life. And the dead were judged out of the things written in the books according to their works. And the ¹³ sea gave up the dead which [were] in it, and death and hades gave up the dead which [were] in them; and they were judged each according to their works: and death and hades were cast into the lake of fire. This^x is the second death, ¹⁴ [even] the lake of fire. And if any one was not found written in the book of life, he was cast into the lake of fire.

Jerusalem, coming down out of the heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband.

³ And I heard a loud voice out of the heaven,⁷ saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God [is] with men, and he shall tabernacle with them, and they shall be his people,² and God himself shall be with them,⁴ their God. And he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall not exist any more, nor grief, nor cry, nor distress shall not exist more, for^a the former things have passed away.
⁵ And he that sat on the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he saith [to me]^b Write, for these words are true and ⁶ faithful. And he said to me, It is^c done. I am the α and the ω , the beginning and the end. I will give to him that thirsts of the fountain of the water of ⁷ life freely. He that overcomes shall inherit these things, and I will be to him God, and he shall ⁸ be to me son: but to the fearful and unbelieving, and sinners, and those who make themselves abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, their part [is] in the lake which burns with fire and brimstone; which is the second death.

⁹ And there came one of the seven angels which had the seven bowls

full of the seven last plagues, and spoke with me, saying, Come here, I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in [the] Spirit, [and set me] on a great and high mountain, and shewed me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of the heaven from God, having the glory of God. Her^d shining [was] like a most precious stone, as a crystal-like jasper stone; having a great and high wall; having twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names inscribed, which are those of the twelve tribes of [the] sons of Israel. On [the] east three gates; and on [the] north three gates; and on [the] south three gates; and on [the] west three gates. And the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and on them twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.

¹⁵ And he that spoke with me had a golden reed [as] a measure, that he might measure the city, and its gates, and its wall. And the city lies four-square, and its length [is] as much as the breadth. And he measured the city with the reed—twelve thousand stadia; the length and the breadth and ¹⁷ height of it are equal. And he measured its wall, a hundred [and] forty four cubits, [a] man's measure, that is, [the] angel's.
¹⁸ And the building of its wall

[was] jasper; and the city pure gold, like pure glass: ° the foundations of the wall of the city [were] adorned with every precious stone: the first foundation, jasper; the second, sapphire; the third, chalcedony; 20 the fourth, emerald; the fifth, sardonyx; the sixth, sardius; the seventh, chrysolite; the eighth, beryl; the ninth, topaz; the tenth, chrysoprasus; the eleventh, jacinth; the twelfth, amethyst. 21 And the twelve gates, twelve pearls; each one of the gates, respectively, was of one pearl; and the street of the city pure gold, as transparent glass. And I saw no temple in it; for the Lord God Almighty is its temple, 23 and the Lamb. And the city has no need of the sun, nor of the moon, that they should shine for it; for the glory of God has enlightened it, and the lamp thereof 24 [is] the Lamb. And the nations shall walk by its light; and the kings of the earth bring their 25 glory to it. And its gates shall not be shut at all by day, for 26 night shall not be there. And they shall bring the glory and 27 honour of the nations to it. And nothing common, nor that makes an abomination and a lie, shall at all enter into it; but those only who [are] written in the book of life of the Lamb.

XXII. And he shewed me a river of water of life, bright as crystal, going out of the throne of God

2 and of the Lamb. In the midst of its street, and of the river, on this side and on that side, [the] tree of life, producing twelve fruits, in each month yielding its fruit; and the leaves of the tree for healing 3 of the nations. And no curse shall be any more; † and the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve 4 him, and they shall see his face; and his name [is] on their fore- 5 heads. And night shall not be any more, and no need of a lamp and light of [the] sun; for [the] Lord God shall shine upon them, and they shall reign to the ages of ages.

6 And he said to me, These words [are] faithful and true; and [the] Lord God of the spirits of the prophets has sent his angel to shew to his bondsmen the things which must soon come to pass. 7 And, behold, I come quickly. Blessed [is] he who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book.

8 And I, John, [was] he who heard and saw these things. And when I heard and saw, I fell down to do homage before the feet of the angel who shewed me these things. 9 And he says to me, See [thou do it] not. I am thy fellow bondsman, and [the fellow-bondsman] of thy brethren the prophets, and of those who keep the words of this book. Do homage to ‡ God.

¹⁵ city. Without [are] the dogs,² and the sorcerers, and the fornicators, and the murderers, and the idolaters, and every one that loves and makes a lie.

¹⁶ I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify these things to you in the assemblies. I am the root and the offspring of David, the bright and the morning star. And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that hears say, Come. And let him that is athirst come; he that will, let him take [the] water of life freely.

¹⁸ I testify to every one who hears the words of the prophecy of this book, If any one shall add to these things, God shall add to him the plagues which are written in this book. And if any one take from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life, and out of the holy city, ¹which are written in this book.

NOTES AND CORRECTIONS.

All the instances in which the article is wanting before Κύριος are not marked by brackets; but I give here all the passages in which Κύριος, which the LXX employ for Jehovah, thence transferred to the New Testament, is used as a proper name; that is, has the sense of 'Jehovah.' It is also used in the New Testament for a title of Christ, who as man has the place of Lordship over all things. "God," says Peter, "hath made him, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." I have put a mark of interrogation after those that are doubtful.
